Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Then Marion continued: "We had decided to leave early, and we were packing when the — screams—came."

Sheriff Lane dug his hands into his pockets a little more deeply. "I see," he said. He turned to her husband. "I understand you are planning to run for the Senate next spring, Mr. Carson."

A slow, terrible flush rose first in Phillip Carson's neck. It spread across his face. He glanced with a kind of tortured disbelief in his eyes toward his wife.

"Did Court also tell you that?" Phillip Carson demanded.

The sheriff smiled now.

"We have a more authoritative source for most of our information," he answered in an even tone. "You see, Mr. Carson, we have found Mrs. Grenable's diary."

Lisa Farwell had heard of verbal bombshells, but never in her life had she seen one as effectively dropped as Sheriff Lane's announcement that he had found the diary of Lavinia Grenable. Faces of individual significance scattered open all over the room, and from the expression on the sheriff's face, the achieved effect considerably pleased this offshoot of the law.

Marion Carson seemed to age in years. Elizabeth Stratton seemed to shrink in size quite visibly and the stare that she gave Henry Farwell made Lisa's spine prickle with fear. Apparently the diary meant something to Lisa's father also. Gert Palmer was watching Andrew. Lisa saw Angus Kent watching Court Grenable.

Lisa followed Angus's gaze. "Court! What is it?"

Small, glittering beads of perspiration stood out on Court's smooth forehead and his face flushed darkly like a little boy's caught doing something wrong. But there was nothing boyish about the fear in Court's black eyes. He didn't even try to answer Lisa.

"Interesting old harridan wasn't she?" Andrew observed. "Stop playing cat and mouse pal. Give us the plot."

"It's a very interesting one," admitted Sheriff Lane. "Some what involved, however. In fact, there's scarcely one of you who is not involved or furnished with a very reasonable motive — for murder!"

The sheriff removed his big hands from his pocket and spread them on his knees as he leaned toward the circle of startled faces.

"As I told you before, this is not a formal inquest," he went on. "The few days intervening before the inquest is to be held will give my men enough time to investigate all the clues thoroughly. Mrs. Grenable's diary has been safely put away. But if you are interested in the details, I can give them to you."

"By all means," Andrew spoke softly, apparently electing himself spokesman for the group. "Did Mother outline our little holiday gathering? Our esteemed parent had money, sheriff. She played a nice little game, the object of which was to see which of us would get disinherited each year. Did she say whose turn it was?"

Lisa asked for Geri's detachment.

Sheriff Lane went on quietly; "Blackmail, Mr. Carson, is not a pretty thing. Because Mrs. Grenable's diary included everything that occurred up to midnight preceding the day of her death on Friday, she managed to make quite clear her intentions as she stated them to you and Mrs. Carson on the evening of your arrival here."

"Lavinia scarcely needed to resort to blackmail," Phillip Carson said uneasily.

"Blackmail of the spirit, shall we say?" Lane qualified. "Mrs. Grenable knew you were anticipating running for Senator. So s' e threatened you with her memoirs."

"That's about right," said Phillip Carson.

"She planned to riddicule my husband with petty family grievances," Marion Carson lashed out.

"She didn't approve of your marriage, Mrs. Carson," the sheriff replied uncomfortably. "Her diary suggested that this marriage of yours was the cause of your father's death."

The sheriff nodded in agreement with Lisa's father.

"Perhaps she was," he admitted. "But to separate the false from the factual is something else again."

He went on summarizing the contents of Mrs. Grenable's diary in a weary voice:

"Miss Stratton, your sister made it quite plain that she felt it would be—well, for her pleasure to remove you from her household. As Mr. Farwell told me, your predicament brought this to this house that afternoon and into a heated discussion with Mrs. Grenable.

"There was something in back of Lavinia's plan, sheriff," Henry Farwell insisted. "She had something behind her threat to Elizabeth. She wanted to talk about my daughter Lisa's engagement and I refused to discuss the matter with her. She said she approved of it. I'd like to know why she approved . . ."

Court Grenable interrupted Mr. Farwell: "I suppose this diary of my mother's mentioned — other things?" It was the first time Court had spoken since the sheriff mentioned the diary.

Sheriff Lane turned to Court Grenable. "Yes, Court, Mrs. Grenable's diary did mention other things." Court seemed ready to wilt. "I assume you're asking if it mentioned your coming marriage to Miss Farwell."

Lisa saw that the sheriff had misread Court's fear. It was not what Court feared it would reveal. Lisa saw the actual relief slip into Court's eyes and a certain pleased expression remain in them.

"Ah, no!" Again it was the half amused, half bitter Andrew Grenable who interrupted. Andrew seemed to be enjoying himself immensely. He looked at his brother Court with a malicious mischief in his eyes. "Not just the marriage, hey, Court?"

And then wheeling abruptly in his chair, so that his long, bony legs bent sideways and his angular face came closer to Lisa, Andrew spoke partly to her, partly to the sheriff.

"Don't you know? Don't you really know any of you?" Andrew glared at them for their ignorance. "Mother really didn't approve of the marriage. She never approved of anything from the day she came on this earth, to the day she fell off it. But mother pretended to approve the marriage of her eldest son to Henry Farwell's only daughter. Don't see if you know why?"

"You sold my father the colt that my mother wanted years ago didn't you?" Andrew asked Mr. Farwell.

Henry Farwell nodded his head. And then, even before Andrew Grenable spoke, a terrible expression began to grow in Lisa Farwell's. And from that expression came panic within herself.

TWO CONFIDENCE VOTES RECORDED IN PARLIAMENT

Govt. Free to Carry on Two Main Policies

Ottawa, Feb. 17 (CP) — Two confidence votes from the Commons left the government free today to go ahead with its manpower and rearmament policies.

The votes yesterday saw the House turn down demands for compulsory military training in the reserve forces and also reject contentions that the government failed to raise necessary defence forces and to combat inflation and the cost of living.

The divisions, won by the government on two-to-one votes, cleaned up the annual Throne-Speech debate and cleared the decks for action on the government's "blank cheque" bill for economic control powers and its proposed billion-dollar war loan, a new department to speed up defence production.

However, these bills will not be proceeded with immediately. Finance Minister Abbott, Monday is "private members' day," and priority then is given to legislation brought in by non-cabinet members.

Two Bills Coming

Private members' bills due for consideration this week include one by Wilfrid Lacroix (L-Quebec-Montmorency), to ban the communist party, and another, sponsored from J. L. MacDougall (L-Vancouver-Burrard), calls for shifting Parliament holidays from other weekdays to Mondays.

Right after that, it is expected, the government bills will be dealt with.

Over yesterday's votes, the government's preponderant majority easily beat back two non-confidence motions, each time with the help of different elements of the opposition.

Other construction job at the airport, which will not be completed for three years, will cost an estimated $20,000,000.

British Diplomats Feel Stalin Blast Makes More Urgent Than Ever Conference of Big Four

London, Feb. 17 (CP)—Prime Minister Stalin's interview broadcast Friday night was his first public statement on international relations for more than two years.

He then expressed his readiness to make a joint declaration outlawing war between Russia and the United States and said he had no objection to meeting President Truman to discuss such a peace pact.

At that time he said Russia would be willing to issue with the United States a joint declaration that the two countries would not resort to war with each other and would co-operate in measures to implement such an agreement, leading to gradual disarmament.

In the same written interview, Stalin denounced, as he usually does, no objection to meeting with President Truman to discuss the possibility of concluding a Soviet-American peace pact.

However, these bills will not be proceeded with immediately. Finance Minister Abbott, Monday is "private members' day," and priority then is given to legislation brought in by non-cabinet members.

Western Leaders Say Russia Should Demonstrate with Facts Contributing to World Peace

London, Feb. 17. (AP)—Western European countries agreed today with Joseph Stalin that war is not yet inevitable, but they asked him to prove he means it.

Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi said Stalin's statement would be more assuring if Russia would demonstrate with facts contributing "to a true peace."

The Russian prime minister, in an answer to Hollywood producer Mervyn LeRoy broadcast over Moscow radio last night, charged the United National Front is a tool of the United States, but added that war was not yet inevitable.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said:

"We do not regard war as inevitable at all. In our view there is no reason why this should be solved by peaceful negotiation, given goodwill. Unfortunately, on one side, such goodwill always has been, and always will be forthcoming."

In West Germany, a government spokesman said his country found it "sad and disheartening that the Soviet leaders repeated the old phrases of alleged aggressive intentions of the west and Russia's "firm love of peace".

"Everybody meanwhile has learned that it is Russia's great and superior armament which compelled the west to take drastic defence measures."

French Opinion

The French government reserved official comment pending a study of the full text. A spokesman said, however, that he did not think Stalin's remarks had materially hurt the chances for a Big-Four meeting, although it may have changed the atmosphere of the situation.

"This is typical example of Soviet design to show dissension in the free world and to exploit the cold war fear that exists throughout the world," the British spokesman added.

The statement—the most important from the Soviet leader in two years—was announced in repeated broadcasts by the Soviet radio network.

In London, unofficial diplomatic sources said they were puzzled over the timing of the statement, coming as it did after the three western powers had agreed in Paris next month as a probable forerunner to a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting.

It is felt here that the Russian leader's statement has aggravated the east-west tensions the proposed Big Four sessions were designed to ease.

There was conjecture whether Stalin's denunciation of the U.N. as a "tool of aggressive war" could be a prelude to a Russian withdrawal from the U.N., or whether it was just some more Soviet abuse. Most diplomats were inclined to the latter view.

49 P. C. UNFIT TO DRIVE.

Toronto, Feb. 17 — (CP) — Traffic Commissioner Arthur Page said Friday 40 per cent of motorists, because of lack of skill, technique, efficiency and knowledge, are unfit to drive.

The Canadian Safety Club that Canada's highway fatality record, in proportion to population, now is worse than that of the United States.

However, although Ontario's 1950 toll was high at 800, Toronto's record of 58, was, on a per capita basis, lower than that of any other large North American city.

FIVE BARRED FROM SCHOOLS

Kitchener, Feb. 17 — (CP) — Five girls aged 12 to 14 years involved in morals charges will be barred from the Kitchener public and High School Board from attending public schools.

The board yesterday decided that the girls will be "excused" from classes until their future is decided.

Earlier Friday, nine youths were sentenced to terms of imprisonment and 10 strokes of the strap for offences against young girls.

Greek Juliet Will Have to be Without Her Romeo for 2 Years, He's in Jail

Canea, Crete, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Crete's modern Romeo, Costa Kephalogyannis, was convicted today of carrying arms without a permit and sentenced to two years in jail.

The fiery Costa had been accused of kidnapping an armed band to kidnap his Juliet, 19-year-old Yassoula Stavrakaki, daughter of a liberal member of parliament. The couple's families have been feuding for years.

Conviction on a charge of leading an armed band would have carried the death penalty.

Costa seized Yassoula on a Herakleion street last August and carried her away to storied Mount Ida. They were married in a lonely monastery and spent a honeymoon in mountain caves.

The raven-haired Yassoula, an expectant mother, was unable to attend the trial. She sent word to the court from Athens that she was ill with influenza. Informed in jail of the court's decision she sobbed: "It's unhappy news. If he has to serve his term in Crete, I'll return to be near him."

Yassoula's father, furious at the kidnapping, had sent the mountain-take legal action to have the marriage annulled.

Yellowfaced Costa, a mountain-eymoon in August, Costa and Yassoula flew to Athens to seek the blessing of Greek Orthodox Archbishop Spyridon. Liberal Premier Sophoules Venizelos interceded, going to the archbishop's palace to speak to all contending parties.

The archbishop gave his blessing, but politics entered the mountain-top romance and Costa found himself was burned out.

Influenza Peak Believed Past In Most Sections in Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

"Legislators, soldiers, miners, hockey players and trainmen have been added to the list of Canadians stricken by influenza, but medical authorities believe the disease has passed its peak in most communities.

Virologists have not yet definitely determined that the Canadian influenza is caused by the same lethal virus that killed more than 8,000 Britons recently, although they say symptoms are similar.

Montreal last night reported 20 more deaths among elderly persons caused by flu, making a total of 39 in the city since St. Catharines, Ont., two deaths were attributed to the disease.

Sessions of the Ontario legislature were curtailed through the absence of 20 members.

Labor Minister Daley and Welfare Minister Goodfellow are the five other members were reported ill. Toronto continued her comparatively mild epidemic, only nine cases having been reported although five deaths this year are attributed to flu.

An unofficial estimate placed the number of Ontario cases at 10,000. However, medical authorities said it is impossible to estimate as many persons are treated at home.

Two Ontario soldiers at Camp Borden, Ont., are in hospital with flu. Ten Ontario traffic to the Hamilton district.

At Moncton, N.B., the epidemic is considered past its peak, as well as in Prince Albert, Sask., and Kingston and Brockville in Ontario. Cornwall, Sudbury and Sarnia in the latter province continued to stagger under flu, and several more smaller centres reported schools closed and hospital visiting banned.

Dr. Harold Orr, Manitoba hockey association junior A team defaulted to Brandon team 10-3 although minus four of its regular players due to flu.

Flour production has been cut by one-third in Glace Bay and New Waterford, N.S.

Details Means To Minimize Subversive Work

Edmonton, Feb. 17 —(CP)— Hon. C. E. Gerhart, chief of Alberta's Civil Defence organization declared bluntly yesterday that there are between 500 and 600 "spies" in the province.

Mr. Gerhart, addressing the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, detailed some of the methods subversive work in industry.

He urged careful study by employers of present workers and applicants for positions. He suggested tagging and fingerprinting all employees as a security measure.

Mr. Gerhart, also Alberta's Minister of Municipal Affairs, warned that slow-downs, sabotage, production, adulteration of goods and increased injuries to workers could be a vital part of sabotage work.

Court Declares Trust Fund Set Up Invalid

Toronto, Feb. 17 — (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal Friday declared invalid a $700,000 trust fund set up under the will of late Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Cox for employees of more than 50 Canada Life Assurance Company employees and their dependents.

The fund was a pension scheme of the company.

The court directed that the money be paid to go to other beneficiaries of the couple.

Mr. Justice Aylesworth by J. D. Arnup, counsel for Margaret Jane Ardagh, a beneficiary under the will, held that the terms of the fund was invalid because it went beyond the rule prohibiting perpetual trusts except those for such purposes as advancement of education, religion and community welfare.

ARTISTS JOIN TRADE UNION

Toronto, Feb. 17 — (CP) — Two of Britain's leading artists have joined a trade union—so they can paint pictures.

They joined the Sign and Display Workers' Union to fall into line with other signwriters and commercial artists employed at the site, where a union closed shop has been enforced.

FROST PROMISES DAIRY INDUSTRY RESEARCH AID

Govt. Will Help Find Butter Substitute

Outside the Legislature, Premier Frost had a bit of good news for dairy farmers. The Ontario Research Foundation will make its facilities available to the dairy industry to help to find a butter substitute, made from milk products, to compete in price with margarine.

In the House, a bill aimed at an equitable distribution of country road funds between rural and urban areas of counties was introduced by Highways Minister Doucett.

In a press statement, Premier Frost promised financial assistance to help to dairy men. He did not amplify this reference.

The industry has advocated a dairy spread in the last two years that sale of margarine has been legal in Ontario, Mr. Frost said:

"If a cheaper brand of butter can be developed from dairy products, it will help the farmers recover some of their revenue lost to margarine sales."

Aim of research, dairy sources said, is to find a process for making by-products and fresh cream to develop a cheaper brand of butter for quick sale.

Exercise Mukluk Party Seeks Out Coldest Spot in Wind-Swept Wastes

Fort Nelson, B.C., Feb. 17 — (CP) — Eighteen members of Exercise Mukluk — Arctic winter clothing by personnel of the R.C.A.F., the R.A.F. and the United States Air Force—began the way point today by plane for the wind-swept wastes of Victoria Island, north of the Arctic.

Finding the coldest spots possible for winter tests is the prime force "guinea pigs." The party spent two weeks in the Fort Nelson area region. The temperature reached 49 below zero at one point, but the bush afforded some protection. On Victoria Island there are no trees or bush, and the wind cuts like a knife.

At Cambridge Bay on the south shore of Victoria Island, the 18 airmen and six civilian observers will build igloos and live in them for about two weeks. Pneumatic tents also may be tested for warmth. These operate on a double-wall principle, the space between being pumped full of air.

Each six force section will test several types of clothing made in their own country. The British will also test winter rations. Each man will fill out a diary every day saying what clothing he wore, whether he was warm and, if not, why he was cold. The party will also jot down the level of the mercury in the camp.

Canadian personnel taking part in the exercise are: FO. Fred A. Brown, Trail and Victoria, B.C.; Sgt. Max Leverne Holt, Paddockwood and Winnipeg, Sask.; FO. George B. Ridley, Victoria; FAC. Bill Witter, Edmonton; FEA. Scott Alexander, Ottawa; Dr. John Hunter, Toronto and Prof. Lawrence researcher; and Dr. Thomas Boag, Montreal, medical practitioner.

Three N. Korean Divisions Fail To Dent Flank

South Koreans Push Back But Under No Pressure

Accurate artillery fire and counter-attacks blunted the forces of the enemy punch, shifted eastward from bloodily-reputed encircling areas of Chipyong and Wonju.

The smash at the east flank near the transport hub of Chechon, a mountain gateway to south Korea, was the only serious enemy threat. The reds massed 15,000 or more men in the area for a late night report, said that only spearheads had been committed.

Eastward on the coast, South Korean troops made a deep pullback from the 38th parallel to a new defence line but under no enemy pressure.

Westward for 70 miles to Seoul, there was scattered, small-scale fighting.

Around Wonju and Chipyong, where Chinese reds suffered 22,128 casualties in four days but failed to break through, allied patrols ranged no more than two miles from the main withdrawal finding reds Chinese Regroupling

The Chinese-led Chinese pulled back the remnants of four divisions for regrouping, but there were about 100,000 Chinese and 150,000 Chinese reds still might try to punch the centre and outflank imperil 100,000 United Nations troops around Seoul.

Three separate battles flared Friday night and Saturday around Chechon, 75 miles southeast of Wonju. Accurate U. N. artillery quickly broke up a red attack at 11.40 p. m. Friday at the 38th northeast of Chechon.

At about the same hour, a red regiment assaulted south Korean units 10 miles northeast of the town. By 3 a. m. Saturday the attack subsided.

The third action was initiated at nine point northeast of Chechon by South Koreans against a battalion of North Korean columns.

Found No Live Reds

Thirty-four miles northwest of Chechon, French and U.S. patrols ranged more than two miles north of Chipyong, finding no live reds with the bodies of Chinese reds. The patrols found no live reds, but found many signs of the reds. Hukchon River and a road leading northeast to the enemy hub of Hongchon.

Other patrols reported no contact while moving 2 miles north of allied positions 4 1-2 miles north of Wonju, and 2 1-2 miles southeast of Chipyong.

Red ground casualties in Korea have been estimated at 74,417. This brought to 106,746 the total estimate of enemy dead, wounded and taken prisoner since June 25.

On the Western front, U.S. and French troops were in contact with enemy resistance Saturday while mopping up a pocket south of the Han River near Yangpyong 18 miles north of Ichon. Kyongan is 18 and Ichon 31 miles southeast of Seoul.

Unfavorable weather cut allied air activities Friday down to about 500 sorties, less than half of the record 1,027 flown Thurs-

Nine Youths Each Given Six Months, 10 Strokes of Lash

Kitchener, Feb. 17 — (CP) Nine youths were each sentenced to six months in jail and 10 strokes of the lash when they appeared Friday on morals charges stemming from the recent investigation into activities of a group of girls 13-14 years old.

Six of the youths were charged with having carnal knowledge of under-age girls and three with indecent assault. All but one pleaded guilty.

Magistrate H. R. Polson in passing judgment suggested the youths attempt their rehabilitation elsewhere after they serve their sentences. "The finger of contempt" will always be pointed at them here, he said.

Previously the court heard A. W. Boos, counsel for one of the youths, say that the case is the most shocking he has encountered.

He suggested the girls involved had a shocking degree of sexual knowledge and were possibly more aggressive than the youths. His plea was echoed by other counsel.

Sentenced on carnal knowledge charges were Douglas Smythe 20; Charles Mansfield 17; Edward Cochrane, 22; Ambrose Joseph Freiburger 16; Harvey Leonard Prang 18; Lawrence Kocher 24.

Sentenced on indecent assault charges were, George Degan 17; Glenn Guthrie 18, Waterloo and Lloyd Gerhard Erkenfritz, of the group only Smythe and Guthrie have records, the court was told.

MINERS AGAINST SEAWAY

Allied naval forces pounded both Korean coasts Friday in diversionary bombardments. Carrier borne planes added their power to the frolic-like punch, of allied artillery.

World Bright, New To Girl After Eye Operation

Chicago, Feb. 17 (AP) The world is bright and new and "people look wonderful" to 22-year-old Virginia Rigdin since she has been virtually blind since she was a child.

"It's grand to see again," the pretty blonde manicurist said yesterday, after a particular operation. Everything is so new, so interesting."

A delicate cornea transplanting has restored the sight of her right eye, which was progressively dim. Nov. 30 at Passavant Memorial Hospital a bandage was removed for the first time 10 days ago when the bandages were removed. She plans to go to a regular operation on her left eye later.

Miss Rigdin, at the age of five, suffered an eye ailment that caused malformation of the cornea of both eyes. Her childhood was spent in semi-darkness. With the aid of contact lenses she was able to distinguish objects within three feet.

Brig. Fraser Fulton Named General Chairman of Civil Defence Planning Committee

Organization of the Belleville and district civil defence planning committee took place in the council chambers at city hall Friday afternoon when a special council men representative of civic bodies and the various services including fire and police, met to discuss what might be necessary for the protection of this area should war or emergency arise.

The general consensus was that the Belleville area would not be termed a target area for bombing attacks but the two greatest problems would be anti-sabotage and the reception of casualties and other persons from areas in a possible target zone.

Brig. Fraser Fulton of the Northern Electric was named general chairman of the civil defence planning committee and civil defence officer, while Mayor R. T. Potter, K.C., and Reeve Ernest V. Fulton will comprise the control committee.

Alderman Darby noted that civil defence was something new but it was most essential that we take an interest. "Planning must be both practical and applicable," he said.

Many Volunteer Assistance

He said that several organizations in the city, including Red Cross, the St. John Ambulance Brigade and Veterans' organizations had volunteered assistance. The offers were sincerely appreciated but he emphasized the necessity of all working through the one committee.

Assuming the chair as head of the civil defence planning committee Mr. Fulton noted that the planning of the local committee primarily consider this as a reception area, therefore the welfare section would be important. Anti-sabotage measures would also have to be considered.

Committee Heads Named

Service committee heads were named for welfare, hospitalization, health, communications, transportation, fire and police and other branches of civil defence work. These committee heads will be authorized to name others to their committees, and to decide what measures must be taken.

Regular general meetings will be held until further notice. When a is expected organization of a civil defence division would be undertaken. Members of the civil defence division would be the persons who do the actual work when any emergency arises.

Principles of Salesmanship Are Honesty, Knowledge And Hard Work, Club Told

The role of a successful salesman entails head-work, hard work and honesty, members of the local Sales and Ad Club were told at their regular monthly meeting held Friday evening at the Hotel Quinte.

As guest speaker for the evening Mr. James Mackoy of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, Montreal, stressed that salesmanship generally is understood to mean the selling of goods, but certainly has influenced that people's minds or the persuading of people to "do what you want them to do."

"Actually," he said, "we are selling ourselves from the time we are born until we die."

He illustrated this by noting that a baby called itself by crying to attract attention and thus gain what he wanted. Later in school the child "sold" itself to gain a place on a sports team, to be in the cast of a play and otherwise.

Successful Man

Mr. Mackey emphasized that a successful man is a salesman regardless of what he sells, and that in life, and a good salesman always goes ahead. Examples of good salesmanship were Billy Rigdin, president of the American Tobacco Company and Cecil Bond, president of Lever Brothers.

Rigdin had been an immigrant with 10 cents in his pocket. He was first a barber, then decided to become a salesman, but with no experience. He was given only a few months to show that he could be a successful salesman, and went rapidly to the top. Now as head of his company he still works 10 hours a day and spends hundreds of dollars doorbells "just to keep in practice."

Head Work

Headwork in salesmanship meant use of brain power; and there was no substitute for hard work. Honesty and the right personality of the salesman with the courage and discipline to "get out and sell."

In closing Mr. Mackey stressed there was no definite set of rules and pointed out that selling did not depend only on the sales department. The goodwill of other members of the staff was also important.

The speaker was introduced by Frank Postlock with thanks being extended by Ernie Taylor for Sales and Ad Club president Bill Stovin was in the chair.

Pembroke Couple Denied Right To Adopt Child

Toronto, Feb. 17. (CP)— A Pembroke couple Friday were denied the right to formally adopt the little girl they have brought up since shortly after her birth in 1947.

The decision, handed down in a written judgment by Mr. Justice T. I. Ferguson, in the Supreme Court of Ontario, marked another step in the lengthy legal battle Mr. and Mrs. Keuhl Viola Vermeulen have been waging to foster their natural parents and foster parents.

The Toronto lawyer, on application by Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Gibson of Pembroke, to formally adopt the child they have been bringing up as a Protestant. The Pembroke parents said the decision would be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The child's natural parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Keuhl, of Sydney, N.S., gave their consent to adoption for custody approved by the courts before they moved to the possession of the little girl. Mr. and Mrs. Keuhl are Catholics.

"Although the law may dispense with the consent of parents who are not fit to have custody, or give the same, I do not think it goes so far as to enable the court to make an order where the parents not only do not give their consent but strongly oppose the making of the order," said Mr. Justice Ferguson in his judgment.

The Pembroke couple first made application for the child's adoption in 1949, with Judge John T. Mulchay of Renfrew, reserving decision. Before a decision was handed down, Mr. Keuhl, who had consented to adoption at the time of the child's birth, withdrew that consent. The case has been before the courts since that time.

Aged Brighton Couple Trapped In Burning Home Rescued By O.P.P. and Bread Driver

Trenton (Special) — Presence of mind of a telephone operator and the quick action of a Provincial Police corporal saved the lives of two bed-ridden octogenarians from trapping in their burning home at Brighton yesterday.

The aged couple were dragged to safety by the police corporal and a passing baker seconds before they were overcome by smoke.

Cpl. Harry Caldwell of the Trenton O.P.P. detachment, said later that he and Burton Seaborn, Brighton baker, were lucky to get Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Edge, age 88 and 84 years, from their home alive.

The house was gutted in the fire that resulted from an overheated pipe and broke out between the first and second floors, smoldering there for some time before bursting into roaring flames. The house was nearly demolished by the time volunteer firemen had the blaze under control. Damage to the house and contents was estimated at $2,000.

The alarm was turned in by Mrs. Eddy's niece, Mrs. J. S. Johnston of Grafton, who was washing dishes in the kitchen when she noticed the smoke. A neighbor, Mr. Hanlon Armstrong, elderly man himself, went to the rescue but had to abandon Mr. Eddy on the landing at the top of the stairs when the smoke became too thick. The police corporal found Mr. Eddy lying on the floor, overcome by smoke.

Mrs. Johnston tried to put out the fire with a pail of water. She then ran up the stairs to the kitchen with the second pail when the heat and smoke forced her back.

Groped Way Out

Mrs. Eddy, clad in night attire groped her way out of the room and had to roll herself to the floor as temperature forced her back in the house and she was located by the glow from the outside fire and flames.

"The smoke inside was so thick we had to feel our way to where Mr. Eddy was lying on the second floor landing," Cpl. Caldwell said. "We couldn't breathe inside, and had to hold breath while we bundled him out."

Telephone operator Mrs. Elma Mills thought to call the OPP office when the alarm came into her switchboard. She had called the Eddy home a week earlier to relay aid was sought for Mr. Eddy, who had fallen on the slippery

They are located on Crown-owned land on the northern shore of Deadman's Bay, behind Fort Henry.

Cottagers built or bought there on the understanding the land would have to be vacated if needed for military purposes.

Notice of quitta' states further that the cottages, if not moved, will be demolished and the land returned to its original contour at the expense of the present licencees.

A spokesman for Eastern Command — whose name was not disclosed — said creation of married quarters at nearby Barriefield Camp makes the notice necessary.

A History of Belleville's Hospital

By Kathleen L. Rust

That sounds like a large order, a very large order, and it was the first hospital between Toronto and Kingston, a thrilling accomplishment.

Having heard of the extraordinary unique character of the Belleville hospital, I was anxious to get some of the details, and one fine myself, to the extent to which it had grown from the humble beginnings, of which it had been told. I was escorted over the place, for a "look" it really is, by the charming Miss Laura Johnston, then the Director, now Nursing, who seemed to have all the time in the world to give to an inquisitive female.

Through the wards, down into the pit of the boiler rooms, up to the bright and airy laundry, and to all the little nooks and crannies, except, of course, the confidential files. When we arrived at the two rooms where the linen is sorted and stored, I went "wild" my "sad tucked underneath my arm". All those many piles of sheets and pillow slips and towels was just too much for human eyesight in these days of mass gauging the family plate to buy a pair of shoes.

Memories Happening

Generally a hospital is started by a municipality, or a group of doctors, or a group of business men. But very few, if any, in all places throughout the country where the hospital was founded, money or incentive to provide themselves with such a service. Belleville was the first, and that something momentous happened to Belleville on the 21st day of B. Jaques arrived to become principal of Albert University, now called Albert College. He was accompanied by Mrs. Jaques, one of the most revered women of her time, who had already acquired a reputation for her work of Christian charity in those cities where her husband had been stationed at various universities.

In the early days in which it is said that "onlookers see most of the fun," newcomers to a place are most of its beauties and failings, which have become so commonplace to the natives, that they go unnoticed.

All great things start with one person's idea. Mrs. Jaques used the grave need in Belleville for an organized society for looking after the poor, sick and friendless of the community, who had no one to care for them. Such was the state of affairs that decent, respectable people were forced to live in the jail out of sheer poverty. There was no hospital, no one to take aged, no children's aid society.

Christian Charity

Not only was Mrs. Jaques imbued with the spirit of Christian charity, she was fired with the courage and zeal, the faith and determination which have ever been necessary in those who would work for the good of their fellow beings — often a thankless task.

However, she called together women representatives of all the churches in the city and made an earnest appeal to them to unite in forming some sort of society or association for the help of the poor and needy. It is rather notable that the club did include the men. Her personality and enthusiasm were such that the women quickly saw things through her eyes, and agreed to co-operate with her in the forming of such a society.

The members would be required to conduct a survey of the poor of the city, visit the jail, establish of home for the aged and friendless of the city and plan for the building of a hospital for the sick of the city and county. This has ever been the great shining aim to which they aimed.

Executive Elected

Accordingly, on Monday, November 19th, 1879, the Women's Christian Association came to be confused with the W.C.T.U.) came into being. At the inaugural meeting the first officers elected were: president, Mrs. B. Jaques; vice-presidents, Mrs. N. Jones, Mrs. Wm. Poulon, Miss Bleecker; recording secretary, Miss G. G. Usborne; corresponding treasurer, Mrs. J. R. Hayes.

After the death of Mrs. Jaques in April 1880, Mrs. Jones became president and Mrs. Robert Archibald was elected first vice-president.

Directors, one from each church, were appointed and committees named, for "Religion and Goal" which was for the purpose of visiting the jail, — the "Magazines" part was for the women in jail; supplies; home regulations; devotional work; building; ways and means; Dorcas Society; care for the needy and the hospital; and advisory board.

The next step was to draw up a constitution and after much discussion, the thoughts and suggestions, the aims and objects were boiled down to a practical form and the late Mr. John Ball, Q.C., (first solicitor of the old G.T.R., now the C.N.R.) drew up a constitution for the organization, of which Article one says, "the Society shall be called the "Woman's Christian Association, of Belleville, Ontario." Article two sets out "the objects of this Association shall be the spiritual and social welfare of women and children, the elevation of society and the suppression of intemperance and immorality."

Membership Fees

The fees were to be; "Any woman may become a member of the Association by paying one dollar annually; a life member by paying $100; a life patron by paying $200. Gentlemen may become honorary members on the same terms."

And then, with a constitution drawn up, and a membership of some 90 members, the next step was to obtain a charter which would give them the power to build a hospital and home for the needy. Again Mr. Bell acted for them, and drew up a petition. This was registered at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, April 3, 1880, under the Act of the Legislature of the Province of Ontario, Chapter 167 of the Revised Statutes of the said Province, entitled "An Act for Incorporating Benevolent, Provident and Other Societies."

And now, all set with a legal "go ahead" there just remained the little item of subscriptions. One would have thought that the people on the whole, even if not enthusiastic, would have accepted the idea in a kindly and tolerant sort of way. But not the ancient and ever new bugaboo raised its ugly head to confront the community as a whole could see was an increase in taxes to support what they would term a white "elephant — it would be non-productive and non-profitable which is non-productive must be slapped flat, even if it was for the saving of human life.

The women were attacked by the newspapers, by the city council, in the legislature, and on the streets. Where did they think the money was to start all that money? And how did they think they were going to maintain a hospital, even if they ever did get it built, and where did they think they were going to put it? and so on and so forth, till the subject became the "Battle of the Hospital".

But while the building of a hospital was the great aim, the newly-formed "W.C.A." was willing to start in a small way, for they knew that the immediate and urgent need was a home for the destitute.

The first step was to procure a house. To those there was then no housing shortage, no rent control, and one could think it WOULD be no trick at all to get a vacant house. But landlords were loath to let a house for this purpose for fear it might depreciate the value of the property, or if one were found who was willing to rent, he was so besieged by the neighbors that he had to decline.

It could not have been harder had the society been trying to establish a smallpox hospital. At last a house was found on the west side of the river, opposite the old "Asbury" where the Corbin Lock Co. now stands. Mrs. Jaques and Mrs. Jones drove from door to door, solicited furniture and gathering up odds and ends — a dish here, a chair there, a pair of curtains or a frying pan, till the modest little house was furnished.

In a glow of well-deserved satisfaction the women paid rent for it, and installed those most in need of the services we have to offer." They were surprised and dismayed to find that those very people whom they had laboured would have nothing to do with the home they offered. There were times when the street poverty and discomfort; illness so feeble that they were unable to be found dead any morning. But they thought they were being shoved over the hills to the poor house or the workhouse and would have none of it. The women felt that, if only once get this place actually in operation, they would break down the prejudice.

First Patient

Then two elderly ladies that a cousin be admitted to their home. He was paralyzed and unconscious, but was by no means living, in a neighboring municipality. (Keeping the expense was being born by the city. This was satisfactorily arranged on both sides, and he became the first inmate. But some master mind pointed out that the first thing the people knew "those women would have all the poor on the country" on their hands to be supported by the city. Up to this time the city had been paying out plenty for the indigent, in one way and another.

However, the council, once the home was established, and after some gentle wheedling, agreed that they would allow these people to remain, but that the home must be granted; for the home, some $400 per year, in view of this they thought they should have some voice in the use of this contribution. Thereupon "those women" the W.C.A., pledged themselves to look after any more needy from outside the city. The women then approached two or three clergymen whose congregations were contributing to the support of these elderly ladies, and asked if they would allow these people to visit their flocks, and asked if they would allow these people to visit their flocks, and asked if they would allow these people to visit their flocks

TREND IN HEALTH SERVICE

The trend of public health organizations and workers is to apply the words, credited to Mohammed, "if the hill will not come to Mohammed, Mohammed will go to the hill." Public Health and Welfare magazine shows that more and more present-age public health workers are adopting the "doctrine of bringing their health-giving office to the job when they cannot bring their job to the office.

This is shown in the example of trends in the arthritis clinic, a medical service which has been given by the Canadian Arthritic and Rheumatism Society and by the mobile laboratory which has recently been put into commission by the Dominion Department of Health and Welfare's laboratory of hygiene.

These vehicles will make it possible for therapists to transport their sometimes bulky equipment to the homes of those arthritic victims who would not otherwise have the benefit of the services of the clinic owing to their inability to get to the clinics in the hospitals.

How thoroughly the modern trend is in this bringing of health to the victim is indicated in the fact that each vehicle carries a qualified therapist, in some cases an assistant therapist and also carries a complete collection of equipment used in such phases of medicine and treatment of their malady.

These vehicles made their appearance in a large number of Canadian cities and more of them will shortly be available as soon as branches are organized to finance and direct their operations. The units are being purchased out of a $500,000 fund collected and donated by the National Health program. All the operating expenses and salaries of physiotherapists are paid by the society out of funds contributed by the general public.

Their aim is to supplement the work of arthritic clinics which are being established in hospitals.

How widespread is arthritis is indicated by the figures which are given. It is estimated that there are 650,000 Canadians who are suffering from rheumatism and arthritis, many of whom are unable to attend hospital clinics.

The new travelling laboratory is a 40-passenger bus, stripped of all passenger accommodation andfitted up with the equipment necessary for a modern laboratory.

The mobile plant will be used for the testing of perishable specimens which cannot be shipped from the field to central laboratories. It permits laboratory work being done on the spot without delay.

One of the pressing problems today is the disabled members of society. According to "Health and Welfare," it was not until the last war that an integrated concept of rehabilitation was evolved to restore the handicapped to the fullest usefulness and productive capacity.

TRACES ANCESTRY TO KING EDWARD I

Two years ago a New Zealand farmer, Gordon Deed, wrote to the editor of Debrett's Peerage in London to check on vague reports that his family had "good connections" in Britain, says a CP dispatch from Auckland. He was amazed to learn that he was the direct descendant through 19 generations of King Edward I of England and through 24 generations of King David I of Scotland.

Since then Mr. Deed has spent his spare time assembling further data on his family, said to have one of the most interesting genealogies discovered for many years. He has a collection of coats-of-arms, all of which he is entitled to use, and family trees going back to the days of William the Conqueror. He has had letters from Americans in Britain, America, and many other parts of the world.

But it is a hobby only. All the research has not shown that Mr. Deed is entitled to any titles or estates. On the contrary, the family tree has given a good deal of money.

Despite his ancestry he is still working the dairy farm that his father won from forest and swamp 60 years ago at Otaua, near Auckland. He hopes that his eldest son Walter may follow him when he leaves school.

But he still feels slightly dazed when he contemplates the proofs of his descent. "I can't get over it," he says. "I feel surprised whenever I look at all these papers. I don't know what I'm going to do with them, except perhaps frame them."

APPRECIATED GIFT

Hughie Vezina has retired after driving a truck for 25 years for a North Bay firm of wholesale grocers, says Stratford Beacon-Herald. During that time he has driven his truck 350,000 miles — with nothing worse than an occasional bump. Mr. Vezina came to acquire an affection for his veteran vehicle, just as a man may acquire an affection for a horse with which he has jogged around the district all those years, and to mark their appreciation of his services, and to avoid the prospective blow of separation from an old friend, the manager of the company presented the truck to him as a parting gift. Mr. Vezina is delighted. If that truck had any way of expressing its feelings toward a new driver, we imagine it would indicate them, such as by becoming balky when another man pressed the starter.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

For some years, scientists held the idea that sun-spots had something to do with the seven or nine year cycle of plenty and scarcity which occur in such wildlife as ruffled grouse, rabbits, lynx and certain of the fur-bearing mouse creatures.

But this was knocked on the head by the discovery that the cycles do not follow the same pattern, or even approximately the same pattern, or even approximately the same time as the sun-spot cycles. The groups may be almost extinct in the Great Lakes area, but over the height of land and down around Hudson Bay they are at their nine year peak. It proved the same with the records of the fur trading companies. Their books showed that the nine year cycle of the lynx and rabbit reached its peak in one region, while four hundred miles away, at another point, the cycle was at the lowest ebb.

One of the other of the different parasitic diseases or epidemics that afflict the various wild creatures is therefore the main aspect in the mystery of cycles. It stands to reason that the greater the population of grouse, the easier it would be for a parasite or disease to be widely transmitted. Those years when an epidemic are not only those with the greatest natural reproduction, but being few in number and scattered, they give the parasite or disease little opportunity to get loose again. Then, as the numbers increase over the years, the proportion which has no special immunity is also increased; and in due course, the peak is reached, at which the epidemic, perhaps, runs riot again.

Why is the cycle seven or nine years? That period appears to have fairly general validity for all animals, and, as it begins to be indicated, is the factor which differs among the fishes. Biologists are exploring the mystery those particular numbers, which rule the cycles, though the cycles are revolving, a few hundred miles apart, on entirely different calendars.

Honeymooners Make On Old Tow Barge

Port Arthur—(CP)—Capt. and Mrs. Anthony Rukki spent their honeymoon on a tow barge after they were married last year. Now the veteran lakeshipper and his wife are spending the winter on the barge, locked in this lake's head port.

They say they wouldn't trade their roving "palace" for a short mansion.

The 358-foot Delkote, owned by a timber company, hauls pulp logs between the lakehead and Detroit until freeze-up. This is its first winter at the lakehead.

The Rukkis draw electricity from a cable strung to an adjacent dock. But they must go to the Sailor's Institute, 100 yards away, for drinking water.

Mrs. Rukki says she is not as a member of the ship's company, says: "Miss shore life? Not me."

Eastern Churchman Condemns Attitude of Western World

London—(CP)—A challenge to the Christian Church of the western world for an attitude of understanding and Christ-inspired communism dominated countries, has been buried by Dr. Joseph L. Hromadka, dean of theology at the University of Prague.

In an open letter, published in the current issue of The British Weekly, described as a "journal of Christian and social progress," Dr. Hromadka declares the Church is at the crossroads of history and must act to avoid "full-fledged disintegration."

The editor of The British Weekly in a footnote to the letter, explains that the Czech churchman, a figure of recent controversy throughout the Christian world, had been invited to state his case. He fled from Prague when the Germans invaded Czechoslovakia in 1939 and made his way to the United States. He served for a spell at Princeton, N.J., as guest professor of comparative religion. Later, he returned to help the communist - ruled native land where he has taken a leading role in the setting up of the church of Czech brethren.

In his letter Dr. Hromadka says that a Christian living in a communist country is keenly aware that a great change is coming from the present arena of his activities. It had been necessary to re-adjust completely our ideas of worship and action. Sentimentality and sanctimony had been scrapped.

But that does not mean that "we have to take the upheavel or history seriously—regardless of personal sacrifice.

Within the last two years, he says, a deep gulf has been drawn tighter between the churches of the two main sections of the world, "and the constant danger these two factions would cease to understand one another. The result of this being a new body responsible for that most unfortunate thing in the world. "What I wish to stress is the disquieting self-assurance of very many Western churchmen and theologians that they are free of any self-imposed prejudice and particular, that only the other side might be the victim of propaganda pressure, a police supervision and of a systematic indoctrination.

"We are aware of the perils within ourselves. But what we need from you is an attitude of brotherly trust."

Critical of Council

Dr. Hromadka was sharply critical of the statement issued in Toronto last summer by the central committee of the World Council of Churches in commending the action of the United Nations in Korea.

"In a tragically decisive moment of world history the World Council of Churches identified itself—under most dubious circumstances —with one group of great powers backed its military action and encouraged all U.N. members to participate," he said.

He believed the endorsement was an unfortunate and irreparable error. It was addressed to a communist - ruled native land where he has taken a leading role in the setting up of the church of Czech brethren.

Decorate Paris To Observe Gala 2,000th Anniversary

Paris.—(AP)—Paris will celebrate the 2,000th anniversary of its founding this year whether the historians agree or not.

Actually, the city's records assert, referred to the city of Lutetis Parisiorim (now simplified to Paris) as existing in 53 B. C. The Parisii, a tribe of Celtic Gauls, founded much earlier than that.

Whatever the exact date, everyone is agreed that the Ile De La Cite on Notre Dame (known today) was the birthplace of Paris. It still is the geographical heart of the city.

The Seine, largest of three marshy islands embraced by two arms of the River Seine, the first Parisii lived in huts of willow branches and rushes by savages.

Julius Caesar, building Roman camps came and for four centuries the infant Paris remained in relative obscurity.

In the 14th century, while Europe was locked in a 100 years war with England, Paris was still unspoiled.

Several French kings then and later helped embellish the capital. Among them were Philip Augustus, Francois I, Louis XIII and Louis XIV.

But as new features were added, others were destroyed.

The feud between Roman Catholics and Protestants succeeded the 100 Years War.

The St. Bar Riots

In 1572 Paris turned one of the bloodiest pages of its history. Two-thousand Huguenot Protestants were killed on the secret order of the mad King Charles IX in the massacre of Saint Bartholomew.

Eighteen years later amidst wild rejoicing the Protestant king —Henry IV of Navarre—rode into Paris.

Until the, too, Paris was getting its first reputation as a city of light morals. But the people were pro-peace-through-a certain stability back to Paris. He started building the Arch of Triumph but was toppled from the throne before it was finished.

Fifteen year after all Paris was seething. The last Bourbon king, Louis Philippe, was thrown out after bloody rioting and dull Louis-Philippe of the House of Orleans succeeded the citizen king as constitutional monarch.

Then the revolutions were thrown across the streets. Louis-Philippe hastily abdicated.

Paris would have four uneasy years of turmoil under the Second Republic before Napoleon III, great-nephew of Napoleon, founded the second Empire in 1852.

Always haunted by his fear of the Paris mob, he wanted wide boulevards and open squares so the populace could be controlled—if necessary by the sword—in event of riots. An area was laid out around the first Napoleon's Arch of Triumph. Long, straight spaces from which eight boulevards radiated. Between them were theaters, city parks and new bridges, were constructed.

But the war shadow fell again in 1870 when Bismarck's Prussians battered Paris with cannon and destroyed and Napoleon III was taken prisoner.

Finally, spike-helmeted Prussians stomped down the Champs Elysees—a march they were to repeat 70 years later under Hitler. The once-gay Paris was a city of gloom.

When the Prussians withdrew, the revolutionary government of the Commune held sway. Thousands were executed within its few months rule, before the third Republic gained control.

Twice Paris was threatened directly by German advances of 1914 and 1918. On the first occasion, with the enemy armies at the Marne, Paris was turned into a cab drove relaforcements to the front.

In the Second World War-Paris was a sullen, defeated city, until the day of liberation, Aug. 26, 1944.

Now, with conditions almost normal, Parisians are worried that another war may make a new page in their city's stormy history.

But celebration plans are going ahead. Fetes, pageants, balls, illuminations are all being prepared.

SPEAKING OF SPECIALISTS

In a total of 95,336 physicians in general practice in the United States, according to a recent census by the A. M. A., 21,976 give particular attention to a specialty. Many of these with general practitioners would like to discontinue making night calls, filling out blanks, vaccinations, and listening to the eternal yakety-yak of relatives, neighbors and courteous "friends" of the patient and devote all of their time to the specialty.

Of the 95,362 doctors in the census, those who had not become specialists at the time the A M A census was made, nearly 70,000 are interns, resident physicians or full-time hospital physicians, leaving only about 25,000 family doctors in the country today.

Now hang on to your hats. Competing tooth and nail with those 70,000 grossly unqualified for your patronage, whatever you think ails you, are 24,291 practitioners who do little but refer patients to a specialty.

Another indictee is sick. The profession is badly infected with specialism. The primary inoculation comes in every school where the student is imbued with the superiority of the specialist and the humble station of the general or family doctor. Then the press and even politicians whipped up the socialized medicine agitation. In the discussion of an issue, the medical schools are advising students that graduates that they'll fare far better if they are specialists of one sort or another. If the state government takes over the practice of medicine, they say.

Except in the institutions where medical care is given the patient, there is practically no charitable organization or the community, which is not operated as comparable with a corporation. The doctor or doctors who hold fort as a family physician and do get away with many tricks which are not to be considered disreputable for a doctor who practises under his own name—and I am prepared to substantiate this statement if any physician of standing challenges me—but the "clinic," in short, is an aggregation of ethical quacks organized for the purpose of separating the Yankee wisecre from his easy money. Every modern racket-ship is worked on the assembly line principle. A thorough "check-up", for instance, calls for:

The clinic racketeers like that term—because it is a much more lucrative than physical or medical or health examination. It overcomes the natural reluctance to pay, a dread common with the non-protein nitrogen when his friend back home had a basal metabolism test, and the wonderful Rube Goldberg apparatus "everything" test.

The machinery of the trick specialists and clinic racketeers is impressive and naturally expensive. At from $3 to $15 per test all along the line the grand total amounts to something to be remembered a long time. If, perchance, any of the items tests show a departure from the normal—there you have it, a machine diagnosis.

Simple minded folk who take it for granted that a doctor who holds himself out as a specialist knows more or has had better training than an "ordinary" doctor make the best customers for the "clinics." They probably enough they register the most grateful patients in that the trick specialist charges three to ten times as much as the family doctor charges for the same service—and that's the way you like it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Cultivation of Boils

Son, nine years old, has had a succession of boils on the back on his arm in the past few weeks. We have been using wet epsom salts packs. (Mrs. F.)

Answer — Fingers, dressings, knives, nothing should be in direction (Staphylococcus and Streptococcus) from the first boil to another one. Let the first one start a new one. Poultices especially; the first one is the principle: Never touch. Earlier a boil is opened by aseptic (surgically clean) technique the better. Drain or give vent to the pus (Staphylococcus Aureus) that produce pus. the better. After incision or puncture, large hot, moist dressings should be applied for several days. Application of ordinary table salt and teaspoonful to pint and a half (or cup of hot water), fixed in place by firm bandage, hastens healing. Attendant should always regard the boil and skin around it as unclean. Soap and water is handled the longer the victim will continue growing boils.

Tuberculosis

Answer—If frequent means every day or two, yes. But there is practically no danger in casual visit to an intelligent, conducted sanatorium, provided only quiet conversation is exchanged and that visitor keeps at least 3 feet away from patient. No kissing.

THE WEATHER

Probably no single thing so influences people's actions as does the weather. But it is one thing that we can do nothing about. We can't like it or let it comes and grin and bear it.

You know that saying of Mark Twain's about the weather, that everyone seems to complain about but did nothing to change it. Well, how like the weather is our attitude toward so many things. We complain but do nothing about it.

We can even have a weather of our own, regardless of the rainy day we have the moody day, a shower of sunshine or gloom in our thoughts, or—praise be—sunshine of the mind and a day of hope and gladness. There is a balance to nature's weather. Each of these weathers may have a purpose, saved to our credit, and a healthy result achieved by our own manufactured weather. We can enjoy a cheerful frost—no matter what! I met a friend in a restaurant one evening. He had just come from the funeral of his sainted mother, but there was a beautiful smile in his face as he exclaimed: "God rest her beautiful soul." Through that cloud of sadness shone that beautiful smile in a beautiful shine of hope shining trough.

How is the weather in your mind and heart today? We can all put this question to ourselves but it does not change it. Well, how like the weather is our attitude toward so many things. We complain but do nothing about it.

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ABODE OF SPIRITS

People often become very discouraged over the fact that their faith perceptibly declines under certain circumstances and at certain periods of their lives.

The English preacher, John Angell James, has written a little thing that makes faith faith is that it has to stand up to a great deal. "Faith is like a tree with many arms," he says, "we could do very well without it."

We make a great mistake when we allow ourselves to become moody over what appear to be fluctuations of faith. Some of these fluctuations are real and are the result of weakness and evidences of spiritual change and probably of spiritual growth. But very often what we take to be a decline of our faith is some physical change within us which causes our moods to become melancholy.

For most people there is more definite relationship between physical health and the robust health than we usually recognize. Many times our spirits have been great saints, but taken by and large the vitality of one's re-sistance is largely conditioned by the way he feels physically. What he regards as religious doubt is very often sluggish digestion, poor circulation, or unregulated habits of life.

It is well for us to remember that our spirits live in our bodies and that they respond as tenants usually do to the condition of their dwelling place.

TWEED

Council Learns Water Tests Not Satisfactory

Tweed—At the last meeting of Tweed Municipal Council held last week, a letter was received from Proctor, Redfern and Leighton, stating that two samples of water analyzed from the new deep well, were not altogether satisfactory. The first one showed an iron content of 1.70 parts per million, which is approximately five times higher than the permissible limits. The second sample, showed iron to the extent of five parts per million, which means that the water would be unsuitable for domestic use unless it was aerated and filtered to take out the iron. This analysis is a disappointment.

Mr. Redfern said in his letter and he suggested that Council plan to put down two more, wells, relatively shallow, compared to the depth of the present one.

Mr. Redfern had suggested previously that a test hole be put down on the east side of Victoria Street, a little distance south of the tower. A second test hole was put down near the north end of Victoria St. For test holes 50 to 75 feet deep, one is not likely to run into water having a high content of iron. He suggested putting these down.

Reeve Graham said he did not think fair test were taken at the new well and suggested that further tests be sent the Department of Health to date. He said he would well be re-pumped and more samples taken for the tests. Samples of the still have been forwarded by the M.O.H. Dr. F. J. McCoy, and people are still advised to boil the water.

Overdue Taxes

The matter of overdue taxes came in for considerable discussion on village properties. Three owners were present and promised to have their taxes cleared up at the end of this year. A number of properties three years in arrears for taxes, will be forwarded to the County Treasurer, and will be sold at the tax sale next November. The owners will have an opportunity to redeem them at that time.

A letter from H. A. Harrison, county assessor, expressed a desire to meet the council at the earliest possible date, to discuss re-assessment of Tweed. Increased insurance rates on the municipal building were discussed at same length, when Messrs. Douglas and Harvey Spencer appeared before council. No action was taken at this time. A number of very low tenders were received and ordered paid.

FROST PROMISES

Mr. Doucett told the House his bill was prompted by dupplicants of towns and villages that they were not getting enough in return for road levies paid to their counties.

Had to be in by Spring

The line, between St. Marys and Seaforth across 44 farms, had to be in by spring. The commission would pay whatever was ordered by the Municipal Board, which would give farther help by engineering or advice.

An increase of 11 percent in the number of Ontario residents sent to prison in 1950 was shown in the annual report of the Department of Reform Institutions tabled in the legislature.

Some 20,807 were sent to prison in 1950, compared with 33,-000 in 1949. Last year's figure was equivalent to 8.33 of every 1,000 residents.

Numbers committed for trial increased 10.63 percent, and admittances to Reformatories for Industrial Farms increased from 7,882 to 8,063.

Pay For Equal Amounts

It will require counties to pay t wns and villages an amount equal to the maintenance cost of a 22-foot road, Mr. Doucett told the c unty roads which extend into town and village streets. Counties would also have to pay the cost of the ordinary road levy paid by t.wns and villages, if the law applied to street construction and repair.

The highway bill is also aimed at making it easier for a city or a town which pays no county r.ads to provide adequate urban road. It will drop the requirements for a two-thirds vote of the town or city council which ing it spend more than the statutory minimum.

Thursday's near-battle on a Staffa district farm, when 150 farmers mobbed a provincial police officer after trying to halt construction of a hydro line, gave an airing in the legislature Friday.

Mr. Challies said the Hydro Commission had tried before careful, when putting hydro lines across farmers' lands, to explain to farmers what their rights were and what they would be paid for land rights and damage.

"The commission was more careful than usual in this case, because there was a resistance," M.. Challies said. It had always urged unsatisfied farmers to appeal their cases to the Municipal Board.

Approve Seven Bills

The legislature in committee of the whole approved without amendment seven routine government bills, which now are free to be given third reading. Among them were bills to reduce the maximum work week for firemen from 72 to 56 hours, and require provincial approval for indigent mental patients treated in public hospitals; provide for compulsory X-ray inspection of persons suspected of having tuberculosis.

Eight Ontario judges earned a total of $8,684 in fees and expenses for advising the cabinet on conciliation boards during 1950, Premier Frost said.

Each sat on at least five boards, Mr. Frost said, replying to a question by Lloyd Fell (CCF —Toronto Parkdale).

Influenza, which has closed schools and factories down through itself felt in the legislature Friday when the house rose after a brief sitting.

Illness of two cabinet members —Ladies Judy Gaynor and Welfare Minister Goodfellow — who were to pilot key legislation on the new panel, left the house with nothing to do after 90 minuter.

Seven legislators were listed as ill. Other seats were vacant at the end of a busy week.

TWO CONFIDENCE

The vote was 146 to 15 on a Social Credit non-confidence motion demanding compulsory training in the reserve forces for home defence, a subject that provided the main topic of debate for two days.

Supporters Vote Solidly

Government supporters voted solidly against the motion and they were backed by the bulk of the Progressive Conservatives and the CCF. The 10-man Social Credit party was supported by four breakaway members from the Progressive Conservatives and Independents.

A Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion was defeated, 115 to 46. It alleged the government failed to provide leadership, failed to raise forces necessary for defence and to meet international obligations, and to take steps to deal with inflation and the rising costs of living.

The CCF and most of the Social Credit party voted with the solid Progressive Conservative ranks on this motion.

With its defeat, the traditional address in reply to the Throne Speech was adopted, ending that long open forum in which members are free to express their views on any subject. That meant speeches from now on will be confined strictly to the business at hand.

Won't Meet Needs Claim

In the final debate yesterday on the Social Credit party's compulsory service demand, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said military training in the reserves for home defence would not meet Canada's need at this time. The first requirement was for regular forces being ready to undertake military tasks anywhere.

He said there was no inconsistency in his party opposing the compulsory-training scheme while supporting a resolution criticizing the government for not having provided the troops for home defence. It would take a long time to do this through reserve-force training.

Besides Mr. Drew, speakers in the concluding phases of the debate included Percy White (CCF —Melfort); J. M. Macdonnell (PC —Toronto Greenwood); Gordon Higgins (PC—St. John's East); J. S. White (PC—Hastings-Peterborough); C. E. Johnson (SC—Bow River) and Robert Fair (SC —Battle River).

"We do not want some compulsory form of service that creates an apparent pool of men who are not available for whatever service may be required in the defence of this country wherever that defence should take place," said Mr. Drew.

"Let us in these critical days deal with the first things first. The first thing is to get on, belatedly it is true, but nevertheless get on as quickly as possible, with the job of creating defence forces in being not tied to the United States, not three years or four years from now as would be the effect if compulsory basic training young men and women for a few hours a week in reserve forces.

Lists Seven Objections

"We can tackle that job calmly and effectively and satisfactorily when we have made sure we have created the forces to meet the immediate tasks we may be called upon to face two months from now, three months from now, or in fact any month between now and next November, when the world as it is now passed its first great climacteric in this immediate threat of Soviet world conquest."

Mr. Drew listed seven objections to compulsory military training in the reserve forces at this time.

"1. We have no instructional staff available to carry this out.

"2. We have not the drill halls that would create a false sense of security wholly unrelated to the urgency of the situation.

"4. It would divert attention and divert manpower—from the immediate and urgent task of creating forces in being.

"5. It would mean an immense withdrawal of manpower at a time when this country is short of manpower to produce those things which nature has made it possible for us to produce for our allies as well as ourselves.

"6. We have not before us in this house, outside of the government, the kind of the information which is essential to an adequate consideration of this problem.

"7. No other country with a similar dual type of force has yet adopted, and I believe for good reasons, a form of compulsory service in the secondary force."

Mr. Drew said there was no inconsistency in his party opposing the compulsory training motion while sponsoring the criticism of government for not having provided the troops needed for home defence and to carry out international obligations. His party still stood by its criticism of the way the government had handled defence matters.

Suggests Committee

Mr. Johnston suggested a parliamentary committee be established to solve the manpower question once and for all. The United Kingdom and United States had adopted universal selective service and now had no trouble with their manpower problems.

Mr. Wright called for national registration of manpower dispersal of industries and action to see that there was equality of sacrifice "right down the line."

Mr. MacDonnell urged the government to do more to stress the urgency of the current situation and said the opposition will hold the government to the strictest ac-

Mr. Fair said Pr. Drew had been "quibbling up a wire man and trying to knock it down," and he accused the party leader of misrepresenting the Social Credit non-confidence motion.

Mr. White said the idea of conscription in the reserve force was not feasible. It could not possibly be put into effect and would it provide equality of service.

The "terrible farce" of conscription in the last war, with its inequality of service, was among the reasons why it was difficult to get men to enlist now. He would not support any form of conscription that was "political or of the back-door type."

Julian Fleguson (PC—Simcoe North) proposed that those making munitions and other commodities should be put on the same pay basis as the men in the front lines. Also, Labor should be represented on the manufacture of non-essentials to goods needed for defence.

He would not support the Social Credit non-confidence motion, but would vote with those calling for national registration.

Mrs. C. Hayward Addresses University Women's Club

The regular meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and vicinity was held at the home of Mrs. A. C. Locke, this evening, at 8:00 p.m. Previous to noon, sat at 6:00 p.m. a buffet supper was served. Forty members of the club were present.

Miss Constance Hayward was the speaker for the evening. In introducing the speaker, Mrs. D. J. McKinnon said that Miss Hayward, who lives in Kingsmere Warwick, educated at Acadia; University of Toronto, and in London, Eng. England. For several years she served on the Canadian National committee for refugees.

Basic Principles of Society

At present, Miss Hayward is liaison officer of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration. In her talk on "Citizenship and Immigration", Miss Hayward said: "Good citizenship depends on the understanding of the basic principles of the democracy and the obligations of democratic principles. This is a quality of character of the individual which expresses itself in his relations with society, that is with other members of the community and the government.

"The citizenship branch seeks to encourage by every means possible of good citizenship by co-operation with voluntary organizations and other agencies, national and organizations play an important part in our democratic society as they are performing a great service in assisting the integration of newcomers."

Common Interests

Educational authorities provide language classes; the department of citizenship and immigration makes available language texts and booklets on Canada. This training is valuable but it must be followed by an opportunity for the immigrant to know Canadians and other citizens in the community life. This is where the voluntary organizations come in. They make it possible for the immigrant to visit individual citizens, to see with common interests, whether it be music, wood-carving or sometimes the immigrant can only take place when the individual is accepted for his own worth, regardless of race or ethnic origin. Vera Wyn Evans.

* * *

Integration is a two - way process: the immigrant cannot do it alone. . . . There are many ethnic groups in Canada and each of us must integrate with them, others; integration has also two aspects: a recognition of differences, in culture, and in others, and also the recognition of strong common bonds in citizenship. The common bonds consist of loyalty to Canada; in understanding of—the—importance of the British tradition and the need of the individual to co-operate in society; and to the will of each to maintain these fundamental principles."

A short discussion period followed.

Miss Ruth Silvester extended appreciation, thanks to Miss Hayward for her thought - provoking interesting and worthwhile address.

Home Education Group Addressed By W.J.Musgrove

W. J. Musgrove B.A., Director of Guidance in the city schools addressed a well attended meeting of the Home Education Group in the Queen Mary and Prince Charles Home and School Association last Thursday evening. Mr. Musgrove outlined the group's courses in Guidance currently in use in the Belleville schools.

Many parents have not a true concept of the word "Guidance", stated Mr. Musgrove, who explained that the objective of Guidance Training was "to fit all round satisfactory development of the child. Pupils must fit themselves into an educational program as satisfactorily as possible. They must also fit themselves into society in a proper way and they must have a vocational goal.

The speaker pointed out that no two children are alike and that each child should be encouraged to develop his potentialities. It is the combination of abilities that make the individual.

The parents were given an opportunity to examine the various tests used by the children.

After a question and answer period Mr. Clinton Calnan expressed the thanks of the group. Mrs. L. Hudgins, convener of the Home Education group, announced plans for further meetings which will be held every two weeks, being the last to be a regular meeting of the group.

Arts, Music at B.C.I.V.S.

The arts (music, painting, sculpture, crafts) play an important part in our everyday life, though so much is taken for granted that if we stop to say "where," "when" and "how" the questions often go unanswered.

Hendrik VanLoon in his book "The Arts" says, "Art is universal. It is not bound to any particular country, particular period or human race and is just as much a part of man as are his eyes, ears and hands." He states that in his lengthy research he has never come across a race of people who was completely without some form of artistic expression.

Though we quite realize that some subjects as art and music have much in common, they differ separate them and see to what purpose each is being taught in our secondary schools.

In regard to music one should remember we are not primarily attempting to develop and produce musicians of great ability. The course is patterned in such a way that the child may obtain a better understanding and appreciation of music and to live more joyfully through life. He is encouraged to live the life of the spirit and fill with his hobbies, and other phases of his life.

The primary medium to appreciation and understanding is participation. The child who sings in class in a special group, or in the Glee Club will reap more knowledge and appreciation of it than gained from any book on "singing." Participation gives the individual the advantage of pursuing deeper the elements of good music, and the Glee Clubs offer a thrill that comes to those who love to blend their voices in a harmonious way and produce harmony. par excellence.

Participation is again seen from another angle when we think of instrumental music. Those are those whose talent for playing is more keen than singing. Your instrumental teacher provides an opportunity for the child to select and study the instrument of his own choice. Again we have the value of ensemble work brought out by the combining of band and orchestra.

Like the wise old owl, who, "the less he knows the more he heard", we have listening time, when stu-

Blend of Light, Heavy Drama Presented by B.C.I. Students

The Dramatic Club of B.C.I.V.S., mixed light comedy with heavy drama last night in the form of plays, and left an appreciative audience well satisfied with the blend. They started the evening off with Gertrude Jennings' "Pigeon Pie", which took place dealing with yearnings of a gentleman jewel thief, and ended with Dorothy Daniels' story works, "The Valiant", by Hall and Middlemass and "The Patchwork Quilt", by Rachel Field.

Outstanding in the first play was Marion Blakeman, in the part of Mrs. Treherne. Her house is invaded first by a bewildered burglar. He is caught at his work by a highly-polished and dignified Colonel Edward, and is eventually turned over to the police by Edward makes off with the diamond necklace. Miss Blatherwick's light manner on the stage was the subject with her very well, and she was nicely partnered by Douglas Hinchey, who played Edward. At times, his performance was somewhat forced, but he carried off the best part of his piece very nicely.

Douglas McIlwraith did well as the foiled burglar, and the other parts in the production were done adequately by Alex Cathcart and Bill Spencer.

The second play was a portrayal of a man who was going to the gallows and would not admit his true name either to the warden of the prison or his religious counsel. They both feel that the condemned man is going under an alias, and attempt to break his silence.

The part of the murderer, James Dixy, was built up very nicely by Ron Eaton. He was the most relaxed person on the stage "i' plight, and, as a consequence, gave a polished performance. Running him a close second was John Luscombe, portraying Father Day. Luscombe was able to get his teeth into a meaty role, and did it justice throughout. Not so fortunate was Jay Howard, who played the warden. His small stature hampered him in his role, and he never quite overcame it fully.

Donna Cameron did well as the girl who came to see Dyke before he went to the gallows to find out if he was her brother, and again Bill Spencer was adequate as a policeman.

"The Patchwork Quilt" was the story of a woman befuddled by her age, in the clutches of a scheming daughter and evil son-in-law. She holds the secret to the whereabouts of a deed which will allow her to continue living the old family mansion, but it is locked deep in her memory, and becomes apparent to the audience only through a series of flash-backs.

The lighting in this particular sequence was of much value in the creation of the mood. Margaret Walkom, as the old lady, took to it very well. She was supported by Alex Abbey as Anne Wendall, and Bruce Smith as Joe Wendall. Minor parts were taken by Jarka Novak, Bob Langlois, Lois Scriven and Ruby Dickie, as old ladies.

Miss Walkom was completely engrossed in the living out of her part, and has the assistance with her to the end. Miss Alyea had enough brass to put her opposite part over with him, and Bruce Smith, while a little stiff, also did well.

The first two productions were directed by Miss N. Merry, and the last by Charles Sloan. (U.S.)

The 20th century trend to suburban living by which the city dweller attempts to get back to the land — without getting back too far, is responsible for a new way of life which is probably lasting into one as admirable as it is laughable and about as comfortable as it is inconvenient . . . The advertising executive races to the parking lot to get home early enough to try out his new tractor before sundown. His wife has tossed out her high heels and nylons for wagon boots and slacks . . . The family shopping is limited to the weekly excursion to the groceteria five miles off. Everything that needs fixing is left until Saturday afternoon or Sunday when operations domestic are inevitably paralyzed by the arrival of literally dozens of city acquaintances just out for a drive and a nice homey country supper.

Not only is suburban life responsible for early rising which makes commuting possible, but it is responsible for of all things—the revival of the nightshirt. Any man with two acres will tell you there's nothing to equal a complete nightshirt on a zero night! Those Canadian pioneers certainly knew a thing or two.

Heading being warmer in bed, the "slumber gown," as it is tagged today, has the added convenience of allowing a man to be almost completely dressed or undressed while standing before his hot air grate. Incidentally, they tell us too that besides being the practical answer to "slumber gowns" are much easier to launder.

Plastic has its advantages and its disadvantages. Take for instance the incident of a neighboring bride. Entertaining shortly last summer she was just stepping out of the bath when she heard the soft words from the cellar overflowing. . . . To cut off the supply meant going outside and turning a switch close to the back door.

Sensing the possible calamity of a flooded cellar, she tore out of the bathroom, threw on her raincoat and dashed wildly outside to the switch. In her excitement, she forgot that her raincoat was transparent plastic.

To throw a party before a person leaves on a long journey is an old, old tradition. The last few months have seen quite a few parties for friends going abroad on holidays. These, flicky people avoid trouble, by sending them with small travelling gifts, which is all very well. But the thing is, if you're going on a holiday, you don't need a party as much as someone who goes for a stay home. Next time, we're all for remembering the home made somebody who can't go abroad.

Uncle Frontenac says the trouble with most modern democratic administrations including the Allied armies is that there are too many chiefs and not enough Indians.

A brief address on the work and the needs which gifts should help to make possible also showing the relation of the theme, "Prayer", fact love and faith out fear," to these projects, was given by Mrs. E. Twiddy, of Beulah United, Mrs. B. Beckel read Romans 8.

The offering was presented by Mrs. John McIlmroy, and Mrs. Harold Thompson.

A duet was given by Mrs. George Wood and Mrs. Earl McMaster, "Prayer".

Intercessory Prayer

Rev. G. Olford of the Standard Church, Ivanhoe, delivered a stirring and timely message on "Intercessory Prayer".

"There is nothing we need more than prayer. We are terrified by the 20th century at the sight of the value of prayer. When God's people were in trouble in the Old Testament times, they laid hold on God in prayer and God answered them. God is our only hope today. We cannot depend solely on our military organization and strength —for if God is not for us we perish".

Mr. Olford said the altars have been broken down and urged they be set up again in homes, churches and in the homes.

He concluded his address by saying, he believed "that if our nation, a so-called religious nation, knew God and Christians knew Him, and prayed as our ancestors prayed, we need not fear our enemies as God would protect and deliver us from them."

MADOC

Canadian Club Speaker

Dr. Edward Johnson

Dr. Edward Johnson, world-famed operatic tenor and retired dean of the Metropolitan opera, will speak in Belleville on Tuesday evening. He is being brought here by the Women's Canadian Club, and while Dr. Johnson has not announced the subject of his speech to the club, it is expected that he may deal with his days with the Metropolitan.

Dr. Johnson, Guelph-born, was recently featured in a coast to coast radio program, and at that time emphasized his hopes for the establishment of young singers in Canada.

His soprano voice changed to one of the world's finest tenors, and with practice, he carried himself to the top of the musical ladder. Dr. Johnson studied in Italy under celebrated vocal tutors and then returned to Chicago to sing with the Civic Opera Association. Soon afterwards, he became the Metropolitan's top tenor and eventually took over the direction of the hub of opera in America from Herbert Witherspoon.

Dr. Johnson has been noted for his generosity with young singers, opera, and advocated Metropolitan tenure for his dream early in his career. On the other side, he has not lost his ideas of sponsorship and recently gave a $25,000 for the development of music among the children of Canada.

And for many years has given an annual donation to aid pupils who show artistic promise.

Tuesday's address is open to the public.

MADOC

Parent-Teacher Assoc. Holds Interesting Meeting

Madoc — The Parent-Teacher Association of Madoc Public School held their February meeting in the public school on Tuesday night.)

The meeting was a different type to any previous meetings. The Madoc public school staff was responsible for the program and they felt that parents were showing an increasing interest when meeting over their children's progress and have expressed a desire to be of assistance wherever possible. With this in mind, the staff arranged a program dealing with the subject of reading, bringing out the causes of poor reading, and remedial steps to correct the same.

Reading Important

Mrs. Rupert, the president, after the opening, turned the meeting over to the principal, Mr. W. F. Rothwell, but before doing so, expressed the fact that the meeting was one of the most important subjects, for the child and person was best informed. If one can read well, he has access to knowledge of the whole world. Mr. Connor, she stated, was considered one of the best teachers of reading in Canada.

Miss Connor gave a paper and took as her subject "Reading Readiness" and "Teaching Primary Reading." She clarified the subject and stressed that a child was not necessarily ready to read at six years of age.

Miss Lessard reviewed the subject of "Choral Reading" and pointed out that it was a great help to the shy, nervous child to learn to speak in a group. Miss McCurdy followed with a group of children, giving a demonstration of choral reading.

Senior Reading

Mr. Rothwell took as his subject, "Senior Reading", and stated in the course of his remarks that if a child was a fluent reader he could be well educated regardless of his formal education having stopped at an early age.

Mrs. McCoy gave a demonstration lesson totally unrehearsed, with the co-operation of a group of her pupils. Her subject was a poem, "Jack Frost", and it was then attended with the parents followed the development of the lesson to a successful conclusion in the intelligent and fluent reading of the piece.

Enjoyable Staging

An enjoyable feature of the program was the singing under the leadership of Miss Wurm, music supervisor. Several groups of children of different ages sang a variety of numbers and it was a revelation to hear with what sweet melody and interpretation the children were able to carry on, giving pleasure to both singer and listener.

A social half hour followed under the supervision of Mrs. Derry, Rounding and Mrs. Mahon, who, with her students, was responsible for the making and serving of the refreshments.

Mrs. Don Donohoe presided and opened the meeting.

Reports Given

The secretary read letters of thanks from Mrs. H. Hulin and Mrs. A. Scott for cheery remembrance cards.

Mrs. A. Wells, in the absence of Mrs. F. Jeffery, gave the treasurer's report. The calling committee reported twenty calls made. Mrs. Armstrong reported an increase in Blue Cross Hospital rates. A vote taken decided the meetings to be held in the homes for the remaining winter months; the March meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. H. Wells with Mrs. Harold Fraser in charge of the program.

Mrs. Bob Lucey took charge of the program and Mrs. Maurice Bell read the 23rd Psalm.

The Immigrant

Mrs. Lucey welcomed Rev. H. C. Vachvick, B.A., to address the meeting. He spoke feelingly on Christian fellowship becoming a more serious fact within the church and in connection with the problem of immigration, quoting several pathetic stories from his experience with immigrants landing in Montreal. He felt that people never having realised the lesson to be learned in the entirely new country with a different language; no money, and friends to help after being forced to leave one's native land and good home, should be the effort of giving everything behind, perhaps would not grasp the effort these people will have on these immigrants as future citizens.

Social Hour

Mrs. Harold West favored with a piano selection and Mrs. Vachvick and Helen Stapley sang two lovely duets.

Appetizing refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants and Mrs. Bird voiced appreciation of the W.A. to those responsible for a very entertaining meeting.

Rockets Defeat Port Hope, To Finish in Second Place; Meet Oshawa in Playoffs,

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Playing one of the best games of their 1950 junior 'B' season, the Belleville Rockets edged the Port Hope Panthers 4-3 here last night in a flaming battle that eased them into second place in the final group standing.

Up in Peterborough the Lindsay Kinsmen in a close fight nudged the Peterborough Lions 7-6 to finish on top of the heap and relegate the Petes squad to third place. Oshawa Bees finished off in fourth slot.

The Rockets will meet Oshawa Bees in a three-of-five-game semi-final playoffs, while the Lindsay Peterborough crews will battle it out in a similar series.

The Rockets, playing inspired hockey was the game all the way in the hard way. The Port Hope Panthers, with their first loss of the year Peterborough, Oshawa and a tie with Lindsay, maintained the high brand of hockey that carried them through to victories over the top-flight foursome, and in the last period carried the fight to a hard-checking Rockets squad in a brilliant display.

Had To Be Good

The Rockets had to be good to beat this fighting Port Hope crew and the score just doesn't indicate the difference in the two teams.

It was a hard-checking struggle all the way with the Rockets led by the outstanding play of Gerry Desjardins, the all-round checking of his mates and the fine defence work of Trumble and Peter Green and Reary Tripp in the blasts paving the way for the slim margin of victory.

The Rockets, three goals up after three minutes of the second period, tried to play it safe but it means the game in the bag. The hard-fighting clever Panthers rallied to score three goals to tie 3-3 in the same period, scored another goal on good work in the third heat and tossed fear into the Rocks and the spectators with a spectacular, fighting splurge in the dying minutes of the game.

Rugged Hockey

It was boisterous rugged hockey all the way with both teams hitting hard. The checking, was heavy and effective. Bill Hanna of Kingston tramped down on the boys and handed out fourteen penalties, eight of them going to the Rockets. He tossed out the trainer of the Port Hope squad in the second period and later called on police assistance to oust the goat who came back in the third period.

To get back to the game. For a third period that found the Rockets squad appeared to be well on their way to a victory that took the play to the Port Hope youngsters in the first period and first blood was drawn by Hoult, who in a smart goalmouth play hit the beam for the first tally. Later Strahan, Bobby and Gerry and Mason, rammed home the rubber for the Rocks' second tally. Desjardins sent the puck for the Rockets third goal after a fine passing play with Reginald after three minutes of play in the second period. The score was 3-0.

Panthers Come Back

But the Rockets had not reckoned with a fighting Port Hope squad. The kids from the lakeshore town, with Campbell scored back in to the picture with a goal with scant minutes to go.

Hamder in the early minutes of the third period took Campbell's pass to narrow the margin to 3-2. From then on it was a nip-and-tuck with the Rockets finally holding off the desperate

Toronto Leafs Play Rangers At Home, Away

(By The Canadian Press)

Manhattan's surging Rangers get a chance to tighten their grip on third spot in the National Hockey League standings this weekend.

Rangers, flushed with a three-straight victory skein and current-ly one of the hottest clubs in the league, plays Toronto's injury-hit Maple Leafs twice to fill out exactly half of the weekend engagements in hockey's major loop.

Coach Neil Colville's boys are in Toronto for tonight's tilt and play hosts to Leafs back in New York Sunday. Other games pit the pace-setting Detroit Red Wings against Montreal Canadiens Saturday and the hapless Chicago Black Hawks against Boston Bruins in Chicago Sunday.

Leafs, firmly entrenched in second place with 70 points one ahead of Rangers—added strength for the stretch run yesterday by signing high-scoring Bobby Hassard from their Toronto Marlboros sponsored club. Hassard, smooth-skating centre, is leading point-getter in the Marlboro end of the Ontario Major League. He replaces Johnny (Goose) McCormack, out for at least two weeks with a shoulder separation.

Also on the Toronto hospital list are Jim Thomson with an injured wrist, and Gus Mortson, sporting a sore shoulder. Both, however, are expected to see action during the weekend and Leafs try to cut down Detroit's six-point margin.

The trade will be Richard night at the Montreal Forum for the famous Rocket and his Canadiens. The starry right winger will receive an array of gifts—$7,000 worth—plus a purse money between the first and second periods of the game against Detroit.

The gifts, spotlighted by a 1951 car, came from contributions of hockey fans and sport figures alike.

With Rangers, Canadiens and Bruins in the action, the weekend games may cause considerable shuffling in the all-important third and fourth-place playoff spots.

Only two points separate the three clubs with Rangers leading with 69 points, Canadiens next real with 48 and Bruins with 47. Montreal, however, has played 55 games—more than Rangers, Canadiens and Boston.

Chicago is mired in the league basement with a meagre 34 points to show for 56 games.

Clem F. Crowe Named Coach Rough Riders

Ottawa, Feb. 17 — (CP) — A former Notre Dame football star, Clem F. Crowe, has been signed to coach the Ottawa Rough Riders for the 1951 Big Four season, the Ottawa Football Club announced here Friday.

Crowe succeeds Wally Masters, who resigned in March after last three years. Riders reached the Grey Cup final in 1946, the Big Four championship in 1949 and last year finished at the bottom of the league.

The new coach is a lineman who played under Knute Rockne during one of Notre Dame's greatest grid regimes.

In recent years he has coached United States pro teams.

Propose March 5 For Paris Meet Of Big Four

Paris, Feb. 17 — (AP) — The Western Powers' latest note to Russia, due to be sent to the Kremlin Monday or Tuesday, will propose March 5 as a date for Deputy Foreign Ministers to meet in Paris to arrange a Big Four meeting on world peace, a government source said.

Russia has told the west she has no objection to a meeting of deputies of the U. S., France, Russia and Britain to work out the time, place and agenda for a meeting of the foreign ministers.

Russia began the exchange of notes last November, proposing a Big-Four meeting on German questions. The west has been insisting that the agenda of the meeting not be confined to Germany alone.

The deputies in the preliminary meeting would not discuss matters of substance but will try to agree only on what subjects the four foreign ministers would consider.

Earlier, French sources said the meeting probably will be held between March 10 and 15. Russia has given a hint that she might be willing to discuss "other subjects" besides Germany, but insists that the questions of German remilitarization and German unity have top priority.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ROCKETS COME THROUGH!

"Smiley" Meronek's Rockets proved something or other in last night's thriller with the fighting Port Hope Panthers. It is hoped that their performance was or is an indication of whether or not they are a "money" or "no chips" team. By money means in sports vernacular, that a squad can be a flock of no-good heels in a schedule, then blossom forth to be a powerful contender in their performances in the play-offs.

* * *

We in this corner have criticized and praised both the Redmen and Rockets teams on their performances. Last night, the Rockets, under Coach "Smiley" Meronek, came through with one of the best, if not the best hockey jobs they have shown to Belleville fans this season. They played hockey. They clicked in all departments. It was tough to pick out a star. The Rockets came through with the best collective effort we have seen them perform this season. And it augurs well for the forthcoming playoff series and kiddies in this junior "B" setup "she's goin' to be tough".

* * *

True, by virtue of their close win and the defeat of Peterborough at the hands of the Lindsay Kinsmen, they are out of the running against the Oshawa Bees in the play-offs. The fact remains, and it probably will be shown in this unpredictable junior set-up just what teams will be in "money" games.

* * *

Personally we are of the opinion that this Belleville Rockets squad (and ye gods, a Port Hope official picks them as the group winners) if it plays the brand of hockey it produced last night, can win the group.

* * *

BEST OF LUCK PANTHERS!

But, and in passing, we would like to pay tribute to a grand little hockey team, the Port Hope Panthers. They, as is generally well known, are entered in OHA as Junior "C". And we don't have to go out on the limb to predict that they will field this fine squad will win the OHA "Junior C" title.

They have a first line that is and was the envy of the rest of the clubs in the group. They are small (1 or 18 games, but they surged back to defeat Peterborough, Oshawa and tied Lindsay in the final sphere of the schedule — and you know what happened last night here.

This writer wishes the best of luck to a grand little squad from Port Hope and we are sure that those of the hockey gangs of Oshawa, Peterborough, Lindsay and Belleville will wish the grand gang of youngsters who threw the fear of God into the best this junior group could produce in the last weeks of the schedule.

* * *

DON'T MISS THIS!

Listen fellas, these Belleville Merchants came through with their seventh straight win in Brighton last night and they're on a roll. Tonight they'll be in Memorial Arena. They've won seven out of eight starts. They'll be playing the Trenton RCAF Flyers. There's the Flyers, who defeated Trenton Trojans. They are playing their first home game here. Let's get out and give them some support. It's good hockey. Don't miss it!

POLICE VS FIREMEN

"It's in the bag," quoth Frank Foot, sage and publicity agent of the Fire Department.

"So is your Aunt Fanny. We'll swamp you guys under one goal," scoffed Turkey Fellissero, his waffles scarlet with emotion.

"For how much?" gently inquired the Fire Department savant, rattling two quarters and a couple of pennies in his blue jeans.

The sway-backed Turk, who is the custodian of the cage for Proberts Jewellers, Hamilton Maulers, and Hancock's Horsemen, otherwise known as the Police Hockey Association, tossed back his mane.

"We of the police hockey club" he proudly announced, "are not going to embarrass the morals. We do not subscribe, tolerate, nor indulge in games of chance of any nature. We have a reputation to maintain and there is not a man on the club including Jimmy (Durocher) Driscoll, who would stoop to wagering filthy lucre on the outcome of such a thing as a hockey game."

* * *

"How about buying a ticket to see yourself and that gang of Dick Tracys cross hockey rapiers with the gentlemen of the Fire Department on Tuesday, February 27th?" came back Footie on another tack.

* * *

"Listen, chum," gurgled the Gobbler, drumsticking an ice fragment on the street, "if you think for one minute that such boss-hating, anti-establishing bevy of braggarts can eliminate the upholders of law and order in such a contest, the Royal Antidelusian Order of the Nichistick and Gumshoe Benevolent Society will not hesitate for you to be dry-docked and overhauled by a psychiatrist".

* * *

"How about buying a ticket?" quoth the calm but not collecting Footie.

* * *

"It has been said," went on the Turk, "that certain remarks are being passed by that flock of fire-eating dodos of yours, that the Police Hockey Association team, will be injected with a virus of marked potency which will transform them into flying Mercuries and puck-chasing fools."

* * *

"The tickets are two bits each" insisted the Footian tonsils.

* * *

"Such is not the case" wattled the Turk. "We will not stoop to any such action. Nor will we be subject ourselves to a saliva test after the last smoke-eater has been carried from the ice."

* * *

The Turk ruffled his plumage, shook the dandruff from his mane, reached into a capacious pocket and withdrew a quarter. "You've made a deal," he said, "I almost forgot the money was donated to help helpless kiddies. Keep the change, buh."

SOFTBALL MEETING TOMORROW!

Softball enthusiasts should not ferret the open meeting being held by the Belleville Commercial Softball League in Memorial Arena tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon starting at two o'clock. President Don Lee is looking for representative attendance as that plans may be laid for the coming season. Many important items are on the agenda and it is likely some lively discussions will take place. It is hoped the Point Anne team will be represented as well as others of last year's sections, so that full discussions may be held.

What About 1960 Duck Shooting?

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

It wasn't so very many years ago that a fellow could go duck shooting and plan to bring back enough birds to make the trip worthwhile. Not that any sane man goes after ducks solely for the meat he can bring home. It's far less expensive to buy your ducks locally, all nicely picked and dressed and ready for the oven, than it is to go out and shoot them.

But, after all, the real fun in duck shooting is shooting ducks. It is all very well to talk about admiring the beauties of nature and of the fun and companionship you have in camp but these are incidental, pleasant by-products to the actual shooting.

As I say, not so very long ago a man could sit in a duck blind and, if his shooting eye was good and the birds were flying, knock down limit after limit with little bother over, he could bring home with him a two-day kill — thirty birds.

Today, in most states, a gunner may kill four ducks per day and his possession limit is eight birds. When you assemble a lot of expensive hunting gear, drive a hundred or so miles, engage quarters, hire a guide, and foot the bill for countless incidentals, duck shooting as we have it now is hardly worth the whistle.

Not infrequently your good shooting will come first thing in the morning. One or two good bunches of ducks come in over the decoys and before you know it your shooting is over for that day if you wish to stay inside the law.

You know the story — most of it, anyway — as told by the author of our duck shooting. Unwise restrictions on the spring kill which destroyed the nesting areas, did a great deal of the damage. We heard a lot of talk about that, and happily, much of that damage has since been undone.

Illegal Kill

What you haven't heard much about is the size of our annual illegal kill. Unlike a great many of our game birds, ducks can be greatly reduced in numbers by heavy gun pressure. The illegal kill by unscrupulous "sportsmen" and by market hunters (yes, we still have them) does incalculable damage annually to our duck populations.

You can make all the laws you wish and curtail legal shooting until it isn't worthwhile but if you can't enforce those laws they are not going to mean very much. You remember how national prohibition worked out. The same general situation today maintains in our duck shooting.

Nothing that I write here will come as a news to the Fish and Wildlife Service. They know much more about present-day conditions than I do. Unfortunately there isn't very much they can do about it.

If you are a duck hunter, you know that the 81st Congress increased the price of the "duck stamp" from one dollar to two dollars. From the one-dollar stamp, ten per cent was set aside for enforcement.

When the new measure was passed, our lawmakers failed to consider that at that time there were 71 game management agents on the Fish and Wildlife staff upon whom rested the responsibility of law enforcement within our 48 states.

Seventy-one! Slightly less than 1½ men per state!

The men who initiated the movement to have the price of the duck stamp doubled are duck hunters and they know the value of real law enforcement. They recommended that 25 per cent of the two-dollar stamp be set aside for this purpose. This clause was not included. It was thrown out during the senate debate on the measure after it had passed the House.

Political Objections

Three senators were instrumental in having this clause omitted. Their reason? Now, hold your hats! They objected because it would tend to overload the federal payrolls.

So the two-dollar duck stamp, still with the 10 per cent enforcement clause, plus some increases by direct appropriations from congress, has built up the Fish and Wildlife enforcement staff to 96 agents — two men for each of our 48 states.

It must be remembered that not all of these 96 men can be about their regular field duties. Frequently small groups of them are given special assignments such as the breaking up of market-gunning rings. The average enforcement staff is still less than two men to a state.

Of course, the new measure is a distinct step toward improvement. It is to be earnestly hoped that the 82nd Congress will see its way clear to the adoption of the 25 percent clause, allotting 50 cents from each duck stamp, instead of the present 20 cents, to be devoted to enforcement.

The past ten years has been a sad story when it comes to waterfowl management. We who have watched this decline can't help but wonder about shooting conditions ten years hence, in the fall of 1960.

Of course, we are hoping for the best. Matters have shown improvement during recent years. But to have duck shooting again — duck shooting that will give a man a day's sport in the blind — we still have a long, long way to go.

Paddy Young Floored Five Times in Bout

New York, Feb. 17—(AP)—What happened to Paddy Young? Usually punished, he came off Paddy like rain off a tin roof. Last night the once-durable punch absorber was floored five times and outpointed by Raymond Hairston in 2:37 of the second round of their Madison Square Garden bout.

"The punch to the kidney in the first was terrific," said Paddy, "it knocked the breath out of me. I never got my breath back."

"Hard," said Hairston, once a dead-mute who slowly is learning to punch words. He swept his left into a menacing hook to show how he threw the punch. His manager, Mike Miele, said he learned it from the late Marcel Cerdan.

"Boo, boo," roared the small crowd of 8,156 that paid $30,732 to see the brief bout. There were enough boos to account for a sell-out. The customers couldn't believe their eyes, seeing young Young elevator act—up and down five times in less than six minutes.

Paddy went down twice in the first and three times in the second. After the third knockdown Referee Ruby Goldstein automatically stopped the bout. That is the New York rule for non-title fights.

Looked Sharply at Fighter

Goldstein looked sharply at Young after he went down for the second time in the second.

"Are you hurt or trying to quit?" he said.

"I'm fighting," Paddy replied.

"If you quit on me," warned Goldstein, "I'll have you suspended for life."

Ruby let it go on until another knockdown brought the automatic ending.

Dan Dowdy executive secretary of the New York State Athletic Commission, questioned Young about the knockdowns after the bout. He also talked to Hairston through his manager, Mike Miele. After consulting the referee, both judges, two commission doctors and many boxing men, Dowdy said he was convinced the punch that started Young in the first was a "left hand below the rib."

Saw Nothing Wrong

Asked if he plans further investigation, Dowdy said, "I see no reason. Do you? As far as I'm concerned the fight was stopped by the three-knock-down rule."

Eddie Eagan, commission chairman said he was seeing nothing wrong with the bout. He was a ringside spectator.

"I have no information this was anything but an honest bout," said Eagan. "If there is any information that I receive, the commission certainly will look into it.

Like many ringsiders, Eagan did not see the blow that floored Paddy for the first time. Many of the writers didn't see it either. The knockdown seemed to come some five or six seconds after a body punch.

One thing for sure, Young rolled on his back and writhed in pain. It appeared that the blow hit the deck the first time. His mouth was open as if he gasped for breath. At the count of "eight" he sprang back into action. He was down again shortly for "four" when the bell rang!

Opened on Sour Note

The second round opened on a sour note, with Young slipping or tripping and falling on both knees. He was no cough, no punch and no knockdown.

Right-hand punches to the head dumped Young twice for "nine" in the second. After the second knockdown, Goldstein questioned Paddy. Stung by Ruby's remarks, Young lashed out briefly in his flurry. Then he went down again from a left hook to the body. That was all.

Yung had been stopped only once in 49 previous fights, although he lost his last two to Laurent Dauthuille and Kid Gavilan. The two knockouts was the result of a severe eye cut from Tommy Portugues, Hairston, an up-and-coming kid, had 13 knockouts in 46 starts.

The betting odds favoring Hairston had reckoned during the day from 2 to 1 to a reported 4 to 1 at ringside.

Indians Finish One, Two, Three In Open Race

Highway's time for the winding course overland and across frozen lakes was identical with that of Saskatchewan border was almost 18 minutes behind him in the winning time last year. But the 1950 winner Laird Ouellette of The Pas—Spence, yesterday during a "crush" team assembled just before the race—Highway is a dog musher all winter.

The same drivers finished in the big 10-dog race yesterday as they did there at Cranberry Portage Thursday night. Spence finished second from first to fourth place, to change position with Joe Highway.

Eddie Cochrane is still here Thursday. Two dropped out of the first lap and two more were withdrawn by their drivers after they had got under way.

Joe Highway's eight huskies were in splendid shape despite their two-day run. They didn't even lie down when the race was over. Beardy and George each brought a dog over the finish line lashed to his sleigh.

Matt McKinney Scores Double Win at Dufferin

Toronto, Feb. 17 — (CP) Matt McKinney, owned by A. D. Matthews of Newmarket, Ont., and driven by Alan Pacey, scored a double victory when he defeated a fair field of pacers in both heats of the fifth and featured events at Dufferin Park tonight.

Princes's Rose owned by R. Talbot of Weston, Ont., and driven by Dow Talbot, and Bert Benedict owned by F. Plaunt of Brantford, and driven by John Mullin divided the fourth race, the secondary feature when each won a heat.

In the first heat Princess Rose was forced to the outside in third position early, rallied with a strong rush in the home stretch, gradually wore down the leaders and won in a drive over Todd Benedict.

Todd Benedict was steadied away back of the early pace in the second heat, then moved closer to the leaders entering the back stretch, challenged the leader and final turn he had dead aim on the pace over Dillon Seyton and in the stretch drive to the wire, disposed of the leader and won easily.

A.P.B.A. Cedes Canadian Region To Dominion Body

In order that Canadian motor boat drivers may race as an autonomous body in their own country, Regions 8 and 9 of the American Power Boat Association, which is north of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River, has been ceded to the Canadian Boating Federation. This announcement has been made in a joint statement from A.P.B.A. headquarters in Detroit, and Canadian Boating Federation headquarters in Toronto.

The action follows a mutual agreement of Representatives of both the APBA and the CBF that Dominion drivers should race as an autonomous body, rather than as an adjunct to the American Power Boat Association. The new plan was introduced and agreed upon at a council meeting of the APBA in Cincinnati.

In order that the CBF and the APBA might work in close liaison, special co-ordinating committees, with representatives from each boating group, has been established. Leo Fogarty of Cedar Grove, N.J., former senior vice-president of the APBA and president of the international Inboard Association, is chairman of the committee for the APBA, and on the committee with Robert Finlayson of Toronto, Ont., secretary of the Canadian Boating Federation.

In addition an agreements committee, also composed of members of each boating group, will decide on reciprocal invitations for competition on both sides of the U.S.-Canadian border. Members of the agreements committee are: Charles Strang of Cambridge, Mass.; Albert A. Bauer, Philadelphia, Pa.; Reginald F. Sparkes of Toronto, Ont.; Eppel and Finlayson.

Phil Marchildon Signs Contract With the Leafs

For the 26-year-old native of Penetanguishene, it meant a return to the triple A club that 12 years ago netted him on his swift but shortlived, climb to stardom in the majors.

The chunky French-Canadian righthander broke in with Leafs in 1939 and won 13 of 20 for the A's. Following year, while with the A's, exclusive of three years in 1943-45—he was in the service with the RCAF, Marchildon won 36 and lost 39. His best season was in 1942 when he won 17 and lost 14 with an eighth-place club, while Johnny Vander Meer posted a 19-9 record.

Marchildon suffered from a sore arm and "war nerves" the following two years and in 1950 was sold to Paris Blazers of the International League. He was released unconditionally by Blazers before the end of the season, returned to the majors for a two-week stop with Boston Red Sox and again was released.

Many baseball men have blamed the big righthander's quick fall from stardom on "war nerves"—the result of spending 10 months in a German prisoner-of-war camp. He was shot down over Germany while flying with the RCAF.

Toronto Curling Club Wins 3 'Spiel Trophies

Toronto, Feb. 17 —(CP)— Mel Cunnington of Toronto Friday night skipped his rink to a thrilling 8-7 extra-end victory over A. J. Simon, also of Toronto, to capture the Toronto Curling Club's petition of the 24th annual Ontario bonspiel.

Cunnington's victory, which brought the Toronto Curling Club its third trophy of the 'spiel, was fashioned with a late rally that tied Simon's 7-3 lead after the ninth end. The Toronto club skip tied the match on the 11th end and won on the extra end after a dead-end 12th — the second dead-end of the match.

Cunnington had reached the finals by defeating Cam Rood of Toronto Royal Canadians, 11-10. Simon advanced with an 11-9 semi-final round win over Dave of Sault Ste. Marie.

Lou Ross of Agincourt, Ont., entered the Parker Pen trophy finals by edging out Harry Welton of Milwaukee, 10-9. Harry Sifton won the other semi-final match, 8-7, from Ken Miles of Toronto High Park.

Marlies Lock Cellar Door On Dutchmen

(By The Canadian Press)

Second-place Toronto Marlboros swamped Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 6-3 last night in an Ontario Hockey Association junior series game to extend a winning but lock the cellar door on the Krauts.

The Dutchmen trail Hamilton by six points.

Scotty Matz, bud Kemp and Al Buchanan rapped home two goals each, with Eddie Stankiewicz and Matz each adding a brace. The Dutchmen's one hope faded after Bobbie Wrightsell was injured in the second period and taken to hospital with concussion. Wrightsell had registered twice for K-W. Jimmy Flanagan getting the third.

In O.H.A. junior A events Windsor Spitfires easily retained first place by downing Waterloo Kitchener 6-1 to remain one point up on Barrie Flyers, victors over Toronto Marlboros 3-0.

St. Catharines Tigers blasted Gall Black Hawks 6-3, Stratford Kroehlers took Toronto St. Michael's 7-3, and Guelph Biltmores —minus four regulars due to flu —walloped Oshawa Generals 10-3.

With a three-goal surge by Erwin Grosso, Spitfires were never in danger as they whipped Hurricanes for the sixth time.

Flyers meet Marlboros in a hard-hitting battle by virtue of two tallies by Lee Labine and one by Jack White.

Win-St.-Catharines, Skip Teal tripled, Barrie Elliot doubled and Buddy Boone connected once for Teepees, Borden Boyce, Jack Reid and Hogan answering for Hawks.

Aided by Solo Efforts

Kroehlers' George Aitken with three was aided by the solo efforts of Ken Ullyot, Bud Nodds, John Woods, and Bob Armstrong. For the Kuts, Pat Plaxton, Harry Costello and Jack Weldrake bellied Kroehler nets.

With three goals each, Ken Laufman and Ron Murphy led Biltmore onslaught, backed by two each by Chuck Henderson and Deen Prentice. Generals' Alex Delvecchio answered with two, Herv Dejordy, Ted O'Connor and Lou Jankowski with singles.

Laufman's spurt landed him back in front in the individual scoring race, although teammates Bob Dickenson and Bill Houghton ended on the injured list.

Saturday, Hamilton Tigers visit Toronto St. Michael's in Maple Leaf Gardens (2:30), Oshawa will see Barrie Flyers at Waterloo Hurricanes at Stratford meet the Oshawa Generals, and St. Catharines Teepees in a return with Galt Black Hawks.

Sunday, Windsor Spitfires face Toronto St. Michael's and Guelph Biltmores engage Toronto Marlboros in Jr. A fixtures.

SUBSIDIZE COBALT OUTPUT

Cobalt, Ont., Feb. 17 (CP) — Cobalt mining stocks jumped as much as 10 percent Friday following an announcement that the Ontario government will subsidize cobalt ore production.

Most mining men feel the increase will not make a great difference in the current rate of production.

Kirkland Lake Rink Barred From Finals

Guelph, Feb. 17 — (CP)—Bill Ulozwy's Kirkland Lake rink Friday night won the Ontario Schoolboys curling championship by defeating a trip to British Columbia for the Dominion High School Bonspiel next week because of age stipulations.

After Bonspiel officials conferred with Dominion Curling Association officials in Winnipeg, the Cassels quartet met by air for Vancouver, B. C. early Saturday morning.

Skip Ulozwy and his second, Steve Vitunski, were unable to qualify under D. C. A. age regulations although both were eligible as far as the Ontario Curling Association was concerned. Ulozwy is 20 and Vitunski 19.

D. C. A. regulations specify junior curlers must be under 19 by October 1. The northerners were informed of the decision before they played the final.

Bob Fairchild, chairman of the O. C. A. Schoolboys' Curling Committee, suggested to the Winnipeg officials that the next two over-age members and use two eligible players from Kirkland Lake rink which was eliminated in the semi-final by Cassels. They refused flatly.

The final game was the fourth of the day for Ulozwy's Kirkland Lake rink. The Ulozwy rink showed its superiority all the way. Friday, they trounced Galt Guelph and Sarnia rinks with ease before defeating Cassels in the finals.

Oldest member of the Hamilton rink is second Jim Mitchell who is 18. Lead Russ Fitzhenry, third John Murray, Cassels are all 17.

Competition also developed in the second day forced the postponement of the Ontario Motor Trophy semi-finals. They will be played on Guelph ice this morning. Ten rinks are in competition for the Crawford plaque, also will be started today.

Jim Thomson's Hand Shows No Fracture

Coach Joe Primeau said an examination at noon today would determine whether Thomson played against New York Rangers here tonight.

Johnny (Goose) McCormack, centre specialist, was showed up with a shoulder injury when rechecked from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League this week, will be out about three weeks, Primeau said.

SULPHUR PLANT PLANNED

Toronto, Feb. 17 (CP)— Noranda Mines, Ltd., plans to build a $4,000,000 plant for the production of sulphur.

Site of the plant has not yet been decided upon; and it will probably be two years before it is in production. Hamilton and several other places are mentioned as possible sites.

By JACK CAMPBELL

The words, "I'm dead", were heard among the moans and groans at the Y.M.C.A. basketball competition, this week. And truly, this quote sums up completely the theme of the evening. You see, due to schooling upsets, the Business Girls had to first go through a grueling, grudge duel with the intermediates taking them narrowly (17-13), then after a brief rest, go in to struggle past the dynamic Seconds with little to spare (22-20). The intermediates fought bitterly, against their arch-opponents often keeping their heads above water but in the hectic shuffle they have forgotten when they pulled the wool over the Northern Electrics to wrap up a neat 28-17 victory on their home court.

The Intermediate Business Girls opener, produced a low scoring, gruelling, but yet exciting match. With wide open and hot defensive fingering, Bobbie Wells from BCI managed to tally the total of 9 to 4 in the first half. Then Jean Cavanaugh of "Faulkner," the star forward, turning from the role of guard to "Fin, and stalwart Varcoe feeling mighty low there were times knocking at the consolation door. This plus their lastly-moving "attack" was responsible for the reverses, when they came back to wrap up 17 to 13 victory. The last for the time, Gourley stood solidly in the limelight with 6 points while Wells had 4 more rounds of applause went to Marchinoff and Ruttan of the Business Girls for their bi-point contribution.

Lineups:

Intermediates: Joan Faulkner 3; P. Campbell, A. Bennett, D. Gourley 6; B. Bennett; D. Pierce, 2; Faulkner 1; Lawrence 1.

Business Girls: M. Marinoff 4; J. Gardner, P. Gourley, Ruttan 2; M. Niblock; E. Locke; D. McLean 3; N. Chambers; S. Cook 2; N. Bond; B. Reese.

When the bugle blew for the second "Intermediate-Northern" match the fatigued but "still the best" limped out to face their bounding opponents. With Pringle and Pringle in convalescence it was all up to the tall, fast-moving Barrie Intermediates. Two quick shots of Diana Gourley to ring the victory bell on the 3 minute mark 2-0 lead in the first half. Then Taylor and Alcorn let loose with a barrage to put the team recharged "Electrics" and in the record books. Gourley possessing a blushing belle bit the dust on the "not-so-soft" surface of the Park's floor. But Gourley was not to be overshadowed by her fellow mates, for Joan Faulkner came in the spotlight with her 6 point gift bringing an overwhelming win for the tired BCI lassies.

Lineups:

Intermediates 26: Joan Faulkner 3; P. Campbell; A. Bennett, D. Gourley 10; B. Bennett; E. J. Pierce 6; Faulkner 3; D. Pierce; P. Campbell 1.

Business Girls 11: J. Smith; B. Alcorn 11; B. Young; R. Soderberg; S. Campbell; M. Niblock; M. Marinoff; D. Taylor 4; H. Reeves; B. Robson; F. Howard.

Orchids For Deacons

If we gave' roses, in this column last week, this fighting crew of Deacons for cutting in half their lose to Y.M.C.A. Intermediates, they should this week for bringing down a former 49-0 defeat to a 28-17 win in the Business Girls. This is a 75 per cent improvement. Also the "Deacon girls" did have one game under the belt but the more organized and formed combination which held the "downtown" girls at bay through the first quarter. With Leola Putman matching every one of her fouls with a basket, the dandy-combination stepped right along till half time with 10 points, to the Business Girls 13. But Erma Butcher really butchered the chances of Deacons who were trying to overtake. Marlowe took a 12 point share of the "victory" pie, while Butcher's efforts fell ahead. Thus ended a very full evening.

Lineups:

Business Girls 23: M. Marinoff 4; J. Gardner, P. Gourley, Ruttan 2; M. Niblock; E. Locke; D. McLean 5; N. Chambers; S. Cook; N. Bond; B. Reese; Mathews 8; S. Day.

Strangely enough, the highest scoring game of the night was the valuable player award". This is a good sign, for it is an award for defensive player and set-up man usually gets his pats on the back. The outstanding record Doris McLean stood out ahead with Diana Gourley, Barbara Young, Leola Putman and Betty Alcorn following up in order of their merit. But, while on the subject of awards, I do think, the greatest compliment to the teams would be a full house in the galleries of the Y.M.C.A. on the nights of play. Come one and you'll find yourself hanging from the rails in excitement.

'Rapping' Horses Brings Protest From Association

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Horse Shows Association Friday approved a resolution urging stricter supervision of the practice of "rapping" jumping horses to make them pull up their feet and jump higher.

Maj. Gen. Churchill Mann, sponsor of the resolution, told the association that horses were "rapped" or struck, wit hbamboo poles and even heavier. He asked that jumping shows be better supervised by show officials and Humane Society representatives.

Many horsemen said that a light bamboo "rap" gets the idea across to the horse without hurting him, but they are against the use of stouter poles or rapping the animal's legs with force.

As Ontario's department report Friday said skiing is excellent at Peterborough, Sundridge, Haliburton, Bancroft, Midland, Fort William and Port Arthur.

The task will be difficult and the field large, but Coeltown and Ponder will be forced to change the racing back of the famed Calumet stable at Santa Anita, this afternoon in the $50,000 San Antonio Handicap is run today.

Seventeen colorful steeds are entered in the mile-and-one-eighth feature which gives an excellent line on the chances of the rivals for the ensuing big race, the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap March 3.

Bobby Locke, British and South African golf champion, on Friday lost his unbeaten record in South African Professional tournament competition when Pretoria professional Otway Hayes beat him, one up, in the semi-final of the "Mills" tournament at Johannesburg. Locke has been a professional for 14 years.

The fighters could split the guarantee any way they want, the promoters said. The bout would be staged in June at either the Newark or Jersey City ball park, facets of the former International League teams.

A subsidiary of the St. Louis Browns sought to block the $50,000 damage by a couple who claimed the millionaire's turfman struck them with a runaway race horse.

The suit was filed by C. H. Hall and his wife, residents of stable owners. They claim they paid Vanderbilt $25,000 for a horse named Mister Red Jet. The suit added that the horse "was not as represented" crippled with a broken right front leg bone, and that $500 in veterinarian fees failed to harvest it.

Vanderbilt was not available for comment.

AT THE McCARTHY — Stephen McNally, cast in the role of a postal system undercover agent in Universal-International's Technicolor "Wyoming Mail," closing today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, levels his gun at the warden, played by Ed. Begley, as he has himself freed from prison after an inmate gives him valuable information concerning a gang of train robbers operating in the Wyoming area. Alexis Smith is co-starred with McNally in the colorful, action-packed film produced by Aubrey Schenck and directed by Reginald LeBorg.

Los Angeles, Feb. 17 —(AP)— Once she was the toast of the circus world. But Frances Webster, 74, was almost forgotten until she died Wednesday. As Naomi Ethardo, she was a famed balancer and juggler with Ringling Brothers Circus and the Keith-Orpheum vaudeville circuit.

AT THE BELLE — Dapper Robert Cummings and Joan Bennett appear with "Mr. Belvedere," Clifton Webb and Edmond Gwenn in a delightful comedy, "For Heaven's Sake," starting today at the Belle Theatre. A splendid program of featurettes completes the program.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars:

For Sunday, February 18

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Planets favorably aspected now are Mars and Saturn, generally sponsoring military matters, activities requiring vigor, endurance. Be faithful to God, to our country; heed right laws.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Care stressed in all important activities where patience, alertness are a need. Pray for good causes, be helpful in community affairs. Rest, sane recreation okay; your church first.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Not so favorable now for personal desires, unless they include concern for government, family, religious freedom. Devotions at church a great need. Have some good diversion in free time.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—If true to your bizarre considerate self, you will find the right interests to keep you occupied, happy, too. First church, urgent tasks, then some wholesome fun and rest.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Caution overexuberance to keep a more successful, steady tempo in familiar matters or new ones; however, ofttimes where demanded, action and buoyancy can give fine results. Be happy.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Neither all favorable nor bothering aspects. Be guided in what you do and how you do it by necessity or the deed and situation generally. Take time for pleasant hobby, if you honestly can.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Artistic professions, delicate matters less favored than difficult, laborious tasks. Necessary military, especially aviation maneuvers, travel, dealing in machinery, tools favored anew.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Should be day to your liking though you must avoid contention, erasing others up "for fun, of it." Remember, it is Sunday and God's special day. Good deeds come first.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—If not seeking only personal and temporal gain you can have a pleasant and very productive period. Just the time to thank God for blessings and pray for aid for our armed forces.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Your Saturn in favorable configuration today, encouraging for your interests, for practical, sound ideas, activities. Don't neglect your spiritual needs. Carry on schedule honorably.

January 23 to February 20—No impulsive speech or action, or needless changes, moves! Calmness, forethought, prayer will keep you on safe (also remunerative) path. In free time, rest, recreate sanely.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Good tidings in your chart. Personal affairs can be pleasant, inspiring, interests gainful. Mind your soul's needs. Enjoy free time with family, good friends. Pray for peace.

YOU BORN TODAY: Good fellowship, gaiety and kindliness are marked traits. Unobtrusive as a rule, often when you should be more outspoken and pressing your advantages. Always speak up for right principles and acknowledge God's goodness, and favors. You have many fresh opportunities ahead now, keep alert, ambitious that you may gain as you should. Avoid those who would hinder your achievement, cause you to fall into lax habits, fall your better self. Show your versatility.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

DEEP SNOW

For some reason or other, our heaviest snowfalls often occur near the end of winter. This is the time when birds have special difficulty in finding food and even in getting around. When several feet of snow cover the fields and the branches are laden, our small seed-eaters cannot get at the weed-seeds, and have no place to perch. However, some kinds are more often found in settled Canada around this date than at other times, and certain species are equipped for this type of weather.

Watch out now for Bohemian waxwings, pine grosbeaks, evening grosbeaks, and crossbills. These waxwings and the grosbeaks prefer dried, waste fruit which hangs accessible from trees or shrubs; and the evening grosbeaks like nothing better than long, winged seeds of the Manitoba maples. Both kinds of crossbills feed largely upon the seeds of coniferous trees whose evergreen branches protect the seeds from the heaviest snow.

The owls of our section of Canada have no difficulty in surviving throughout a snowy season. Their legs and feet are feathered to protect them from cold, and aid in keeping them from sinking into the snow. Their meals consist of other birds and little animals that are able to run over the surface. Mice and rats are the most regular diet, but some of our big owls, such as the great horned, are able to tackle anything as large as a grey or black squirrel, or sometimes even a rabbit. Birds eaten by owls range in size from English sparrows to pheasants.

The ptarmigan of the north also has feathered feet, except when moulting in mid-summer, and then for awhile they are bare. The ruffed grouse, found not so far from settlements but that it suffers occasionally from hunters, wears snow-shoes in winter. These are formed by the growth in autumn of many little horny scales which fringe the sides of the toes, but are shed in the late spring. Therefore it is able to move about at will no matter how deep the snow. However, when frost follows rain, sometimes a grouse is sealed by a hard crust into a snow-bank where it has taken refuge from a storm. Both ptarmigan and ruffed grouse have an ample food supply, for they eat evergreen buds.

If, then, we keep alert, some birds can be added to our list even in what may appear to be most unfavorable weather conditions.

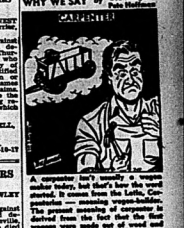
WHY WE SAY by Bob Musgrave / Pete Hoffman



A carpenter isn't known by his square rather today, but that's how the word started. It comes from the Latin, Carpentarius — meaning wagon-builder. The present meaning of carpenter is derived from the fact that the first wagons were made out of wood and the men who made them were the best working jobs in their spare time.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"Revenge!" Mr. Farwell breathed.

"Right!" Andrew chuckled. "Our dear mother shocked the little devils inside her brains and believed that the horse she took for her own had been trained to buck and kick. No doubt," he added grimly, "she did plenty of her own bucking and kicking before it threw her. But she never forgave you, Mr. Farwell, for making her a cripple."

Lisa Farwell began to wonder if Andrew, the sot, was the only cold sober person among those in the room, and the thought his words had given her grew even more confusing.

"You mean," she asked Andrew her voice a half whisper, "you mean Lavinia wanted me to marry Court so that she could get even with my father?"

Andrew didn't have to answer. She suddenly realized that this was what Lavinia Grenable planned. The cold wash of fear began to fall away and in Lisa's mind grew instead the terrible, burning relief of what she had been saved. Their marriage —she and Court—would never have had a chance.

What was left after her realization was not very strong, but at least—and then Angus Kent's face resolved out of the confusion in her mind and Lisa remembered.

To reassure herself she reached out and touched Court's hand. He jumped nervously and tried to smile at her, but it was a twisted and futile attempt.

"Andrew should shut up," he said roughly. "He was too drunk to know what happened since he came home."

There was an insinuation in his tone that didn't miss its mark. Andrew flushed and there was a look to him that Lisa Farwell feared. Don't antagonize him, please, she thought. His attitude is wrong. He's dangerous. Afterward when it was all over and they were safe and away from the thought lingered above all others.

And several days later she remembered it again.

The days trudged along slowly. The funeral was held Saturday morning. It was private of course. Lisa waited for Court to call her afterward, but the phone didn't ring and he didn't come to see her.

She tried to put out of her thoughts the complicated crosswave of motives and implications brought out during the questioning the day before, she wanted to discuss them with her father but he had put up a barrier almost as effective as Courts.

Finally, by Saturday afternoon she couldn't bear the remoteness any longer. She tackled the problem with her father in the den.

"You were right," she said forlornly. "It couldn't have worked out for Court and me with his mother alive."

She struggled above the panic that came to her each time she thought of marriage to Court now that she had met Angus Kent.

Strange how everything dated before and after that meeting. There seemed no in-between.

"That diary of Lavinia Grenable's brought everything out into the open," he said. "I don't see how more harm can come from discussing it. I just didn't want to say too much—I know how you must feel."

Lisa looked at, her father quickly and then realized he didn't mean her feelings toward Angus Kent. Henry Farwell thought it was her fear for Court Grenable of course.

"You actually talked to Lavinia that afternoon?" Lisa asked.

He nodded. "Elizabeth telephoned and I went over immediately. She and Lavinia had quarreled over Court Grenable's asking you to marry him and Lavinia pulled her old threat about committing Elizabeth to an institution. I think Lavinia believed that if she frightened Elizabeth thoroughly she would call me and she did."

"But why did Aunt Elizabeth do it?" Lisa slipped into her childhood title for Lavinia's sister.

"She didn't want to see you get entangled with the Grenables" he: father said harshly. "She suspected the thing Lavinia Grenable brought out yesterday. I think he knows more than he's telling." He was thoughtful a minute, then continued: "After leaving Lavinia I started home, Elizabeth walked with me as far as the coach house and then she went back to the house."

"Do you think Elizabeth killed her sister?" Lisa asked helplessly.

"Certainly not!" her father retorted vigorously. "That damning bit of evidence that she was in or near the coach house was purely circumstantial. The same could be said of me," he said gloomily.

Lisa recalled her father's bitterness toward Lavinia Grenable. He had opposed Lisa's engagement to Court. He had warned Lisa that to marry Court would mean unhappiness at the hands of Lavinia.

Again his words returned to her with a powerful sinisterness. "I would give my life . . ."

Explosion Shatters House, Woman, Hair Singed, Crawls From Blazing Cellar, Unhurt

London, Ont., Feb. 19 — (CP) — A fierce explosion which was heard through the two-storey home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rodgers on Piccadilly Street today, blasting out walls, shifting the house on its foundation and lifting the roof from the walls.

Mrs. Rodgers, working less than 10 feet from the coal furnace where the explosion was believed to have originated, crawled from the blazing basement through a small window. She had only her hair singed, but was taken to hospital for shock treatment.

Pieces of the verandah were thrown 75 feet across the street, kitchen curtains were blown into backyard trees and the 12-foot chimney was toppled onto the wrecked roof.

Three city gas company employees were fixing a leak in a line to the house which Mr. Rodgers said he reported about eight days ago.

The three children of the family were not in the house at the time.

"Gas from the leak must have seeped through into the house and was exploded by the coal furnace," Jack Little, foreman of the gas crew said.

"All furniture must have been full of gas," Mr. Rodgers said. The entire house literally exploded from top to bottom, setting fires throughout.

"It was by the grace of God alone that Mrs. Rodgers escaped," said Fire Chief F. C. McDonald. "We had no trouble putting the fires out."

The six-room frame house was valued by Mr. Rodgers at $12,000.

ARREST FOLLOWS THEFT

Toronto, Feb. 19 — (CP) — Less than four hours after the $1,000 savings of an elderly couple were stolen last night, police arrested George E. Commandant, a distant relative, on a theft charge.

Sees Need for U.S. Ground Troops To Guard Asia

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)— Gen. J. Lawton Collins said today the failure of sea and air power alone to contain communists in Korea demonstrates the need for United States ground troops to help defend Europe against any aggression.

The army chief of staff was testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committee in support of the administration's plan to add three more army divisions to the two already in Europe.

Collins told the Senators:

"Without adequate army forces on the ground, backed up by tactical air forces, it would be impossible to prevent the overrunning of Europe by the tremendous land forces of the police states no matter what air and sea power we could bring against them."

Collins cited the heroism of French, Turkish and British soldiers in Korea to support his belief that the nations of Western Europe "do have the will to resist".

Three Tram-Car Crash Victims Seriously Hurt

Napanee, Feb. 19 — (CP) Three of the four persons severely injured in yesterday's level-crossing collision at nearby Roblindale were reported in "serious" condition today.

Police said the automobile in which they were riding crashed into the side of a moving freight train at the Canadian Pacific Railway crossing at Roblindale, 12 miles north of here, early yesterday.

Doctors said Mrs. Claude West, 48, of Roblin, and George Brown, 50, of Napanee, each suffered skull fractures. Mrs. Ruby Moon of Napanee was treated for a possible concussion and Robert Emmons of Odessa for broken ribs.

The car, in which the four district residents were bound for Napanee, dragged 100 feet and demolished.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 19 (CP) Synopsis: Spring-like weather dominated Ontario and most of Canada as the United States this morning. Temperatures remained above freezing throughout all but the extreme Northwestern section of Ontario during the night. Rain is falling in Southwestern Ontario and the Georgian Bay area and is expected to spread into the eastern parts of the province during the day.

FLU VIRUS MILD BUT CONTAGIOUS AUTHORITIES SAY

Ontario Hardest Hit With Five Fatalities

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario health officials today expressed hope that the peak of an influenza outbreak would be passed in that province this week. The flu already has been reported on the wane in Montreal and other hard-hit sections of Canada.

A Canadian Press survey today showed additional schools closed and widespread absenteeism blamed on colds and flu. Fog and rain in southern Ontario brought doctors' predictions that this is just the kind of weather that spreads the flu.

One estimate was that 140,000 persons in the metropolitan Toronto area were suffering from either colds or flu. Of the district's 300,000 industrial workers, 30,000 were away from their jobs and medical authorities said that, in some plants, entire departments were ill. Five per cent of Toronto's 2,000 street-car operators were off work.

Deaths in Montreal

Dr. Adelard Grouly, Montreal health director, said today that 35 deaths in that city last week were attributed to influenza, bringing to 200 the total deaths from that cause since Christmas. About 40 per cent of the fatalities were more than 65 years old. Montreal authorities said the epidemic was close to its peak.

Two secondary schools were closed at Chatham, Ont.

The flu virus, identified as similar to that which caused wide-spread epidemics in Europe earlier this year, is extremely contagious and can be expected to spread quickly, medical officials warned.

However, they classified the virus as "mild," indicating that normally healthy persons recovered down with flu should have little reason to fear serious complications.

Ontario, where the flu was listed as the most contributing factor in five deaths during the weekend, appeared the hardest hit of Canada's provinces. Northern Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia also reported outbreaks, and other European countries earlier this year was disclosed last night by Dr. Percy Stocks of the Connaught Medical Laboratories, Toronto.

Dr. Detries said tests made in various parts of Canada by the Canadian advisory committee on influenza had identified the virus as influenza "prime A."

Extremely Contagious

The committee, which includes Dr. Stocks, representatives of the Department of Health and Welfare at Ottawa, the armed services, Provincial Health Departments and Civilian Medical Laboratories, has been investigating outbreaks of flu since and characteristics of influenza for several years.

Dr. Detries said the virus is extremely contagious, resulting in rapid spread and large number of cases of the disease. Recoveries, he said, are generally swift.

Threatened Railway Strike Creates New Crisis Facing People of Britain

By JOHN RODERICK

London Feb. 19. (AP)—Fifty million Britons, already shivering through a winter of too little coal and not enough meat, awoke today to the new crisis of a threatened railway strike.

The rail walkout began shortly after midnight in Manchester, where 3,500 freight handlers stopped work in protest against a proposed five-per-cent wage increase they consider too small. Other rail unions made plans to join them.

Only five freight handlers reported for work in the heavily-industrialized Manchester area after the strike decision.

Another 11,000 members of the National Union of Railwaymen—engineers, firemen, signalmen, guards and porters—have promised to join the walkout at midnight Tuesday.

With all three major British rail unions seeking a larger increase, spokesmen predict a full-scale strike on the nationalized roads this week unless the government offer is raised.

Leader of the unions were to meet with the government's railway executive today to press their demands.

Other strikes and slowdowns were in prospect. In Sheffield 10,000 failed to start "working to rule" today. By this action, the men would, follow to the letter every obscure regulation in a book of rules grown fat with restrictions during the years.

At Birmingham, 800 others adopted the same slow-tactics. At Mosborough, 1,200 voted to strike next Sunday. Many other workers scheduled token 48-hour stoppages for next weekend.

The railway three big unions —The National Union of Railwaymen, The Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and The Firemen and Railway Clerks' Association—asked last August for wage boosts of from 7 1-2 to 15 per cent.

The government said it would cost too much—£17,000,000 (about $47,600,000) a year.

The cabinet today was scheduled to hear a report on the situation from Labor Minister Aneurin Bevan. The fiery Welshman, recently shifted from the Health Ministry, is facing his first big labor crisis.

Russia Unable to Pump All Oil She Wants From Satellites, Hungary Short 25% of Quota

By RICHARD O'REGAN

Vienna, Feb. 19 — (AP) — Although pumping furiously, Russians haven't been able to siphon all the oil they want from their eastern and central European captives.

Romania, the Soviet's largest foreign source of oil, has announced that the petroleum industry was a bit shy of its 1950 quota — its estimated 4,700,000 tons being 1.3 per cent off the beam.

Hungary is reported to have sent only 75 per cent of the promised amount unknown—although Hungary's 1949 oil production was 684,000 tons.

But Austria's Soviet - owned Zistersdorf fields yielded 1,450,000 in 1950, more than double the 1945 figure. About 69 per cent of the Austrian production goes east.

Russia's own oil output in 1950 has been estimated at 37,000,000 tons.

Western observers in Bucharest believe Russia has hoped for a quicker recovery of the great Romanian oil fields, destroyed partially by Allied bombing during the Second World War. They point to 32 wells the communists say were drilled to reach the pre-war level of 7,000,000 tons a year, stalled by the now-kicked-out American, British and Dutch technicians.

They see three factors contributing to the slow pace - war consumption, 3,810,000 tons; 3,810,000tons. They list these as the loss of western management and technicians, inadequate labor, and Russia's inability to supply replacement equipment.

These informants estimate that 95 per cent of all Romanian oil goes to Russia, with nationals in effect in both Hungary and Romania.

Chinese Reds Caught in Trap Cleverly Set For U. N. Forces

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Feb. 19 (AP) — Military bear-baiting has given the U.N. forces a brilliant victory in Korea.

U.N. forces smashed a communist attack on the central front piling up tens of thousands of dead and wounded. The allied cost was comparatively light.

The red attack was provoked by American over-confidence and circumstances similar to the first battle with the Chinese last November.

The campaign begin late last month when allied forces began gingerly reaching northward of Suwon toward the frozen Han River.

It was apparent then, say American officers, that the communists were building up strength for a new thrust.

As the U.N. offensive went forward resistance continued relatively light in the west. The Han River was reached, Kimpo airfield and Yongdungpo on the edge of Seoul were captured with relative ease. So was the port of Inchon.

Red Strategy Fails

But the trap was apparent. The communists were trying to lead the allies onward across the Han River, then move around to the over-extend the U.N. lines in the west so these forces could be cut off by a counter-encirclement. Meanwhile U.N. power was quietly built up in the centre to meet the expected red counter-blow.

Soon it exploded into a series of attacks. The Communist Chinese ran into deadly allied firepower in depth.

Red reds, with heavy manpower reserves, tried to break through regardless of losses. But the vast American-French garrison in the mountain town of Hoengsong held against the enemy line. The eastern prong of the trap was smashed.

Lieut.-General W. B. Ridgway, commander of the Eighth Army, says the red drive has been stopped. Now the allies are ready for drawing to regroup.

This time the enemy will not win the campaign. But it helps to pile up communist losses—and that is the basic strategy now.

SIGN LEGAL SEPARATION

Mamaroneck, N.Y., Feb. 19— (AP) — Tommy Manville said Friday that he and his British-born wife, Georgina Campbell Manville, had signed a legal separation agreement which gives her $81,000 a month to stay away from me." Manville, 57, wed Georgina, 32, his eighth wife, five years ago. He said that she had moved to Norwalk, Conn., taking with her $76,000 in jewelry and $20,00 worth of mink coats.

CHINESE REDS BADLY BEATEN IN CENTRAL KOREA

Strong Enough to Bar Crossing of Parallel

Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Feb. 19 (AP) —The United States Eighth Army commander said today the Chinese reds have been decisively defeated in central Korea within 35 miles of the 38th parallel. But, he said, they have the strength to bar an allied crossing of that boundary.

The Chinese were hit so hard, he added, that his patrols have been unable to make contact for 36 hours.

Only in the area north of Chechon, 20 miles southeast of Wonju, was there any sign of a fight today. An estimated 3,000 Korean reds made light attacks along a 10-mile front, but these were repulsed.

Ridgway, commander of the Eighth Army, told a press conference that although the Chinese have been beaten south of the parallel 38, they have enough massed manpower to prevent an allied crossing of the old boundary.

Parellel "No Significance"

Parellel 38 was designated as a temporary dividing line for occupation forces after the Second World War. It recently became a touchy political question. Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain said the United Nations could reconsider the question before Allied forces cross the boundary.

To Ridgway, however, the line "is no significance."

"It has not given (it) Seought," he said.

President Truman said Gen. MacArthur still has authority to send U.N. troops across 38 if it becomes militarily advisable. Ridgway's statement is a fall one for the communists. They had final victory over North Korea in the drive when red China entered the conflict.

Ridgway said the Chinese had five new armies on the line when they began their attack on the central front last week after a limited-scale offensive which ended with the gates of Seoul, former capital of South Korea, closed.

British aid replied to the Stalin attack over the weekend, accusing Russia of using the "threat of overwhelming force" and "aggressive and subversive policies" throughout the world to prevent peace.

London accused Russia of assisting communist aggression by seize power throughout Eastern Europe, of violating the Potsdam agreement by sealing off the Soviet zone of Germany, and of supporting the U. N. for the unprovoked aggression" of North Korea and communist China.

Officials here regard Stalin's statement as generally darkening the world's prospects. His insistence that the Korean War must be settled before there can be peace, coupled to offer no hope that Russia would be in a compromising mood at an early Big Four meeting.

U.S. Considers Better Small Arms, New Gun Sprays Lead Like Water

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Feb. 19 — (AP)— The United States army is considering changing over to new and better models of the two most widely used weapons—machines guns and rifles.

If made the transition will be a process taking years, instead or a sudden tossing away of thousands of .30- and .50-calibre machine guns, its rifles, automatics and carbines number in the millions.

The cost of a change is only one factor. Production lines would have to be stopped and new ones set up; facilities would have to be provided for new types of mass ammunition production.

It is considering adoption of a new machine gun for ground, and harder-hitting than anything used now.

Among its advantages are a high rate of fire and a high velocity—being important because ground forces must defend themselves against jet-ak attack. The heavy, fast-firing gun is a Browning machine gun fires 450 to 570 rounds a minute. The new gun has a normal rate of 750. It sprays bullets like water from a hose.

The latest electrically the new gun get away from it if the enemy answers accurately and fire by remote control.

Will Tighten up Rather Than Divide Democratic Powers

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Feb. 19 — (AP) — Diplomatic officials predicted today that Stalin's blast at the United Nations and the free world generally will backfire in three ways.

These authorities speculated that it may have these effects:

1. To tighten up, rather than divide, the west in its determination to build military strength against Soviet expansion. This because despite his avowals of seeking peace, the overall tone of what Stalin said was tough and uncompromising.

First expected result: Quick western agreement on a note to Moscow calling on the Russians to say if they are willing to hold Big Four talks on the real causes of world tension.

Reaction Inside Russia

2. Inside Russia, where Stalin's words are universally read, his suggestions of the new set of relations against the communist bloc may give the Russian people a new sense of what they are up against.

The State Department's reply Saturday night, mildly denouncing the Stalin comments as "misstatement," expressed hope that Stalin's attack on the United Nations at all U. N. members who voted against the communists in Korea. "will awaken the Soviet people to the dangerous road down which they are being led."

3. Stalin's personal prestige has become involved in Russia's dogmatic and propaganda battle more directly than ever before. Previously he had held aloof from the east-west conflict in most of his public pronouncements.

The State Department opened an attack on this point last night. Its "Voice of America" broadcast said Stalin has "put himself on record and on trial before the world by leading his own name to the defense of aggression."

Personal Thrust at Stalin

The fact that the official mouthpiece of the United States would take such a personal thrust at the head of the Soviet Union indicated that the government's estimate of the extent to which Stalin is involved with his chin, and the advanced deterioration in relations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

British aid replied to the Stalin attack over the weekend, accusing Russia of using the "threat of overwhelming force" and "aggressive and subversive policies" throughout the world to prevent peace.

London accused Russia of assisting communist aggression by seize power throughout Eastern Europe, of violating the Potsdam agreement by sealing off the Soviet zone of Germany, and of supporting the U. N. for the "unprovoked aggression" of North Korea and communist China.

Officials here regard Stalin's statement as generally darkening the world's prospects. His insistence that the Korean War must be settled before there can be peace, coupled to offer no hope that Russia would be in a compromising mood at an early Big Four meeting.

Convict Digs 70-Foot Tunnel To Escape, Job Takes Two Years

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (AP)—A 39-year-old convict wormed his way early yesterday through a 70-foot tunnel from his cell to freedom outside the maximum state penitentiary wall.

He was gone a large today.

Joseph Holmes, credited by Warden Wilfred T. Thomason with "the most fantastic escape ever made" from the prison in the 101st year of a 20-year burglary sentence.

The warden said it must have taken Holmes two years to dig his way out.

A slender, light figure, Holmes started his tunnel under his bunk. He carefully lifted out a piece of slate about two feet square from the floor. Then he bit cement.

Piece by piece, he chipped away the cement, apparently working only between 5 p.m. and 10 p.m. with the loudspeaker system blared out radio programs.

After 10 inches of this, he struck dirt.

He apparently disposed of the material scooped out with smuggled scrap iron—by flushing it down the toilet. He had to carry the dirt—trip by trip—in his clothing.

Scores of Reds Hand in Cards To Anti-Red Party

Rome, Feb. 19 (AP) — New scores of communists today were reported turning in their party cards as the split in Italy's red ranks widened across the country.

From Gravina, Apulia, press reports said 220 communists and pro-red socialists handed their cards to the Christian Democrat (anti-red government) party. Reports said all intend to join the Christian Democrats.

Nine members in Calabria, Northern Italy, said they "did not want to belong to organizations sponsoring the invasion of Italy by Soviet armies."

The rift in the party—biggest split since the iron curtain developed with the Communist Information Bureau—widened on Jan. 26 of communist deputies Ignazio Magnani and Aldo Curchi in northern Italy. The two deputies quit because their fellow communists would not declare opposition to invasion of Italian soil by Soviet Russia.

Essex, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP) — Officers of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment here, accustomed to some misleading reports during the recent "wolf scare" at Oldcastle, heard a new one Sunday.

Late at night, a caller to the police switchboard reported he had seen a bear on No. 18 Highway.

Wolves, maybe; but bears? Police don't think so.

Two Batawa residents suffered injuries Friday when their vehicle went out of control as the driver attempted to avoid another car, and crashed into a pole on No. 33 highway at Glen Miller. Injured were Percy Palmateer, with head cuts, and Ed. McCormick, who suffered a broken leg.

Palmateer, driving a Bata sawed panel truck was following Dr. D. B. Dickenson of Trenton when as the doctor attempted to turn off the highway onto the Glen Miller bridge his vehicle spun around. Palmateer in attempting to avoid striking the doctor's car had his own vehicle go out of control and crash into a pole.

Last Friday the Belleville Lodge No. 1004 Loyal Order of the Moose, celebrated its 30th anniversary with a Kiwanis Centre, taking the form of a banquet supper, under the direction of the Kiwanis hostess, Mrs. Johnson.

Following the supper, various speakers paid tribute to members, including Past Deputy Supreme Governor, Oscar Pierce, who was introduced by Governor, Bill Thompson. Mr. Pierce spoke on "Moose Membership". Other speakers were W. J. Mickle, first Belleville man to join the Moose Lodge; Brother Jack Mossman (sec.) and Brother Bill Clare, Sr. (treasurer) both of whom are 30 year members of the Regent, Selina Isles, of the Ladies chapter, gave a short talk on the "Services of the Moose" and their work.

This honor was given to Brother Frank Follwell, who was in attendance with Mrs. Follwell. Those receiving 25 year pins were W. Clare, W. Brown, J. O. Collyer, W. E. Edwards, H. J. Hall, W. J. The initiation lasted for 45 minutes, and with the degree team wearing their new headdress and caps, it was both beautiful to see and hear.

At the close, lodge dancing was enjoyed until the wee small hours of the morning, with music supplied by C. Thorne and his orchestra.

PROTECTIVE WINGS OVER DETROIT

The North American fighter, holder of the world's official speed record of 670.9 m.p.h., is powered by a 5,200-pound thrust engine and has a service ceiling of 45,000 feet. In Korea, this model of plane has performed well, but pilots say the Russians have still a faster plane. — Central Press Canadian.

Canada Offers $25,000,000 To Colombo Plan

Colombo, Ceylon, Feb. 19 (Reuters)—Canada has offered to contribute $25,000,000 to the commonwealth Colombo plan to develop south and southeast Asia, it is announced today.

David Johnson, Canadian delegate at the meetings here of the consultative committee of economic development of south and southeast Asia, made the announcement.

The Colombo plan is estimated to cost a total of £1,868,000,000 ($5,604,000,000) over six years.

"The Canadian government has decided it is willing to contribute $25,000,000 to the first year of the Colombo plan, provided it is clear other contributing countries will be making appropriate contributions so that the broad objectives of the Colombo plan can be realized," Johnson said.

Ottawa (CP) —The External Affairs Department confirmed today that Canada is willing to contribute $25,000,000 to the Commonwealth Colombo plan in its first year and reported that a list of the country will be spent in this country.

Parliament will be asked to vote that amount at the current session of parliament as Canada's share in the plan to develop south and southeast Asia to prevent that area falling into communist hands.

The plan is a joint $5,600,000,000, six year programme to increase land cultivation, build dams, start irrigation projects, produce more power and train the people and aid countries like India and Pakistan to help themselves through technical skills.

First announcement of the Canadian share came from Colombo when Finance Minister, high commissioner to Pakistan who is attending a meeting of the consultative committee established to direct the plan.

So far Australia has announced a $54,000,000 six-year contribution.

It is expected, officials said, that much of the money Canada ...es will be spent here. Canada or the other countries would place orders here for equipment and machinery and Canada would ship it free of charge.

The plan so far is a Commonwealth plan but efforts are being made to link it with American moves to aid Asia.

Finds Caterpillar Crawling in Yard-Sign of Spring?

More signs of an early spring?

The middle of February is ordinarily the time for a caterpillar to go crawling around in a city backyard, but that is just what was observed Sunday on Chatham Street.

William C. Irvine, 83 Chatham Street, said he was sweeping off his back stoop when he saw the caterpillar lying on the ice. He picked it up and it showed very definite signs of life.

Officials at the local Dominion Parasite Laboratory said that a caterpillar in February was not unusual. They suggested the caterpillar had hibernated for the winter in the crevice of a nearby building and had been fooled by the mild weekend into believing it was spring. Ordinarily they do not come out until well on in April it was stated.

PPCLI Among Best-Equipped Troops of U.N

Brantford, Ont., Feb. 19 — (CP) — A Protestant chaplain home from Korea said the one thing Canadians serving in Korea want is "solid action."

Capt. R. C. Nunn, chaplain of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was overcome with virus pneumonia shortly after conducting Christmas service for the Patricias and sent to Japan for treatment.

Now he's home on leave. He has interviewed dozens this weekend, while on his way to Scotland village, in this district, where he is United Church of Canada minister.

"The (Korean) terrain is worse than Italy," he said. "There are high winds, dust and a gnawing kind of cold. And there's nowhere to go for recreation. So the boys think they'll get their recreation in some solid action."

He said the Patricias, who late last week were reported moving toward the battle lines, are among the best-equipped soldiers fighting for the United Nations.

Fatally Burned Trymg to Save Chicks From Coop

Thessalon, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP) —Mrs. Arthur McAlpine, 41, died Sunday night from burns suffered when she tried to rescue a flock of chickens from a blazing chicken coop in the rear of her home here. She is believed to have been burning rubbish near the coop when it caught fire Saturday. Her clothes were almost burned off. Barely conscious, Mrs. McAlpine was found by her father, Sam Miskimmin, as she was trying to get into other clothes in hopes of managing some way to get to hospital. Mr. Miskimmin failed to persuade his daughter to take her to hospital. She died 20 hours later.

Suspects Make Getaway in Car Which is Stolen

Grimsby, Feb. 19 (CP) —Surprised in the apparent attempt to break into a Grimsby store last night, two or more men made a getaway in a stolen car after a Grimsby police car, chasing them at 85 miles an hour, went into a skid near the intersection of highways 8 and 20.

Constable Calvin McKenzie spotted the car while on patrol. The men apparently saw him at the same time and sped away.

The officer gave chase, unaware at the time that the car he was chasing, had been stolen a short time before from Deputy Reeve A. A. Constable of Grimsby. He was gaining on the other car when the police machine skidded on wet road and he had to give up.

IN MEMORIAM

CANNING — In loving memory of Mary Canning, who passed away February 19th, 1950.
There's a vacant chair in the home today
There's an empty place that can't be filled
There are tears that go out in the night
But whose silver light shineth on, Where the heart has been perfume still lingers,
When the blossoms are faded and gone
There are lives full of light and of love
When no longer their life current flows
But their goodness lives on with the loved
Like the soul of the river and the sea.
I keep the memory of you dear Mary,
Yes it's as bright as of old
Memories are the pearls we patiently
Sadly thread
And in memorie it never grows cold.
— Forever in our hearts, Mom, Dad and Family. P19

MURRAY — In loving memory of a dear dad, Percy J. Murray, who passed away four years ago today, February 19th, 1947.
At early evening when all was still,
And daddy's work was done,
God called daddy home to better rest
And daddy without warning
My farewell was never said.
But when we say 'Hello' instead
Daddy will be remembered by daughter Marguerite. P19

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all relatives and friends for the kindness shown to my husband, the late Alfred Sidney Hall, and to the Loyal Orange Association, members of Orange Women's Auxiliary, the blood donors and the Belleville Hospital staff for their many acts of kindness, flowers and cards received during his long illness and death of our aunt, the late Catherine Hall Bowen, who passed away at her home in Belleville on Friday, February 9th, Isobel Beatty. TORONTO STOCKS

Although the drop was great, it was not forceful or heavy. Volume for the first three hours was 1,253,000 shares, about 434,000 shares fewer than the same period last Friday.

Industrial losses ranged to more than $3 in a few odd cases but were mostly fractional. Steels papers, constructions, foods, liquors, refining oils, banks, textiles and manufacturing companies showed a majority of losses and the rest of the board was mixed.

Base metals declined [illegible] a broad front. Consolidated Mining and Smelters was a standout at $5.50 to $145.

Western oils eased down.

McIntyre led senior golds with a $1 drop and Dome, Hollinger, Giant Yellowknife and Lake Shore were off fractions. Preston, Macassa, Macleod Cockshutt and Pickle Crow dipped pennies among junior producers.

Million Dollar Gift Pledged Presbyterian Ch.

Ottawa, Feb. 19—(CP) — An anonymous donor has pledged himself to give the Presbyterian Church in Canada $1,000,000 over the next ten years.

Rev. F. Scott Mackenzie of Montreal, moderator of the general assembly, made the announcement today at a presbytery luncheon at St. Andrew's Church, Ottawa. He said it is the largest single gift the church has received, "something unprecedented".

The donor was described only as "a layman of the Presbyterian Church in Canada."

Its immediate result would be to ease "heavy burdens of financial worry in many manses across the land. . ."

The money has been given to help married ministers and widowers in the lower income brackets and their children. An 11-man board of trustees will administer the fund whose expenditure will extend over the next 20 years.

Dr. Mackenzie estimated some 250 of the church's 650 ministers will benefit immediately.

Under terms of the fund, all married ministers receiving the present minimum stipend of $2,000 will receive a supplement of $100 a year. A further allowance of $50 a year will be paid for each dependent child to the maximum of three.

Dr. Mackenzie said ministerial stipends, "never too generous at any time, have become in recent years increasingly inadequate to meet the steadily rising cost of living."

At the present time the minimum salary for Presbyterian ministers is $2,000 plus manse and car allowance. Before an increase was put through last October, it was $1,800 and manse.

Dr. Mackenzie said he felt the benefits from the gift would encourage young men of ability and deep Christian conviction "who are so sorely needed in the ministry today to dedicate themselves to the service."

It also would "stimulate others who may be in a position to do so to give with similar generosity."

Arrest Pair Following Nickel Company Hold-Up

Sudbury, Feb. 19 (CP)—Two gunmen today held up an International Nickel Company pay clerk on the steps of the north end branch of the Bank of Toronto. A few minutes later police captured two men downtown and charged them with the holdup.

Charged with the alleged gunmen were $4 stolen car and stolen firearms. A suitcase filled with Inco cheques was recovered.

Two shots were fired in the hold-up which led to the arrest of two men identified as Jack Campbell, 27, of Sudbury, and Jack Chadwick, 28, of Fenwick, Ont.

Both were scheduled to appear in court today on charges of armed robbery. Police said they were armed with loaded 9 millimetre automatic pistols when captured.

One of the gunmen, said to be Chadwick, accosted Inco pay clerk Len Turner of Copper Cliff, as he waited for the bank to open and ordered him to hand over a suitcase containing Inco pay cheques.

Inco paymaster Ken McNeill, who supervised the distribution of cheques after the holdup, said there was a "considerable amount of cheques" in the suitcase, but no definite figure was given. Rumor placed it at more than $200,000.

Say Austrian Boy 4½ Years Old Murdered Baby

Vienna, Feb. 19 (Reuters) — A 4½ year-old Austrian boy, described by his parents as "often drunk" was said by police today to have murdered a four-months' old baby. The infant died of numerous stabs and head wounds.

Police ordered the boy, Christian Tappler, who lived in the same house as the infant, Maria Klausner, to be taken from his parents and put in a reformatory.

His parents said he drinks nearly 1¾ pints of "Most" (sweet new wine) a day and is often under the influence of alcohol. Police said he was described as backward and had often been punished for torturing animals.

Fined $75,000 In 'Sick' Strikes

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen pleaded guilty to contempt of court today in the recent "sick" strikes in railyards and was fined $75,000.

He said he was fining the union $50,000 for criminal contempt as a "punitive" penalty for the strikes which occurred despite army operation of the railroads.

The other $25,000 for civil contempt was intended to compensate the government for the cost of bringing the legal proceedings against the union.

Tamm said it would require a firm of accountants working for years to determine the actual damages suffered by the public in delayed service, missed connections or the blocking of shipments of munitions and supplies to Korea.

The Union already had drawn a $10,000 fine in Chicago for the stoppage there. Another case is still pending in Cleveland.

GUARD AND PRESERVE WOODLANDS

In a country like Canada with a great deal of territory covered with forest, fire prevention naturally assumes a place of great importance.

During the weeks ahead the Lands and Forests Department is stressing this part of the work of the Department. The progress memorandum of the Quinte District says "it is true that it is very nice to know that a well equipped fire fighting organization is on the job, alert lower observers ready to the notice the first puff of smoke and fire fighters standing by to take speedy action."

It is a truism which is universally accepted that it is much easier to prevent the fire from starting in the first place. Certainly there won't be much expense and there won't be any damage. As the Department Forest Protection Chief, T. E. Mackey, said recently, "prevention is the most economical and sensible form of fire protection and of the greatest effect in the end." Education should be reflected in fewer fires, less damage and lower costs.

Last year in the Quinte District there were some 84 fires. That was an exceptionally good year, the weather was favorable and precautions were taken. Even at that, two spring fires resulted in property damage in the neighborhood of $100,000 apart from forest losses. That indicates how loss can mount.

Of the 84 fires which were started by lightning, the other 51, or 96 per cent were attributed to careless smokers, campers, settlers, railways, and human causes.

These figures, it is pointed out, speak for themselves and represent a challenge to everyone who uses the woods for pleasure or business.

The Fire Prevention campaign which is now getting underway well in advance of the coming season, will reach such, representatives of every class of operators, tourist camp owners, trappers' councils, fish and game associations, municipalities and school children. In addition rangers and conservation officers will be encouraged to make personal contact wherever possible and the widest detail will be furnished the press and radio stations during the coming weeks.

Officials look forward to the whole-hearted co-operation of the public in striving for a record season.

ANCIENT ENEMIES

In some parts of the earth, those areas earliest inhabited by man there are hereditary enemies which have been known from the dawn of history.

One of these is the locust, one of the most dread enemies of mankind. Millenniums ago they operated, preyed and carried destruction across many countries in the Middle East.

Today it is stated that a single swarm may completely cover over 1,200 square miles. Hence the peril to the entire appearance real, for them the Halifax Mail-Star says that "the locusts themselves, in a people's desperation, may be used as food. It is so set forth in the Old Testament which says: 'Even of them ye may eat; the locust after his kind, and the bald locust after his kind . . . and the New Testament says: '. . . And the same John had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins; and his meat was locusts and wild honey . . .'

"But they are scant replacement for bread. There are more sinister references as well. To Pharoah, it was said: 'If thou refuse (to let my people go) behold, tomorrow will I bring the locusts into thy coasts and they shall cover the face of the earth, that one cannot be able to see the earth . . . shall eat every tree . . . shall fill thy houses . . .' In another place, the people are warned that they shall carry much seed out into the fields and shall gather but little for they shall be consumed of the locust. And again, 'the locusts came without number and did eat up all the herbs in their land and devoured the fruit of their ground.'

"In northeastern Arica, and on the borders of the Caspian, there is a region which is considered the home of the locust in its breeding and swarming grounds and they believe they have averted at least some plagues. Now one seems to have gotten out of hand and that at a time when interest in always-hungry lands will not be lessened. If famine stalks through Persia and reaches, perhaps, into India where food shortages already are the most acute in generations."

SPENDING TIME FASTER

A theory arises. It is possible that over the years we have fallen more and more into the habit of consuming time instead of conserving it. It is true that today there are sixty seconds in the minute, sixty minutes in the hour, as there were yesterday; today the difference may be that we are spending time faster than it used to be spent. There are now more things to do and less time there once was; the amount of time spent by people nowadays merely in going from one place to another must be much greater than it was when men moved more slowly but less often. We could be the most conservative than although rapid movement has brought with it certain advantages it also has resulted in the squandering — and hence cheapening — of time, remarks New York Times.

LUXURY

Luxury is a charmer say,
Lovely to know and fair to see,
But win her and down to your dying day
You'll vow that you've married your enemy.

She'll give you blocers to fret about,
Swell your knuckles and stiffen your knees,
The meals she cooks will make you stout
And you'll be swallowing pills like peas.

With silver and crystal her table glows,
Luxury's truly man's worst foe,
Better are labor and simple fare.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

With two badly blackened eyes, a colleague arrived at the office yesterday morning with the story that he had bumped into the edge of a door in the dark.

"This chap is one of those efficient wives, a disciplinarian, who business is fortunate to have one of his type on the staff. He likes a living reproach to all his subordinates, and a comfort to his employers. It was a great joy to him with a couple of shiners.

"He was full of the grief, to his admiring fellow workers, "I have drilled it into my family for years now that in the middle of the bathroom door ajar at night. Every one of them knows the danger. I have made it an absolute rule. And last night, what do I do? I walk straight into a door . . . !"

It would be hard to know which stressed him the more: the two black eyes, or the failure of his family to obey his laws.

Discipline does not come naturally to human character. Discipline has to be constantly policed. You cannot count upon it otherwise. In the army, discipline is maintained only by constant vigilance on the part of a sort of hierarchy of officers and non-coms, including sergeant-majors and provost sergeants, acidfaced adjutants, guard parades, parades. And orders read and re-read every day of the week.

A man who attempts to impose discipline upon his family in social organism as the family is definitely looking for two black eyes. Any man who will walk about in his house in the dark, with the confident expectation that all doors are closed and no toys or roller skates left on the floor, is entitled to whatever he falls him. Let us attempt, by all means, to install a little discipline into the world around us. But at the same time, always walk gingerly in the dark, and keep your hands waving delicately ahead of you. Faith has its place, but not in the house, in the dark.

Canuck Writer Says Pats In for Rough Time

Toronto, Feb. 19 (CP) — Jack Macbeth, Associated Press war correspondent, said Saturday that Canadian troops soon to enter combat in Korea, are in for a tough time.

Macbeth, on leave after six months in Korea, saw the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry during their advanced training at Miryang.

"They are certainly packed with those troops," he said in an interview. "Their appearance is outstanding. They're exceptionally smart and keen as a razor blade.

"They'll do well when they go into action—although I'm afraid they're going to get a bloody bath."

Macbeth, 30-year-old Canadian navy veteran and former sports editor of the North Bay Nugget, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Macbeth of Toronto.

"The Chinese communists are every bit as tough as reports from the battlefronts indicate, he said.

"They've hit us four times—and ripped right through us each time. Despite the U.N. advances from time to time, there's no reason to believe the Chinese can't do it a fifth time."

Macbeth said he considers Canada's contribution so far "a natural diagonal."

Macbeth said that since returning to Canada he has been "really astounded by Canadians' lack of interest and lack of knowledge about what's going on in Korea—it's pathetic."

Surely the pattern of communist plans is clear enough that we can see it's going to get worse before it gets better. Therefore the only thing to do is make a maximum effort now."

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THE COME-ON

An old copy of Life, which I've been studying assiduously in a dentist's office, contains no less than two dozen advertisements depicting young, long-legged females in various stages of undress.

In at least half of these displays the lady has nothing whatever to do with the article merchandise offered and is there merely as a symbol of supplying the reader's attention, no mean feat in itself if the reader happens to be waiting tremulously for a dental appointment.

Now, of course, the evolution of the female as the fantastic world of advertising is familiar to you all. In a thousand periodicals, on the faces of five million billboards we are confronted with girlies in bra and ballet slippers.

They are used as a compulsion to purchase a wide variety of products ranging from Dr. Scholls' Zino-Pads to Whitaker motorbikes, and perhaps it's time we asked ourselves why.

We should agree, first, that the female form, as beheld in or out of a bathing suit, is an altogether splendid thing and has been down through the ages, literally, as us (if we care to listen) that the romans had the equivalent of the well known "Sex" in their word for it, too. Human beings—or men, at any rate—don't change much. They just don't.

But the simple fact of appreciating a girl in a swimming costume doesn't begin to explain why this should have any bearing on Mum, Bathroom Tissue, Dog Food, Master Tires, Champion Spark Plugs, Band-Aids, Three Daughters Beauty Salon, Bell Telephones, Webster Cigars or Pard Dog Food.

These companies just happened to think a girl in a bathing suit beauties in the interests of moving their merchandise from A to Z somewhere with fine little lines forming in our forehead—what is the relationship between a gorgeous girl and a pan of dog food.

Foot-in-Door

The first obvious deduction we may draw is that a picture of a large young female will stop a man quicker and longer, than say, a picture of an unadorned spark plug, and that is the basis of all advertising man thus accomplishes the first objective of any salesman, which is to get the end of the boot in the door is to the Fuller Brush man.

This, in itself, is not enough. We must assume further that the female form will attract and create some subconscious association between her attractiveness and the pictured product.

It is quite possible that the male reader may feel a momentary glow on scrutinizing the form of Angela, Jane Russell lighting a Sweet Caporal and become momentarily confused into a mild affection for a cigarette.

Surely this isn't too far fetched! Many men have become so shaken and bewildered by the female form that they have paid for it the rest of their lives.

In general then the bathing beauty's effect on the male reader is to lull him up and put him in a fleeting frame of mind to listen to a sales talk.

Now we come to the effect upon the female reader. For here there is obviously no romantic interest. Her first reaction to a cutie is simply to look at the kind of swimming costume the model is wearing or what she's done with her hair.

Most women, in reading novels or going to the movies, put themselves in the place of the heroine. Thus, confronted by an immaculate and curvesome queen brushing her hair in her Grand Rapids boudoir, or pinching a Royal Master Tire, or answering a Bell Telephone, the female reader projects herself into the picture.

The effect of Life's ad is not merely to imagine having a beautiful boudoir, or a lovely, whitewalled tire, but to become the picture herself as the beautiful model.

'I Use It'

The Beautiful Girl motif which has reached such staggering proportions in modern advertising, has several off-shoots, the most interesting of which is the Hollywood Testimonial Technique.

With the possible exception of Greta Garbo and Dora Duck, each of the film stars is busy endorsing reservoirs of carbonated pop or your penicillin or cosmetics and encouraging their less talented sisters to join in the fun.

Hollywood glamour adores V-8 vegetable juice. Paulette Goddard is reducing nicely with Ayds. Barbara Stanwyck prefers Early American furniture. Esther Williams is just mad about her Chromcraft dinette set. Joan Crawford would feel lost without her Charm Trend Permanent.

The appeal here, of course, is somewhat similar to that exerted on mail order by a fella, county or "executive" job.

Dr. Weber counselled a daily bath and a brisk rub-down, but I am happy to note, left it to the reader's own free will whether he should be hot or cold. T. Brady.

One Dr. Weber, London physician, cited by Michnikoff in The psychology of Life (English translation published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, 40 years ago), was 85 years old and in his practice had cared for many other old men. Hence Metchnikoff regarded him as especially qualified to formulate rules for staying young.

Dr. Weber recommended, of course, moderation in eating, drinking and other physical pleasures. Pure air in dwelling and vicinity (I, Brady, do not understand how one can control the air in the vicinity). Daily exercise, whatever the weather; exercise (ideally walking) on the level and up-hill. Special respiratory exercise. I don't know just what this means, but I advise every one, young and old, who leads a sedentary life to do the belly breathing exercise each night on retiring and each morning on waking which I described in How to Breathe. For copy of the booklet send 10 cents, stamped self-addressed envelope. Go to bed early and rise early, and divert many more than six seven hours, counselled Dr. Weber.

That may have been a reasonable habit in London a century ago. If you can get more with the chickens and rise with the sun you probably will be healthier and healthful. But conditions today are changed in several respects from those of a century ago and many instances to follow the exact rule is to lead a queer existence unless you choose to play the hermit or raise a curtain between your perfection and the rest and foul of people around you.

Dr. Weber's views on Dr. Weber's view that persons beyond middle age or, say, past sixty, should go to bed early and get seven hours sleep and in many instances only 6½ hours sleep ration depends upon the amount of honest work, play or exercise one gets daily not upon the so-called "brain" work or "nerve tension" under which one works. Honest work is physical, muscular work or labor, but not marking time at a desk, counter or "executive" job.

Dr. Weber counselled a daily bath and a brisk rub-down, but, I am happy to note, left it to the reader's own free will whether he should be hot or cold. T. Brady.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Tubercular or Tuberculous?

Would a tubercular person show a normal reaction to smallpox vaccination. Have heard it is dangerous for such a person to be vaccinated, but the doctors here say it isn't. (H. R. M.)

Answer—It seems obvious that they refer to tuberculous rather than to tubercular. The term tubercular might apply as well to cancer, boils or any other disease characterized by formation of nodules or tubercles in the affected tissues or organs. There is no reason why one with tuberculosis should not be vaccinated. In fact during one epidemic vaccination with 275 diabetic patients, 676 newborn babies, 90 erysipelas patients, 425 diphtheria patients, 644 cases of other disease characterized by formation of nodules or tubercles in the affected tissues or organs. News of Trenton

Trenton Holds First Dinner, Fraser, Hardy Main Speakers

Trenton—(Special)— The civic dinner at the Queensway Hotel Friday night attended by almost complete representation from the municipal administrative bodies marked another milestone in the history of the town of Trenton. The get-together was called to acquaint individual leaders in municipal affairs with each other.

Town Clerk O. W. Larry was in the chairman's seat during the evening with Mayor Kenneth Couch, who recently recovered enough to leave a sick bed, at the head table. Mr. Eric Hardy, of Toronto, director of Citizen Research of Canada, was the guest speaker.

Mr. Larry gave first hand information on the affairs of the town over a ten year period, using charts and visual graphs to illustrate his talk. His facts and figures explained the operation of an $8,-000,000 corporation from the town of Trenton. Mr. Larry answered questions directed at him by Councillor Ripley, the Chairman of finance who asked the town clerk to stress that the debenture debt of any town should not exceed ten per cent of the total assessment and still keep the municipal bonds in strong demand. Mr. Larry revealed that Trenton's outstanding debenture liabilities stood around $750,-000 and that the town's securities were in good demand and considered excellent investment by leading bond houses.

Period or Austerity

Mr. Hardy, the guest speaker, said that Trenton, as well as all the rest of Canada was about to enter a period of austerity spending on public works. He suggested that council pick out the most necessary projects and go ahead with the building of hospitals.

He discouraged cutting down the size of a school in order to save enough materials for another building. "If you are going to erect a new school," he said "build it so as to fit your requirements. Earlier, it had been mentioned that the town would have to consider enlarging educational accommodations and construction of a sewage disposal plant.

Mr. Hardy warned civic administrators against skimping on upkeep of public property. "Today we have to think about postponing capital spending plans" he said, "but it is not a good time to forget proper maintenance. "Upkeep, to my way of thinking, should carry top priority," he said.

Mr. Hardy favored paying school teachers adequately. He said that "this generation owed the youngest generation a good education."

In his usual dynamic manner Senator William A. Fraser addressed the civic dinner. Senator Fraser mentioned Mayor Kenneth Couch's achievements as chief administrator, and thanked the mayor for his efforts during the past five years. "Trenton has progressed under his guidance," he said, "and we are all thankful and owe him a great debt of gratitude."

He said that he felt that although Trenton was prosperous and apparently going ahead, the situation should be looked at through the eyes of a banker. He suggested a broadening of finances, declaring that those who contribute by way of taxes should have the maximum return for their money.

Deplores Interest Lack

Mr. Fraser stated that it was deplorable that a town of 10,000 should have so many shareholders who took no interest in the town's expenditures. He said that he favored a town manager, and suggested that the clerk, O. W. Larry is a candidate for the job.

"I do not want to run the town," Mr. Fraser continued, "but I want to see it run." He pointed out that he was born in Trenton, and said "as long as I live, whether anyone likes it or not, I'm going to see that it's run right."

In conclusion, Mr. Fraser issued a challenge to the younger generation of Trentonians, playing the responsibility of the future greatness of the town on their shoulders. "As far as I'm concerned," he said, "I have only one ambition, and that is to further the welfare of my fellow citizens." Other speakers on the program were Mayor Couch, M. W. Anderson, chairman of the Union Board of Education, Separate School Board Chairman Dr. J. V. Byrne, Air Commodore W. W. Vanier of the R. C. A. F. Station, Judge J. C. Anderson, Magistrate T. Y. Wills, George Sprenkli, James Cox, chairman of the Library Board, Town Engineer Rex Davey, and Clarence Saylor.

Dog's Whining Arouses Owner As Cottage Burns

Trenton—(Special)—The whining of a three-year-old mongrel dog may have saved the life of a man here early this morning Edward Young, Jr., of 27 Ralph Street, was awakened after eight o'clock by the whimperings of his dog, and found his cottage full of smoke.

Young, though groggy and red-eyed from the smoke, was able to grope his way outside and turn in an alarm. Firemen could not save the cottage, and it was severely gutted by the blaze.

Young is an odd-job specialist who had just returned from fixing the fires at a local plant. He went to bed sometime after 7 a.m., and was awakened about 8.15 by the dog, which sleeps on the foot of the bed. Young's son, Harold, had gone to work just before seven o'clock, and said this morning that there was nothing amiss when he left.

Origin of the fire had not been determined at noon today, but the fate of the dog had. Mr. Young, who had been going to give the mongrel away several times because she was "too much trouble", has decided to keep her. He had no insurance on his cottage.

WITHOUT INSIGNIA

Tokyo, Feb. 19 (AP) — A member of General MacArthur's staff said Red Cross personnel on loan to the United Nations for civilian relief work in Korea have been instructed to wear U.S. army uniforms without insignia. He emphasized that this did not affect Red Cross units operating with combat troops. It applies only to teams working with Korean civilians. Reason for the order was "to keep a lot of people from getting shot in a confusion of uniforms."

Pappas Bills Defeat Peterborough 68-54 But Lose Round-by 5 Points

By DON ROSE

Saturday a high - spirited Pappas Billiard squad defeated the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. team handed the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. a bad defeat 68-54 in the second game of a home-and-home interclub series. The Bills won both games. Although the locals downed the Petes by 14 points, the win was not sufficient to take the series. On the Saturday past the Petes had taken the first game by a 19 point margin; it was interesting to see the Peterborough game set-up. There was only one official and no time clock but an old electric clock filled the bill well enough to allow for two twenty minute halfs. Lloyd Faulkner and Plato of the Marines shared high scoring honors of the game with 17 points each.

Fast Scoring

The first half was definitely in the Bills favor. Time after time the Bills marched up the floor and tallied scores. The total of 68 points scored in the 20 minute quarter gives an idea of the high calibre scoring. Led by Ketchen-up 16 points and Faulkner and Spafford with 8 points each the Pappas team dominated the first half. McPherson and Plato with 8 and 5 points respectively carried the Petes scoring. After a fine exhibition of ball on the Bills part the half ended with the Bellevillle team leading with 30 points 44-24. That also gave the Bellevillians a 1 point lead on the round.

Petes Press In Second

The second half told tougher for the local team. Although they started with a fine display at their goods they cooled off in their scoring ability. The pores reached a great height and both teams were in a spot to win. First the Petes led by a point then the locals. Time after time the score played favorites until it took a definite stand on the Petes side, Belleville suffered costly loss at the 2-minute mark as Faulkner was benched because of a charlie-horse in his leg. The Bills still scored but the lead built up by the Petes in the last few minutes couldn't be knocked down in the time remaining. The game was an easy victory for Belleville but it was the round score that counted. Belleville won the game by a 14 point margin and lost the round by a heart-breaking score of 5 points. Faulkner led the scoring list for the Bills with 5 points and Plato hit for 12 counters in the final half.

Lineups—

Belleville: Summers 5, Garrow, Faulkner 17, Spafford 14, Pappas, Ketchenson 12, Scrymgour, Lockyeh 12, Dudley, Batchelor 6.

Peterborough: Plato 17, Thorburn 8, Payne 8, McPherson 15, Thompson 7, Trimm 4, McIntyre, Kidd.

Pretty Roses On Her Toes

By PRUNELLA WOOD

TO MAKE a play on that old saw about "rings on her fingers, and bells on her toes", we'd like like to say right now, before we get side tracked, that the object of these pastel kid sandals with the painted roses on toes and heels the roses as a lovely idea for bridesmaids' costumes, perhaps with hats trimmed to match, but rather preferring arm bouquets to match, and headdresses of swirling to top off a taffeta or mousseline gown. The bride gets the ring, the belles get the roses.

Plan Big Program to Spur Purchase of British Fashions

London—(CP)—Big plans have been made for the London "Fashion Fortnight" from May 30 to June 13, when buyers from all over the world will be given a comprehensive view of the latest developments in the British fashion industry.

Thousands of invitation cards have been sent to overseas buyers in 60 countries. The event will be followed by personal letters in various languages drawing attention to the success of last year's events and to plans to make this year's show worthy of the British festival year of 1951.

Different sections are assigned to tailored coats and suits, rayon fashion fabrics, fashionable rainwear, jersey fashion parades, furs, dresses and millinery.

There will also be an exhibition of contemporary British costume jewelry at the design and research centre of the gold, silver and jewelry industries.

Exhibitions of silk fashion fabrics and children's wear are also planned.

Among the attractions London offers to the buyer from overseas are the displays of large stores and small specialty shops. Buyer likes to look around the shops whether on business or personal trips. Here what a buyer chooses for his or her own personal use is a valuable guide to the taste of the overseas markets.

Consequently a careful record will be kept at most of the combined events and at the close of the fortnight it is hoped that a summary of its contents will prove of great benefit to the British exporters, not only in fashion but many other fields.

The dates have been chosen to coincide with the height of the London social season. Besides the main Festival of Britain, the Derby and Royal Ascot turf meetings come at that time and the first test cricket match against South Africa will start at Nottingham June 9. The International Lawn Tennis championships at Wimbledon come later.

Brigadier Janet Addresses Energetic Club on Personalities

Cupids and hearts decorated Holloway Street Sunday School on Friday evening when the Energetic Club entertained the Mr. and Mrs. Club of Bridge St. United Church. As the guests entered they were tagged with lace trimmed hearts bearing their name.

During the devotional period, Doris Daniels sang a solo "More Love to Thee" and Rev. S. Larman gave a short address on the scripture taken from 1st Cor. 13. President Don White welcomed the Mr. and Mrs. Club and a new couple, Mr. and Mrs. Laughlin were introduced.

A short business period was discussed followed by the program consisting of an accordian solo by Mr. Gulliver; two readings by Mrs. Tucker, and two violin solos by Mr. La France accompanied by Mr. C. Templer.

Guest Speaker

The speaker, Brigadier Janet, introduced as Mrs. Brigadier Storey gave a splendid address on "Personalities". Among the names were Churchill, General Eisenhower, and the Princess Royal. Brig. Janet had been in close contact with these noted people during the war years and spoke highly of their fine qualities, especially of the Princess Royal, who, as a young woman joined the Signal Corps, wrote personally to also either the wife or mother of every fallen soldier in the Corps.

WOMAN EXPELLED

Belgrade, Feb. 16 (AP) — The government last night said it had expelled a woman member of the permanent Russian commercial mission here on the grounds she has used smuggled money and goods for "hostile activity" toward Premier Tito's regime. The woman was identified as Jelena Czerova Ivanovna, 45. She was deported across the border to Hungary and turned over to a representative of the Soviet consulate there, Borba, official newspaper of Tito's communist party, reported.

Women's Clubs Exert Pressure At Washington

Washington. (AP) — Millions of United States women belong to clubs that often do Washington pressure groups on bills coming before Congress.

For the most part, bills they support are on general subjects, such as world trade and taxes. Only a few worry about action that is purely on behalf of women.

Ten national women's organizations with offices in Washington are listed in the official register of lobbyists. But ask an experienced Washington club woman how many women's club take action on legislation at one time or another and she asks "Can you count the fleas on a dog?"

The national club organizations follow pretty much the same pattern. They mail "Washington News Letters" to educate their members on what is happening in Congress.

Sometimes they ask members to notify their congressmen how they want them to vote, but this is usually done only when the legislation is making a spirte in a national convention. Often officers do the actual lobbying before congressional committees.

Then there are so-called Washington "social" clubhouses. These are mostly society women who invite guests in to dinner, fill them with good food and expensive liquor and then suggest that this or that bill would be good or bad. Generally these women are aiding only their husbands' interests.

The General Federation o' Women's Clubs has probably the largest membership—over 750,000 of members in this country and about 5,500,000 affiliates in various foreign countries.

Broad Platform.

The Federation is now supporting the reciprocal trade agreement, universal military training, the North Atlantic Pact, the Marshall Plan, the Voice of America, the International Genocide Convention, and draft of 18-year-olds if it is necessary and provided the young people get some education as possible!

The Federation has also approved the women's equal rights amendment and statehood for Alaska.

The Federation takes the Marshall Plan so seriously that a large committee spent last summer in Europe checking on the use of U.S. help.

The National Woman's Party has just one plank: the equal rights amendment. It has supported since 1923. Curiously, it has already gotten the bill past the Senate twice. But the House of Congress is still debating.

The national business and professional women's clubs have only 150,000 members but they are counted powerful in Washington. The members include outstanding working women in small American communities, like women judges and business executives.

"B. and P." puts game emphasis on legislation for women. They support the equal rights amendment. They were successful in getting women a permanent status in the military services. They are demanding equal treatment for women under the Social Security program. They fought the bill that would have granted both husband and wife from working for the government at the same time. They approve the genocide convention.

American Association of University

Other major groups include the city Women, whose prime interest is legislation; the Women's Christian Temperance Union (WCTU), which, of course, has many things besides temperance; and the League of Women Voters.

V.O.N. News

What is the prospect for longevity in children with rheumatic fever?

A study made by Wilson and Lubachex (journal of ANA, November 13, 1948) who used the records of 1,042 children in the New York area over a 30-year period, 1916 to 1947. It was found that the mean age at the onset of the disease was 6.5 years. The overall death rate was 14.7 per 1,000 per year. An afflicted child in the first four of five chances to survive 15 years, three out of four to survive 20 years, and two out of three to survive 30 years after the onset of the disease. A child had a 50 per cent chance to survive to the age of 40.

This disease needs good, simple preventive measures or specific methods of treatment. It is a problem for the entire community since it may be improved by social and economic factors.

In June, 1950, 42 graduate nurses were awarded scholarships of a total value of more than $30,000 by the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada.

The scholarships are worth $750 each. They are awarded annually for post graduate training in public health nursing, to prepare nurses for positions with V.O.N. Since 1943 the V.O.N. has spent more than $150,000 on scholarship awards.

In the latest group, 24 are from Ontario, 10 from Quebec, four from the Maritimes, six from the Prairie Provinces and one each from Yukon and Alaska.

At Rome, in June, '50, representatives of 70 countries at the World Health Assembly (WHO) set... among other things that agreed on a program to raise health levels, especially in underdeveloped countries as part of U.N.'s project on "technical assistance for economic development." There was a definite approach to world health problems, and a trend in the change from curative to preventive technique, with public health and "unless the people of the world have a high degree of health physical and mental health, the plans of economists to improve the economic conditions will not succeed."

ST. JOHN'S W.A.

Tweed — The monthly meeting of St. John's United Church W. A. was held in the Sunday School rooms on Thursday afternoon, with fifty ladies in attendance. The rooms were decorated and the meeting took the form of a Valentine meeting, with the president, Mrs. W. Hodgins, in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. C. E. Way and also a number of Thank You cards which had been received. Following the dedication of the offering, which was received at this time, the president expressed her appreciation at seeing so many of the ladies present.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. C. B. Clark, group leader, with the following ladies assisting her, on the platform: Mrs. F. B. Foster, Mrs. C. H. Kerr and Mrs. P. Jordan.

Mrs. P. Jordan read the story of St. Valentine, followed by a delightful piano solo, "Swallows", by Mrs. Edwin Foster. Mrs. C. H. Kerr read as a Scripture reading 1st. Cor. 13.

Short Readings

Mrs. F. Foster and Mrs. B. Clark gave a number of short readings from clippings, based on Love, and Mrs. C. H. Kerr and Mrs. W. Provost sang in her pleasing manner "The Love of God", with Mrs. J. Sager accompanying her at the piano.

At the close of the meeting a dainty Valentine tea was served, and decorated tables were arranged with a lovely cake for sale, in charge of Mrs. F. Foster.

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

The worship service of the Tabernacle United Church on Sunday morn auxiliary of the W.M.S., was conducted by Mrs. Harbeck. All read the 90th Psalm responsively, and with bowed heads sang as the prayer-hymn "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind, Forgive Our Foolish Ways".

Mrs. Archibald gave a talk on the study book, "The United Church Enters Japan", outlining on the map of Japan places of importance. Japan was sealed-off for a time until recently they began taking more interest in life. Now they have three universities in higher education, and are making wonderful progress.

The Japan Women's Christian College was in bad repair after the bombing, but through wonderful tribute to Japan through efforts of its Christian president. Christian colleges should be maintained by every possible means as a country with but five per cent literate...The most important work is the training of young girls in their schools, and Christianity is the foundation for democracy and the value of the missionary is beyond bounds, in Japan.

Mrs. May introduced a book from the Overseas Library, "Torch in Japan", urging all to read it, and of many books as possible dealing with Japan.

Appreciative thanks were extended by Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. for their co-operation and asked God's blessing on each, after which, Miss Johns gave the treasurer's report, and Mrs. Jerome, the secretary's, asking all to call on the sick and shut-ins.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Thinks rumors have lost him his girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a girl for three years, and now there is a rumor going around that I have been going with another girl, whom I don't even know. Every time I try to explain things to my girl, it happens that she is with another boy, and she tells me that. If I can go with other girls then she can go with other boys.

I am very fond of this girl, and wish you would give me some advice about this matter.

P. M.

Dear P.M.:

No matter how fond you are of this girl, I don't believe you'll get very far toward mending matters by constantly trying to make an opportunity to explain things to her. Every way you've made an effort to do this several times. If I were you, I'd let things rest awhile. Then when your part; now take her up on what she says about going out with others, and let her see that you can have fun without her.

Of course, it's a little mysterious to me how these humors get around if they are completely baseless, although I do realize that sometimes a very large story can grow out of a mere trifle. You know, it to happen that if a boy merely stops talking to a girl, someone who sees him will decide she is his one and only.

It seems to me, though, that any girl who is really a friend of a boy's wouldn't be too quick to jump to conclusions, if she's that type of girl, you're not losing much if she drops you now.

She wants a military wedding

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend and I are planning on getting married. At the present time he isn't in the service, but the way things look, he will be before long.

When we get married, I would like to have a military wedding, if possible; and would like to know if he would have to be of a certain rank in the service for a certain length of time to have such a wedding. Would the best man and ushers have to be in uniform? Also, could we have some services made up outside the church and form an arch with swords or whatever they use? Or do they just do that in the movies?

A. R.

Dear A.R.:

It is not necessary for a member of the armed forces to be in the service for any length of time in order to have a military wedding. Nor does he need to be of a certain rank. If the best man and ushers are in service, they would naturally be in uniform, too. If they are not, civilian dress is acceptable.

However, for a real military wedding, all the men in the bridal procession really should be in uniform. The regimental colors of the groom are usually displayed, and, as a rule, the groom's superior officer and friends of the groom in the service are usually invited. The ceremony can be performed by the chaplain, or by a civilian clergyman.

The arch of sabres, to which you refer, did not originate in Hollywood. It is often a part of the military wedding recessional, outside the church, but it may occur only when the groom is a commissioned officer.

Actually, the details of a military wedding do not differ essentially from those of any other wedding. I think it might be a good idea if you were to go to your public library and ask for a book on etiquette, of which there are many. In any of them you should find all the information you need to make your wedding a memorable occasion. Good luck!

She eloped—is afraid to tell her mother

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and for a long time was going with a very nice boy. We were secretly in love. I kept hinting to my mother that we wanted to get married, but she insisted I was too young.

Finally, I told my mother that I was going to New York, but instead, I was foolish enough to elope, and now I don't know how to tell her. I have been married for three months now, and I live at home, but my husband and I want to be together. What kind of marriage is this? Please help me find a solution.

B. A. S.

Dear B.A.S.:

I'm afraid there is only one possible solution for your problem, that is, for you to tell your mother just what the situation is. You'll have to tell her sooner or later anyhow, and the longer you put if off, the harder it's going to be for you.

I agree with you that you did a very foolish thing. Since the marriage has actually taken place, however, you had better have the courage to stand by what you did and try to work it out on some basis that will be as acceptable as possible to all concerned. Naturally, your parents are going to be extremely upset, but you will be better off in the end if you have the fairness and the character to be honest with them now.

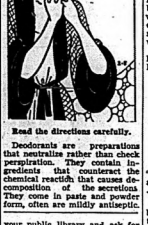
With the growing popularity of the Goddess Hygeia, women are becoming more and more fastidious, more particular about grooming, and offensive perspiration odor is gradually sinking away into the shadows. Yet correspondence from readers says that the campaign must go on, that the public nose still suffers now and then.

Perspiration is the result of the normal, healthy functioning of the pores, regulating body temperature and sending off impurities. It evaporates readily from most parts of the body, but, under the arms, evaporation is impeded and moisture accumulates. Mingling with the secretions of the sebaceous glands, the chemicals thrown off by the sweat glands may create an unpleasant odor. Every women should be on her guard against this state of affairs, not only in the summer season, but all the year round. Sweaters, wools, especially, should take measures against this if they can. It may make one a social outcast.

The daily bath is the best weapon against this foe, but must be accomplished with plenty of lather and a brush with heavy bristles. A washcloth will only release dead skin cells, to which the bacteria can more easily cling. There should be a thorough rinsing to get all the soap out, as this will interfere with its function as an organ of elimination. The final rinsing is an alternating hot and cold shower that speeds up circulation. After the unbodwom it is advisable to use a dusting powder that contains boric acid.

For use in the armpits there are various preparations to be found at cosmetic counters. I can doesn't satisfy, another one will. Some liquid preparations clean the pores, and to be used only occasionally. No danger attends this treatment. Exudations from the sweat glands will find outlets elsewhere.



Read the directions carefully.

Deodorants are preparations that neutralize rather than check perspiration. They contain ingredients that counteract the chemical reaction that causes decomposition of the secretions. They come in paste and powder form, often are mildly antiseptic.

Anti-perspirants check the flow by astringent action upon the tissues of the glands and surrounding areas. They come in liquid and cream form. Sticks are similar to the creams.

No matter what kind one selects, one should read the directions carefully as the method of application is important. women never read directions on anything, we regret to report.

Victorian Lines For the Bride

By PRUNELLA WOOD

PERHAPS it is the charm of the Victorian fashions in The Modiste which is setting off the current designer interest in that period, but however you feel, it makes for enchanting costumes like this pearl d'ange lace bridal gown.

You can see the centre aisle talent of the slightly bustled back drape, from which cascades a tulle train of three tiers, all fan pleated. The modest off-shoulder neckline is also in period, and the suggestion of basque boning in the bodice, In theory, while is the bride's dress color, but how hard to wear. This dress is offwhite, tinged with delicate, flattering Parma violet.

Scallops were not a popular food in America until 1870, even though the Indians used scallop shells to decorate themselves.

The creamy flesh of scallops has a delicate flavor which rivals lobster at its best. It is easy to handle because it contains no bones, shells or cartilage. The water in which scallops are poached acquires a distinctive sweet seafood flavor which should always be saved for soups or sauces.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are planning a surprise party for a very dear friend who is leaving for the service shortly. As there are very few things which she can receive, we would like to present her with a money-present. Our problem is whether to write informal notes to the guests, or invitation cards. I'd suggest a note, please sketch the wording for us, or, if a card, the wording to be used on the bottom of the card. Another question is how to receive the money in advance, or would individual envelopes be appropriate?

M.

If there aren't to be too many guests, it seems to me that the most convenient and practical way to give the invitations is verbally either face-to-face or by telephone. Then you can tell the occasion (explaining that it is to be a surprise), the place, date, hour, and the idea of the money-present as a farewell gift. (You and the other hostesses should decide on a definite sum for each gift, so there will be no uncertainty or embarrassment.) Or, of course, it is just as proper to write notes of invitation, and perhaps you might find it more convenient.

The most delightful plan for the gift-giver would, I think, be for each guest to enclose his money in an envelope, with a warm-hearted little note of friendship and good wishes to the guest of honor as she goes forth to service. This would be much more personal than a "pool", and she would treasure the notes from her well-wishers. These envelopes could be put in a decorative box, perhaps tied with a ribbon of the color of her branch of the service; and you, if you are to be chief hostess, would present the box to her, explaining gaily that the contents are to be used to buy her something that she would like to have, something that will represent "the friendship of her friends". Or the envelopes might be enclosed in a wee gift bag, a bag to be presented to her.

Arrange for convenient time

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is very serious about a young lady who lives not far from us here, and I have a feeling that they will soon decide to become engaged. Their friendship hasn't been of long duration, and I've met this girl only once. But she is a wonderful girl and my hubby to show her and her family the correct courtesy. I've read in your column several times that the young man's family is expected to call at once on the girl and her family.

If my son tells us he is engaged, should I (or my husband and I) go to call on the girl and her family unannounced, or should I make the arrangements with them by telephone as to convenient time of call?

Ita Mother

I urge you to telephone first to avoid embarrassment after your son tells you the news) to arrange for a time convenient for the girl and for mother. This is such an extremely important call, this welcoming-into-the-family call, that it is reassuring and comfortable to all concerned to be sure that the time-convenience. And yes, if possible, it is a splendid idea for you and your husband to go together to make this call . . . happily, proudly!

Fashion Flashes

THE TRUMPET line has invaded the spring suit field, as we was sure he expected. Grayed putty gabardine makes an attractive, double-breasted suit, the tiny buttons in five double groups. Buttons also trim the pointed collar lapels. The slim skirt breaks into low front fullness for the trumpet line.

JUST NOW the shops are showing some beautiful fabric-trimmed felts. A rippled bicorne, in coffee cream fur felt, has its brim faced in matching satin and has a sheer veil with an embroidered border.

EARLY EASTER will bring out full-length coat ensembles with furs, for those that have one. A handsome ensemble consists of a capelet coat in violet woollen over a white and violet taffeta print dress. Dress is slim, with a big self bow at the low neckline.

A DRIFT of white fox is a favorite evening dress device for southern wear. Snowy white fur is used for a smartly worked bolero-length cape jacket, the fur sewn on double white silk chiffon. The skins are horizontal across the back, and continue around to the front in curved effect.

NO MATTER what colors are being touted, a dramatic handling of white and black is always sure to be the most effective. Handsome for late afternoon and evening wear for a southern resort wardrobe is a full-length boxy coat of white wool fleece with deep cuffs of black fox.

THERE'S NO END to the variety of the topper, which, season after season and year after year, continues to rise in every price level and for every type, taste and occasion. Navy fleece is used for a smart fingertip top per for spring. It has a mandarin head collar, double-breasted closing, dropped shoulders and tapering hemline. It looks very new and different.

Two Smothered Babes Numbered Among Fatalities

(By The Canadian Press)

Two smothered babies were included in the list of 11 persons who died violent deaths in Eastern Canada during the weekend.

Ontario, with eight deaths, led Quebec with two and Nova Scotia with one.

Automobile fatalities took the heaviest toll, five lives, followed by the two smothering deaths, a fire caused by smoking in bed, a drowning and accidents involving a bulldozer and a hoist.

In Toronto, John Frank Schell-enberg, London, Ont., was killed when his station wagon collided with a milk truck. Mervin Scott, Oshawa, was killed less than a mile away when struck by a car.

Provost Captain W. G. Warren, 53, of Kingston, Ont., was killed when his car struck a railway bridge at Bismarck, Ont. Robert Hurst, 30, of Montreal, died when his vehicle collided with a transport trailer in Montreal.

Stephen Walcos, 10 weeks, Toronto, was found dead in his bed clothes, and a coroner's inquest at Yarmouth, N. S., found that Percy Wells, 18 months, was accidentally smothered when his father went to sleep on top of him.

The Rideau River claimed the life of Denyse Carriere, 5, when she fell through a hole in the ice near her home in Plantagenet, Ont., 35 miles east of Ottawa.

Ronald Needham died in a London, Ont., hospital of injuries received when a bulldozer fell on him, and Joseph Lavoie, 35, died in an accident in the Montreal yards of Canadian Pacific Railway.

Bevin Leaves For Rest Resort

Foreign Office spokesmen would give no support to the suggestion that Bevin, who will be 70 next month, intends to resign soon.

The impression gained from government circles is that Prime Minister Attlee is prepared to continue "depending" for Bevin until he is fit to return.

But political commentators suggest Bevin may leave the Foreign office within six months.

Herbert Morrison, 63-year-old Deputy Prime Minister, continues to be spotted as the man who would get the job.

Toronto, Feb. 19 (CP)—It could be an early spring.

DENIES BEING RED

Detroit, Feb. 19—(CP)—A man with a two-month growth of beard, an unloaded .22-calibre rifle and 100 communist pamphlets was arrested here during the weekend.

Joseph Nisi, 29, of Detroit, held for questioning by the subversive squad, said he had the gun for the "psychological" purpose of making people take the pamphlets. He denied being a communist, but said he thought "some" of the theory was good.

He added that he doesn't believe in the communist share-the-wealth theory because he has $600 in the bank and has no intention of sharing it.

SUSPEND PLAYER

Regina, Feb. 19 — (CP) — Al Pickard, president of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League, last night suspended Rub Anslow of Calgary Stampeders for three games for deliberately injuring Bill Heindl of Saskatoon Quakers in Saturday night's game at Calgary.

Anslow, former Vancouver Canuck forward, received a match penalty in the third period for hitting Heindl over the head with his stick. Seven stitches were required to close the wound.

Saskatoon won the game, 4-2.

MOVE TO ESCAPE SOVIET RULE IN BERLIN

The Staaken district of Berlin, which since 1945 has been under Soviet zone police control but under West Berlin administration, was recently ruled as being a part of the Soviet sector. Rather than live under a communist administration, with their children being taught by red teachers, 1,500 persons who live in the sector, which borders on the British sector, have indicated to British authorities that they wish to give up their homes and move into the British sector. Above, trucks laden with household goods are shown leaving the Soviet sector with the belongings of those who are giving up their homes in their flight to escape life under a communist administration. — Central Press Canadian.

Professor Built Fortune Close To Million

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 19 (AP) —A professor, whose annual salary never topped $8,000 built up a fortune of close to $1,000,000, it was disclosed today in the will of the man who pyramided the money—the late George A. Miller.

James L. Thomas, the lawyer who prepared the will, estimated Miller's holdings at between $900,000 and $1,000,000.

The professor, a mathematician bought stocks and bonds. Nobody knew precisely how he parlayed his salary into six-figure riches.

The executor of the will, Marc C. Norton said:

"I don't know what his investment formula was. But it certainly was a successful one."

Walkie-Talkie Settles Question Of Twins' Names

A ban on hospital visiting, due to the influenza epidemic, kept Hudson from seeing his wife and arranging names for their new offspring.

It appeared that it would have to be settled by correspondence when Hudson had the bright idea of using walkie-talkies as a communication medium.

Handing one walkie-talkie to a nurse, Hudson stationed himself outside the hospital with another set, and held a 30-minute conversation with his wife.

The twins? Oh yes, they will be named Robert John and Leslie George.

The tables were beautifully decorated with table centres of painted weeds, collected, painted and assembled by Mrs. Percy Laidley and Mrs. G. Rollins Rollin' Merrily Along Scores Shutout in Two Wins As Leafs Subdue N.Y. Rangers

(By The Canadian Press)

Glenn Ira (Al) RRollins, the gangling Toronto netminder some hockey experts said would never win thanks a good goalie, bids fair to become the goalkeeping find of the year.

In 22 full games this season, he has allowed only 53 goals, the lowest goals-against average in the league.

On his present performance, the six-foot, two-inch Rollins is leading the race for Vezina Trophy honors as the best goalie in the league and also is a strong contender for the rookie-of-the-year award.

In other weekend games, Boston Bruins handed the hapless Black Hawks a 7-3 whipping at Chicago Sunday night and Detroit's pace-setting Red Wings subdued pitched battle at Montreal Saturday by edging Canadiens 3-1.

Rangers Drop Two

The double loss for Rangers, boasting a three-game winning streak before they bumped into the Leafs, put a crimp in their playoff hopes and allowed Boston Bruins to move into a tie for third place.

The runner-up Leafs pulled within four points nearer the high-flopping Wings who now boast 38 points. Boston and New York Rangers have 34 apiece, with Canadiens five points behind and Chicago deep in the cellar with 17 meagre 34 points to show for 57 games.

Meeker, plagued with injuries most of the season, banked home both Toronto goals—his third and fourth this season—in the close-checking contest.

The game also produced the first penalty ever called in Toronto during the current season. Referee Bill Chadwick awarded the shot against defenceman Allan Stanley who pulled Toronto's Harry Watson down on a breakaway play with only 34 seconds to go.

Leafs were forced to overcome a two-goal deficit in racking up their Sunday night win. Cal Gardner led coach Joe Primeau's marksmen with a pair of goals, Howie Meeker, Billy Barilko and Sid Smith got the others. Reggie Sinclair and Nick Mickoski tallied for Rangers in a rough-house opening period, that saw 14 penalties handed out, eight of them to Leafs.

Bruins Oust Canucks

Boston's fast-improving Bruins ousted Montreal Canadiens from the fourth, and last, playoff spot Sunday night as they handed Chicago's Hawks their 35th defeat of the year. Bruins now are tied with Rangers with 49 points and have a game in hand.

Ex-Leaf Bill Ezinicki paced the Boston marksmen with a brace of goals, with 'Hal Laycoe, Milt Schmidt, Lorne Ferguson, John Pierson and Eddie Sandford adding singletons. Denting the twine for Hawks were Bill Mosienko, Roger Bedard and Pete Babando. A record throng of 15,780 fans watched a fast-checking, solid checking game at Montreal Saturday. The close play had the fans in an uproar throughout, but they still went home disappointed. The fans turned out to honor Canadiens' famous right winger Rocket Richard. The Rocket did his part by scoring Montreal's lone goal—his 33rd of the season—late in the opening period. But Wings spoiled the night's celebrations by banging home two tallies to win the game. Bugged Red Kelly got the first in the second frame, big Gordie Howe the second.

The Rocket, however, wasn't disappointed. The fans presented their hockey idol with a new car and other gifts.

Buffalo Bisons, Cleveland Pace A.L. Divisions

(By The Canadian Press)

The American Hockey League, preparing for the stretch race, came through another heavy weekend schedule with the first two teams in both the eastern and western divisions pretty well assured of finishing as they now stand.

Buffalo paces the eastern division with 2 points, 13 more than second-place Hershey, 10 points up on third-place Providence. In the western section, Cleveland sets the pace with 60 points, Indianapolis comes next with 53 and is followed by Cincinnati with 57.

The Caps got the lead on Gerry Reid's goal in the first period and matched goals with Hershey in the second and third periods, Frank Mario tied the score for Hershey in the second period, but Freddy Hope's goal in the last back for Indianapolis. Larry Wilson's goal at 18:12 of the third period gave the Caps a cushion, and Gene Bettio's goal with 29 seconds to go just made it final.

Baby Bears

At Buffalo, the Bisons whipped Cleveland Barons 6-2 in the opening weekend series between the divisional rivals. Cleveland defeated Buffalo Saturday night, 7-2.

McGill also scored the Reds' first goal when he took a brace of goals, with "Hal Laycoe, Milt Schmidt, Lorne Ferguson, John Pierson and Eddie Sandford adding singletons. Denting the twine for Hawks were Bill Mosienko, Roger Bedard and Pete Babando. A record throng of 15,780 fans watched a fast-checking, solid checking game at Montreal Saturday. The close play had the fans in an uproar throughout, but they still went home disappointed. The fans turned out to honor Canadiens' famous right winger Rocket Richard. The Rocket did his part by scoring Montreal's lone goal—his 33rd of the season—late in the opening period. But Wings spoiled the night's celebrations by banging home two tallies to win the game. Bugged Red Kelly got the first in the second frame, big Gordie Howe the second.

The Rocket, however, wasn't disappointed. The fans presented their hockey idol with a new car and other gifts.

Bantams Win Playdown Round From Otonabee

Campbellford, Feb. 19 — The Campbellford Bantam C Hockey team took their return match from the Otonabee Wolves in the arena here on Friday night, by the score of 12 to 2, to put themselves ahead by 13 goals on the two game round, and so take the series 20 goals to seven. They defeated the Wolves in Keene recently by an 8 to 5 score.

The team now meets Stirling this week, and are well on their way to placing first in their circuit.

Denny MacArthur played in goal for Campbellford on Friday night, and did a good job of stopping the few shots the Wolves had on him. Garvey and Wilson each netted four goals for the local lads, and spreaded their team on most of the play.

Lineup:

Otonabee Wolves: Goal; Jim Herron; defence, Jim McCarthy, Wayne Bethune; centre, Bob Herron; wings, Ken MacMillan, Bill Buchanan; subs, Doug Lockhead, John Ferguson, Ken Barker, Maurice Hannon, Tom Kennedy, Glen Miles, Doug Shearer, Paul Adams.

* * *

We agree. It has been and is, just that. An equality of strength, evenness of performance, "inners and outers", if they can be termed that, with the gallant if lowly, Port Hope Panthers, showing any decree of consistency; in two phases, has marked the junior "B" Group of Belleville, Oshawa, Peterborough and Lindsay, as one of the "toughest in the province".

* * *

It may not be the best junior B group in Ontario. Its winner may not win the provincial title. But if the ultimate winner, whatever color it carries, plays the kind of hockey of which it is capable, other Ontario representatives will know they've been in a hockey battle.

* * *

The group finished with the Lindsay Kinsmen on top of the heap, Belleville Rockets, second place, Peterborough Tripple Links third, Oshawa Bees, fourth, and the gallant Port Hope Panthers fifth.

* * *

It was a dizzy - doodle, wacky, unpredictable setup from the time the first puck was dropped. It was in-and-out, with one team, then the other showing flashes of brilliant hockey, then dropping to mediocre display, that the teams never succeeded in this respect. And by such performances, they had the "boys in the back rooms" if there were any, moderately mystified. It was at any time, as we have mentioned many times in this column a case of "ere pays yer money, and takes yer choice".

* * *

And as a matter of fact, the situation in this respect, remains the same. Irrespective of the manner or the list in which the teams finished in the group standing, it remains for that intangible thing which pays up on them the dividends are due". In general, figurative "money angle" to determine which team shall be ultimate group champions, and representatives of the group in the OHA playdowns.

* * *

The playoffs start this week. The Belleville Redmen meet the Oshawa Bees in the first of a three-of-five semi-finals series here next Saturday night. The second game is scheduled for Oshawa the following Monday, here the next Wednesday and back in Oshawa the following Monday. The remaining dates, if necessary, will be announced.

* * *

On other dates the league - leaders from Lindsay meet the Peterborough Links in a three-of-five series. Winners of the semi-final series will clash in a best-of-seven finals series for the group title.

* * *

So there it is. It should be a thrilling series. Just what squad will be the "money" team remains to be seen. All four squads can play brilliant hockey. And all four must needs play the best of which they are capable if they want to carry the banner of the group in the playdowns.

* * *

MERCHANTS-FLYERS TONIGHT!

Tonight the high-flying Belleville Merchants go a'gunning for their eighth straight victory in the southern section of the Trent Valley Hockey League. Playing inspired hockey under Coach Timmy Williams, the Merchants have swept aside all opposition during the past few weeks, winning seven and tying two in their last nine starts. They are worthy representatives of the city in the Trent Valley League and as such deserve the support of hockey fandom. Tonight they meet the Trenton RCAF Flyers. It should be a thriller. Don't miss it.

* * *

MINOR PLAYOFFS START

Secretary Dick Beare of the Belleville Hockey Association announced today that the bantam, midget and juveniles teams start their playdown activities this week. All three squads meet Kingston squads with the juveniles meeting Kingston Vics and the bantams and midgets tangling with the Young Ranger squads of the Limestone City.

* * *

A triple header will be played in Memorial Arena here on Thursday night with the bantams starting proceedings at 7 p. m. But, and all players should remember this, there is a possibility that a triple-header will be played in Kingston tomorrow (Tuesday) night. Definite announcement regarding this will me made during the Merchants - Flyers game tonight.

Canton N.Y. Skier Wins Canadian Cross Country

Ottawa, Feb. 19 (CP)—Claude Richer's immediate response to an encouraging cheer from a band of admirers probably gave the youthful Canuck skier the Canadian cross country racing title.

Richer, racing under the colors of St. Lawrence University of Canton, N.Y., Saturday staged a sensational burst of speed—after being urged — for the last 30 yards to finish the 11-mile course in one hour, 18 minutes and nine seconds.

His time was a scant two seconds faster than Alex Alain of the Union Commerciale Ski Club of Quebec City.

Third of 26 racers over the fast-snow Gatineau hills course 15 miles north of Ottawa was a former Canadian titlist, Tom Deanis, also of Quebec City. He took one hour, 22 minutes and 34 seconds for the endurance test.

Richer, who placed second in the Canadian championship meet at Banff, Alta., last year, was presented with the Levlin Bowl, symbolic of the cross country title, after the race.

The Camp Fortune ski site was far from ideal yesterday for the second main competition, the Canadian ski jumping championship.

But Lucien Laferte of Three Rivers, Que., was apparently undismayed by heavy fog obscuring his landing hill, for he soared 158 and 160 feet to win the form-distance competition.

Besides placing first of 55 jumpers with a point total of 233.8 to 227.2 for runner-up Jacques Charland, also of three Rivers, Laferte also won the Viscount Alexander trophy for making the longest jump.

In the 18-kilometre unlimited event—cross country and jumping—Bill Irwin of Fort Arthur placed first with a point total of 423.4. Andy Huggesen of Montreal was second with 406.2.

The first four places in the seven-kilometre junior cross country race all went to Sudbury skiers. Allie Lilnamai was first; Joseph Shantz second; Selmi Walli third and Elmar Walli fourth.

TOP-FLIGHT HORSES WIN HEATS

Toronto, Feb. 19. (CP)—Volocity, owned and driven by Jimmy Cruise of Shepherdsville, Ky., and Billy Stout, owned by C. Plaunt of Stamford, and driven by Johnny Chapman, splashed their way to heat victories over a sloppy track to divide the sixth and featured event on Saturday's program at Dufferin Park. Each won a heat and finished fifth in the other.

Fists Feature Basketball Tilt

Kingston, Feb. 19. (CP)—Flying fists replaced flying feet in the dying moments of the game as McGill Redmen downed Queen's Golden Gaels 58-55 Saturday in a Senior Intercollegiate Basketball fixture.

At the three-second mark, a fight broke out between Gaels centre Harry Lampman, aided by forward Don Soutter, and McGill guard Lou Endman and centre Sol Tolchinsky.

THREW SELF THROUGH WINDOW

Paris, Feb. 19 (Reuters) — A driver threw himself through the window of his truck as it plunged into the flooded Seine at Epiphy, near Paris. He landed, only slightly hurt, on an islet in the swift-running water. The truck sank.

Second Scandal in Month Rocks College Basketball

New York, Feb. 19—(AP)—College basketball was rocked to its foundations today by the second big betting scandal in a month and by disclosure that "fixes" are being investigated on a country-wide scale.

After three members of City College of New York's national championship team and three other persons were taken into custody yesterday on bribery charges, there were these swift developments:

1. Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.) said the senate crime investigating committee has been probing this and similar fixes in other cities, and "New York is not an isolated case."

2. Dr. Hugh C. Willett, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said the matter is of "great concern" and will be taken up at a meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association council in Chicago March 1.

3. Ned Irish director of Madison Square Garden called the situation "deplorable" and added "gambling isn't confined to the garden or to New York city."

Six Arrested

The three C. C. N. Y. players caught in the web of the latest scandal are Ed Roman, Ed Warner and Al Roth, stars of the amazing team that swept to the National Invitation and N. C. A. A. championships last year for basketball's first and only "grand slam."

District Attorney Frank Hogan said they admitted accepting up to $1,500 each game to fix three games played on the garden. C. C. N. Y. lost all three.

Arrested also were Harvey (Connie) Schaff, a substitute on the New York university team; Edward Gard, a Long Island university senior who played last year, and a jeweler, Salvator Tario Sollazzo, described by the district attorney as a gambler who inspired the scheme.

Sicollazzo and Gard were accused of offering the bribes and the three C. C. N. Y. players were charged with accepting them.

Schaff was accused of offering a bribe to James Brasco, an N.Y.U. team-mate, promising Brasco he "could do himself some good" in the St. Francis game Jan. 30 at N. Y. U. Brasco rejected the offer, Hogan said. N. Y. U. won 69-58

There was no mention of any irregularities in any L. I. U. or N. Y. U. games.

Heavy Penalties

The six men were arraigned in a special Sunday night session of felony court. Chief Magistrate John M. Mustagh held Sollazzo without bail. He set bail for Warner, Roman and Roth at $15,000 and for Schaff at $10,000. Gard was held without bail in protective custody. Hearings were scheduled for March 5.

Conviction on the charge carry penalties of one to five years in prison and a maximum fine of $10,000, or both.

The arrests came exactly one month to the day after the Manhattan College expose, which led to the arrest of two former Manhattan co-captains and three other persons on charges of conspiracy and bribery.

Petes Hoopsters Lose to Hamilton

Hamilton, Feb. 19. (CP)—Hamilton Mormons whipped Dit Clapper's Peterborough Brains 63-41 here Saturday to take a commanding lead in their two-game total-points series in the Ontario Intermediate "A" Basketball playoffs. The second game will be in Peterborough Saturday.

McGILL SWIMMERS SET RECORDS

Montreal, Feb. 19. (CP)—McGill University swimmers set two Canadian records Sunday in defeating Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, 46-29 in an exhibition swimming meet, part of McGill's annual winter carnival.

McGill's Peter Mingle broke his own Dominion backstroke mark for the 100-yard event, covering the distance in 1:01, nine-tenths of a second better than the record he set last year.

Mingle also aided the medley relay squad register a Canadian record time of 3.04.3 in the 300-yard relay event.

Pontiacs Defeat Tweed Kinsmen In Playoff Game

Bancroft—From John Pilgrim's goal at the fifty second mark till the Kinsmen counter seven seconds before the final whistle there was never any doubt that Bancroft Pontiacs would win over Tweed Kinsmen in the first played in Bancroft arena on Friday night.

And the score of Bancroft 12, Tweed 3 tells the story of how a lighter and faster team skated around a heavier team to win by a margin of seven goals.

Starting with a bang, John Pilgrim, an eighteen year old high school boy, who was taking the place of Norman Brough, a fix casualty, on the first line rifled in two fast ones in the first minute and a half. From then on Bancroft outskated and outshot the visitors by a wide margin.

In the second period the Tweed defence of Gehan and Hunt tried the softening-up tactics to slow down the Pontiacs. Although they hit them hard, clean and heavy the men of Simpson and Delyea bounced back for more and continued their pressure on Courneyea.

With a final spurt in the third period Bancroft scored five times. Tweed played every man up but three goals was the best they could muster. While the Pontiacs passes were clicking like a 1951 job, the Kinsmen resembled a 1931 model that lacked the speed to stay in the race.

However Tweed has a reputation of being a sit-it-b-home team and any Bancroft ideas that they have a couple of fingers on the Hastings and Addington league trophy might easily be shattered when these teams meet again in Tweed on Monday night.

If past history repeats itself Tweed will present a rejuvenated outfit that night and force a third game in Bancroft on Wednesday.

So that there will be no hard feelings, the league executives lets everybody in the playoffs. The winner of another two out of three series between Madoc and Tamworth meets the Bancroft-Tweed winner.

Lineups:

Tweed: Goal, Courneyea; defence, Gehan, Hunt; centre, Woods; wings, Rivers, Meraw; Alls, Sherry, Courtney, Reid, McGhee, Curry, Graham, Segley, Moffatt; coach, Staff Meraw; manager, Guy Hughes.

Phillies Sign Colorful Rookie

Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 19—(AP)—Philadelphia Phillies, first to break camp this winter for spring drills, today laid claim to the most colorful rookie among the big-league camps. Even the name—Tommy Casagrande—is a certain picturesqueness about it, they say.

Casagrande won't be found on the Phillies' roster, but nobody can miss him on the field, at first base. He is six feet, three inches tall, and weighs 235 pounds.

"The Phils signed me as a pitcher," he said in an interview. "That's what I was at Fordham University last year. Of course, I also played the outfield when I wasn't pitching—and batted in the clean-up slot. But never first base.

"It was as a pitcher that I attracted scouts from every major league club. It was as a pitcher that I was invited to work out in four big-league parks. And it was as a pitcher that I was given a $40,000 bonus by the Phils to sign with them last October.

"I'm not fooling myself one bit. I'm far from ready for the big leagues. But I'm going to be one day. I've got lots of confidence."

Gordie Drillon Former Leaf Star May Retire

North Sydney, N. S., Feb. 19—Gordie Drillon, the old sharpshooter of the National Hockey League who has been in the game for 16 years, is thinking of retiring.

Now coaching North Sydney Victorias of the Cape Breton major league, Drillon says this "possibly may be my last year in the sport."

He hopes to obtain a position with a Maritime concern after the present season and if he does, he'll "definitely" step out of the ice picture.

Back in Cape Breton in the role of coach for the second time, he is gunning to duplicate his feat of three years ago by pulling his last-place Vics into the league finals.

Three years ago he took Vics, who had won only four games in 30, through the semi-finals in impressive fashion, but they fell to the powerful Sydney Millionaires.

Drillon took over the Vics Jan. 15. In 20 games since, they have won six, lost eight and tied six. Before he took over, Vics had won six, lost nine and tied five. Last year Vics home record has at least improved with Drillon. They've won five of their six games at home since the former N. H. L. ar took over.

Drillon, who came here as playing coach, has not appeared on the ice as yet.

Born at Moncton in 1914, Drillon started his hockey career as a junior, then made good in quick fashion with Toronto Maple Leafs during the 1938-37 season. He stayed with Leafs until 1943 and then went to Montreal Canadiens for a year. During his N. H. L. battles he scored 125 goals and assisted on 139. He served only 62 minutes in the penalty box.

Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Gordie Howe of Detroit, with 67 points, is still National Hockey League leader. To date he has scored 30 goals and has made 37 assists.

Teammate Sid Abel is backing him up with 51 points, made up of 20 goals and 31 assists.

Maurice (The Rocket) Richard is still undisputed champ among the goal-getters with 35, three ahead of Howe, but Max Bentley and Doug Bloss of Toronto each have 30 points, one more than Richard.

Commercial Softball League Will Affiliate With O.A.S.A

After an absence of several years, Belleville softball activities will be affiliated with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association. This was decided at an enthusiastic meeting held by the Belleville Commercial Softball League in Memorial Arena over the weekend.

Actually the meeting was the fifth annual conclave of the Commercial League, but President Don Lee and his executive decided to "throw it open" in order to discuss the OASA possibilities.

First of all the meeting elected a strong slate of officers. It put President Lee back in the chair and named Ernie Cowan secretary. Looking after the treasury of the loop will be Lee Bradshaw. The directorate of the league is composed of Messrs 'Cy' Barriage, Reg. Wardle, Jack Reid, Alderman Sam Rollins and Claude Tice, Harry Knott and Bill Dennis.

To Affiliate With OASA

The consensus of the meeting was that the league should affiliate with the O. A. S. A. According to a letter received by President Lee from the OASA executive, city league can affiliate under 'A' and 'AA' classification. The Point Anne team will be entered to play in the city league, and can affiliate itself on payment of the usual fee and go on into the Intermediate 'C' playdowns.

Three teams gave definite assurance they will have entries in "senior" sections and play under the O. A. S. A. aegis. These include the Tip Top Tailors, Glen Roy Creamery and Point Anna. It is understood that another team will enter and form a four-team section. The meeting decided to operate the league in two sections again this year, but they will be known as the "senior" and "intermediate" sections instead of 'A' and 'B' as was the case last year.

Entry Deadline Set

The league will be known as the "Belleville Commercial League." This was decided after some discussion on the suggestion that the name be changed to the "Belleville Softball League."

The executive set the entry deadline at April 15 when entries in both sections must be in the hands of Secretary Cowan.

President Lee reviewed the activities of the league since its inception remarking on the fact that it has supplied clean wholesome sport not only for players but for enthusiasts of the game as well. He paid tribute to the fine efforts of retiring secretary Jack Howe who has been a tower of strength with the league executive for a lengthy period.

The executive plans to hold another meeting in the near future when important wrinkles will be ironed out and the possibility of new additions to the constitution discussed.

The Kibitzer

No animal is more stubborn than an expert when it comes to the game of bridge. It is a waste of breath to tell him to bid right. Even if he believed you he would not follow it.

You can prove your rules are accurate in nine out of ten deals. But he will always point to the tenth case. This is the one he was able to make with a lucky break after his own poor bidding. A case like this is in the tournament deal shown here:

	♠5
	♥4 3 2
	♦K 8
	♣K 8 7 6 5 4 3
WEST		EAST
♠8 6 3		♠J 10 9 7
♥J 10 9 7		♥K Q 8
♦J 10 7 6		♦K Q 9 8
♣10 9		♣Q J
	SOUTH
	♦5 4
	♣A 2

At one table the bidding went like this:

South	North
2 S	3 C
3 S	4 C
6 NT	7 C
7 NT

An opening bid of two in a suit needs nine tricks. So, the two spade bid by south was wrong. Any reply (to an opening two bid) other than two no-trump guarantees a game bid. So, north was wrong.

Zsedi partner thus started with a wrong signal. Having done so you would think one or the other would call it quits at a game. Or at the most in a small slam with eight trumps.

South had his nerve to hop into six no-trump like that. He has too many holes in his hand. Having done so, however, it was not up to north to rescue with seven clubs. Despite his long suit.

With north going seven clubs, south showed a stubborn streak when he went to seven no-trump. He could not know that the club suit would be solid enough to stand up without loss of a trick. However, he had a heart. The opponent clubs split two and two. A squeeze developed, and south took all 13 tricks. So, all these special strokes do not mean a thing to him. The result is all he sees.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 19 (AP) — A guy named Smith celebrated his 20th. year as a short maker the other day and he's "beginning to think that it ain't a bad way to job.

Rather than toy with any tired jokes about wearing shorts, I'll explain that I am talking about Pete Smith, who makes short films for M.G.M. This fellow Smith has one of the most familiar voices and unfamiliar faces in Hollywood.

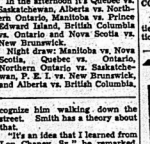
You know his voice. It has a flat, dry tone, and perfectly suited for making wry comments on film sound tracks.

But you doubtless wouldn't recognize him walking down the street. Smith has a theory about that.

"It's an idea that I learned from Lon Chaney, Sr.," he remarked. "He never permitted photos of himself as he really was; and always saw him in his fabulous make-ups. He figured that was a big publicity value for himself. People created their own impression of how he looked.

"I worked the same angle with Greta Garbo. I was in charge of publicity at M.G.M. when she came here. At first we put her through the usual publicity mill —posing in shorts, etc. But then, because she was so different, I tried a different approach, shielding her from the public.

"She was naturally shy anyway, so it worked out well. Or until it got out of hand and she really became a recluse."



Schoolboy Curlers Line Sights on Canadian Title

Nelson, B.C., Feb. 19 (CP) — The boys with the brooms played for keeps today as they started sweeping away at the Canadian high school curling championships.

Granite-pushers from nine Canadian provinces whisked into the three-day series, and eastern rinks were hot after their first victory—and the Hilton trophy—since the annual tournament was inaugurated four years ago.

Topping the list of favorites was the Saskatoon rink skipped by young but capable Gary Rhode. He and his threesome were billed to clash with the Nova Scotia rink, led by Gregory Fraser, in a morning round.

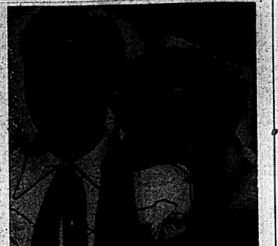
Rhode went into the tough series with a game-winning reputation. He won the high school fours during the recent Saskatchewan championships and then moved into the senior A class. He lost his only match on an extra end.

Every province except Newfoundland is in the battle. Northern Ontario makes the 10th entry.

In other morning matches British Columbia meets Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick clashes with Alberta and Manitoba is up against Quebec.

In the afternoon it's Quebec vs. Saskatchewan, Alberta vs. Northern Ontario, Manitoba vs. Prince Edward Island, British Columbia vs. Ontario and Nova Scotia vs. New Brunswick.

Night draws Manitoba vs. Nova Scotia, Quebec vs. Ontario, Northern Ontario vs. Saskatchewan, P. E. I. vs. New Brunswick, and Alberta vs. British Columbia.



AT THE BELLE — As a Broadway "angel," Clifton Webb falls into the clutches of lovely Joan Blondell in this scene taken from the new comedy "For Heaven's Sake," which is playing today, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Belle Theatre. A real program of featurettes completes the program.

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, February 20

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—No day to cross superiors, nor to provoke those working with or under you. Especially aim at'smanableness, evenness of motion. Avoid acting on impulses.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus) Don't be too minute about matters, to fussy about what the other fellow says or how he reacts, so long as he, or she, co-operates, and mostly it isn't really your business. Don't overeat.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—You may be put to some unusual decision, some extra work or problems. Accept them in Gemini's understanding, intelligent way. Know that you can best your opponent,—work to win.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Time can be saved by heeding the important things first, by eliminating waste motion and words, and by keeping a cheerful disposition. If you try, so will others.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—When making plans today, be careful not to omit essentials and dwell too long on any one matter which is likely tendency. If rushed, don't eat in haste, take less till you have more time.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) —Be calm thinking, and equally so in doing. Trust in God, and go about everything with sturdy will. Let not your day be all of one activity; include healthy exercise regularly.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Today may try your disposition. If you are ready for it, you can conquer temptation, pronto. Look over your duties thoughtfully; exclude waste material quickly. Keep action steady.

October 24 to November 22 —(Scorpio)—Day is better for cautious planning, attending to urgent matters than for starting unfamiliar undertakings not needed. Some periods are for pause, to check, replan.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) Not all encouraging for quick financial turnovers or unusual profits, but steady, honest, intelligent effort in any good and useful activity will benefit many, bring credit to you.

December 23 to January 21 —(Capricorn)—Day starts slow perhaps but improves in influences as it advances. Make ready for bigger doings tomorrow. Known activities, work for which you are trained can advance appreciably.

January 22 to February 20 —(Aquarius)—Uranus' aspect now stresses need for steadiness of mind, for even tempo; no overworking one period then lagging at another. Plan, confer, meet new clients, friends, but be sensible about promises.

February 21 to March 20 —(Pisces) — You are the honored one today with your Neptune ruler planet in very benefic configuration. This augurs for personal attainment, fresh advantages, increased benefits, if you strive, too.

YOU BORN TODAY: Eager to attain, studious but not always as active or unctious as should be to earn high goals. Be careful in business deals but at overly cautious lest you lose the opportunities that can be yours if you honestly and faithfully apply your finer gifts to everyday life and hold to right principles. You have much talent, can become highly skilled in your occupation, could be clever at horticulture; could carry an avocation as well as your remunerative work. Music, the arts, travel appeal to you.

Upsets Cause Standing Moves In Junior OHA

(By The Canadian Press)

Baseball's old adage that a second division club can murder you during the stretch run can be just as true in hockey.

Take Toronto St. Michael's College a ninth-place team that moved six points back of the nearest playoff spot when they took a beating in Stratford Friday night. After that one, anyone would think they'd be more interested in their plans for the summer than in their chances for the Memorial Cup.

Windsor Spitfires, on the other hand, are locked in a neck-and-neck struggle with Barrie Flyers for leadership of the O.H.A.'s Junior A division. A date with a ninth-place club should have meant two badly needed points.

Everything went according to schedule for two periods in Toronto yesterday. Then the pesky collegians scored two goals to earn a 2-2 tie, forcing the Spitfires to share first place with Barrie. Since the Flyers have a game in hand, the missing single point could be costly.

Barrie took the chances with the last-place Waterloo Hurricanes Saturday, scoring four second period goals to drub the tail-enders 6-2. Toronto Marlboros and Guelph Billmores maintained their third-place deadlock by tatilng to a 2-2 tie.

The fifth-place St. Catharines Teepees also settled for split points, as Galt Black Hawks held them to a 4-4 count, while Oshawa Generals tightened their hold on sixth place by downing Stratford Kreshiers 5-1.

In the major division, Hamilton Tigers officially clinched the third and last playoff spot with a 7-4 victory over the league-leading Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs.

Veteran Faces Tigers

Clare Shillington, one of the oldest and trickiest of the Old Men of the Mountain, paced the Tigers with a three-goal effort and assisted on two more. Polly Mlocinvich, another Hamilton veteran, counted two more. Tom Smellie and Doug Mahar completed their total.

The sluggish Monarchs came to life belatedly in the final period, when Sam Kennedy, Bill McCracken, Tom Fowler and Johnny Uhrken cut down the winners' margin.

The junior Irish did a little better with their last period drive. Jim Hudson, John Schiller, Mike Ratchford were the trigger men who matched the earlier efforts of Spitfire centres Eddie Long and Wayne Graves to earn the Collegians a tie.

In the second game of the junior double bill, Guelph forced the pace against Marlboros, despite the absence of five regulars suffering from the flu. Don Wilson, replacing ailing goaltender Cliff Hicks, was particularly effective as he staved off a Marlboro offensive in the last period.

Another goalie, Don Simmons of St. Catharines Teepees, was the individual star of his club's 4-4 tie with Galt, handling 51 shots by the aggressive Hawks. Johnny Slesser, Ken Wharram, Ed Maiska and George Gomella fired the Galt markers. Jim Simmons and Bob Young scored twice for the Teepees, Skip Teal and Buddy Boone counted singles.

ORFU May See Five Teams In 1951 Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Windsor, Sarnia and Toronto Argo Beaches will be back in action in 1951 in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, the annual meeting was told Saturday. Although no new franchises were issued, it was indicated two additional teams may be added to the three-squad loop.

However, there was no indication, where the additions would come from.

D. F. Bowyer, K.C., was re-elected president, Bill Leveridge, vice president and Harold Bailey secretary-treasurer.

The Windsor team will have a new name, and a number of new players, Don Calder, secretary of the Windsor executive told the meeting.

Norman Perry and Coach Red Douglas of Sarnia told the meeting Sarnia again will field a contending team. For the Balmy Beach crew, President Bob Reid and business manager Paul McGarry said the Toronto East-Enders again will be in the league.

The Montreal Soaring Council was awarded the Roden trophy as the most efficient club of the year.

CAMPBELLFORD

Lloyds, Legion Win Town Games

Campbellford, Feb. 19 — Hockey fans enjoyed two good games in the arena here on Thursday evening, when the town league teams battled in their usual Thursdy night fashion.

In the first game, Lloyds took on Seymour East. This game had fans on their feet during the dying minutes. With the score 4 to 3 for Lloyds with only a minute to go, Seymour East pounded MacColl, who pulled off some miraculous saves, diving from one side of the net to the other, and finally wound up stretched on the ice behind his own goal while Seymour East missed a couple of shots at the empty net. Hay then took the puck on a break - away and scored with a few seconds left to make the score 5 to 3 for Lloyds. Seymour's vain attempt to tie the score backfired.

The Legion - Seymour West game proved to be just about as exciting. Johnny O'Rourke was watched more closely in this game and failed to score seven goals as he did in a previous game, but did manage to get one counter. Final score of this game was Legion 5 Seymour West, 2.

The following are the lineups:

Seymour East: goal, Sager, defence, St. Petherick, Thain; centre, Doherty; wings, Hay, H. Billen; alts, K. Buchanan, Radcliffe, D. Brown, J. Loucks, J. Snarr, C. Petherick, C. Phillips, D. Free, J. Petherick.

Seymour West — goal, Scott; defence, Sheppard, Curle; centre, J. O'Rourke; wings, C. O'Rourke, Darrah; alts, Thain, Milne, Brown, Hendy, Rutherford, McDonald, Chambers, Ford.

Nature has endowed the Canada Goose with keen vision, sharp hearing, and a speed of flight often reaching sixty miles an hour. Each spring and fall, large V-formations of these graceful water-fowl are seen in migratory flight, their weird "honking" call a familiar sound on the Canadian air.

Seagram TELLS THE WORLD ABOUT Canada
This advertisement was designed by The House of Seagram to tell the people of other lands about Canada and things exclusively Canadian.
Many people in Latin America, Asia, Europe and other parts of the world are not fully aware of the richness of Canada's natural resources, wild life, scenic beauty and cultural traditions. The more the peoples of other lands know about our country, the greater will be their interest in Canada and Canadian products.
The House of Seagram feels that the horizon of industry does not terminate at the boundary of its plants; it has a broader horizon, a farther view—a view dedicated to the development of Canada's stature in every land of the globe.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

She looked kway quickly. "Lavinia hated you because of Lissa's accident," I wonder if the kindest thing to think would be that she was a little jealous herself."

"There was in that woman a thread of evil beyond understanding," Henry Farwell said. "But if Elizabeth didn't do it and I didn't, who did?" And he looked at his daughter with a terrible intensity.

She stood up suddenly. "Court's upset," she fumbled with the ivy on the windowsill. "I—I think I'll walk over there to see him."

Instead of walking, Lisa decided to take the car. Just as she turned out of the driveway another car swept around the curve and she pushed for it to pass.

"And then a warm rush of relief ran through her, Court was coming to see her after all. The familiar green roadster swerved on the turn and the dark driver then swung turned toward the low rambling house half hidden by trees. Amazed she watched the drive past her, cross the clearing and take the right fork toward the Grenable house.

With a quick thrust of anger that she couldn't quite explain she followed Court. He was halfway to the door when she drove up the driveway and deliberately looked at him.

"Lisa!" He wheeled and came back to her, his face softening as he took her hands. He was more the old Court than he acted like that, but she was no longer the other Lisa. She was completely unmoved. The emptiness astonished her. "I was just going in to telephone you," he told her.

"—I wanted to talk to you, too," she said. "We can't go on like this Court. You've shut me out completely. I—I feel like a stranger. I want to help but I don't know how. You won't let me."

"It's because of your father," he said abruptly. "You're angry with me for telling the police about seeing him on the ridge. You didn't understand my position."

"But Court, you knew that my father would never murder!"

She tried to keep her voice gentle, knowing that if he were the man she loved nothing he could say or do would disturb her and knowing, too, if he were the man she loved he would not be saying or did not say a lot of things.

She recalled that Angus Kent had "said that. "Men like Henry Farwell do not commit murder."

But she pushed the image of Angus Kent away from her and said "Court, we can't find out who did this thing by accusing each other. We've got to all work together, don't you see?"

He leaned toward her suddenly, "Lisa, you still love me! Lisa you can't let me down now. There's too much piling up that you don't know about yet. Lisa, you're going to marry me!"

The sunshine was warm and beautiful, and the throve across the earth this morning. It lay in thick folds about the tall old trees and flosted out in golden layers across the wide dipping lawns that stretched around the house.

It wrapped itself about Lisa Farwell and fell around Court Grenable's broad shoulders as he told her insistently that she would marry him. All that Lisa could see was that same sun shining on a tall, slim figure and a wheat-colored head, and she saw the glint of sunlight again in eyes flecked with gold.

Lisa sat there in the sunlight, staring at Court Grenable and seeing Angus Kent. And while part of her died inside herself she said "Yes, Court, I'll marry you, of course."

Court got into the car and sat down beside her and took her hands in his.

"Lisa," he said, "Andrew may make trouble. He knows too much. But I'm sure I haven't left everything he says."

Lisa looked at him hopelessly. "You hate him, don't you? I knew it yesterday, Court, you mustn't."

He didn't seem to be listening. "Lisa," he went on, "I've got to have some money."

"How much?" she asked tonelessly.

"Uh . . . three thousand would do. I need it badly," he went on hastily. "I'll pay you back. It's a bad spot if I don't get it immediately."

"But Court . . . three thousand dollars!" she gasped. "Whatever . . ."

"You're believing the things Andrew wanted all of you to believe, aren't you?" he snapped. "You think I killed her just because you don't want to believe your father did it, Elizabeth!"

His eyes were black with anger and with a shade of . . . yes, she thought helplessly . . . hatred. She asked herself: Court, was I blind, did I never really see you before, could you change this much so quickly?

But she only said: "Do you believe my father did it?" And waited.

He answered more carefully. "I've heard things," he said soberly. "He didn't want us to be married and everyone knows how he feels toward Elizabeth."

It wasn't an answer, it was an evasion.

"I wouldn't believe it about you," she whispered. And then with an honesty she couldn't quell "If you loved me and I loved you, I couldn't believe things about you."

He looked at her sharply, and then away. "What about the money?" he demanded with an air of harshness in his tone.

"It's so much," she said. "I . . . don't have that much."

Her dismay was not wholly because of his request. How could she love him the least bit and not trust him, and how could she trust with this unexplained hole in her?

As if afraid to push her too far, he said suddenly: "All right, forget it." And he got out of the car and walked rapidly into the house.

She sat there wearily and let him go. In a moment she managed to start the car and drove home slowly. Angus Kent was waiting for her in the driveway in Tim Ellsworth's car.

"Lisa," she exclaimed.

The young lawyer grinned at her and suddenly the world was all right. He seemed to say everything would be all right and again that something stirred her as she looked at him and she could feel her fingertips tingle as they clung to the steering wheel.

He opened the door for her. "Get in," he said. "Your father told me where you were; I decided to wait. I want to talk to you. Let's drive down to the lake."

She leaned her head back against the upholstery and closed her eyes for a minute to compose her thoughts. When she opened them again Angus was watching her. "Anything you want to tell me?" he asked mildly.

She looked ahead at the road, watching him take the steel slope to the beach with his casual carelessness, not daring a glance at the way the breeze played with his thick brown hair or the way his mouth curved in generous and firm lines.

She had already memorized the two little creases at the corners of his eyes and the strength in his long hands. Suddenly, unable to bear it any longer—she covered her face with her hands.

Angus parked the car at the foot of the beach and helped Lisa get out. Almost forcibly he propelled her down to the sun-scorched beach.

"Court?" he asked finally.

She faced him, standing in the sand. Agreement was the safest course.

"Yes," she said. "He's in some kind of trouble." And then she blurted it all out. "If he'd just stop accusing everybody!" she protested.

Almost at once Lisa Farwell began to justify her outburst against Court Grenable, her fiance. "It's what I mean, it," she told Angus Kent, who stood with her on the beach. "But he's in trouble and afraid of himself and he keeps striking at others. He can't really think Dad killed his mother—"

"It isn't important what Court thinks," Angus said, being practical. "It's who the police think killed Lavinia Grenable that counts."

Lisa was frightened. "Dad didn't kill her," she admitted. "But he did everyone else. He'd do anything to protect Elizabeth, I think."

She told him of her talk with her father, that he was comforting, so safe, to talk to Angus.

He leaned forward to pick up a stone and skimmed the water with it. "I have a theory," he said quietly. "But somebody is going to get hurt."

She didn't answer.

"I just talked to Andrew Grenable.

There was that something in his voice that she knew again what she had felt about Andrew. He was almost like Henry Farwell. Motionless she waited for him to go on.

"He came over to Tim Ellsworth's, came the back way so nobody would see him, he said. I wish I knew how much of his act is bluff and how much is the truth. He said he was going to get tanked up tomorrow and see Sheriff Lane Monday. But he let slip another interesting bit of information."

Angus looked down at her gravely. "Did you know that when Mr. Grenable died he left provisions in his will for all his children and a request that each of them should be given a sizeable amount when they were married?"

"No," she whispered. "No, I didn't know that."

Angus went on with a stiff determination. "That's why his mother fought Andrew's marriage, he suspects. If there are moral possibilities for Lane, doesn't it?"

Oh, yes, she thought in quick horror, it does, it does. Did Andrew kill his mother first to protect her, Lisa Farwell, or . . . was Court in need of money and a wife?

If that was it he must love her, really love her and then the realization of what her thoughts were leading to was the stop still in the sand. I..I've got to talk to Andrew! I've got to know!

Angus was watching her oddly, she scooped up a handful of cool sand and let it trickle through her fingers.

A soft breeze romped off shore and little white ripples raised the beach and then fell back into the mother again. Then a gull flew by way up the bluff beyond them. The lake was deep, fresh blue, clean and sparkling.

There was beauty all around and when she looked at Angus he smiled and the next thing she knew she was in his arms without a groping and he had kissed her.

He kissed her gently at first, and then again not so gently in a way that sent the breathless hurry of the afternoon into little startlit shivers.

"Angus!" she whispered, but she didn't move away.

"That's how I love you!" he told her fiercely. He kicked off a log at the foot of the bluff and they sat there a little while, watching gulls wheel off shore and the saucy little sandpipers chasing bugs in the sand.

"What am I going to do?" she asked at last.

"Marry me," he said promptly. Her misery showed. "I can't desert Court now!" Then she told him about Court asking her for $3,000.

His silence troubled her. "You think he killed his mother?" she asked.

But it was more a statement than a question. He picked up a twig and doodled patterns in the sand before he replied.

"Do you know why he wants the money?" he countered.

"No," she said, and she had a strange impression that he did.

"Are you going to lend it to him?"

"I don't have that much. What mother left me is in trust another year, until I'm 21. To get it I would have to ask Dad for it."

"But would you lend the money to Court?" Angus insisted.

"If it would do any good," she said . . . "I'd have to know why. I mean—"

"If you loved Court Grenable,"

French Govt. Feels Russia Will Agree To Agenda Terms

Other Sources Believe Major Points May Prevent Meeting

Paris, Feb. 20 —(AP)— The French government appeared confident today that Russia will accept terms of the western powers' notes asking for a preliminary meeting of foreign ministers' deputies to prepare for a Big-Four conference.

The government is reported already looking for a suitable place for the deputies to meet. The notes suggested the meeting be in Paris March 5.

However, some diplomatic sources here expressed belief that the western notes' insistence upon a Big-Four exploration of major points of unrest in Europe might prevent a Big-Four meeting or even a gathering of ministers' deputies.

Russia has insisted that the German question top the agenda. The western powers want to include other areas of tension, such as the size of the satellite armies, the Austrian treaty, the trial of Bulgaria, the long-awaited Austrian treaty of independence and other points. The west also wants to talk about the present level of armaments.

(The America state department reported in Washington yesterday that the Soviet Union now has a fully armored or mechanized force which includes those in east Germany and Poland alone and has restored east German railways which would permit supply lines from Russia in the event of war.)

Additionally, the state department report based on "current intelligence" said, the east German communist party Jan. 13 began a large-scale purge of its ranks aimed at eliminating weak links.

Cowboys, Police Chase Buffalos Through Denver

Denver, Colo., Feb. 20. (AP)— Cowboys and police joined in a buffalo hunt on the streets of Denver last night.

Two big bulls were transferred to a pen at the Denver stockyards broke away, cleared four fences and headed toward town.

One went down a railroad track toward a freight train. A trainman standing nearby climbed aboard in record time as the buffalo bore down on him.

Thirty police got in on the chase, after the radio dispatcher followed up his original call with "Well, that's what the man said —buffaloes".

The policemen and two cowboys on horseback finally cornered the pair after a two-hour chase.

The animals were brought here from a game refuge in the mountains where they were trapped for sale to a Wyoming rancher by a William F. Cody. At least, that's what the records showed. The Buffalo Bill Cody died in 1919.

Quick Start With St. Lawrence Project Urged on US Congress

Washington, Feb. 20— (AP) — 20 years on the United States Senate Commerce Committee, Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) and Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer asked Congress today to approve a quick start on the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Acheson said the proposed development is a matter of 'urgency' for the joint defence of Canada and the United States.

Sawyer said that should war cease, "only" through the proposed seaway could the U.S. be assured an adequate supply of iron ore from Labrador.

The two cabinet members testified before the House of Representatives Public Works Committee, getting under way the administration's campaign for Congressional approval of the long-debated $1,000,000,000 project. It would provide a deep-water route from the Atlantic Ocean to the Great Lakes and develop power estimated to yield annually 13,200,000,000 kilowatts.

Sawyer said that without enough iron ore "our steel industry, our economy and our military posture would decline disastrously."

Acheson declared:

"Today the threatening trend of international developments has created a situation of extreme urgency with respect to this project than existed before."

Their testimony was the first by administration lieutenants in a week expected to last at least three weeks. Opponents will have their turn next week.

Acheson said the Canadian government has been waiting almost

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 20 (CP) Synopsis — Ontario enters its fifth day of the current mild spell today and there is still no cold weather in sight. The area of rain that moved over the province Monday has pushed into Quebec but the respite from the damp weather will be brief. A developing storm over Oklahoma has begun to move northeastward and is expected to bring more rain to all southern and central regions tonight and early Wednesday.

FLU SAID TO BE WANING IN MOST PARTS OF CANADA

Half-Million Stricken In Ont. Schools, Plants

(By The Canadian Press)

Influenza — haphazard in its spread across Canada — appeared to be waning in most sections of the country today.

Ontario was the latest and hardest hit of the 10 provinces but even there the epidemic was believed to have reached its peak. One in eight workers and pupils were reported stricken with the disease.

In Brockville, Ont., where an estimated 2,000 persons, or 20 per wane, the death of a 36-year-old mother was attributed to flu. Hospitals, jails, theatres, visitors and there is considerable illness among their staffs.

Restriction or visiting was announced today by two hospitals in Ontario. Sarnia's 200-bed northern Ontario paper mill town of Espanola, where few cases of flu have been reported, closed all its schools and its only theatre as a precautionary measure.

With the flu spreading to southern Ontario communities, Windsor reported more workers and students fill today than yesterday.

Possibility of renewed outbreak was suggested by Dr. J. D. Hill, medical officer of health in Edmonton, who said the present mild weather is expected to increase the chance of catching the disease.

The mild weather is general across Canada and is expected to continue for several days at least.

The type of flu has been identified as "Prime A", which caused thousands of deaths in the United Kingdom and other European countries in recent months.

127 Die in Montreal

It has taken its greatest toll of death in Montreal where 127 persons are reported to have succumbed to the disease since Christmas. However, in almost all cases the deaths have been confined to older persons or young children.

Most people stricken with the flu have been confined to bed for a few days but usually have the strength to overcome the effects of the illness.

No country-wide estimate of the number of cases has been made, chiefly because of an undetermined number of persons never report their illness.

Admit Robbing 50 Newly Buried Corpses

RED DEAN WILL ATTEND

London, Feb. 20—(Reuters)— Dr. Hewlett Johnson, Britain's "red" Dean of Canterbury who last Sunday praised Stalin's statement on Peace, Peaceful Co-existence and clear, left London by air today at the request of the communist-sponsored World Peace Council in Berlin.

Hong Kong Junk Yard for Ships, Salvage Men Reaping Neat Profit

Hong Kong, Feb. 20 — (AP) — Hong Kong is becoming a breaking yard for dozens of ships.

At least half the scrap steel derived from them is finding its way into communist China. But Britain say a lot of it also is going to Japanese shipyards, that benefitting countries on both sides of the iron curtain.

Salvage men are reaping a neat profit. Some dealers along Lkaichow Road, on the mainland side of Hong Kong harbor where most of the old ship hulls are being cut up, say they have made a fortune in the last three months.

A survey showed that the hulls belong to private persons, mostly Chinese. The Hong Kong government says it has no control over such dismantling or the sale of scrap. A spokesman said no government owned ships are being broken up for scrap.

Some private operators of China's coastal ship lines say the communists have made it so difficult to maintain trade that ship owners have taken their older vessels out of commission to be broken up. At present prices older ships are worth more for-metal.

There is considerable resentment here that so much vital material is getting into communist hands. Ships are being sold by Britons and Americans, think the government should put an embargo on steel shipments.

Western sources say the current negotiations may be aimed at further increases in the trade turnover between Russia and communist China.

China's trade with the Soviet Union and with Eastern European countries has become of greater importance to her lately as a result of the United States embargo on the sale of many items to the Chinese.

U.S. Said Considering Pact Of Pacific Powers for Mutual Defence Purposes

By JOHN SCALI

Washington, Feb. 20 —(AP) — The United States is considering a triangular defence alliance with Australia and New Zealand as a move toward a projected Pacific pact similar to the North Atlantic Treaty.

Informed officials reported today that John Foster Dulles, State Secretary Dean Acheson's adviser, is ready to discuss this and other possible defence line-ups when he stops off in New Zealand shortly for official talks.

Dulles already has visited Japan and Australia to discuss a Japanese peace treaty and to explore ideas for a mutual Pacific defence arrangement.

Officials emphasized to a reporter the three-way alliance is one of several alternative arrangements now being considered as a means of knitting democratic countries closer together in the Pacific area.

Another, it was learned, would add the Philippines as an original member of the United States-Australia-New Zealand arrangement.

All alternatives now being discussed leave the way open for additional countries to join later.

Acheson was reported to have mentioned the possibility of an initial three-power alliance to Prime Minister Sidney G. Holland of New Zealand when he visited here in June. Holland, like Dulles, long an advocate of a Pacific defence pact, was reported enthusiastic.

Officials said he believes such a United States-New Zealand-Australian pact would meet his country's desire for formal assurances of outside aid in event of communist aggression.

The pacts now being talked about are patterned after the North Atlantic Defence Alliance in that each country would pledge to aid all members in the event of an attack.

It is believed virtually certain, however, that the United States will insist upon a much smaller alliance than the 12-member North Atlantic Pact.

Municipalities of Ontario In Best Position in Years, Attorney-General Porter Says

Toronto, Feb. 20—(CP)— The Ontario government is attempting to uphold the self-governing powers of municipalities, attorney-General Porter said today.

"We have carefully refrained from taking over in full any single line of activity which has become a local obligation," Mr. Porter said in a speech prepared for delivery at a luncheon meeting of the Toronto Junior Board of Trade.

Municipal taxation, based on real estate, had not kept pace with inflationary conditions, but provincial grants had taken up the balance.

"At the present time the municipalities are in a more favorable financial position than they have been for many years," said Mr. Porter. One-third of municipal expenditures were being met by provincial grants.

"At all times it is our aim to maintain local autonomy and independence; to centralize with flexibility."

Mr. Porter gave as examples the government's policy to allow municipal education authorities to decide the location of schools, and to make alterations in the courses of study.

MacArthur at Korean Front Orders Troops Resume Attack

By OLEN CLEMENTS

Tokyo, Feb. 20 (AP)— Gen. MacArthur visited the roaring central Korean front today, watched Allied guns and planes pound the fading communists and then ordered his troops to resume the initiative yesterday.

This did not mean necessarily that either general had attempted a new drive across the 38th-parallel border into North Korea.

What Gen. MacArthur's visit, and orders already had kicked off on a renewal of the "limited offensive" that started Jan. 25, was established only last week by a report from the front.

MacArthur recalled that President Truman had said the general should make the decision whether to cross the border again. But he told correspondents at the front:

"I shall not arbitrarily exclude that possibility."

The allied commander indicated that "if and when" allied troops reach the 38th parallel border they will receive special consideration to any "cogent political reasons against the crossing."

Britain Opposes Crossing

Britain is the leader in the opposition to crossing the 38th parallel. She was reported to have her forces across last fall at the high tide of allied offensive efforts against the North Koreans —before red China turned the allies back.

When allied troops after thrusting into red Korea last fall came close to the Manchurian border all across the peninsula, China threw tens of thousands of her regular army forces into the battle.

Since Jan. 25 when the Eighth Army launched its "limited offensive," the allies have won back much of the South Korea area they lost.

MacArthur had one of his typically acid comments for Russia's leader:

"I note that Marshal Stalin has just publicly declared his solidarity in our froces in Korea. But his (Chinese and Korean) commanders in the field have no better than they have yet gone to prove him a perjurer."

Before MacArthur flew to the Wonju airstrip Tuesday morning, allied troops were fighting and dying in a northward thrust along the central front. Field dispatches from there described the action as a limited offensive, a renewal of the drive launched by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Eighth Army commander has used to clear the Chinese from the south.

Frontline reports said 30,000 communists were massing around Chipyong, the road centre 10 miles north of Wonju which the allies won last week. Massive red counter-attacks won some ground but failed to crack the central front.

Another 10,000 more were reported northwest of Chipyong.

In the renewal of allied thrusts tank-led troops Monday night pushed across the Soyang mountains northeast of Chechon and still were pushing ahead Tuesday.

On the western front, an allied patrol probed the Han river five miles east of Seoul Monday but was forced back to the south bank.

U.S. COPPER BAN LIFTED

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP) — The U.S. government today lifted its ban on the use of copper for domestic plumbing after March 1 but banned or limited the use of copper after April 1 in more than 50 other products— among them coffee makers, home and farm freezers, waffle irons, and refrigeration and air conditioning equipment.

The products affected are in addition to more than 200 announced previously by the National Production Authority.

FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION SPLITS COMMONS

Universities, Schools Need Help, is Claim

Ottawa, Feb. 20 (CP) —Members of the Commons do not agree that federal aid to education would be good for education.

This was made clear yesterday in a four-hour debate on a private member's resolution urging the government to consider "means of expanding and equalizing educational opportunity across Canada by granting of financial assistance to the various provinces for that purpose."

The resolution, sponsored by R.H. Knight (CCF-Saskatoon), urged that provincial governments must agree on a constitutional amendment and the federal government pass its pension law.

If it is apparent this will not be done before the present session prorogues in late March, Premier Frost said, he would either ask for blanket legislation giving his government power to enter into agreement with Ottawa or else call a special legislature session.

Such a blanket authority from the legislature would be "asking for a pretty big blank cheque," while the second course was the more reasonable course.

Action Without Delay

Ontario's part of the proposed agreement, which the Premier said would be carried out "without delay" consists of a partnership arrangement with the federal government for joint financing of pensions with a means test for those between 65 and 69 years of age.

The Throne Speech debate continued in the Ontario legislature yesterday by Reforms Minister Foote and William Dennison (CCF-Toronto St. David.)

Says Burglary Cased by Prisoner

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 20. (AP) — Police arrested 60-year-old Eddie Ware, of Chicago, yesterday and charged him with burglary. Police said Ware was trying to batter open a safe in a tavern.

Police said Ware told him the job was "cased" for him by a friend. And where is the friend? Police asked.

He's serving time in the Indiana State prison for attempted burglary of the same tavern, Ware said.

U.S. Navy Man Perfects Napalm, One of Korea's Fiercest Weapons

Aboard U.S. Carrier Philippine Sea, (AP) — Napalm, the fiery aircraft carrier off Korea is a contraption that would look familiar to the Kentucky moonshiner. It's a rusty barrel with coils.

But it doesn't make whisky—it's used to mix napalm, a product known as jellied gasoline and a deadly fire weapon. Pilots of war planes think it's a mighty fine piece of equipment.

The barrel coils serve as mixed properly to produce the best results, fiery destruction of the target on which it is dropped.

Pilots complained that the jellied gasoline bomb they were getting did not work properly. So Lt. Anthony Modica, Jr., a short, muscular navy officer, went to special aircraft service crews tacked the problem.

The barrel coils were the result.

Modica has spent 23 years in the navy. The Korean war provided his first experience with napalm. But in a few short months he has become the ship's expert on this hellish weapon which communist prisoners of war admit they fear most of all.

"You know, the guy who conceived it must have had a weird mind," Modica said in tribute to the bomb.

Modica's unorthodox mixing barrel is as simple as the result it seeks. The proper mix looks like a bit of starch, except that the coloring is light wine instead of white.

Deadly Weapon

Modica and his crew usually turn out about 2.30 a.m. to get ready for a strike. Napalm is mixed the day the planes take off.

They never get to witness the results of their work but pilots oblige them with vivid accounts. Modica quotes one pilot who dropped a napalm bomb on a cave and exploded 50 communists were killed. Another put a burst of ammunition with a direct hit.

Lieut. Floyd Lissy said: "It works now; results are fine." Another said "napalm is the best weapon we've got."

The stuff isn't particularly dangerous to handle, according to Modica. All you have to do is keep your wits about you," he said.

Once loaded aboard a plane and taken into the air, the napalm must be dropped. Pilots do not try to land aboard the carrier with this fiery load.

Although satisfied with the results of the rusty barrel and coils, Modica isn't resting on his laurels. He's mulling over a plan that would enable planes to carry more napalm.

Frost Govt. Favors Pensions at 70 Without Test

Premier Hopes to See Plan In Operation by Jan. 1st

Toronto, Feb. 20 — (CP) — The Ontario government's determination to put the proposed federal-provincial plan for universal pensions into effect as early as possible may bring the legislature into special session later this year.

Premier Frost told the legislature yesterday he wanted the plan — for pensions without a means test at age of 70 — to be in operation by next Jan. 1.

Before then, however, the federal and provincial governments must agree on a constitutional amendment and the federal government pass its pension law.

If it is apparent this will not be done before the present session prorogues in late March, Premier Frost said, he would either ask for blanket legislation giving his government power to enter into agreement with Ottawa or else call a special legislature session.

Such a blanket authority from the legislature would be "asking for a pretty big blank cheque," while the second course was the more reasonable course.

Gardiner Holds Talks in London With Gaitskell

London, Feb. 20 (Reuters) — Agriculture Minister James Gardiner of Canada today began talks with Hugh Gaitskell, chancellor of the exchequer, and food minister Maurice Webb.

There has been no official announcement regarding the talks. But Ottawa sources indicated, before Gardiner left for Britain Saturday, they would centre around adjustment in the price paid by Britain for the last two years of the Canada-British four year wheat agreement.

Canada's claim is that the $2-a-bushel price paid in the last two years to Western Canadian farmers did not make up for the difference between the contract price and the market price during the first two years of the agreement, signed in 1946.

Treasury sources declined to conform or deny that wheat prices were under discussion. Canada House officials also were mum.

New Post Office At Peterborough As Staff College

Montreal, Feb. 20 — (CP) — A new post office building to be built in Peterborough will be used as a staff college for the training of postal officers, W. J. Turnbull, Deputy Postmaster General of Canada, told a meeting today of the Montreal office of the Civil Service Commission of Canada.

The building prepared for delivery, he said junior personnel joining the service will have to take a year's course at Peterborough, involving at least two months as a letter carrier — one month in the winter and one in summer — a period in sorting mails and another period at the money order wicket.

The post office will have the most modern equipment, including a mechanical mail conveyor which checks the speed of output in the sorting of mail.

Disappearance of seven valuable breeding mink from their pens on Hamilton Road had the sequel in magistrate's court this morning when Ben Landry, 19, of Chapman's Corners, pleaded guilty to the theft of mink and was remanded for sentence.

Police stated that five dead mink, two of which had been killed, had been found in the possession of Landry at the time of his arrest. Another man, Fred Alport of Thomasburg, has been picked up by police for questioning in connection with the mink thefts.

City Flu Cases On Increase, Is Mild Type

The number of flu cases in the city took a decided upswing over the weekend, it was reported Monday by medical health officer, Dr. G. S. Cronk.

"There is lots of it now," stated Dr. Cronk, "but fortunately, with the exception of a few complications it is a mild type and there is really nothing to worry about."

The doctor said that the mild type of flu here took about three days to run its course, the patient feeling worst on the second day when he "aches all over."

However very few persons having the flu were going to the hospital. One reason for this is that there is a bed shortage.

School Attendance Off

School attendance has dropped off considerably as compared with last week with the public schools being the most susceptible affected. All five public schools reported from 25 to 30 per cent of their enrolment out with colds or the flu, while at the Collegiate absenteeism totalled slightly over 20 per cent.

In one of the city schools, Queen Alexandra, over 50 per cent was reported Monday with only about one half the normal number of pupils.

In city industrial plants varied percentages of absenteeism were reported but work although it was generally felt this week's picture was better. Corbin Sock reported nine per cent of their employees off this week as compared with 13 per cent last week. All employees had been vaccined against the flu, it was stated.

Northern Electric reported 24 off at their Water Street plant while Sherwin Carter said only 10 or 12 were off out of 300 employees.

Compare Salary Schedules Of Teachers in Belleville, Other Areas of Province

The purpose of comparing schedules for public school elementary salary increases in Belleville with those in other parts of the province, schedules in other cities of comparable size to this will be secured by the local Board of Education.

This was noted at the regular monthly meeting of the board held Monday evening when salary lists from a half dozen or more centres in the province were introduced. When all the salary schedule lists are received they will be compared with the local salary schedule.

Local Situation

Teachers employed by the Belleville Board of Education were granted salary increases at the first of the year but maximum salaries in the public school or at the collegiate were not raised.

A committee of Chairman A. C. Campbell and members George Wishart, Fred Symons and A. C. Wilson has been named to study salary schedules.

Tenders for classroom equipment for the new Bayview Public beth public school were opened with a committee being appointed to screen the tenders and report to the board. Tenders were called for classroom desks and blackboards, tables and chairs, as well as furniture for the principal's office.

Three film strip projectors for use in public schools were ordered purchased from Moffat's Music Store if specifications were satisfactory.

City Council will be asked to turn over to the Board of Education the proceeds of the sale of debentures for the erection of the new Queen Elizabeth school.

The board has an deposit with a local banking firm.

Senior School

Approval was given to a recommendation of the public school principals and committee that no general policy regarding senior school be adopted this year and that the Senior Public Elementary school be filled as far as practicable according to be as recommended by the public school inspector.

Old Man Flu reduced attendance at Public Schools Miss Josephine Tickell and Stuart Robb being absent through illness Monday as the meeting were Chairman Campbell members Symons, Wilkin, Hyde, David and Wishart.

Council Approves 'No Parking' South Side of Bridge St. East

Referred back two weeks ago to traffic committee for further consideration, a recommendation calling for no parking on the south side of Bridge Street, east from Church Street to MacDonald Ave. was approved by city council Monday afternoon.

As was the case previously the recommendation was given considerable discussion on the part of council members before approved of the meaning given, Alderman Bruce Laidlaw, as chairman of the traffic committee, said that no parking regulation was needed for the safety of school children and others using the street. It would cause no hardship for residents on the south side as there would be plenty of parking places on the north side.

Alderman Butler also approved of the recommendation stating that traffic conditions on Bridge Street had been improved since the introduction of no parking on the one side of the street.

Stop in Right Direction

Alderman Lummiss felt it was a "step in the right direction" and said if the recommendation did not pass the onus would be on council if there was a fatality on Bridge Street. Alderman Lummiss also approved of the measure.

Alderman Spafford opposed the idea of no parking on one side of Bridge Street. Parking space was necessary for the business. The claim of Alderman Lummiss that council was solely responsible in case of a fatality was said by the speaker to be "just so much eyewash."

Alderman Haig also opposed the recommendation stating that there was a tendency to impose too many restrictions. Speeding would be encouraged if given the cars off the south side of Bridge Street, he said.

The recommendation carried by a vote of 8 to 5.

Mr. Clifford Thorn, Canniffon Road, was appointed for the combined position of fog station attendant and janitor at the police station and at the market square for the ensuing year at a salary of $1,800 per year with duties to commence March 1st.

Playground areas in Churchill Heights and in Bayview Heights will be ready for use by the local parks board for use as children's playgrounds and as parks.

It was recommended that six building lots in Bayview Heights adjoining the C.P.R. be sold by the city for $100 per lot.

Approve Firemen's Agreement

Approval was given to the firefighters' agreement with the exception of the clauses dealing with cost of living bonus and the number of days given for the statutory holidays. Cost of living bonus to be received by firemen are reduced from $220 to $180 per year and the number of days per the line up changed from 15 to seven.

Cost of living bonuses of $180 per year for members of the police department had previously been approved by the Police Commission.

Jehovah's Witnesses were granted permission to string a banner across the street at Front and Campbell streets for drawing attention to their forthcoming regional gathering.

It was pointed out that members of the above organization will not be permitted to vote if they should take no active part in voting. It was felt, however, to refuse their request would be showing discrimination.

The members of the Collegiate branch of the Junior League of United Welfare appeared before council asking assistance to finance a trip to New York for a number of their members. The local organization had already raised $450 of the total cost of $650 for the trip. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Conservation Program Heard

Col. Roscoe Vanderwater of Quinte Region Conservation Authority, addressed council on the aims and objects of the Moira Valley Conservation Authority, addressed council on the aims and objects of the authority and what it was trying to do.

He pointed out that funds were needed for administration amounting to $1,000 per year. Each city and town would be $420.

The Authority was also considering the advisability of constructing a dam north of College Street as a means of alleviating flood danger in the city. The extent of progress toward this was, he had been told, an estimate as to the cost of plans but Col. Vanderwater noted there was no use getting prices unless there was an intention to proceed with the work. The project was one for the city to decide.

Cost of the dam would be about 75 per cent labor, the department and 25 percent locally.

Mayor Vanderwater said the Authority was also interested in reforestation, there being several thousand trees in Hungerford township which could be procured for this purpose. Any reforestation would be shared by the various municipalities in the ratio on which contributions were made, he said.

Red Cross Drive Most Important Since War

"The Canadian Red Cross campaign this year is the most important campaign since World War II," stated S. H. Young of Toronto, chairman of the campaign committee in Ontario division. "This year we must reach our quota of $2,000,000 which is 40 percent of the National Objective, of $5,000,000, if we are to carry on all the necessary activities of this great humanitarian organization. During the past year exceptional demands have been made on the resources of the Red Cross—the Winnipeg flood, and the fires in Rimouski and Cabana. Today we must plan to be ready for every emergency, both in Canada and other parts of the world where Red Cross may be called upon and expected to act immediately.

"It is not only the emergencies caused by disaster there are the everyday programs of the Red Cross. The expanding outpost hospitals; two dental units; the volunteer nursing services; swimming and water safety programs; nutritional and home nursing service to veterans; the first aid program; the Junior Red Cross and the national blood transfusion service—all these services need your help. Campaign opens March 1st.

A veteran of the First World War, he teamed up with the famous Smiley Burnette, stare of many western pictures, in the Second World War. Together they played USO units from coast to coast. "Harmonica Bill" said this was not his first trip to Canada as he appeared in vaudeville shows and once made records at Lechine in Quebec. Now making personal appearances with his pictures he came to the city to play the mouth organ and other instruments with the showing of the current picture at the Capitol.

He is a real wizard on the harmonica and can play the mouth organ and smoke a cigaret at the same time ,while accompanying himself on the guitar. No City or Rural Area Would be Immune - - Welsh

Toronto, Feb. 20—(CP)—Provincial secretary Arthur Welsh said yesterday that no city or rural area in North America will be immune from air attack in the event of a third world war.

He told the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities that "no matter what defences we set up, some enemy planes are bound to get through."

"An air attack on the Soo would be catastrophic and devastating," Mr. Welsh said. "The destruction of the Soo locks would wreck the economy of both the United States and Canada."

Besides Sault Ste. Marie, the principal targets in the province include Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor, Sudbury, Niagara Falls and Sarnia, he said.

The cost of civil defence should not be borne by municipalities. Only expenditures above peacetime requirements should be shared by provincial and dominion governments, he added.

Mr. Welsh emphasized the importance of civil defence and discussed the fact rural Ontario could play in the event of air attack. Farms and villages near target areas can be equipped with increased number of fire fighting units. These could rush to target areas in time of emergency.

Something to be considered is the possibility of incendiary bombs being dropped to start huge forest fires in northern Ontario, the provincial secretary said. There are not enough men in Canada to fight forest fires which could be started in the northern bush by this method, he added.

Man of Today Expects Too Much From Women, Senator Tells Rotary

Senator Cairine Wilson, first woman to crack the all-male ranks in government circles at Ottawa, told a Rotary luncheon yesterday that men of today expect too much from women, and that the accent on materialism in the western world is a bad factor in our civilization.

Senator Wilson, speaking to Rotarians and their Rotary Annes, said that "males expect a great deal of women, merely because we now have political rights and have not made vast accomplishments." Then, turning to the men, she continued "but, remember that you have been in control for hundreds of years, and have not had too spectacular a success." Women in government, she claimed, may help to lead the way to a more peaceful solution of the nation's sorrows.

Mrs. Wilson reviewed the movement of universal suffrage in Canada very lightly, paying tribute to Dr. Emily Howard Stowe in particular. She continued that perhaps one of the hazards facing women in the public life was that "a woman is supposed to be typical of her sex, and all her sins of omission and commission are visited on her sisters." She said that such was not the case on the male side of the ledger.

Emphasize Creative Spirit

The senator urged that Canadians as a people should begin to put less emphasis on material things and more on creative spirit. "We know that in the past we have been somewhat easy-going," she said. "it is the 'polity' of human nature to look for a scapegoat," she continued, and suggested that was one of the reasons many like Hitler and Mussolini had made so much trouble as they had.

"All our faults are exploited in Russia", she said, "and our materialism emphasized." She added that the sharing of skills in America, under a type of "free collectivism", no lad is greater advances in fields of profit and learning in the last 25 years.

Senator Wilson compared the easy-going late '30's and early '40's when, the dictators were rising in power, with today. "days of mass hysteria", she said of today's respect too much from women, and that the accent on materialism is a bad factor in our civilization.

The senator urged that Canadians as a people should begin to put less emphasis on material things and more on creative spirit. "We know that in the past we have been somewhat easy-going," she said. "it is the 'polity' of human nature to look for a scapegoat," she continued, and suggested that was one of the reasons many like Hitler and Mussolini had made so much trouble as they had.

"All our faults are exploited in Russia", she said, "and our materialism emphasized." She added that the sharing of skills in America, under a type of "free collectivism", no lad is greater advances in fields of profit and

Postpone Voting Because of Races

The British colony's Governor, Sir Franklin Gimson, has postponed legislative council elections from April 7 to April 19 because the meeting is a big race day.

Candidates for the colony's legislature demanded the change, saying otherwise nearly everybody would be at the pari-mutuel windows, not at the polls.

The newspaper Singapore Standard commented:

WEATHER AND WINTER

Though the weatherman can find no signs of a let-up in the mild spell, which has come upon the land in the past few days, few people can be hopeful enough to expect soon putting in an appearance. Everyone knows that there is a month ahead which often is the most stormy of the year, that of March. Still the year is aging. About a month away is the official date of spring's return.

Of course there are indications in nature that winter is on the wane, however violent it may become in the weeks ahead.

Halifax Mail-Star sees signs that winter is advanced and spring's forces are getting ready for the awakening time of the year.

"The tips of maple twigs are turning red. Even without the occasional glimpses of bright sun allotted to us these days, a most casual observer can see the change from the dark, brown-gray of December to the rosier hue. Not that this color means that spring is at hand, or even around the next bend because the mercury still can dive until it almost disappears into the bulb at the bottom. Last season we had more snow in dense and biting clouds that will put to shame January's blusterings.

"Nevertheless, there is other evidence that a change is under way. Perhaps it is more mental than anything else but still it is there. It prods amateurs to scan the garden plot, to study lawns and decimation done there by children's feet, dogs and sled runners. It drives housewives to the out-of-doors, armed with spring knives or something as handy, to begin to haggle at the forsythia bush. Given moisture and room warmth for a matter of days, blooms of sunshine gold will burst forth and, where there are no blooms, soft green leaves will show on the maple twigs to give promise to the ugliest limb. To a corner of a room, perhaps the darkest corner, spring then will really have come. The gold and green will give the lie to frost on the pane. It will prove that life, not in the maple twig means what it seems to mean, that sap will flow and that leaves will come, leaves that, when big as a squirrel's ear, will say more plainly than any calendar that it's time to plant beans and put corn kernels in the hills."

Such are signs to which everyone is alert as the end of winter approaches, however stormy the weather may be in the days ahead.

HANDBAGS AND POCKETS

It was one of the younger members of the sex who, embittered as they sometimes are, modestly reviewed the misfortunes of her state. Girls, she said, could not play football, could not engage in street fights, could not trap for possum at dawn of a winter's day. Girls were expected at all times to be ladylike, an allen pose and not too becoming. Too much was expected of girls, she said, all of it distinctly lifeless, all of it lacking sense. Finally she came to what she clearly regarded as the topper, the snapper, the ultimate tragedy, the deepest abyss. This was, she said, simply, that the dress of girls does not allow pockets, it does not provide what in parlance would be called stone age space. Reminded of the handbag, as an accepted part endar that it's time to plant ebans and put corn kernels full satisfaction could come only if the handbag were reinforced with numerous pockets.

The implications are all too clear — the ways of a woman with a handbag being well known through story and the cartoon which can manage to libel barely the half of it. There are a woman's handbag, although layer upon layer of miscellaneous objects in search of the car keys is too well known to excuse repetition. Her way as she changes from the afternoon handbag to the one suitable for evening is like the refrain of an old ballad, reiterative and simple. Her way as she gropes for the cigarette lighter which works among all those which do not runs with a metronomic beat throughout all modern humor. But these implications — they are the frightening things. All that it is necessary to do is to multiply by the number of pockets the things which go on now in only the handbag. New York Times.

INN FAMOUS IN FICTION

According to The New York Herald Tribune, the George and Vulture, the inn associated with Mr. Pickwick of the Dickens novel, is likely to yield place to a modern building for banking. This famous hostelry has lived through a number of centuries and occupies it is said the site of an in which was built in the twelfth century, namely the George, which was a resort and was visited by men of the rank of Chaucer the English poet and the famous Dick Whittingdon. It was destroyed in the fire of London in 1666.

The George and Vulture is associated with the fiction names of Samuel Pickwick and Sam Weller. Dickens wove his great story about this inn and in the minds of many persons it is associated very closely with the creative work of Dickens.

WOMAN'S WORRIES

"I wanted this," the woman said;
"To watch for him when he was late;
To hear his heavy footstep tread,
His hand unlatch the gate.

"I chose to wonder, where is he
And are his comrades good or no;
And why he doesn't home to me
He hasn't let me know.

"From what I've seen and heard, I learn
All men are thoughtless, now and then.
They often worry women so,
Regret, and do the same again.

"All these are women's worries small,
And patient with them we must be.
I chose to know them, one and all.
I wanted him to worry me."

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

LAWS AT WORK

More than 6000 British Columbia citizens, at a conservative estimate, were guilty of a criminal offense in the City of Vancouver last Saturday night. They broke the law openly and in public places. There were no arrests.

We are to study now how our town drinks, an investigation into a world as savage and uncivilized as anything in the jungles of the Congo.

There is a purpose in this study. There are two opposing sides on the question of British Columbia's liquor laws. There are old laws which compel the citizen to buy spirits by the bottle or jug rather than by the glass.

Some believe these laws cut down on drinking by making it as difficult and unpleasant as possible to get a drink. Others believe the laws are an invitation to a wanton display of drunkenness unequalled since Prohibition in the United States.

The arguments on both sides have grown tiresome over the years. Our purpose is not to review this ancient controversy, but to see how the laws, in fact, are working. Are these laws serving for the benefit of the majority? Are they promoting tolerance in the use of drink?

We begin on Saturday, February 10. In other northwestern cities —in New York and Toronto, in San Francisco and Montreal, in New Orleans and Quebec — men and women are sitting before small drinks, mixed by bartenders, in an atmosphere of sophistication.

In Vancouver, B.C., something like 4000 men, and women, are pouring their own drinks, in most cases, from 25-ounces bottles of liquor in an atmosphere of drunkenness, at once open and furtive.

In Fell View

How were the laws working Saturday night? For our preliminary study we will visit two of the leading night spots, the Commodore Cabaret, at 872 Granville Street, and the Cave Cabaret, at 626 Hornby Street.

Between 10:30 and 11:15 p.m. tables totalling 800 and 800 people observed at the Commodore. A check of one of the tables revealed a 25-ounce bottle of liquor (in most cases, rye whisky) and one empire. At four tables for six, which were specifically observed, there were 12 bottle under the table.

In several instances bottles were left on top of the table in full view. A waitress, noticing a 16-ounce bottle of gin on top of one table, admonished the owner. "You'll have to keep it under the be working on Monday night.

Most young people observed including some in their teens, pouring liquor into their glasses openly and in full view.

Some older patrons were seen to look about them guiltily before pouring their drinks hurriedly under the edge of the table. Two unwrapped opened bottle of whisky while moving from a table to a booth.

Most of the liquor was brought on the premises under the tails of coats of men, or in hip pockets, but one party of young people who might have been University students, entered the cabaret with bottle, wrapped in brown paper, under their arms.

By 11:15 p.m. the atmosphere of the Commodore was distinctly boozy (a sing song had begun around one table), but there were no cases of outright drunkenness observed.

There were no visits by police officers.

The Drunks

A capacity crowd at the Cave Cabaret was observed from 11:30 to 12:30 a.m.

A survey of a dozen tables indicated an average of three and two 25-ounce bottles for each party of four. Some bottles here too were on the table, but more were put on the floor under the table-cloths, which, in this cabaret French convention, run to the floor. In every case liquor was poured into glasses in a furtive manner.

At midnight the atmosphere of the Cave was frankly alcoholic. One young man sat at a table singing to himself and apparently near collapse. A young girl lay with her head on the table. Another fell from his chair. A middle-aged man between the tables during the floor show.

The entertainment was interrupted continually. A drunk shouted repeatedly for the mistress-of-ceremonies to sing "Waltzing Waltz." Several voices kept up a constant pattern of heckling during the show. Men and women alike rapped their glasses with spoons or knives to drown out the entertainers.

There was no sign of police activity at the Cave during this period and the management appeared oblivious to the orgy or drinking.

* * *

Tomorrow we will report on some other how the liquor laws appeared in operation.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IN MEMORY OF LOUISE BAEE

A star in the sky went out in the human heavens when Louise Baee slipped silently away in the night last year, but a continuous light streams over millions of lives to whom her unselfish efforts were devoted that more hearts might be filled with human service.

This frail, yet joyous and lovable woman devoted all her last years to the raising of funds for the New York Heart campaigns in the less than ten she raised over a million dollars. A former stage star, she was the wife of the noted humorist Arthur ("Hugs") Baee. She herself was a heart sufferer, but her outside her intimate friends ever suspected it, for into work she threw her self devoted self unstintingly.

As wife, mother and friend she was always an inspiration. Rarely have I ever met anyone so imbued with selflessness. Her presence in a group of her friends was like that of a Spring flower, full of fragrance and beauty. She always left a glow of hope in those whom she contacted, and endless others who never knew her will benefits from her tireless efforts to help.

Like a soldier in battle who gives his all, so did Louise Baee give her all during her fight against the very end—fighting for other hearts that they might longer live and carrying on spark every campaign she entered for the raising of funds for that great cause. She looked forward to her greatest campaign when she was to be the one universally carried away. The inspiration of her life, however, remains to all those who knew her, others into whom she injected her love and spirit. She was a great campaigner for the raising of funds for further and continuous research are enlisted one limited to no local community. Too many useful hearts are being snuffed out for direct disease, long before their time for full fruition. To the memory of all the Louise Baees, who have devoted their lives to this cause, do we owe the inspiration to carry on in their spirit, to final victory!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is really no trick to setting up a system of national service. It should be no more complicated than compiling a voters' list. And we do that often enough.

The only difficulty is one that our politicians are very fond of admit. For that difficulty lies in the interference of politicians. The moment the scheme of national service is set up—that is, a scheme for the universal recruiting of the energies of the nation for the selection of those who will then run the armed services and those who will be assigned to production jobs, the politicians both large and small become busier than bees around a bee hive.

If it could be made a criminal offence for a politician to interfere in any sense whatever with the operations of the local selection boards, or to use his influence in any respect in having the selections altered on their behalf, or after their arrival at, Ottawa or other headquarters, the working out of a system of national service would be simplicity itself.

A great many young men not only do not want to fight, They are unfitted for fighting. In battle, they are merely a nuisance. Every fighting man and sailor knows this. But these same temperamental non-fighters have a more serious effect in wartime. They do not seem able to perceive that they have got to pay for their pretty taste in these matters. While the fighting services prepare, right and privilege, these other non-fighters cling to the notion that they should be left entirely unhampered in what might be called the field of their enterprise in war.

Announce a program of national selective service, and tens of thousands, possibly hundreds of thousands of young men and fathers are going to get into the act. Regardless of the fact that their boy might desire to surrender himself to service, momma and poppa know better.

If there were no politicians through whom these non-fighters, these non-servers, and the mommas and poppas could negotiate, how delightfully national service would be! But what a pipedream! Politicians are the warp and fabric of society in which we are the mere woof.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Diagnosis or Treatment, Will Be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped Self Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

MORE ON HERNIA

"A workman who suddenly develops a rupture or hernia during the course of his work, is understandably justified in claiming the strain of the work produced it. However, hernias that are produced are "congenital," in that a "potential" hernia existed from birth. It thus becomes a matter of sheer chance that the hernia finally protrudes while he is at work. It might just as well develop while he is at a picnic or attending a political meeting.

There have been records of men, who, knowing in advance that they had a hernia suddenly fell down, pretending great pain and claiming that they "ruptured" themselves by encountering too great a strain. When these men were operated upon, no evidence of a recent injury could be found. The "dodge" proves profitable to the unscrupulous men who thus procure the undivided attention for himself at other persons' expense.

It is possible to develop a hernia in the absence of a congenital tendency but usually, a latent congenital type of hernia occurs in elderly men and is a distinct entity in itself. In other words, the hernia or bulge does not follow the strain of an accidental variety and the difference between the two types can be known if the region is opened to surgical inspection.

A hernia, usually, is no great threat of hazard to life. Theoretically, a man can live a normal life with one as without one. Many persons, seeking to avoid surgical or other treatment, live with a hernia for all the years of their lives, blissfully unaware that the hernia and prevent an increase in its size by the application of a truss, worn so that it does not cut.

One potential hazard, however, is that a hernia may become what is strangulation. If the hernial mass or lump (usually consisting of bowel) protrudes and cannot be replaced, obstruction of the bowel may develop which will prove fatal unless surgically relieved. Continued efforts to replace a resistant hernia under these circumstances, is extremely hazardous. Early operation, is indicated.

The foregoing remarks apply, of course, to a protruding, which cannot be replaced readily and which results in signs of bowel obstruction. There are hernias which consist of abdominal organs other than bowel, which become "fixed" or "irreducible" without creating obstruction. Many of these may be left alone for many years without creating great difficulty.

A hernia, untreated, never gets better." It can only get worse. If not supported by a constant worn truss, it may assume huge proportions.

Some hernias in infancy may be cured by the wearing of a truss for a year or two, but the adult person can be cured by the mere wearing of a truss, the claims of many truss perveyors notwithstanding.

Many persons wear trusses which do more harm than good. A person who purports to wear a truss should have it checked by a physician to see that it is adequate, Many trusses which seem to be adequate to non trass purveyor, are not found so by the physician.

Trenton Woman Recalls Olden Times

Claiming to have lived in Trenton longer than any other resident Mrs. Crowe remembers when she came to town with her parents from Colborne. Her father, Mr. P. J. Peterson ran a village blacksmith shop and carriage shop here for years.

Mrs. Crowe recalled the days when the part of Trenton west of the C.N.R. tracks to the junction including Harris Corners was covered by a cedar swamp. Corduroy roads carried horse and buggy traffic around town when the Peterson family moved here 75 years ago. Mrs. Crowe was 12 years old then.

"Trenton was a boom town as I first remember it," she said. "The first sale of lots after it was incorporated by mostly French Canadians who came here to lumber for the Gilmour people who established a large sash and door factory at the mouth of the Crowe River." Mrs. Crowe first remembers the shopping district as only a few small stores.

Her husband Charlie Crowe was a successful local mill wood merchant here for 30 years. He took an active part in civic life. He died 13 years ago.

Juvenile Offenders Theme of Lecture At Albert College

The regular meeting of the Albert College Women's Club was recently held in the Ladies' parlor of Bridge Street Church, with the president, Mrs. Northcott, presiding.

Mrs. K. Bird delighted the members of the Guild with a solo group, offering by Wilfred Sanderson. She was accompanied by Mrs. M. P. Duff at the piano.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. T. K. Franklin, who chose as her theme, the text, "Thou shalt be a blessing". Mrs. Franklin said that this was the greatest vocation in life, and should accompany every other vocation and that all that was necessary to make it a success was the desire to be kind.

Brotherly Kindness.

In the Bible, the command is given to "love thy neighbor as one anither's burdens and thus fulfil the will of God". When Mrs. Franklin said that this was the aim she shared the sorrow of Mary and Martha, Lazarus' sisters. Kindness and sympathy for others in their sorrow or joy, was the lesson to be learned by all with whom he comes in contact.

After the devotional period, Mrs. K. Bird sang two solos, "Bless This House" and "Little Orphan Annie", both of which were much enjoyed.

The speaker of the afternoon, Mr. McKinnon, was introduced by Mrs. A. May. Mr. McKinnon is the probation officer for the Family (or Juvenile) Court, in the county of Hastings. Judge Anderson is the judge of the Court and Magistrate Wills, is the deputy judge.

Juvenile Offenders

Where there is no Family Court juvenile offenders must be tried in the ordinary courts in company with older and more hardened criminals. In the Family Court juveniles are tried only for criminals but as delinquents. Period. Mr. McKinnon said that the percentage of those who reappear in court was low.

The "police boy" sometimes place a child in a foster home, if the home surroundings are poor, or, if a child is incorrigible, the judge may send him to an industrial school. If a child cannot be allowed to return home, he or she is placed in the women's section of the county jail, until a more permanent arrangement can be made.

Playground Use

Mr. McKinnon mentioned the splendid use which as made of the playgrounds in Belleville. He considered the playground facilities here were instrumental in preventing a great deal of juvenile delinquency.

The Belleville Branch of the Family Court endeavors to hold families together. There are various causes which tend to break up families, the most usual being lack of money, poor housing and liquor.

Mr. McKinnon's address was most interesting, and it is gratifying to those who are interested in child welfare to know that delinquent children are given the help they need to correct their faults and to become good and useful citizens.

Mr. K. G. Hudgins moved a vote of thanks to Mr. McKinnon for his splendid address.

Tea was served by the social committee, following the close of the meeting.

British Women Rally Again, Help Promote Civil Defence

BY MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London— (CP) — For the third time in a half century, the women of Britain are meeting the call of preparedness for war.

Throughout the country women from all walks of life "signed on" today for women's voluntary organizations and local council services, offering their services for civil defence.

Many volunteered "welfare," a new section of civil defence added since the days of the Second World War. This covers such varied duties as care of the homeless, supervision of public shelters, emergency cooking and feeding, manning mobile kitchens, canteens and rest centres.

"At a mass meeting in London, Home Secretary Chuter Ede published his many ways women could help build a co-ordinated civil defence network that would meet emergencies of war.

"To carry out the tasks of civil defence," he said, women must be trained; trained not only to do their individual jobs well but to be ready for any emergency. They must be ready to prevent themselves from becoming casualties, to assist others who may be suffering and generally to help people to help themselves."

Sections of the Civil Defence Corps include rescue work, ambulance, hospital, pioneer, (including debris clearance, demolition and decontamination) headquarters and wardens' staffs.

The prevailing world tension has brought a sharp rise in civil defence enrolment from a September total of 62,000 to 117,000 in January, including 50,000 women. This, however, is still far below the peak level of 400,000.

The women's voluntary services are aiding the recruiting drive by urging their own members to volunteer for civil defence while retaining membership in the voluntary organizations. This has added about 12,000 to the civil defence total.

Training now is in full swing in more than 600 centres throughout Britain. At least one - third of the total civil defence membership has already completed the first 10-weeks basic training.

This program provides instruction in the art of self-protection and assistance to others, in event of atomic, high explosive or gas warfare. Courses in teamwork follow with specialized training in the jobs for which each recruit is best suited.

Fire-fighting and knowledge of atomic warfare are top priorities in present instruction plans. Specialized training schools are being set up throughout the country to provide practical experience for women recruits.

Although the direct concern of the Home Secretary, Chuter Ede is primarily a local responsibility. Specially trained mobile columns, however, will be recruited to help out communities where necessary to any centre in need of assistance.

In the words of Chuter Ede:—"Each village or street must be able to look after itself."

Women's Institute

CARMEL W.I.

The February meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute was held in the home of Mrs. C. Barlow with 16 members and two visitors present. Following the opening exercises, the president, Mrs. C. Brintnell, called on Mrs. Barlow for the minutes and communications. A singsong under the leadership of Mrs. B. Pitman was then enjoyed.

The] members of the standing committee, Mrs. F. Hicks, Mrs. G. Moorman, Mrs. J. Homan and Mrs. M. Hicks gave interesting reports followed by the current events read by Mrs. A. Allen.

At this time, the publicity leader, Mrs. C. Thompson took charge of the program, and all regretted very much that the guest speaker, Mrs. McKinnon was not to be present. The first part of the program was devoted to honoring St. Valentine's Day and the poem "From the Heart", was read by Miss Marg. Hicks. Mrs. J. Homan read a complete story of St. Valentine's Day which told why people honor this day. Following this, Mrs. Patterson gave a paper on former customs in regard to Valentines. Mrs. L. Latone completed this part of the program by reading the poem "A Wife's Valentine to Her Husband".

Mrs. C. Brintnell then led in a short, but lively sing-song. A newspaper clipping was then passed around showing the pictures of the Institute W.I. presidents across Canada. A pamphlet "Methods of Publicity" was very ably given by Mrs. C. Barlow, and dealt with publicity under the headings of press spot, public speaking, radio, fair exhibits, pulpit, printed program, telephone and self publicity.

Following this, Mrs. Moorman read on public relations in regard to social feeling and good manners. Mrs. Thompson concluded her program with "Publicity is the Act of Putting our Best Foot Forward Across" closing with the poem:

"If you would rise above the throng,
Then let your work go out with song,
Put your best foot, my lad,
To spread your fame about,
For everybody on earth you do
Or someone advertises you."

After closing the meeting, two "Stunts" were enjoyed, one played with the winners receiving candy as prizes.

Refreshments were served and a social time spent.

ENTRANCE TICKETS REQUIRED

Vatican City, Feb. 20—(Reuters)—It costs Catholics in the Soviet Baltic republics—Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia—most get "entrance tickets" from the police before they may visit their church to receive Vatican radio said today.

Donald McKinnon Addresses W. Assoc. Holloway St. Church.

The Women's Association of the Holloway Street United Church met in the church parlors on Thursday evening when the members entertained their husbands at a Valentine party. The decorations were in keeping with the Valentine season. The tables were greeted at the door by Mrs. Moorman and Mrs. Cook. A contest-as-a-bean contest set the party off to a jolly start.

The guests were called to order by the president, Mrs. B. M. Moorman. The short business session was opened by a sing-song led by Mr. Allen Lennox, with Mrs. Downing at the piano. The devotions were in charge of Mrs. White. A baby will be packed soon and the ladies were asked to bring suitable clothing to the church between now and the next W.M.S. meeting.

Guest Speaker

The program was in charge of Doctors have removed a fifty ounce bullet that was imbedded 1¼ inches in the brain of 13-year-old Robert E. Kirchofer, Jr. The boy's condition was reported satisfactory today. The bullet was fired by a friend of Kichofer's during target practice Sunday.

Mrs. Dobbs and Mrs. Outlingdyke. Mrs. Cook introduced the speaker as Donald McKinnon. Mr. McKinnon, the probation officer of the Juvenile Court, the man who discussed the Juvenile Court, the Family Court, juveniles delinquency and some of the reasons why families break-up. Mr. McKinnon said there were about 38 Juvenile and Family Courts in the province of Ontario, and cases are heard in the room nearest the home of the offender.

The purpose of the Juvenile Court is to reclaim offenders if possible. The causes contributing to juvenile delinquency were listed as follows: Lack of parental control, broken homes, lack of outside interest, poor reading habits, poor movies and low mentality.

He also discussed the family court and the efforts of the judge and the probation officer to reestablish harmony in the home, so that husband and wives will remain together and the home maintained.

Other features of the evening were: readings by Miss Helen Sulman and three very delightful solos by Mrs. Ann Davidson.

Mrs. A. C. Campbell, who had been president of the Association for three years, was presented with a handsome chesterfield. The presentation was charmingly made by Mrs. Dobbs.

The evening was concluded with a buffet luncheon served by the committee members.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

Suspicious that her husband is unfaithful

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married for ten years and have two wonderful children. A few years ago, I suspected him of having an affair with another woman. Since he works in an office with quite a few people, and because he, talked constantly of one particular individual, I felt it must be one of the office personnel.

I am afraid I caused quite a bit of embarrassment at the office by making phone calls there. I wanted above everything to save my marriage, but I am afraid my behavior destroyed what I wanted most to save, as my husband and I are drifting farther and farther apart.

What would you suggest I do to make my marriage survive?

Mrs. M.

Dear Mrs. M.:

The thing for you to do that would probably have more influence than anything else is to make yourself a different sort of person. From the little you tell me, I would guess that you have been putting on a great many scenes dwelling constantly on your suspicions, no doubt reproaching and quarreling with your husband frequently, and having the bad taste to let the world in which he works know that you don't trust him. All of this is very bad, and the quickest way to lose a husband.

I suggest that you make a resolution to try being the opposite kind of person. No matter how you may feel inside, act toward your husband as if you did trust him and were sure that he would not let you down. It isn't nearly so easy for a person to deceive someone else if he feels that someone has faith in him and counts on his loyalty. For the rest; interest yourself in as many things outside your home as you have time for, so that you will have so much time to brood and also so that you will have something to tell your husband about. Be interesting yourself and be ready for more interesting in. Keep out of quarrels and avoid reproaches and questions.

Give him from a reasonable trial, say at least six months. Then write me again and tell me how the situation looks.

Sister takes her boy friends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years old, and have a sister who is 18 and much prettier than I am. Each time I meet a boy and introduce him to her, he seems to fall for her. The worst part of it is, she dates the boy a couple of times and then drops him for others. I am very disturbed about this and hope you can give me some advice.

S. A. B.

Dear S.A.B.:

Your problem is by no means unusual. I have had many letters from girls complaining of this very thing.

About all a girl can do about it is to let the boys discover for themselves what sort of person the sister is. When they find they are dropped as soon as she gets tired of them, they are quite likely to want to come back to a girl who makes a better friend.

In the meantime, don't waste time sitting around waiting for the boys to do this. Keep going out with all your friends and have so many activities on your program that you enjoy that you'll always be something interesting to do, whether there's a boy in the picture just then or not.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Plastic surgery.

New faces for old ones sounds like a good idea. It comes to some women who cannot bear facial creases and who flirt with the idea of a facelift.

These victims of time's unkind behavior are forever seeking information on the subject, and they might as well have the stern facts. In the first place, there are few specialists who do this work. Time was when many charlatans flourished, making vain promises and sometimes causing injuries, but the medical profession got after them and put them out of business.

The treatment requires the greatest possible skill. The operator must have vision, be able to know how the patient will look after treatment. Most of them will accept only certain cases—those supplicants whose appearance bears definite defects that interfere with social or professional life. They do not consider that ordinary wrinkles are anything to get into a frenzy about Doctors don't consider ordinary wrinkles a cause for frenzy.

It is the opinion of your reporter that professional women are justified in resorting to surgical help, especially stars of the stage and screen; a lasting, youthful appearance is necessary for their work. Many of them have had facelifts. The method consists of cutting the flesh just above the hairline at the temples, lifting the tissues—not just the skin—until the facial surface is smooth, snipping away the surplus flesh, sewing the wound carefully. The marks will be concealed when the hair grows again.

These treatments have been given by reliable cosmetic surgeons with splendid results. Wrinkles have vanished, pouches under the eyes have disappeared. The woman who fancies she might have this miracle performed for her, wants to know if the results are permanent.

That question brings a yes-no answer. Everything depends upon the condition of the tissues. If they still have tone, a second operation may not be necessary. If they have fallen into a sad state of dissolution, the project may have to be repeated after a few years.

The woman who would have slid along these lines should ask her family physician to recommend a reliable specialist.

GOOD MANNERS

BY MRS. BEECKMAN

A group of girls ask these two interesting questions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are a group of office girls who read your column every day and we would like to have you settle two discussions for us. (1) When a couple who "go steady" are invited to a wedding present to a mutual friend, whose name appears first on the card to be enclosed? That is, "Mary and John" or "John and Mary"? (2) Also please tell us if Easter Sunday is too early for the men in a wedding party to wear white jackets with dark trousers?

Maryjane

(1) The girl's name usually is first. And when a couple are spoken of as a gift together, I think it's a nice plan for each to write his or her name. For example, the girl to write her name on the card, and the young man to write his name underneath the girl's signature. Like this:

Dearest love to you from both of us, and best wishes,

Maryjane Allen

Walter Hall

(2) Easter is the last Sunday in March and in Massachusetts, where you live, it would be definitely inappropriate . . . indeed "rushing the season" . . . for the men in a wedding party to wear this summer-weight wedding attire, white dinner jackets and tuxedo trousers. In the Southern states, Florida for example, this attire would be appropriate, but not "up North" at this very-early-spring season.

Friends ask "Is it your engagement ring?"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Topaz is my birthstone, and I have a beautiful new topaz ring which I have just begun to wear on the third finger of my left hand. This is not an engagement ring, but I thought it was very becoming to this finger and it never occurred to me that it would "look like" an engagement ring until friends began to ask me if it is an engagement ring. I had always thought of an engagement ring as a diamond solitaire. Is it incorrect for me to wear this ring on this finger?

C. H.

It is not incorrect for you to wear this ring or any other ring on the third finger of your left hand. . . there's no rule against this. A ring worn on this finger, diamond solitaire or any other ring, may mean an engagement, or, as in your case, it may mean only your preference about wearing it. However, since today most girls choose stones other than a diamond to be set as an engagement ring—and very often choose their birthstone—you will probably have to decide beyween answering the "wondering about" questions some of your friends will doubtless ask, or wearing the ring on another finger, perhaps the third finger of your right hand.

Fitted Town Coat

Young and handsome

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

FAWN brown broadcloth has been trimly tailored into a very handsome coat, young and most effective. Black braid edging points up the triple scalloped collar, pockets, and the sleeves. The coat is fitted and flared and there is a parade of buttons two abreast down the bodice and skirt.

Fashion Flashes

A wealth of color marks the new hats—plain or dressy; straw, felt or fabric. Tissue felt is used for a pink hat that is somewhere between the casual and dressy. The wide brim dips in front and curls down and up in back. A crown-width of magenta velvet ribbon band is brought to a flat bow in back, and a wide pin in front holds rhinestone and jewel-ended pendants.

A BRIGHT OUTLOOK for handbags is certain, what with the large collections of colorful cobra bags in such shades as blueberry, pink, yellow, mauve and tangerine. A box bag in an elongated flower-pot shape is in shocking pink cobra lined with pink suede. The same bag is also done in navy and red.

THE TREND to the boxy jacket suit is marked as new collections are shown. Gray and navy herringbone tweed with a fairly red line makes a handsome suit, the boxy jacket detailed with inlays of navy silk faille on the collar and pointed cuffs. The jacket is lined in red silk crepe and the skirt is very slim.

A SPARKLING PIECE of glitter is a wide lattice bracelet made of rhinestones and small cabochon sapphire-colored stones, to be worn well above the elbow.

FOR SHIP AND SHORE, for resort wear now or later on, or home, one house shows a full-length coat of bright turquoise lamb's wool fleece. It is made with a deep, high-placed collar with wide points, and has pushed-up sleeves with wide melon cuffs.

Merchants Extend Unbeaten String Battle Flyers to Overtime Draw

The Belleville Merchants increased their undefeated string to 10 games by knocking off Lansdowne last night, battling the Trenton RCAF Flyers 5-all in an overtime Trent Valley Hockey League contest.

The tie gives the city squad seven victories and three draws in their ten games.

The game was a rugged hard-hitting affair with Referees O'Malley and Aquino handing out 16 penalties, two of them majors with the Merchants drawing down eight of the sentences. Jackson and Storms started a mild fist-swinging rhubarb late in the third period, both drawing majors, and just by way of diversion, another fight started in the spectators pews with no damage done.

See-Saw Battle

It was a see-saw nip and tuck battle all the way through with Flyers leading two-to-one at the end of the first period. Bill Hurst scored the only goal of the second period after 23 seconds of play when he sifted down the right boards and his passout from behind the net struck the Flyer goalie's skate and deflected into the hemp.

The seven was tied four times with both teams hitting the hemp twice in the third period and no scoring singles in the overtime session.

Nicky Sargent showed some of his old time form last night scoring two goals and with line-mates Gobell and Jackson who were credited with two assists each, were the best line on the floor. Bad out there. Andrew, Gobell and Roberge scored other Flyer tallies while the defensive effort being one of the best scoring splurges of the game. Graham, Hurst, Storms Barrett and Reeves were the Merchants' snipers with Earl Cousins drawing down two assists.

Merchants Grab Lead

It was anybody's game after the second period. Storms shoved Merchants into a 3-2 lead early in the session but Roberge got that one back three minutes later. Sargent gave Flyers a 4-3 lead but that was nullified by Barrett's goal from Cousin's pass.

With less than three minutes to go in the overtime session Reeves put the Merchants into the lead and it looked to be all over. But Gobell, Sargent and Jackson, trading down ice, scored into Merchant territory 25 seconds later and the former banged home the tying tally. The city squad was driving hard at the bell.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, Green; defence, Reeves, Cousins; centre, Cousins; wings, Graham, Semark; subs, Hatfield, Bone, Storms, Barrett, Delaney, Storms, Yorke.

Trenton Flyers: Goal, Freebairn; defence, Hampson, Hughes; centre, Goebell; wings, Sargent, Jackson; subs, Zaleski, Lalonde, Adams, Mason, Andrews, Roberge, Tremblay, Sellars.

Argos Discover Santa Claus Is No Myth

Toronto, Feb. 20 — (CP) — It was just like Christmas last night for Toronto's Big Four Argonauts, Grey Cup victors in 1950 — and team of the'half-century.

At a memorial dinner each of the players got three crests — the Dominion and Eastern Canada championship badges, and also Big Four emblem - wrist watches and a large framed portrait of the mud-caked team taken just after beating Winnipeg Blue Bombers last November.

Argos also got the good news that coach Frank Clair would sign a new three-year contract this week and that U. S. imports Ulysses Curtis, Billy Bass and Marion Whaley had been signed for 1951.

(By The Canadian Press)

Slamming Johnny Greco of Montreal returned to the ring Monday night for his first fight in a year and pounded out a decision over Eddie Gloss of Philadelphia. The Montreal crowd loved the decision.

The main bout was a slow-moving affair and the crowd continually urged them to slug it out. Greco appeared to get the judges' nod on the basis of his aggressiveness.

Benny Allen of Kansas City put Chenier off the undefeated list with a 150-69 decision in four innings. Allen had a high of 106 in handing Chenier his first setback in four matches.

At a bookmakers' callover of Fort Erie Victoria Club the six-year-old horse was quoted at 100 to 9 for the 4 1-2 mile race at three April 7.

Whitney's jumper didn't figure in the first Grand National calling over a week ago, but shot into prominence today after it was announced that jumper Gerald Balding's last Arctic Gold would be a definite starter.

The box-office appeal of former heavyweight champion Joe Louis was attested Monday with announcement that the 16,000-plus seating Forum palace was sold out for his 10-round fight Friday night at San Francisco with Andy Walker of San Francisco.

Promoters said gate receipts would gross approximately $90,000, with a top ticket price of $7.50.

Newcombe lost five pounds working out with catcher Roy Campanella at Hot Springs, Ark. He claims he is only four pounds over his best pitching weight.

Charlie Fusari and Johnny Bratton, leading contenders for the world's welterweight crown, have been signed to fight in the Chicago Stadium March 14, the International Boxing Club announced Monday.

Big four middle-punching Chicago Negro, knocked out Bobby Dykes in the first round of their recent fight at the stadium. A short time previously, Dykes had gone 10 rounds with Sugar Ray Robinson, new middleweight champ, dropping the decision.

The New York Board of Higher Education Monday night barred for the present any future scheduling of municipal college basketball games in Madison Square Garden.

The rest of this season's scheduled games are not affected.

The board ordered a committee to look into every phase of recent game fixing at the Garden.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. M. CARVER, Sports Editor

Correction:

The flaming Peterborough Petes may be sorry to get their collective hair dressed after last night and let the Gananoque Kegler plaster a 9-8 shellacking on their lackadaisical frames.

For that little slip, believe it or not can cost them the exalted position they have held or shared all schedule season at the top of the senior group hereabouts.

* * *

For weeks now the second - guessers have been mulling about the forthcoming playoffs between the two Peterborough clubs, in fact one Peterborough scribe, whom we're told toils on a weekly in that village has already pulled a "Dewey Elected" scream in announcing the playoff between his favorite teams.

* * *

	W	L	T	F	A	P
Peterborough	21	9	1	206	137	43
Eagles	19	11	2	231	160	40
Nylons	17	11	1	161	138	35
Belleville	12	19	0	152	192	24
Queens	10	23	0	126	237	10
Gananoque	4	5	0	48	60	8

* * *

Assuming the Nylons settle their remaining differences with Queen's in another four-point game, they have but one game left, and that with the Petes. They played Queen's in a four-pointer last night. Belleville has three games left, two with Queens and one with Eagles. The Petes meet Nylons and Eagles in two very important frays while Eagles have one with Petes and one with Belleville. And that means there's going to be some hand-scratching finagling before the judges drop the flag on the league winner.

* * *

Assuming again, that Nylons defeated Queen's last night unless the game reached the proportions of the Petes - Gananoque fracas, and defeat Queen's the second time for another quartet of dots, and then tack a setback on the Petes, their point score will be 45 and they'll be sitting right plumb on top of the heap with the vanquished Petes in second alley. That is providing the Eagles dunk the Petes in their clash. A clean sweep for Nylons from here in and a split for the Petes with Nylons and Eagles will create a first place tie. Petes can grab the goblet by defeating both Nylons and Petes. The set-up has reached the wacky stage as far as mathematical chances are concerned with only one thing certain and that is the Belleville Redmen are sitting quiet and happy in the old familiar fourth slot.

* * *

Which all goes to show that anything can happen in a hockey game or group and the battle is not over until the official bugles sound "Taps".

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

Houston, Tex., Feb. 20 (AP)— The newest and probably the most serious controversy in professional golf reached its showdown today

Jimmie Demaret, the colorful Texan who is doing all the talking, changed over a fine of $500 levied by the PGA tournament committee because he and eight other American golfers went to Mexico and played in the Mexican National Open. It was in defiance of a PGA order.

Vic Ghezzi was fined $350 but it was in absentia. He still is in Mexico to play some exhibitions. Three other golfers who accompanied Demaret here by plane to see about playing in the Houston Open starting Thursday—Morris Williams, Jr., Stan Dudas and Ansel Snow—were fined $300.

Four others—Al Besselink, who went to Florida; George Kinnaman, Jr., Willie Polumbo and Nick Lazor, who are expected to arrive here today or tomorrow by automobile—also were stuck $200 apiece.

Demaret let out a loud bleat. He wouldn't even accept the notice from Howard Capps, PGA tournament supervisor, said he would sue the PGA "if I'm fined a nickel."

While Demaret conferred with a lawyer and threatened suit, indications were that the fines would be paid and that at least eight of the golfers would play in the Houston Open. They have to pay up before they can enter.

George Lewis, president of the Houston Golf Association, said the fine would be paid for Demaret but it would have to be understood that such payment was not an admission of guilt. Demaret is a Houston resident and a popular sports figure here.

Only Worry of Leafs, Wings Is Which Will Finish Atop Scrambly National League

Montreal, Feb. 20.—(AP)—With interest still between the Detroit-Toronto battle for top National League honors and a three-way contest for third and four playoff spots, the results of last week's games may have set the pattern for the remaining five weeks of play.

The official statistics of the league released today showed Red Wings and Leafs far enough ahead of the pack, up to and including Feb. 16 games, that their victory spree appeared to be which could finish on top.

Leafs combined two wins and a tie to climb to within four points of Wing's 78 last week. Detroit's record was made up of 34 wins (one in their game last week), 11 losses and 10 ties. Leafs' was 31, 12 and 12.

Boston, tied in third place last week with Montreal, remained there with 49 points. But New York's two wins and a tie there were enough to boost Rangers into a two-way tie with Habs (Detroit and Boston each added a point to their standings with a tie last night. The Wings have five points up on Leafs and gave Bruins one possession of third place with 50 points.)

Meanwhile, Canadiens, who lost one and tied one last week, sank to fourth place with 48 points.

The individual scoring races followed the same pattern, at least in the first four places.

Detroit's Gordie Howe and Sid Abel held down first and second places again with 67 and 61 points respectively. Howe has 30 goals and 37 assists and Abel, 20 and 31.

Rod Skoot and Max Bentley of Toronto are tied in third place with 48 points apiece.

Rocket Dewn

Maurice Richard, who usually accounts for a big share of Canadiens' goals, is tied for sixth or fourth in the individual standings with 46 points. But he remained the top goal-producer with three more than Howe.

Toronto's defender Al Rollins was the only one to improve his shutout record last week, adding one to make it three in 29 games. He and Leafs' other goalie, Turk Broda still have the best com-

Dutchies Down, But Star Forward Leads Snipers

Toronto, Feb. 20. (CP)—Khchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen are still in the junior division of the Ontario Hockey Association Major series but that's not bothering Leafs' star forward Gus Flick.

Flick increased his league scoring lead last week and now is five points ahead of teammate Mickey Roth.

A record of 23 goals and 30 assists makes up Flick's total of 53 points. Roth has 20 goals and 28 assists while Johnny Conick of Hamilton Tigers is in third place with 16 goals and 28 assists for 44 points.

The two top teams in the major series—Toronto Marlboros and Toronto St. Michael's Ba—have only two players each in the top 10 scorers. Leafs' Roth is they play fewer games, doubling up on all inter-team meetings to make them best-of-three.

However, the league-leading St. Michael's representatives in defensive records with Phil Hughes continuing to lead with a record of 3.17 goals against him a game. Ed Rafferty of Marlboro is next with 3.41.

In the O.H.A. Junior A race, the scoring leader still is Lou Jankowski of the sixth-place Oshawa Generals. He has 50 goals and 46 assists for 96 points, two ahead of Ken Laufman of fourth-place Guelph Biltmores.

Senior

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who lead the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series, combined two wins and a tie to climb to within four points of Wing's 78 last week. Detroit's record was made up of 34 wins (one in their game last week), 11 losses and 10 ties. Leafs' was 31, 12 and 12.

'Watch the West' Is Cry Along Curling Rialto

Nelson, B.C., Feb. 20 — The West was in general, and Saskatchewan in particular, shaped up today as the favorite to win the Canadian High School Curling championships.

Of the seven entered, only Saskatchewan and Alberta remained undefeated last night at the conclusion of opening-day play. Each had three victories, but the Saskatchewan wins were more resounding.

British Columbia, Quebec and Prince Edward Island followed with two wins to one loss, while Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Ontario each had earned one win in three games.

New Brunswick and Northern Ontario, with nothing but defeats, were at the bottom of the curling heap in the fight for the Sifton trophy, which has yet to see an eastern winner.

Gary Thode's high-flying Saskatchewan quartet breezed through opening play with top-sided wins—14-6, 20-6 and 12-4 respectively against Nova Scotia, Quebec and Northern Ontario.

The Alberta rink, skipped by Bob Harper, walloped New Brunswick 11-2 and hammered Northern Ontario 13-7 but had a stiff battle before downing B.C. 10-8 in a tight game.

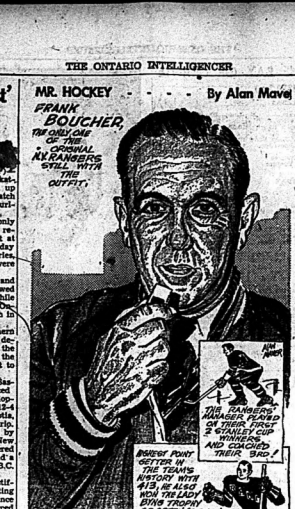
In winning, B.C. found its stiffest opposition when meeting Prince Edward Island 10-3 but was forced into an extra-end game to edge Ontario 13-12.

The highly-rated Manitoba rink finally found its first real fight after losing two games. Manitoba beat Nova Scotia 14-9 after bowing to Quebec and Prince Edward Island.

Rinks had six games to go in round-robin play before the championships close Friday. The tourney runs until Wednesday.

Results of last night's games:

Alberta 10, British Columbia 8; Saskatchewan 12, Northern Ontario 4; Quebec 13, Manitoba 14, Nova Scotia 9; Prince Edward Island 10, New Brunswick 3.



Long Island U. Hoop Stars Charged With Taking Bribes, Scandal Affects Other Teams

By EUGENE LEVEN

New York, Feb. 20 (AP) — Three Long Island University basketball stars were charged today with accepting bribes as college basketball's sensational game-fixing scandal spread to another major team.

The L.I.U. trio was charged with accepting a total of $3,000 to lose a game between their school and Kansas State last Dec. 2 at Madison Square Garden. L.I.U. barely won 60-59, after holding a wide early lead.

The payoff covered in the booking was "between January 15, 1950, and January 16, 1951." The Kansas State game was the only contest specified, but the police indictment charged the trio as defendants agreed to "lose or try to lose."

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said the trio admitted plotting to arrange the point spreads in a number of L.I.U. games.

Hogan made his announcement at 9:30 a.m. EST, just 13 hours after he and his aides began questioning the trio yesterday afternoon.

He indicated that several games other than those played this season also are involved.

The three L.I.U. players, "all seniors, have admitted that they took money for 'shaving' points on games," Hogan said.

The district attorney added that they operated through Salvatore T. Sollazzo and a former L.I.U. player, Edward Gard, "to set up betting crews on certain games."

Hogan added that the L.I.U. players had listed the "amounts of money involved in the bribes." But he would not give the figures.

The city's latest basketball scandal was touched off Sunday when Hogan charged Sollazzo, Gard, and three City College of New York players and one former New York University in the fixing of three games this season.

Players Start Talking

These latter four players started talking Sunday afternoon after 21 hours of questioning by Hogan.

Hogan declined to tell how the investigation of the L.I.U. stars started. But he described it as coming from the "same seed" as the C.C.N.Y. arrests.

He said the first investigation started Jan. 10.

Hogan declined to say how many L.I.U. games were involved. However, he said that Long Island lost some of the games on which the trio allegedly "shaved" points.

He said he would give details after "we have fully checked".

Meanwhile, Vincent A. G. O'Connor, assistant district attorney, said detective this morning recovered $5,000 from a Brooklyn safety deposit box belonging to Al Roth, one of the accused C.C.N.Y. players.

Long Island, with a season of 20 wins and four losses, was rated as one of the top teams in the United States as it rolled unbeaten through straight games before a western trip spoiled the streak.

Meanwhile, the city board of higher education barred for the present any future scheduling of municipal college basketball games in Madison Square Garden. The remaining games this season are not affected.

The resolution, which bars "facilities not chiefly controlled by educational institutions," applies to City College, Brooklyn College, Queens College and Hunter College.

Pronovost Bags First NHL Goal, Gives Wings Tie

Detroit, Feb. 20 — (CP) — Marcel Pronovost, a six-foot 175-pound defenceman from Shawinigan Falls, Que., celebrated his return to the National Hockey League last night by scoring his first goal in big league competition.

The 20-year-old rookie, who has shuttled back and forth in the Detroit Red Wings farm system, came up with the goal just 22 seconds from the end of the game to give the league-leaders a 2-2 tie with Boston Bruins before 11,241 fans.

It was the second game for Pronovost since being brought up from the minors last week. Earlier this season he went 21 games without a goal for Detroit.

The tie increased Detroit's first-place lead over Toronto Maple Leafs to five points and gave the Bruins sole possession of third place, one point ahead of New York Rangers.

After a scoreless first period, Detroit took the lead at 2:42 of the second when a goal by Jimmy Peters from George Gee. Less than four minutes later Lorne Ferguson tied it up on a passing play with Paul Ronty and Johnny Peirson. Milt Schmidt set up Woody Dumart's goal early in the third period, giving the Bruins a 2-1 lead.

Race Results Ordered 'Held' Bookies Smile

Page 9

By JAMES F. FOWLER

Miami, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP) — The Associated Press and other news services today ordered transmission of racing results from Florida tracks 20 minutes after each race except the last one Monday but bookies apparently were getting results 10 to 15 minutes after each race.

The delay was ordered Saturday by the Florida State Racing Commission as an intended blow at illegal gambling activities.

At Hialeah race course results of the first eight races were delayed by the AP an average of about 22½ minutes after each race. Results to The Daily Racing Form, Morning Telegraph and other turf publications also were delayed a similar time.

But bookies in the Miami area said they experienced no such delays.

The average time for results to bookmakers in the area was reported at about 12 minutes.

CANADIAN SPORTS PARADE

As a direct result of dropping attendance in the National Hockey League, a tendency to cry "Wolf" has developed among the sports experts. Indiscriminate use of such headlines as "Is Hockey Dying?" has contributed little more than added fuel for the fire. But the answer to the 'declining interest' problem in hockey can probably be found in the game itself. Let's examine the pros and cons.

Pro and Con:

In the Good Old Days (we're told) hockey players were a full 60 minutes and the fans saw the evening full of vigor and vitality. "No wonder hockey today is passing out," states an ancient fan. "Why, the boys work on playing now turn blue in the face after three minutes of play."

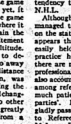
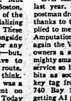
These and a dozen other opinions are trotted out each time a new prophecy of doom strikes at the game through the sports pages. And yet, it was to please the fans that the game was speeded up to the point where it requires 18 players to maintain the constant action and continuous movement necessary to attract the multitude. The Red Line was designed to determine 'off-side' passes and do away with the old system of long-distance passing which, it often was, was utilized as a measure of easing the pace. Constant substitution and changing lines 'on the run' are two other methods which have assisted greatly in speeding up the sport from a spectator point of view.



As to the claim that few modern players could play the 60-minute game, it is only necessary to point out Milt Schmidt of Boston, Ted Kennedy of the Leafs and a dozen others specializing in 'hell for leather' hockey. Three such players could play alongside Babe Pye, Cyclone Taylor or any other old-time chooch—and admittedly, they would have to 'leave' their wheels in the route. Theirs is the story, we think.

In the older days the game was a lower affair—both the accent on individual style and method. Today the fans are treated to 60-minutes of 'all out' hockey, played by men, continually fresh, aided by measured rules and systems. If hockey is slipping, it can't be through lack of colour. The answer may possibly lie with the 'Old Guard' that's an eternity—when suspense is what is for sale.

Eligible Bachelors!



In case some of our female readers were would care to know, there is still a big single men in the National Hockey League. The fact that Leo Lamoureux and Lou Jankowski of the Oshawa Generals, two outstanding juvenile players now outnumber the bachelors as overwhelming extent may possibly help to explain the present tendency to mayhem current in the N.H.L.

Although we have not always seen eye to eye with referee Red Storey on the statistical side of the bouts, it cannot be denied that the boys have easily held their own. No doubt familiar faces in the stands, plus there are more married men playing professional hockey than single may have a bearing on the declining attendance. Others cite the lure of the 'big city' as responsible for interfering 'third-parties'. For what it's worth we gladly pass the following observation long to Referee Bill Chadwick, Hugh McLean, Red Storey, etc.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The number of different bridge hands will run into astronomical figures, A few of these swing outside the circle of the simple rules. The full contract will, as a rule, be reached only by guess. Such a one is the deal from a recent tournament. You see it here:

WEST EAST

South reached a contract of seven, no-trump. He got there with a couple of terrible bids. What should have happened to him is something he hasn't encountered a long time. But he didn't.

Opponents have two kings, three queens, all the jacks and tens. Among them they should be a trick or more at a no-trump contract. So, only blind barges could have put it in a grand slam.

East doubled the grand slam in no-trump. But the 13 tricks were taken with comparative ease. In this case, it mattered not what opening lead was made. But I am told that west led a heart.

Two clubs in the hand of each opponent was the reason the grand slam made. This and the fact that declarer was able to find and execute a double squeeze against both west and east. So, see how this came about after the west opening lead of a heart.

South copped this with the ace and cashed three top spades. On these dummy shuffled a heart and a diamond. South then cashed his club ace and took a second club round with dummy king.

Each opponent followed suit in clubs for both rounds. This made all the dummy clubs good. Dummy led thfee of these clubs on which the south hand stuffed two hearts and a diamond.

South now had two spades and the diamond ace and five. West had two cards each in the suit. East had a good spade, a good heart, and king and queen of diamonds. Dummy had two clubs, one diamond, and one heart.

Dummy led a club. South stuffed a spade. Opponents must throw it card. Then dummy leads another club and squeezes declarer. Ouch!

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 20 — (AP) — The two hottest names in the movie business today are Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis. I binged a lunch with them to find out why.

I do mean binged. It is well known that the two zanies will do anything for a laugh. I wasn't surprised when they retired my bowtie, stole slips of my tuxedo juice and handed out a variety of results.

Their boss, producer Hal Wallis, seemed fairly tolerant as Jerry called him "Mr. Waylies" and gave him a mock shave with a table knife. I'm not sure whether Paramount boss Y. Frank Freeman was amused when Jerry asked, "Are you going to wash my car?" or when he said to Freeman, "How come you never talked to me before 'At War with the Army'?"

The latter film is what has made Martin and Lewis hotter than an arc lamp. A comic trifle turned out for $355,000, it is expected to bring in more than $4,000,000. Many observers have offered explanations for this phenomenon and so I asked the boys for theirs.

"I think it boils down to one thing — people want to laugh," answered Jerry, the skinny, crew-cut member of the team.

Someone else offered an explanation given by a veteran movie man:

Something Unique

"This is something unique in movie teams. You not only have a comic, who is funny and has a boyish quality, but you also have a straight man who can sing and has a demand appeal."

This was before Dean arrived for lunch and Jerry had some glowing praise for his partner. "Dean is more than a straight man," he said. "He also has a great sense of comedy. In some of our routines, he gets at least half the laughs. Sometimes in night clubs we switch the act entirely and he does my lines and I do his."

Dean arrived and offered a similar explanation for his film's success, adding: "There are other reasons why the pictures have done so well. It's hard. And it has the funniest man in the world — Jerry Lewis."

His remarks carried out what Jerry and I had been discussing before. I considered that every film team had broken up at some time or other.

"Not this one," Jerry replied. "We respect each other too well. For my part, Dean is one of the finest guys I've ever met."

Gypsy Charged With Murder After Stabbing

Toronto, Feb. 20 — (CP) — A gypsy was charged with tht fatal stabbing of his nephew last night following the death of Lawrence Marcovitch, 20, in hospital.

Police said Archie Marcovitch, his mother, Mrs. Katherine Marcovitch, and the nephew had moved into a downtown store recently and opened a palmistry business.

Hyman Adelman, a neighbor, told police he had seen the woman and the older man fighting on the sidewalk and that she kept screaming for someone to call the police. Police found the youth stabbed in the chest and removed him to hospital where he died soon afterward. Mrs. Marcovitch was treated for shock.

PULLED OUT OF WATER

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 19 — (CP) — Billy Speck, eight, was pulled out of 40 feet of water in Chippawa Creek yesterday by 10-year-old William Pigden after shore ice over which he had been walking gave way.

Speck clung to a shelf of ice for several minutes until the Pigden boy reached him and hauled him to safety.

FRANKFORD

Lions, Legion Battle To Tie In Overtime

Frankford — The Frankford Arena was the scene of one of the most outstanding sports events of this village Friday evening, as the Lions and the Legion battled to a 2-all draw, playing one period of overtime. Halfway through the first period, the Vets drew first blood as someone banged in a loose puck from a scramble. Six players, including the Legion goalie claim that they got the goal, and as soon as they have stopped the battle over it, we'll try to establish who actually did score it. Dick McFarland got the first scored goal in the first period on a breakaway with Mac-Mackie-Hollens.

In the second period, Cannon—...il Carlisle bulged the twine for the Lions, bounding a real shot off Wildcat Wallace's shin. A couple of minutes later, the second Lion goal was scored, and to date, the actual goal-getter has not yet been established for this one.

There was no scoring in the final frame, or in the period of overtime. The overtime period was out short, as things sort of got out of hand, in that at one time there were 38 players and three pucks on the ice at one time.

Following the game, the two teams went up to the Legion ...ll for lunch. It was quite a success affair, bringing in a fair distribution to the Legion Building fund. This was made possible through the co-operation and generosity of the Frankford Lions Club.

The Frankford Boy Scouts held their weekly meeting in the Community Hall Friday evening with a good turnout. Instruction and recreation were enjoyed. The meeting was closed early in order that the Scouts could attend t' hockey game.

Sheet Metals Win Electrics Hockey Title

Sheet Metals of the Northern Electric Interdepartmental Hockey League are the 1950-51 champions of the loop and the winners of the Shop Management Trophy, emblematic of the title.

The new champions donned their mantle last night in Memorial Arena, when they turned back the other finalists the Water Street squad in a 7-4 defeat for their second straight victory.

The new champions overcame a three-goal second-period lead when the Streeters piled up a 4-1 count. Shooting back with a third-six-goal splurge the Metals put the game and the title away with not a return from the losers.

Bush was the trigger man for the Metals with three goals and an assist. Rosetti scored once and got three helpers with Woods, Draycott and Salter getting the remaining counters. Cutler Noakes nabbed a pair of goals for the Streeters with Moore scoring the other brace.

Referees — Mouse Bush; Ron Haw.

FROST

Mr. Foote, Victoria Cross winner at Dieppe and former vice-chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, was the third cabinet member to follow Premier Frost with a report to the legislature during its Throne Speech debate.

Liquor Control

The former army padre defended the government's liquor control policies and criticized those who demanded temperance legislation.

Alcoholics needed medical attention and scientific research into their problems, Mr. Foote said. For drinkers who are not alcoholics, the minister proposed an educational program, stricter traffic laws to penalize drunk motorists and scientific tests for suspended drunk drivers.

Temperance laws, however, should not be passed for any area without the agreement of a substantial majority.

The Liquor Licence Board's policy in allowing new licences for liquor outlets was "mighty tough." Of 913 applications since May, 1949, 698 were rejected and only 86 new licences were granted to private individuals. The remainder went to those who already had licence, or to clubs and non-profit organizations.

"In view of what we have done, I don't see why we should be subjected to such violent criticism," Mr. Foote said.

Mr. Bennison called for a government hospitalization plan, and proposed the C. C. F. plan in Saskatchewan as a model. He decided it would cost more, and said the individual cost in great Britain was only one-third of the average annual outlay for hospitalization by United States citizens.

Hospital Construction

Mr. Bennison also called for triple grants by federal and provincial governments to increase new hospital construction, and suggested new dental colleges in Hamilton and Ottawa.

Medical, dental and nursing staffs, he said, were inadequate and the situation would be worse in the event of enemy air attacks on Ontario cities.

Premier Frost said Ontario had only a minor objection to the proposed constitutional amendment giving the federal government powers to institute the universal pension plan.

There was a danger that the amendment as now proposed would give away all the province's rights to pass pension legislation the premier said. He said he felt sure that that was not the intention of the Federal government.

"Both parliaments should have jurisdiction to deal with the matter," Premier Frost said. However, unless the legislature gave his government blanket legislation to conclude an agreement, Ontario's legislation would have to wait "until we know what the federal government is trying to do.

The premier suggested that the wording of the constitutional amendment could provide both federal and provincial governments with power to make pension laws, providing that no federal law would interfere with the operation of provincial laws.

The suggestion, he said, was "in no way dogmatic."

The amendment was necessary if Ottawa considered raising a pension fund by contributions. It would not be necessary if the pension were to be paid now, the premier told reporters.

Foresees No Opposition

Mr. Frost said he expected no serious opposition by any of the provinces to an amendment to Canada's constitution — the British North America Act.

The premier said there was no problem about the second part of the pensions plan — payment of pensions with a means test to persons between 65 and 69, to be financed in partnership by federal and provincial governments.

No constitutional amendment to transfer provincial pensions powers to the federal government would be needed for this, because Ottawa already had the power under the present pension plan.

The premier suggested the amendment protecting provincial pension rights could be worded to give both the dominion and the provinces power to make pension laws, providing that no federal law would interfere with the operation of provincial laws.

Mr. Foote said researchers were seeking a cure for alcoholism, and once the cure was found treatment would be given in provincial clinics, said the former vice-chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board.

FLU SAID [illegible]E

Individual reports, however, indicate that the number of victims in Canada must be in the hundreds of thousands.

Toronto, for instance, had 140,000 cases, at latest reports. The figure of one in eight for the province's school and working population would mean something like 500,000.

In the area around Kelowna, B.C., 20,000 persons are reported ill with flu. In Manitoba nine deaths have thus far been attributed to the disease and there have been another 12 in Ontario.

Sydney Mines, N.S., more than 900 pupils have been absent from the classes as a result the schools have been ordered closed. Saint John, N.B., reported 1,500 students away. Two hospitals in St. John's, Nfld., have been closed to visitors and one school there has closed four of its classrooms.

The epidemic is reported easing off in many centres, including Montreal.

FEDERAL AID

In the education debate, Mr. Knight, a school teacher, said that for the third session he was asking for federal aid to education. Universities were in need for help, but assistance was needed particularly by public and high schools.

Money was needed for both teachers and facilities. It was a sad commentary on the situation that less than half enough people to meet future needs now were training as teachers.

Gov't Should Help

There was only one source of real help—the government. The government should help to make the same learning facilities available from coast to coast.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) said provinces and municipalities cannot afford the present heavy burdens of education. Federal aid could be given without trespassing on the rights of the provinces.

F. D. Shaw (SC-Red Deer), a former school teacher, said there were various ways the government could help the provinces. It could borrow at a low rate of interest set up a fund from which the provinces and municipalities could provide grants and it could terest. The government could remove taxes that bear heavily on school boards.

David Croll (L-Toronto Spadina) and Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L-Portneuf) said they favored federal aid providing there was no interference with provincial rights over education.

Mr. Murray said he was opposed to the resolution, but felt the government could extend some help, particularly in technical education. The government could encourage mining schools at universities by grants to find strategic minerals. Mr. Harris said he agreed with Mr. Murray.

Mr. Harris said that under the constitution parliament has no control over education. It would have no control over any grants made to education. He was opposed to parliament making grants over which it had no control.

Other speakers called for establishment of national scholarships for needy, worthy students and argued that the federal government could assist education since it subsidized gold mining and the coal and steel industries.

Two Babies Born By Flashlight After Explosion

Montreal, Feb. 20—(CP)—Two babies were delivered by flashlight in hospital early today after a six-inch gas main exploded, cutting off all gas and electrical services in suburban Westmount, and threatening nearby homes with fire.

Flames leaped as high as 50 feet from a crater in the road at the busy intersection of Atwater and Dorchester Streets in west-end Montreal, a stone's throw from the Montreal Forum.

The explosion occurred when construction workers were laying a 48-inch water-pipe. The gas pipe suddenly collapsed and a steam shovel was put to work clearing away the debris. It was not known immediately whether a spark from the shovel set off the blast or if it was caused by the cave-in.

The district was immediately blacked out by power failure. Power cables laid under the street were cut off by the blast.

No injuries were reported as a result of the explosion and fire.

While firemen battled the resulting fire from the blast the two babies were born at Herbert Reddy Hospital. Nurses and internes held flashlights while the infants were delivered.

Cyril Maude Famous Actor, Dies of Flu

Torquay, England, Feb. 20 (CP) — Syril Maude, 58, actor-manager who achieved fame on both the British and American stage, died of influenza at his home here today.

Famous for such comedy parts as the title role in "Grumpy" which he played 1,300 times, Maude formerly managed the Haymarket and the Playhouse, two of London's best-known theatres.

Born in England, Maude went to Canada as a young man because of his health but soon forsook an outdoor life for the stage.

He appeared in more than 100 plays and movies, and made several tours of Canada and the United States.

Maude was twice married, and had a son and two daughters. The son, John Maude, is a well-known London lawyer and Conservative Member of Parliament for Exeter.

Canada's Boxcar Shortage Eased Within Week

Ottawa, Feb. 20—(CP)—Transport department officials said last night Canada's boxcar shortage should be relieved within a week by an order speeding the return of Canadian-owned cars from the United States.

Under the order from the Association of American Railroads, announced in the Commons by Transport Minister Chevrier, empty Canadian boxcars on U.S. railroads will be returned to Canada without loading, starting tomorrow.

At Montreal, railway spokesmen said the order is effective in the eastern and Allegheny districts of the U.S.)

This will free cars being held up for loading and start them flowing back to Canada to ease a shortage that has hit particularly hard at newsprint producers, some of which had suggested they might have to close temporarily unless the situation was improved.

Mr. Chevrier told the Commons the annual shortage problem at this time of year had been aggravated by the U.S. strike of railway switchmen settled about 10 days ago, which had kept Canadian cars tied up in the United States.

"There will mean quite a loss in revenue traffic," he said, "but that is the extent to which our Canadian railways are prepared to cooperate in order to meet the requirements of Canadian shippers . . . no stone has been left unturned by their managements to ease the present shortage."

FALL PROVES FATAL

Toronto, Feb. 20 — (CP) John Reid, 24, died in hospital last night after falling three storeys from a scaffold on a building under construction. Reid, who slipped on wet flooring, suffered a fractured skull and broken ribs.

Little Benny's Note Book

I had a fierce argument with Shorty Judge almost ending in a fite, and we ran out of arguments and started to call each other names, Shorty saying, Aw, there's no use talking to a squashed tomato, and that's what you are.

Well if you want to know what you are, you're a chewed up pencil stump, I said.

Being a insult about his short size, and he said, Thanks for the compliment, a chewed up pencil stump is a darn useful thing.

You meen it's a darn useless thing, you cant even sharpen it any more, I said, and Shorty said, That's just what makes it so darn useful. Most pencil stumps get so short you have to throw them away with a good eraser still on the end of them, but a chewed up stump stays just long enough to use the eraser with, and an eraser is the most useful part of a pencil, unless you never make any mistakes to rub out, and everybody makes mistakes, especially a squashed tomato like you, he said.

Oh boy, thanks, that's a real compliment, a squashed tomato is the best kind to make ketchup out of, I said. I'm mutch obliged for the compliment, thanks. A tomato thinks it's in heaven when it terns into ketchup. And if you dont feel like making ketchup out of it, it's a perfect ideal thing to throw at a chewed up pencil like you, I said.

Okay, just throw one at me and you'll end up in the hospitle with a trained nurse, Shorty said, and I said, If I do, you'll be in the next bed, but there'll be a big difference between us, because I'll still be breething and you wont.

Being the best answer yet, which just then 2 fire engines went passed and changed the subject before Shorty had time to think of a better one.

WHY WE SAY By Bob Morgan Pete Hoffman

"To slip out of a cage."
The word, escape, stored in Rome as a means of explaining how lowbrederers eluded authorities when being caught. They merely slipped out of their copes when caught that way, giving us the Latin "ex coppe" (out of cope) and the present word escape.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

It now seemed years since that other morning when Angus Kent had come to warn Lisa and her father. Thinking of Angus again, bringing him out to the front of her mind where she had tried to ban him unsuccessfully, stirred her restlessness.

She dressed, trying to force back an unreasonable panic, an urgency she didn't understand, and went downstairs to make herself a cup of coffee. Perhaps something hot would drown her apprehension, but Lisa had the same sensation she had had that afternoon on the Elm Road, watching the Grenable house, just before everything happened.

Martha was just coming down the back stairway to start breakfast when the doorbell rang. Lisa put down her cup with a little click.

"I'll go," she said quickly. Even then she sensed something was wrong.

She opened the door. In the misty outside she saw a police car. Then she decided the mist was playing tricks on her eyes, or that she still was dreaming, but when the man in the doorway actually stepped in out of the fog she knew he was real and she began to cry.

"Angus! Oh, darling!"

She felt foolish, brushing the quick tears of relief and joy from her eyes and when Angus Kent put out his arms, she went into them.

It was like going home after a long, long journey to hear a dear music after discord; like safety following danger. And then Lisa felt the tension in him and she looked up. The fear came back to Lisa again, but it was a different kind of fear — fear shared with Angus.

"I know what you must have thought when I left like that," he said hurriedly. "But, Lisa, I had to do it that way. I'll explain everything later, but there isn't time now. We must find Andrew Grenable quickly."

Lisa gave Martha the message that she and Angus were going over to the Grenable place and they would call Lisa's father later.

Then Lisa threw on her coat and with Angus at her side, hurried through the drizzle to the police car waiting in the drive.

"How did you know Andy was gone?" she asked, when they were in the car and Sheriff Lane was headed toward the road.

"I was in Chicago on an errand for Sheriff Lane," Angus explained. "We checked on the long distance calls from the Grenable place and found several that were interesting. I was coming back this morning, but Sheriff Lane called me at midnight and told me about Andrew's disappearance, so I came back—fast."

There was an undeniable grimness to Angus' face.

Lane put in: "We've raked every tavern on the North Shore and western suburbs and now we're concentrating around the Grenable house itself."

"But surely he wouldn't dare go near," protested Lisa.

The sheriff started to say something, and then threw Angus a strange look.

Angus said: "We have to find him."

Lisa perceived the weariness in Angus's thin face, saw the shadow under his eyes, and, above all, the troubled expression in them as he looked at her.

Angus left suddenly, without explanation, because he had to do it that way. Why was it necessary? Was it because he knew that his mission had to do with Court? Lisa knew it had.

The fog swirled through the ravines and little stars of light glimmered in the wooded section of the drive as they approached the Grenable house from the back road near the Ellsworth place. The lights were those of cars and searchers near the coach house.

The sheriff circled the ridge and came out at the bend in the driveway and the lights inside the Grenable house flooded out into the mist and were lost in the fading gray white. The house, so tall and quiet and ghostly, looked unreal in the fog-shrouded trees. They like silent spirits watching through the grayness.

The Grenable house was very still when Lisa, Angus and the sheriff went inside. The confusion of people and searchlights became a part of the fog once more.

Sheriff Lane exchanged a few words with one of his deputies and then motioned Angus and Lisa. "Kent here thinks we might search inside the house first," the sheriff said.

The deputy sheriff looked as surprised as Lisa felt.

"Why would Andy hide here?" he exclaimed.

The sheriff shrugged. Angus looked at her strangely, while he put his hand into his pocket and pulled out a slip of paper, which he handed to Sheriff Lane. Then Angus went to the front stairway and started up, two steps at a time.

Lisa found herself following him with the sheriff and deputy hung by a hideous fear. Andrew might be armed. He mighty try to shoot his way out. But if he had wanted to escape from the sheriff, why would Angus think Andrew Grenable would hide within the house, or anywhere near it?"

Without apology to Sheriff, Angus Kent opened the door at the end of the hall, and switched on a ceiling light. Lisa Farwell, who was close at his heels, saw him race across the room to the bed near the window.

The figure lay there very still, and before Angus called out for Sheriff Lane to shut the door and to keep Lisa out of the room at the sight of everything, Lisa knew what was wrong as certainly as anyone before the sheriff called for the doctor.

She knew before Angus returned to her in the corridor and said savagely: "He's dead. Dead."

Angus started to close the door to the bedroom, but looking back his gaze fastened on something near the bed. Lisa saw that it was an empty box on the table by the bed—the box had contained sleeping pills.

"Isn't it better this way, Angus?" Lisa asked timidly. "Suicide surely is better than a murder trial?"

Angus Kent's voice was flat as he replied while they were going back down the stairs.

"Splendid if it wasn't suicide, Lisa Andrew Grenable was murdered."

It was still early when the confusion following the discovery of Andrew/Grenable's body had abated. The fog lay heavily across the terraces and choked the ravines like thick white smoke. A drizzle of rain clung to the long French windows in Grenable's Grenable's den and all of the dismalness was reflected in the heavy mirrors on the opposite wall until the room seemed to be part of the outdoors and unreal and frightening.

Lisa Farwell sat with her back to the windows, facing the mirrored wall, while members of the Grenable household filed into the room on orders from Sheriff Lane.

The sheriff's face was dispassionate. Lisa supposed he was accustomed to things like this. But Angus Kent wasn't. He sat beside Lisa. Angus hunched forward a little in his chair and his eyes were remote and somber.

When Angus had first sat down he had looked at Lisa and said: "This isn't to be nice dear." That was all.

And now, something still and unyielding within her struggled with shock and as yet she couldn't feel much of any emotion. Fear, sadness and doubt had merged into a kind of numbness. She could only see the sickness in Angus' eyes and the lines of weariness dug deeply around his firm mouth and under his eyes.

Sheriff Lane came directly to the point.

"This won't take long," he said slowly. "As you all know, when we found after Mrs. Grenable's death pointed to each of you. Most of you stood to gain by her death—either financially or emotionally.

"At first my men and myself believed the diary to be the connecting link. But apparently the diary was not feared by the murderer—otherwise it would have been destroyed. So we went to work an another theory, one suggested by Mr. Kent, that because everyone knew of Mrs. Grenable's diary, none of them would risk its revelations without reading its contents.

"Therefore, the person least afraid of the diary is likely to be the murderer."

The sheriff paused and looked from face to face. Angus Kent still sat tensely in the chair, with Lisa beside him. Court Grenable stood nearby. Geri Palmer sat in a far corner of the room. She was huddled against the tiles. Elizabeth Stratton, Lavinia Grenable's sister sat nearby, pale and frightened looking. Mr. and Mr. Caron had lost all pretense of poise.

"Besides," the sheriff went on, "that narrowed the field considerably. You'll remember we had set a field to begin with. Everyone in or near this house could be suspected. That included Court Grenable and his brother Andrew, Mr. and Mrs. Carson, Miss Palmer, Mr. Farwell and his daughter Lisa, Geri Palmer and Mr. Kent.

"Besides the murderer must have hoped that Elizabeth Stratton would be the chief suspect, but the evidence that her sister Lavinia planned to commit her to an institution, and since my men were working on the opposite theory, that anyone mentioned in the diary was not guilty we therefore eliminated Mr. Farwell on the grounds that his name was concerned Miss Stratton's safety.

Mackenzie's Column:

Not Holding Olive Branch To Democracies

DEVITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The full significance of Prime Minister Stalin's foreign policy statement remains obscure, but the constant assertion by Soviet spokesmen is that the real leader isn't holding out an olive branch to the democracies.

That is to say, his pronouncement is propaganda calculated to bolster the communist cause. About the only point of agreement between statesmen filled with Stalin in his statement that war is not yet inevitable.

Of course Stalin were turning to peace suddenly, after having waged world revolution unceasingly for more than a generation, it would be about the biggest back-drop of history. So we can cross off any idea that there has been any change in Moscow's policy of controlling the ideological war to the bitter end.

Similarly speculation has produced numerous ideas of what Stalin may have in mind. One that is being discussed in American big business circles is that the Prime Minister, by suggesting no new schemes, may be trying to produce an economic depression in the United States here the economy now is based heavily on defensive rearmament. The rearmament program, for instance, helps the stock market to maintain a high peak. Abandonment of rearmament would cause a serious dislocation.

The sending of economic depression in non-communist countries, in order to soften them up for red conquest, is one of Moscow's favorite tactics and one of her most devastating weapons.

Has Own "U.N."

Stalin's assertion, that the United Nations is shooting itself to disintegration, with America leading it to war, also has attracted considerable speculation. Some observers figure that he may be preparing to withdraw Russia and her satellites from the peace organization. He already has his own "united nations" in the Soviet bloc.

Obvious backing for red China was conveyed in Stalin's blunt statement that Washington and London must accept Peiping's terms for a Far Eastern settlement if American forces escape defeat in Korea.

There isn't much obscurity, later, in the premier's charge that the British government is in favor of unleashing an aggressive war in concert with the United States. He undoubtedly is trying to scare Prime Minister Attlee. On this point the Manchester Guardian says:

"The whole abuse of Mr. Attlee is the surest way of binding this country together and of giving strength and purpose to the rearmament drive."

This Guardian appraisal might, it seems to me, be applied equally to the democracies as a whole. Sabre rattling by Moscow may be unpleasant to listen to, but it doesn't frighten the major western powers.

However, it might be true that sabre rattling would keep in line some red satellite states which are beginning to lean towards "Titoism," the modified communism which refuses to place the sovereignty of the state in Russian hands. This likely was in Stalin's mind.

American Needs May Rush OK Of Power Scheme

Washington, Feb. 20 — (CP) — The half - century - old wrangle over a gigantic scheme to take the St. Lawrence River an international source of power and transportation comes before a Congressional committee today.

Its prospects of being approved look better than at any time since it was first proposed in 1897.

The growing need of the United States for new steel sources, the demands of the huge American defence program, and New York State's search for more hydro-electric power have combined to bring the $1,000,000,000 project support from legislative leaders who once laughed it off as a pipe dream.

Canada Approves

Canada has consistently approved the scheme, which would deepen the river to open the Great Lakes to ocean-going shipping and provide power for both countries. But it kept getting lost in the U. S. legislative maze.

It was thrown out by U. S. legislators in 1941 — the only time it got far enough to require a vote.

But today, things are different.

American steel supplies from the Mesabi ranges are dwindling. Hydro-power fields in Labrador lie close and inviting. But economical shipments from there and Argentina to the big mills require a sea route.

New York State has plumped for the measure. It wanted to develop 'the power phase in co-operation with Ontario, but the Federal Power Administration ruled the project must be developed by federal authorities, with both phases developing at once.

President Truman went to bat, saying the seaway is urgently needed for defence. Charles E. Wilson, director of defence mobilization, backed him up.

Bills favoring the seaway have been introduced in both the House and the Senate.

Main opponents are the coal industry, the railroads and some utilities. Some legislators contend the initial cost will be only one-third of the final bill; others charge it will bring economic distortion through diversion of materials and labor.

BRITISH-MADE JET SETS NEW SPEED RECORD

Sweeping Powers To Apply Controls Planned by Govt.

Will Use New Authority As Conditions Warrant

Ottawa, Feb. 21 (CP) — Wide-ranging control powers, digging into most phases of Canadian life are bought by the federal government in new "emergency" legislation.

The legislation, placed before the Commons late last night, would give the cabinet authority to regulate the entire economy in time of any sphere until May 31, 1953.

That authority would be subject to parliamentary veto on each measure launched by the government, which holds overwhelming majorities in both the Commons and Senate.

On Stand-by Basis

The sweeping powers, which government has announced it plans to use on a stand-by basis, have it general authorization to apply controls on wages, prices, rents, exports, imports, production, manufacture and most other matters relating to the general welfare of Canada.

It also would empower the cabinet, Prime Minister St. Laurent said, to recapture the rent-control field which it is due to vacate April 30 and to undertake national registration.

However, the Prime Minister indicated earlier that the government still is committed to letting rent control go to the provinces April 30.

The Prime Minister introduced the controls bill, spelling out the proposed new powers, after the Commons had endorsed a general preliminary resolution setting out the view that the government should have controls power for the "security, defence, peace, order and welfare" of the country.

Emergency

However, the three opposition parties declared that the government, instead of relying mainly on 'as if-and-when-needed basis, should put anti-inflation controls into effect immediately.

Mr. St. Laurent, only government spokesman in the whole debate, emphasized that the government intends to use proposed new authority only as conditions warrant from time to time.

Speeding into effect with the emergency bill would confer on the government include control over communications, harbors, interprovincial waters and all forms of transport. Presumably it would include highway traffic, now under provincial jurisdiction.

The government would have "control and suppression" of songs, plays and photographs — possibly an anti-espionage measure — but would be given ownership of "publications and writings."

Nor would the cabinet be given any additional powers to detain or deport any person. It would not have authority, either, to spend money without parliamentary sanction.

Before introducing the bill, and while the House was still discussing the general principle of the preliminary resolution, Mr. St. Laurent said it is impossible to say now which of the new powers might be used, or when and how they might be employed. It was hoped not many would be exercised.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 21 (CP) Synopsis: The mild spell is continuing over most of Ontario with prospects for little change in temperature for Thursday.

The atmospheric whirlpool which yesterday centred over Lake Ontario and Missouri is today moving south of the Great Lakes and is expected to head for the Gulf.

Rain and fresh winds from the storm centre are affecting extreme southern portions of the province but should end this afternoon.

In northern portions the leading edge of a colder air mass is expected to become nearly stationary through southern Kirkland Lake area.

Sun Shines Again In London After Record Rain Spell

London, Feb. 21 (Reuters) — The sun peeped out over London today to break a rainy spell which beat all records.

Workers tarked in their shirt sleeves, umbrellas were left at home for the first time for a week, and spring seemed on its way.

But not far from the sunny capital rain was still falling in the Thames Valley, with the river two inches up in places. Flood waters built up over a week were still flowing over 10 counties.

Rainfall so far this month—4.43 inches against a normal average of 1.54 inches—has broken all known records for 100 years. The previous record was 4.13 inches recorded in 1879.

In the north today there was a sudden spate of snow, and icecrusted roads held up traffic in Scotland.

Writ is Issued By Coach Lines Over Accident

Sudbury, Feb. 21—(CP)—Nickel Belt Coach Lines, Sudbury bus line, is named a writ against the C.P.R. in a claim for an unstated amount in property damages arising from the Feb. 9 accident in which the company's bus was struck by a C.P.R. passenger train. Nine persons were killed and 30 others, all aboard the bus, injured.

The writ was filed specifically against the C.P.R. and two employees, F. Dowdall, engineer on the passenger train, and W. Zabavlick, fireman, both of North Bay.

According to documents filed in connection with the writ, the suit is for "damages for negligence of the defendants in the operation of a railway train at Coniston, Ont., on Feb. 9, 1951."

The bus company, which provides a daily run between Sudbury and Timmins, is a charge of manslaughter in connection with the mishap, has stated that it attaches no blame to the driver and believes he took all precautions in crossing the railway tracks. Carriere will appear in court April 17.

A. R. Everts, C.P.R. superintendent at Sudbury, previously announced that the railway is satisfied that all safety regulations were observed by the train crew.

Tears Froze on Officer's Face in Korea As He Prayed for Little Girl's Sight

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 21 (AP) — Little Carolyn Purcell's escape from blindness is described as a "miracle" half way around the world, on a frozen battlefield of Korea.

A battle-hardened officer wrote of experiencing the "miracle" as he prayed for Carolyn, and "the tears froze on my face."

His letter was delivered yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Purcell, who once feared their five-year-old daughter might lose her sight or life from cancer. A later diagnosis, however, was inflammation of the eye, and Carolyn now is recovering.

The letter to the Purcells was signed Lieut. John F. Phillips. It told how he read the story of Carolyn's affliction in a magazine and it "stopped me cold."

"It was unbearable, even to think of it," the letter continued. "And for the first time since I left my home in Korea I started praying."

"Even as the tears froze on my face a soldier handed me a late issue of 'Stars and Stripes.'

"The first headline I saw was 'Doomed Child Found to be Free of Cancer.'

"I want you to know that, far away . . . an American soldier rejoiced with you and little Carolyn."

ALLIED TROOPS WHIPLASH FLEEING REDS;

United Nations Forces In General Advance

In the east central front, United Nations troops thrust forward against light opposition.

On the west central front, advance patrols were moving ahead north of Chipyong, where a French-American force last week smashed a massive red counter-attack.

Scattered in an arc north of the Wonju salient are 40,000 communist troops who had pulled back from the attack to link their wounds.

U. S. Fifth air force planes roared out again Wednesday in support of ground troops.

"Mo" in Action

Big naval guns rocked both sides of Korea.

The battleship Missouri bombarded Songjin harbor, on the northeastern K'ea ast day Tuesday. Other allied naval forces ranged their guns on targets around Wonsan on the Sea of Japan coast for the seventh straight day.

In their first big lunge since Gen. MacArthur ordered his troops to assume the initiative, allied troops swept northward 10 miles and captured Chunchon town.

Chunchon is 10 miles north of Uiechon, objective of a big communist slash, a few days ago on the east central-front. The area lies in the Iron Triangle's land.

Reds Pulling Back

The U.S. Eighth Army communique Wednesday said the Chinese had encountered light enemy troops in the northward thrust.

Field dispatches said the reds were pulling back so fast that they left behind equipment and their dead in the snow.

A U.S. Army spokesman said there was evidence of a hasty enemy retreat on the central front.

The last heavy communist resistance was met late Tuesday northeast of Chechon, a road hub 30 miles southeast of Wonju.

On the west central front, Chinese troops were reported north of Kyongan in an area 10 miles east of Seoul. Two allied patrols had run into clashes as they crossed the Han Tuesday night by rowboat back to the Seoul motor and automatic weapons fire. They crossed the river five and 10 miles east of wrecked Seoul.

Low clouds and rain failed to slow the Far East air force 29-hour Superforts hit rail and highway targets along the Korean east coast. The Okinawa-based Superforts dropped 140 tons of bombs on Hamhung.

St. Lawrence Seaway Project Power and Navigation Scheme Says Can. Transport Minister

Ottawa, Feb. 21 (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier today said the St. Lawrence Seaway project must be a combined power and navigation scheme.

Canada will not agree to splitting up the undertaking into separate power and navigation undertakings, he indicated in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club.

"Let there be no mistake about it," he said, "it is a power and navigation scheme, not a power scheme alone as some interests would seem to indicate."

The minister said the existing Canada-United States agreement of 1941, with some technical modifications if necessary, would be best for both parties to the huge project to deepen the lake-river waterway and produce some 2,200,000 horsepower of electricity. It had been arrived at after years of careful study.

Approved by Canada

Already approved by the Canadian parliament, the project now awaits approval before the U.S. Congress. It has been endorsed by President Truman and other administration spokesmen.

Mr. Chevrier said the latest estimate of the total cost of the seaway—including development of 2,200,000 horsepower in the International rapids section—is $206,000,000.

Of this, $238,000,000 would be Canada's share. She already had spent $132,000,000 in completing the Welland ship canal in 1932, so the actual cost to Canada for the remainder of the project would be $106,000,000, that would include any contemplated improvements in the Lachine section.

(Mr. Chevrier's figures compared with estimates given in Washington Tuesday where a Congressional committee is holding hearings on a seaway bill. Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer put the cost at $1,000,000,000 and said it would be split 50-50 with Canada.)

Project Necessary

The minister said the project is necessary from the standpoints of navigation, electrical power and defence.

It would remove a bottleneck to let deep-sea vessels ply between the Lakehead and the Atlantic. It would permit full development of Labrador's iron-ore resources, needed by U.S. industry in the interim.

For power, the international section was the remaining large block of power from the Niagara River, Mr. Chevrier said. Ontario and other Canadian provinces

McMaster Male Quartet Holds Weekend Services

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church enjoyed the ministry of the McMaster male quartet over the weekend, which quartet is an object lesson in the unifying power of the gospel, in that it is composed of four different races—Wilfred Sheffield, B.A., of Collingwood, is a member of the Negro race; Yoshiharu Nishi, of Kenora, is Japanese; while Robert Pouzer, of Vancouver, is of French extraction, and Robert Yonke, of Kitchener, is of German. Each is a loyal and true Canadian, and one in Christ Jesus, united in purpose in serving Him. Each is a student for the Baptist ministry, studying at McMaster University, Hamilton.

Their ministry began on Saturday evening, when Robert, or "Tommy" each gave his testimony to what Christ means to them. The quartet sang several numbers. After the service, about 60 enjoyed an hour of informal fellowship in the school room, where the ladies of the local B.Y.P.U. served dainty refreshments.

Sunday was a happy day. After being welcomed by the pastor, the Rev. H. O. Mowbray, the boys took full charge of the services. The morning service was broadcast over CJBQ, Tommy in charge. Wilfred Sheffield brought the message of the morning. The ministry of song consisted of both quartet numbers and solos.

Another feature of interest was the presence of Bruce Neal and Victor Hahn who shared with their classmates in the service of the evening.

These weekend services will long linger in the memory of those who had been privileged to hear them.

Two Charged With Assault Of Young Girl

Trenton (Special) — Two men were picked up here by town police last night and charged in court this morning with assault with intent to rob after a young girl was clubbed over the head. Evelyn Donnelly, Bell Telephone operator, was struck on the back of the head by two assailants Tuesday night about 9.45 as she was walking west on Dundas Street W.

Miss Donnelly was stunned by the blow, screamed, but was not knocked out. She rushed into her home, only a few feet away, and told her story to her brother Patrick, who called police. Half an hour later, Constable Greenville Carley and Donnelly picked up Gilles Lafrenchie, 17, and Jean Claude Quevillon,— 18, both of Montreal.

They were subsequently charged with assault and intent. The trial opened in Police Court in Montreal only one week ago, and were immediately postponed. Police Magistrate Ernest Cousineau said this morning that they had not as yet received sixty training, and had not been issued with uniforms.

Police Find Club

Police found a wooden club two feet, seven and 17 inches long at the scene of the assault, and the girl identified it. Police took place at the corner of Dufferin and Dundas Streets, in a residential section.

When police were notified of the attack the girl was bruised, they called out extra officers and alerted the whole force. Then they patrolled the area in four cars, and picked up the pair in the downtown section. Police had a radio cruiser only two blocks from the scene when the girl called in a number of times, but could find no trace of the assailants. They found the club, however.

Police said this morning that the men were remanded to Monday for trial on Monday, February 27. During Tuesday night's investigation, a French translator had to be used.

Something New in Comedy

"Have you heard about Charlie's Company? inquired Townsend. "Well, it's a new idea that he started chuckling to himself." "Why don't you tell me, let me in on the joke, let me in on it too," I said. "Well, I can tell you that Charlie Delong, Bill Wesley, Doug Earle, Bruce Gerrish and Bill Davis have teamed up and have formed quite a side-splitting treat for everyone. I've heard it rumored that some big Hollywood producer is thinking of signing this comedy quintet up—but don't worry, he won't get a chance to sign them up until after their Boys' Night performances. The Charlie's Company feature will be one of the outstanding numbers of the show.

Fine Musical Presentation

"If I tell you that Ron Elmy and Davey Branscombe are taking part in some of the musical selections, I'm sure you should give you an idea of how outstanding the musical part of our show will be. If you've never heard of a gymkata, then you'll get a chance to see and hear one at production.

Outstanding Cast

I thanked Mr. Townsend for giving me so much information about Boys' Night, and I promised that I wouldn't let any of his secrets out. I shook hands with him, and as I started to walk away he called me back "I forgot to mention that a lot of the stars of previous years will be on hand plus many new ones. And yeh, in case you're in the market for some tickets, they can be purchased at the Quinte Book Shop or from any member of the Boys' Athletic Society".

"So long chum, I hope you'll come to Boys' Night," said Mr. Townsend, and please don't print any of this because I wouldn't want any last minute on my hands?" Our conversation ended.

Trained Gun Dogs Advocated To Increase Duck Population

How the use of trained gun dogs would serve increase the duck population in the Non-Game Division was told to members of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association at their monthly meeting Tuesday evening.

As guest speaker Mr. Percy Ketcheson, conservation representative for Ontario, told his listeners that an estimated 15 million ducks annually are wounded and left to die because of non-recovery by hunters.

If trained gun dogs were used by hunters a portion of these crippled ducks would be recovered, he said, would be included in the day's bag with result that fewer ducks would die.

Annual Bag Right

The annual bag of ducks by hunters is roughly 65 million annually and this together with other losses, including Canadian poor nesting years reduced the duck population from 40 millions to a low of 32 millions in 1948. Since then the duck population has increased slightly to over 100 millions.

The crippled and crippled ducks this deficiency could be overcome over a period of years", he said. Mr. Ketcheson pointed out that summer his firm would serve to advertise angling in Hastings and Lennox and Addington counties through filming speckled trout in this area. The picture would be shown across Canada and in the United States.

Four Films Shown

Four movies were shown by Mr. Ketcheson. One of these "Gun Dogs", showed the training of retrievers and how months of constant effort must go into the training of a good bird dog.

Chief features shown included "Then It Happened", stressing the necessity of care with the use of fire in the woods; "Prairie Wings" showing the mammoth duck flits in Arkansas, and "Pheasant Island".

W. E. Edwards of Napanee, Zone forester, stressed that cooperation of the hunters was needed to reduce forest fire loss. He pointed out that forest fire rangers patrolled only the district north of Deseronto, and that fire protection in the southern townships being the responsibility of the various townships.

He spoke briefly on the activities of the Moira River Conservation Authority and pointed out how game protective associations could assist in this.

Purchase of badges and pins for identification members of the association was approved. President Bruce Smith presided over the meeting.

Canadians Should Take More Pride In Country, Kiwanis Is Told

In a theme connected with Brotherhood Week, Rev. Richard D. Jones, director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, urged Kiwanians at their luncheon yesterday to take a closer look at their country and its people. Speaking "as an immigrant, for I am one," he told the group that Canadians as a people don't have enough pride in their country.

Rev. Jones, born in the United States, came here as a director of the council in 1947, of his own "choice." "I speak to you as one who is a new Canadian. I came here out of my own choice." He asked Canadians to look around at their country, with its potential, and extend a welcome hand to those from other nations. "We should cultivate the attitude about this country in its great expanses," he said. "Forget that country's youth for a while."

He continued that the reason that many people in Canada don't realize is that they realize it's a land of democracy, and they feel at home. "We have a chance now to have the opportunity to make good and make a contribution to mankind."

Get Friendly Welcome

The speaker said that people who come here find a friendly welcome, especially among the new and well-informed people. He urged that immigrants be welcomed. "You have an opportunity to make them a part of this country," he said. "And the first six months are the most important of all—you can do more to help immigrants in that time than you can do all the rest of his life."

Immigrants also find that Canadians are religious people and attend church far more readily than do many American friends. They also know more about the United States than Americans do about Canada. "I never met people as ignorant about another country as Canada and Canadians are about Canada," he said.

Rev. Jones was introduced by Canadian man like Lester B. Pearson, who are pushing this country to the forefront in the world by being a part of the international scene.

"But," he said, "there are a few things about Canada and Canadians that bother me. I don't like it that Canadians are as proud of their country as they should be.

"We should have a pride in Canada, and I somehow resent reading of the Americans and C.nadians who move to the United States in seek of the greener lures. I do feel we should have enough pride of nation to keep them here."

Brag About Country

He claimed that Canadians should brag about their country and its contributions of its arts and compliments, not perhaps in the brassy manner of Americans, but in a humble, quiet manner. He advance Canada. "We have some wonderful people here who have made some great contributions. Why don't we speak a little louder about it?"

Mr. Jones returned to his theme by saying that in Brotherhood Week, it was his hope to kindle a spark in Canadians that would lead to a united nation, so that men would judge others by what they are and what they can do, not by color or race.

Rev. Jones emphasized that all he saw was through his own eyes —those of an immigrant. The ov-

Red Cross Work Is Appreciated By War Vets

The war ended five years ago, but not for Peter Donaldson. He is still fighting. He and a chum of let Peter was injured in a mine explosion in France. The explosion damaged his legs so badly that they had to be amputated at the scene, the other was removed after his return to Canada. Since then he hasn't carred a great deal about anything. The life of a double "amp" isn't very interesting at best. But Peter had been a hockey and baseball player and he liked it. So he settled down to doing nothing but rebelling against the fate that bodily harm had in contact with him. The one day as the Red Cross bus-lady visitor stopped by his bed she saw him doodling on the edge of a newspaper. It was a gruesome looking effort at art, but the Red Cross visitor said brightly "Anyone you know?" This struck Peter's fancy and he admitted that he was a confirmed doodler. The visitor left him some crayons and a drawing book and soon he was busily engaged in sketching. His family, who come in from Northern Ontario every week-end, were delighted with the change in the young veteran.

Canada's veterans has always been one of the most important projects of the Canadian Red Cross Society. Last year it maintained for the use of veterans and their families, and instructions in their use in the arts and crafts. Your contribution to the National Red Cross campaign will help to make a veteran happy. The National objective is $5,000,000 — of that amount $4,000,000 is for Canada; must raise $2,000,000. The campaign dates are March 1st to 31st.

Empowering potentiality of Canada and its people will make him look forward to the day when he can stand up and say proudly "I am a Canadian." "And that," he said, "is what an immigrant thinks of Canada."

Rev. Jones was introduced by Ross Campbell and Harold Parker. Collins. Vic White led the singsong, and Phil Huddleston accompanied Doug Sinclair in a vocal solo, "Friend of Mine."

Eisenhower Ready Take Command Of Pact Army

He said his party flew here from Cherbourg, where they had landed earlier from the liner Queen Elizabeth. They were met by members of his staff and left immediately by car for Eisenhower's residence at Versailles.

One of Eisenhower's first jobs is to resume the "recruiting" and training of the force he is to command in defending western Europe. He started the job during a swing through Atlantic Pact countries in January, but so far his army consists mostly of paper promises from those countries.

...Last week Eisenhower's chief of staff, Lt.-Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, said the Atlantic headquarters by mid-March would be able to take over operational control of the international army.

Democracy Rests On Free Press

Montreal, Feb. 21 (CP) —The newspaper publisher of today has to be much more the business man [illegible] had to 50 years ago, said Roy Thomson, managing director of the Hyndford Publishing Company, told the Rotary Club of Montreal yesterday.

Mr. Whiting said it has been related that the old giants of journalism had their hearts in the newsroom and not in the counting house. But with newsprint more than $100 a ton and with production costs on metropolitan newspapers skyrocketing today's publisher is much less the idealist and much more the realist.

The responsible newspaper publisher realizes that he faces the opportunity of making his paper an institution for constant service in the community, said Mr. Whiting.

"The institutions of democracy rest more securely upon the foundations of a free press which is largely moulds public opinion than upon any other idea or practice.

"Perhaps too few of us recognize the real meaning of a free press and its significance in a representative government.

"It is a channel through which flows the stream of information which makes it possible for a democratic organization to function over the far-flung territory of a nation. This does not mean only a channel for disseminating information from the government to the people, but a channel from which can come from the people to the government a stream of analysis, of criticism, or praise and if necessary condemnation. This channel is your daily newspaper."

UK Will Begin Stockpiling Food, Raw Materials

London, Feb. 21 — (AP)— The British government announced today plans to spend $429,000,000 for the stockpiling of food and raw materials in the fiscal year starting April 1.

The figure was part of a £2,383,000,000 budget covering the cost of all civil departments of the government for the year.

The strategic stockpiling outlay compares with £120,000,000 budgeted for that purpose in the current fiscal year, before Britain launched its rearmament program.

Mr. Welsh, chairman of the Ontario committee for civil defence, said main roads must be kept clear to enable firemen, ambulances, doctors and other help to speed to stricken areas.

Man Accused Of Shooting At Nephew Dies

Toronto, Feb. 21 (CP) —Frank Perri, 63, accused of shooting at his nephew, died in hospital today from what police said was a self-inflicted head wound.

Earlier police said a warrant had been issued for Perri, charging him with attempted murder after shots were fired at John Travolo, 50. Travolo, in bed at the time of the shooting, was unhurt.

Police said Perri, who came here two days ago from Vancouver, was taken to hospital with a head wound, apparently self-inflicted from a .38 calibre revolver. He was unconscious but hospital attendants said he had a good chance to recover.

Travolo told police he wasn't on speaking terms with his wife and he believed his uncle was trying to settle the spat. Four bullets were fired in the shooting.

Inspector Felix Connolly said Travolo's action in rolling out of bed and "pretending he is dead" saved him from injury.

Travolo told police Perri came into the room looking tired and upset.

"He said: 'What's wrong with you and your wife?' I told Perri : go downstairs and said I'd get up and dress. At that moment he whipped out the gun and fired at me from a couple of feet."

Travolo screamed: "Don't kill me!" and then rolled to the floor and under the bed. He said Perri continued firing, then turned and ran from the house.

Member Tangles With Government Over Report

Toronto, Feb. 21—(CP)—A 35-year-old report on Ontario forestry problems can still stir heated debate, the legislature learned yesterday.

F. O. Robinson (CCF—Port Arthur) tangled with the government over its implementation of Maj.-Gen. Howard Kennedy's 1947 royal commission report on forestry. The government had "studiously avoided" carrying out the report's recommendation of 12 forest operating companies to control timber and pulpwood cutting, he said.

The Lands and Forests Minister, Harold Scott, read a 35-page report on forest, crown land and wildlife administration. In it, he said that a large number of the 72 recommendations made by Maj.-Gen. Kennedy were in force "in whole or in part."

Today the legislature, in the regular Wednesday "private members day" instituted by Premier Frost, will consider bills proposed by opposition members.

The premier, interrupting Mr. Robinson's speech during yesterday's Throne Speech debate to answer points raised said the government was in full agreement with the aims of the Kennedy report but not with some of its recommended methods.

Mr. Frost termed "a highly doubtful experiment" the report's proposal to establish forest operating companies in northern Ontario.

Mr. C. F. party supports the idea of harvesting sawlogs and pulpwood by forest operating companies, Mr. Robinson said. Existing contracts with private companies to cut on crown lands would be terminated and replaced with an authority which would end wasteful competition.

The companies would be in a position to institute new methods, such as using poplar and birch for pulpwood. Pulp and lumber could have been "running the show long enough," he said.

The Lands and Forests minister said that new lumber and paper mills had been encouraged by the province's new export policy stopping export of unprocessed wood.

The policy would "largely, if not completely" halt the export of pulpwood and lumber under the current forest inventory showing standing forest that would be wasted if wood were not sent to United States factories for a time. Sale of saw-timber would be being limited to prevent overcutting and formation of ghost towns.

HIGHWAYS AND ROADS

"As you drive through the province, you see a grader here and a bulldozer there, a man operating a mowing machine in some other place and so on. In the winter you see a snow plow or sanding truck and you are usually glad to see either of them. It is difficult, however to realise the whole scope of the work related to highway construction and maintenance." In these words Highways Minister of Ontario, the Hon. George H. Doucett, yesterday drew a picture of the work which is being carried on by the Highways Department. He was speaking to the Good Roads Association of Ontario.

"There are more than 75,000 miles of roads and highways in the Province. In such a vast country, highways are an indispensable factor. It takes adequate transportation to give access to our raw materials. It requires adequate transportation to get our manufactured goods to our markets. Only farms in community cheap and efficient transportation makes the difference between profit and loss. Even our social life has come to be dependent largely on quick and safe transportation."

The Highways Department thus it can be seen is one of the most important aspects of government. Contracts in 1950 amounted to more than fifty-seven million dollars. In addition, work was employed by the contractors on the 20,000 men, it is estimated, were employed by the contractors on the 20,000 men, it is estimated, were employed by the contractors on the 20,000 men, it is estimated, were

46th Anniversary Of Rotary Club Is Observed

Campbellford — The Campbellford Rotary Club met in the Parish Hall on Monday to honor the 46th anniversary of the founding of Rotary International. The first Rotary Club was formed in Chicago on February 23, 1905.

Past President, Dr. Bruce Longmore, the charter president of the local club was in attendance, and spoke to the members, telling them something of the early days of Rotary in Campbellford. Dr. Longmore told of the aims of the original club, and the manner in which the club provided service to the community.

Handicapped children were the main concern of the local club members. Dr. Longmore told of a number of cases in which the club provided medical care for the children, and mentioned the various polio Iron Lung Persons held at the present time. The one-time handicapped and underprivileged children are now following various pursuits, and their positions ranges from high school teachers to successful business men and women.

Only five of the original charter members of the club are still members. The others have been removed through death in some instances, and others have moved from the district. The five remaining members are all past-presidents. They are: N. Alex MacColl, A. Armour, A. D. Bennett, H. N. Carr and Dr. Bruce Longmore.

Dr. John Kilburn, one of the newer members of the local club, spoke a few words, and gave the club "Some Birthday Thoughts for a Young Rotarian". He said that every living member has enriched the lives of those present by giving them something to think about when they left. His remarks were aimed at strengthening the resolves of the younger Rotarians.

Past President Bert Taylor moved a vote of thanks to the two men for their talks, after which the meeting was brought to a close by the President Frank Ila Linton, who presided in the absence of president A. K. Loucks.

SWEEPING

Sharp Disagreement

In fact, he suggested, the existence of stand-by powers might be enough to prevent abuses.

Sharp disagreement came from George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader; M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader; Solon Low, Social Credit leader, and some of their followers.

Mr. St. Laurent told the house:

1. The government does not propose to adopt major changes in its announced policies—which do not included price-wage-rent controls—without going before parliament with the announcement.

2. If parliament was not in session, his inclination would be to call a special session on matters of "great consequence" to Canada.

3. While there was some doubt as to whether the new bill authorized the cabinet to put National selective service into effect, the cabinet would not act on that without putting it before parliament.

4. National registration would not be undertaken without going to parliament, unless it appeared to call for emergency action.

Earlier in the day, the government had received a request from Labor Minister Mitchell, that labor-union members for the industrial mobilization plan include freeze and controls, along with continuance of rent controls beyond the present April 30 expiration date.

A resolution from the four chief central labor bodies visited the cabinet to call for the price-check immediately, and then in reviewing members are all past-presidents. They are: N. Alex MacColl, A. Armour, A. D. Bennett, H. N. Carr and Dr. Bruce Longmore.

Rubber Co. Loses Request For Injunction

Toronto, Feb. 20 — (CP) — Twenty-one rubber companies lost another round yesterday in their fight to prevent the federal government from prosecuting them under the Combines Investigation Act.

The Ontario Appeal court rejected the companies' request for an injunction to prohibit the government from acting on a report of the Combines investigation. The report concerns an alleged price-fixing arrangement in the rubber industry.

The appeal court ruling upholds a decision made last November 27 by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Spence ruled that the report is valid despite the fact it was started under a different chief commissioner than the one who would present it to the government.

Chief Justice R. S. Robertson, in a written judgment supported by Mr. Justice V. A. Hope and Mr. Justice J. B. Aylesworth, said nothing in the Combines Act prohibits the Commissioner from making a report "upon an investigation that has not himself conducted."

The report of the rubber industry probe started when Fred McGregor was chief commissioner. He has since resigned and Thomas D. MacDonald now heads the Commission.

The companies contend that the fact the Commissioners were changed while the report was being drawn up makes it invalid.

The report has been completed and the next move would be to place it before Justice Minister Garson, followed by which the report would be made public.

Then the question of legal action against the companies would be considered.

Golden Wedding Celebrations Honor Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Crowe

Trenton—(Special)— Prominent Trenton residents, Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. Crowe, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary here yesterday. Many callers throughout the day extended their congratulations to the happy couple at home on King Street and in the evening they entertained a host of friends.

The couple were married at the bride's home in Trenton by the Rev. S. C. Phin on February 20th, 1901. Mrs. Crowe was the youngest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Stevenson.

Dr. Crowe was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Crowe of Trenton. He was educated at Trenton High School and at 16 years of age became the youngest graduate until that time, of O.B.C. at Belleville. Later he received the honor medical student from Trinity College. In post graduate studies he took triple qualifications at London, Glasgow and Edinburgh Universities.

Dr. Crowe has practised continuously in Trenton for the last 52 years. He is now the coroner for Hastings County and was Medical Health Officer of Trenton for 30 years.

Mrs. Crowe was educated at Trenton and Oshawa. She has played an important role in I.O. D.E. activities in Trenton, was on the Diocesan Board and the Woman's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church of Ontario and serves on the Trenton Library Board.

Dr. and Mrs. Crowe passed their golden anniversary with their one daughter, Mrs. Ian Birch of Marathon, Ontario, and one son Harold, of Brantford. Out-of-town guests present at a dinner given in honor for the couple included Dr. and Mrs. R. A. McCool of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. R. Grills, of Toronto; Mrs. A. Ullyott of Elmira, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Palmer and Miss Marian Palmer, of Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Crowe, of Brantford and Mrs. Ian Birch of Marathon. Local guests were, Miss Anne Sanson, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Porter and Mrs. A. Birch.

Flowers, gifts, telegrams and cards from friends all over the country marked the anniversary.

Man Given Year For Car Theft

Trenton (Special)—Apparently fresh from Norwood, 17, York County, is a very happy inmate of Belleville County Jail.

Yesterday he was sentenced to one year behind bars for stealing a car from a Trenton garage early in February. The ex-army private admitted theft after he was caught when trying to book in for a night's lodging in the local lockup. His reason for stealing the car, he testified, in a statement to police, was to get discharged from the service. Today he has a dishonorable discharge and Magistrate T. V. Wills saw to that.

Also speaking at the meeting was E. C. Anderson, public school inspector and Lindsay, who said that the local fair has always been and will always be an important factor in children's education.

Members at the meeting decided that fair progress should never neglect the entertainment feature, that rural fairs in particular should be managed by people with a rural background. Also very important was an advertising committee, to make contact with press and radio. G. H. Brethun of Norwood advanced the theory that despite the mechanization of agriculture, horses were still the centre attraction at leading fairs.

The suggestion that Tweed have a summer fair in June was discussed and left with the executive.

TWEED

Tweed Society Hears Reports Of Delegates

Tweed—Reports of the Tweed Agricultural Society's two delegates to the Ontario Fairs Association convention in Toronto were given at February's meeting by D. Fleming and H. Rush. Mr. Fleming's report was concerned principally with the difficulty in getting a midway attraction for this year's fair, and Mr. Rush told of the remarks of the association's president, Mr. Ben Bleecker.

Mr. Bleecker's statements showed that while many fairs in Ontario had a larger attendance of spectators and better exhibits, they did not finish with cash surpluses. Yet it was considered much better that the success of the fair be measured by its contribution to agriculture and not its treasurer's report.

Sees No Sign Reds Give up Plan to Invade Formosa

Taipei, Formosa, Feb. 21—(AP)—Vice-Admiral Arthur D. Struble, whose United States 7th Fleet guards Formosa, today said the Chinese communists all along have indicated their intention to invade the island—and there's no sign they have given up the plan.

Flying into Taipei for a four-day visit, Struble told correspondents that large-scale communist operations against Formosa would depend to some extent on the weather, and "during the present weather the threat has declined."

Struble said the Nationalists have a larger naval potential than the Chinese reds have and, from the naval viewpoint, are capable of conducting invasion operations against the mainland.

Brownies, Guides Thrilled By Helicopter-borne Famous Guide Scroll of Friendship

Belleville Fair Grounds at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, did not look their cheeriest. The skies were heavy and grey, and the recent mild, damp weather had made the grounds slushy and icy, with large pools scattered frequently between icy patches that seemed to be doing their best to connect pools also. The grandstand looked deserted and lonely, until a closer section of it suddenly became alive with eager Brownies and Guides, who came to look the operation on the part of Mr. Weatherman, and a mistaken announcement about times, lots of children were still en route, which was and for them.

Guide Scroll of Friendship

Those who were there took no count of the weather, All eyes and ears were strained for sight and sound of aircraft for Brownies and Guides were to be part of history in the making. The famous Guide Scroll of Friendship was to travel for the first time by helicopter from Trenton to Belleville, another stop in its transCanada journey.

This Scroll, which was presented to Chief Commissioner, Mrs. D. E. S. Wishart, by H.R.H. Princess Margaret, at the Camp Fire which concluded the 13th World Guide Conference in Great Britain, in July 1950, has been ready for delivery to Canada, and after being on display in the provinces, will be forwarded to the Maritimes. It was sent to Canada from England, on behalf of a half a million Girl Guides of Great Britain, and during the preparation of the scrolls and log book, travelled the length and breadth of the British Isles, the Hebrides, Ulster, Channel Islands, The Lizard, and the Isle of Wight, following such famous and historic routes as The Roman Roads, The Pilgrims' Way, Lights and Beacons, and also the route followed by the army of liberation in 1945.

Interesting Log Book

The Log Book contains 73 pages of beautiful handwork, contributed by Guides of each district through which it passed, depicting in pencil sketches, color and snapshots, war time incidents concerning Canada or items of interest to Canada.

So, for Guides and Brownies waiting in the dampness, all thoughts were concentrated on the skies, and all hearts aglow as the helicopter was sighted coming out of the grey skies, towards the grounds. Waving hands and shouts greeted this hovering insect, circling the wet and icy land below it, landing cautiously, slowly making its approach, in a way that seemed quite miraculous to the onlookers, for all about were wires, rows and rows of telegraph and hydro poles, causing one to wonder how this noisy harbinger was to get safely to land.

Safe Landing

All watched fascinated. Suddenly the tension was over, it was there, the wind of its still rotating propellers making the surface of the icy water tremble and scatter like tiny waves rippling to the shore. Quickly the engines were shut off. Out stepped Sq. Leader Higgins carrying the heavy and precious cargo.

Receives Scroll

Eleanor Clark, (elected at Doe Lake Camp last summer by fellow Guides, as the best all round Guide), and Barbara Robb, (drawn second from a ballot of all Golden Hand Brownies in Belleville, and deputizing for Brownies who were ill), went forward and received the large aluminum case, with smile and smile and grateful thanks, and then presented to Chief Commissioner Amos, who received it on behalf of all Guides and Brownies in Belleville.

The thrill of having this precious Scroll delivered by helicopter was made possible only by kind permission of Air Vice Marshal Slemon, and Group Captain Dunlop, in co-operation with District Commissioner, Mrs. Oliver, and to them and to Sq. Leader Higgins, and to Pilot Flying Officer Lewis, our appreciation. Thanks from all Guides and Brownies of Belleville.

Many hours of work and thought have gone to the making of the two beautiful pages that form the Log Book, and true friendship for Canada is expressed in every page. The Brownies and Guides received it gladly in that spirit and sped it on its way, enriched with friendly thoughts from those who thrilled to see it, and with the prayer that its passage may cement even deeper the ties that bind Canada to Great Britain.

Dr. Johnson Tells Members Women's Canadian Club Music Essential as Bread to Body

DR. EDWARD JOHNSON

"I'm a prospector," Dr. Edward Johnson told members of the Women's Canadian Club last night. "I'm prospecting for musical talent in Canadian schools." Thus, the man who rose from a boy soprano in his home town of Guelph to become one of the world's greatest tenors and impresario of the Metropolitan Opera Company, stated the intention and object of his retiring years.

Dr. Johnson lauded the development and advancement of music in the past 25 years through its various media of expression. "Today," he said, "through radio phonograph, movies and television, we can have entertainment from all parts of the globe. And the basis for all that entertainment, fantastic as it may seem, is music.

Music Essential

"Music has become as essential to the spirit as bread is to the body," Dr. Johnson continued. He said that while the young musical student of today has many advantages his brother of 2" years ago did not have, three things are still necessary before a musician emerges—a little talent, a lot of hard work, and great, great patience.

The opportunities in the music world, according to Dr. Johnson, only come to those who are prepared for them. Hence the value of repertory is very high. "Repertory is the hardest thing to obtain," he said, "because it takes time, patience, study and elimination."

Fine Opportunities

His purpose in life now, Dr. Johnson claimed, is to "spread the gospel of music." "I have come back to pass on whatever techniques I have acquired, and whatever wisdom I have gained."

The former Metropolitan director, said that the entertainment field, probably the largest capitalized industry outside of the government, is now offering unprecedented opportunities for young people. Any boy or girl with some talent can find a job and make very good money, but that in itself may not be good, because many artists are being paid more than they are worth before they mature.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

A handicapped young man with three serious problems

Three problems each of them serious, and all of them complicated by a paralyzing, crippling physical handicap, are described to me in a letter from a young man of 22.

This young man's life has been anything but easy. At the age of nine, he contracted polio, and ever since has walked with a brace. While his mother cared for him devotedly, giving him every opportunity to equip himself to be normal and happy a life as possible, his father never took any interest in him at all, or in his older brother and sister, either.

"I always seemed in the way. Dad was too busy to talk with us or to spend even an occasional evening at home with us," he writes, adding, "sometimes I wonder if mother was as happy as she pretended to be."

No Fatherly Interest

When this boy was 18 his mother died, and after that, he said "Dad seemed to hate me more and I hardly ever saw him. Even when he was home, I couldn't even hold a conversation with us because we had nothing in common. My sister, my brother and my friends would sit in one room and laugh and talk, and I would sit in another room listening to the radio. Even though I tried hard to talk with them, I just could not get 'in touch' with them."

As a result of losing his mother and her interest in him and having no one to replace her interest, he says, his school work began to be affected. He had so little interest in it that it took him longer than it should have to get through school. When he did, he was deeply hurt because his father was too busy to attend his graduation. He is now in college for two years, but his lack of interest resulted in his failing his courses, so he left.

His father has now remarried, apparently happily, and his son is happy for him. Their lack of normal father-son relationship, however, still remains, and troubles him greatly. That is the first problem.

Desires Musical Career

The second is that his great ambition has always been to be a singer. He studied voice for a year and a half, then his father had business reverses and was unable to continue paying for this. Instead, he says, "I went to business school, as, says the boy' a last chance to prepare myself for security in the future." He has no interest at all in this sort of career, although, as he says, he realizes it is important. What can be do about his minds set on the third problem—how can he work up an interest in a business career if he can't achieve the other ambition?

To take up the first problem, I wonder if this boy has ever discussed it with his stepmother. He says that she is a "wonderful woman", very kind and considerate, and that she thinks a helpful of his father. That being so, it is quite possible that she may be able to help him figure out a way to break the barrier between himself and his father. On that point, I suggest that he take the whole thing up with her immediately.

Needs Advice

The other two questions can be taken up together, since they both concern his choice of vocation. My suggestion here is that he find out where in his city is a Vocational Counselor or some other agency that can test his abilities and advise him whether or not he is suited to a business career, and if not, just where his talents lie to give him the most satisfaction in his life work. He might also check with someone in the musical field outside of his teacher, who could give him an unbiased opinion as to his chances of success in that field. He can probably easily find out where he can go for the latter. For information on where to find the counselling service, he might write a letter to the president of college he attended for two years, state his problem clearly and say he is trying to organize his life along the most feasible lines.

All this indicates how he can start on the road to solving his problem. If he runs into any difficulties, I hope he will write me again and let me make further suggestions.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Effects of Anger

Displeasure defies the countenance.

No woman who would stay young and pretty, who would have a smooth complexion — unlined and unshadowed—can afford to fly off the handle, lose her temper. Unpleasant emotions are devastating, not only to good looks, but also to the physical mechanism. Psychology has placed the emotions, from a health and beauty point of view, on a more understandable plane than formerly. We realize now that there is a close tie-up between the mind and the body. What affects one will affect the other.

The woman who bawls out her husband will take on the facial appearance of a shrew. He may wonder why she has lost the loveliness of the girl he married; it is because her disposition has changed. Nagging a man never did any good; to the nagger it does much harm. You can't change people.

Nothing defiles the countenance as much as a perpetual state of displeasure. Every jealousy and hatred take gentleness from the eyes, send facial fibres into a state of constriction that will eventually create wrinkles. If a woman is going to indulge in these depressing diversions, she might as well throw her cosmetics out of the window.

Anger sets up a quickening of the pulse; the heart thumps, using up energy and vitality. When you hear a woman say "I was so mad I saw red," she isn't far from the truth, since violent emotion may affect the vision. Whether she becomes dry, the skin moist and cold. The digestive organs cannot function normally when mental disturbances are present, so the appetite goes on a strike.

Fear robs a woman of youthful bloom, makes her look pale and old. Jealousy is fear of losing one's loved-ones. The self-respecting woman never experiences jealousy, which is an acknowledgement that some other woman is more attractive than she is. Her method consists of turning on her charms, not showing ill nature.

Unpleasant emotions interfere with restful sleep, which is necessary if one is to enjoy a state of well-being. Memories of quarrels will keep one awake. Regret for sharp words makes one miserable. The state of a guilty conscience ar painful.

The human face is ever in the making, and whatever is done to the state of the mind can cloud it. Happy radiance. Is lights and shadows are reflected in the eyes, the expression of the mouth, even the pose of the body.

GOOD MANNERS

Hospital introductions not always welcomed—if visitor knows

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I'm expecting my baby soon. If, in the hospital, I am in a semi-private room, how should I introduce my relatives and friends to the other patient in the room?

2. Is it proper to introduce my doctor or a nurse to a visitor if they should happen to be in the room at the same time? If so, how should this introduction be made?

W. A.

1. First, a warning: Don't take it for granted that these introductions are necessary . . . indeed, they are always welcomed by the other patient (or patients) in the semi-private room. Such a "social" procedure is not always appropriate to a hospital, for the other patient may not be slightest bit interested in such an introduction, may wonder if, indeed, you may wish to take the strength or make the effort even to acknowledge the relatives' presence. You may tactful, exquisitely considerate. If you and the other patient have been chatting together when a visitor arrives, it would then seem natural and fitting to make an introduction: "Mrs. Miller, this is my aunt, Mrs. Harris-Wren". But then don't feel that you must keep up a three-cornered conversation, for the relatives or friend wants to spend the few minutes concentrated on you and talking about your baby.

2. Yes; definitely you should introduce the doctor to your visitor: "Mrs. Davidson, may I present Doctor Allen"; or "This is my sister, Mrs. North, Doctor Allen". And if an introduction to the nurse seems convenient and appropriate that is, if you are not interrupting her duties by so doing, make the introduction like this: "Miss Grayson, this is Miss Farrow, who has been so very kind to me."

Her young sister should be her maid of honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance has a sister who is 18 years old, a very good friend of mine, and he is very devoted to her. He has asked me to seriously consider having her as my maid, of honor at our wedding. But I have a sister, my only sister, 15 years old, whom I love dearly, and who, of course, wants to be my maid of honor. (She is very tall for her age, so all girls seem to be those days!) Which one should I choose . . . my fiance's sister, because she is older?

Paula M.

The answer is most definite. . . your own sister should be your maid of honor. This is customary . . . it is your right to choose her, and it is her right to be your honor attendant. And, also as is customary, you would invite your fiance's sister to be one of your bridesmaids.

Same tip for hairdresser, whether man or woman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have always lived in a rather small town, and there are two or three hairdressers were women. Now here, in this city to, which I have recently moved, there are several men hairdressers. Does one tip a man hairdresser more than one gives a woman hairdresser?

S. L.

No. . . the tips should be the same. The tip should be given for the work and the type of service, not for whether the operator is a man or a woman.

MARIO

. . . in his distinctive feature about FOOD . . . What's Cooking?

Salary—from the Latin salarium—meaning salt.

The day has passed when wages were paid in salt. But the salt in the stew is an everlasting necessity. A lack of salt shows up most distinctly in those dishes where salt is not considered a major ingredient, as in cakes, frostings, muffins, pastry shells, etc. Even in ham dishes, although the ham itself is salty, the accompanying sauce or gravy must always be salted, or the flavor will be impaired.

In today's chicken puffs, salt is a necessary part of the pastry shell in which the chicken is served. The bland chicken flavor will be flat unless it, too, has its pinch of salt.

Creamed ham, dried beef, mushrooms or seafood may be used in place of chicken if desired.

Chicken Puffs—6 Servings.

1 cup water
½-2 cup oil
Salt—pepper
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
4 eggs unbeaten
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup hot milk
½ teaspoon grated onion
1-1-2 cups cooked diced chicken

Preheat oven at 425 degrees. Grease a baking sheet.

Put water, oil and 1-4 teaspoon salt in a heavy saucepan. Bring to a boil. Add the flour all at once. once. Stir vigorously until batter leaves the sides of pan. Remove from flame. Stir until batter is smooth.

Cool 2 minutes. Add eggs one at a time. Beat well after each egg is added until batter is smooth and glossy.

Drop batter by mounds on a greased cookie sheet. There should be 6 mounds about 3 inches apart. Swirl the top of each mound with the back of a wet spoon or spatula. Bake at 425 degrees until well browned, about 30 minutes. Pierce with a fork.

Melt the butter in a saucepan. Remove from flame. Stir in the flour. Stir in the 1 cup of hot milk, grated onion and chicken. Return to slow flame. Simmed 10 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Woman Advises Daily Work For Authors

So says Toronto-born Lois Edwards whose novel "My Heart in Exile" is due for publication in April by William Morrow and Company.

Mrs. Edwards, hazel-eyed and five foot six, is the wife of Group Capt. Douglas Edwards of Ottawa. Setting for her book is the fabulous inter playground in Europe, St. Moritz in the Swiss Alps, where the couple spent a holiday shortly after the Second World War when Group Capt. Edwards was air attache at the Canadian Embassy in Paris.

Here the idea first came to Mrs. Edwards for her novel—the story of Lilly Hallowhuman, disfigured in an air raid, and of her struggle to face the world again.

Along her literary way which followed her husband's career to postings in Canada and abroad, Mrs. Edwards has found time to do book reviews and articles several of which have been published in the New York Tribune.

She also has written short stories and articles for Canadian magazines.

If pressed to give advice to beginners she'll repeat Hemingway's injunction that "you've got to get down some bulk—you can't perfect your writing until you have something to correct."

William Morrow and Co., have an option on Mrs. Edwards' next two books, first of which, with a Toronto setting, she expects to have in manuscript form by spring.

Fashion Flashes

SOUTHBOUND luggage includes some mighty pretty swim and lunch clothes, judging by store sales. A smart twosome consists of a one-piece green jersey bathing suit entirely covered with a white cotton mesh and a full-length loose coat of white fishnet.

LEAVE ROOM for the chignon is the edict to millinery designers, and so every collection includes many hats cut away at the back. One such model is of fluted black straw, the bonnet brim faced with white faille. The back, cut away to make room for a chignon, is massed with flowers.

YOUNG AND BLITHE fashions for the collegienne or young career girl are coming into the stores for late winter and early spring wear. Pale gray faille for a dressy suit, the fitted jacket with a matching lace peplum effect. A lace border runs up the front and edges the pointed collar.

THE TWO-PIECE look appears in many resort collections, especially for clothes that offer interesting color combinations. A handsome daytime dress has a sleeveless, pleated chiffon blouse, a fan shirtblouse top, and an olive green doubled chiffon skirt, with a border print that gives pink flowers and green leaves thrust through the side of the belt.

Combine Medicine With Art In Novel Course

Toronto, — (CP) — Art and medicine may appear to have little in common, but at the University of Toronto they are being combined [illegible] manner.

Unique in Canada is a course in art as applied to medicine in which students are prepared for the job of reproducing on canvas or in sketches objects and techniques important in the field of medicine.

There are eight students in the course at present — seven of them women. Five will be graduated this year. Minimum entrance requirement is grade 13 with some training in art. But the majority of students have their bachelor's degree or have been graduated from art college.

Value of their work may be illustrated by the problem of recording aspects of operations. Where a photograph would be cluttered up with gauze bandages and instruments, the drawing or painting can be used to capture only the necessary features.

To do this, the students must get a thorough knowledge of anatomy, histology and pathology. They take the same courses in these subjects as medical students and write the same examinations.

They attend university for three years before they are qualified to handle the task of recording many of the finer sides of the medical profession.

COUNTING CANADA'S ESKIMO POPULATION

Eskameokpootee Kapafeenik Inoonee Noonavoosee! This is how interpreter Jimmy Gibbon of Eskimo Point explains Canada's 1951 census to this small Eskimo who carries his identification on a disc. It means, "You help count how many Eskimos in your land." This photo was taken inside an igloo at Windy River, Keewatin District, N.W.T., when R.C.M.P. Cpl. W. L. Carey got a head start on Canada's ninth decennial census by enumerating all 17 Eskimos living at Windy River in their igloos. Every living Canadian will be counted in the most important census in Canada's history, but the census takers will not start their rounds in the more settled areas until June 1. — Central Press Canadian.

This Eskimo family trekked all the way from Eskimo Point, north of Churchill, to attend the Trappers' Festival at The Pas. The father's name is "Too Too," the mother's "Pungwashlee," and the little boy's "Quasha." — Central Press Canadian.

Hungry Britons Beat Rations

-London (CP) — Meat-starved Britons returning from continental trips have been forming long queues outside the galleys on the cross-channel steamships. They have been taking advantage of a new service provided by the shipping companies.

Before embarking the travellers have been buying large joints of meat, legs of lamb, enticing cuts of sirloin of beef—all easily obtainable in France.

Government restrictions, however, forbid the importation of raw meat to prevent disease being brought into the country. The steamship chefs have come to the rescue. They offered to roast or part-cook all joints brought aboard, without any charge.

Said a spokesman for the shipping companies: "this service started on its own. Passengers arriving with raw meat without knowing the restrictions looked so harassed that the chefs took pity on them."

FRANKFORD

Deer Club Holds Turkey Dinner

Frankford — The Frankford Deer Club held their annual banquet in the Dutch Mill Inn in Trenton, Thursday evening. All sat down to a bountiful turkey banquet. Mr. Bert Rowe, who was camp cook during the hunt last fall, did a capable job of carving the turkey.

Following the meal, members called on Lorne Rogers and Sam Danford to re-enact their bear hunting episode. However, one of the parties didn't feel quite up to meeting the demands.

Refuses to Demonstrate

The members then asked Harvey Patrick to give a little demonstration on how he conducted himself when meeting a bear face to face. Unfortunately, Mr. Patrick was too full of turkey to present the act himself, and there was no one else present who could run that fast.

After the party, a number of the folk attended shows, and entertainment in Trenton.

The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Brownlie gave her report. It was decided that the W.A. would give Mr. E. Heath, People's Warden, a cheque for $175. It was also decided to hold a meeting on Sunday afternoon in the basement of the church to make arrangements to reopen the Sunday School which has been closed for several months and ask all parents and children to attend.

The hostess served dainty refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Mumby. The roll call, a resurrection thought.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"Of course there was also the possibility of his attitude toward his daughter's plans to be married to Court Grenable, but we were inclined to discount this as a motive.

"Mr. Kent had no probable connection and could be eliminated. Lisa Farwell and he had a fool-proof alibi, since they were together at the time Mrs. Grenable's death occurred and not being members of the household would have been seen had they been to the house earlier.

"We also eliminated the Carsons. Even though Mrs. Grenable had threatened Mr. Carson's chances of being elected to the Senate, and Mrs. Carson was not on good terms with her mother, they would not have attempted the deed without destroying reference to the motive in Mrs. Grenable's diary.

"We considered Miss Palmer as a suspect, but since she was not a relative and stood to gain absolutely nothing, we saw no motive for her. So, you see, we had narrowed the field to Court and Andrew."

Sheriff Lane cleared his throat. Lisa Farwell saw Court Grenable's face flush with anger, but he did not interrupt the sheriff, even though the sheriff had intimated Court was guilty of Lavinia Grenable's murder. The sheriff continued:

"We learned that Court Grenable had run up a gambling debt in Chicago to the amount of $3,000."

Lisa looked at Court. So that was why he had tried to borrow money from her.

Court Grenable's face was flushed. But it was not a flush of anger. It was the flush of fear and shame. Court Grenable was afraid. Lisa turned her eyes away

The sheriff went on with his discourse:

"Court had given Tim Ellsworth a note on a piece of the Grenable property as security for a loan. This land was a strip adjoining Ellsworth's property—a piece that Mrs. Grenable had refused to sell for years.

"After Mrs. Grenable's death, Tim Ellsworth discovered that the note was worthless because Mrs. Grenable's signature was forged. Court admitted that he and his mother quarreled over money matters but Mrs. Grenable had not included that item in the diary—it included no mention of anything after midnight the day before she was killed, but Court probably had quarreled before and there was no mention of any quarrel over money."

"There again the diary raised a doubt, for in questioning Court the day after the murder, he showed evidence of fear for what it might contain. Therefore Court could not have known whether his mother wrote about their quarrels.

"Andrew Grenable was the only one left to suspect. Andrew had no alibi, beyond his statement that he had been drunk from midnight on. He lied here."

Sheriff Lane paused again to clear his throat and to take a deep breath and to look around at the attentive faces.

"But his belligerent attitude, we reasoned, might have been an affectation to throw us off the track," he pointed out. "Mr. Kent working with my office, uncovered the gun—another clue needed to solve the case.

"In checking telephone calls to Chicago from this house Mr. Kent took particular interest in three that were made during the last two months.

"They were to a whitehall exchange, to Dr. Warren Gibson."

Sheriff Lane chose to ignore the cigaret that fell out of Court Grenable's fingers.

"Mr. Kent went to Chicago yesterday to talk to Dr. Gibson. At the same time my men and I again searched Mrs. Grenable's room and this time we found a recent will and this paper!"

From his pocket the sheriff drew a paper that Angus Kent had handed him earlier. It was a small sheet filled with long, angular handwriting. The sheriff leaned forward a little as he scanned it with his eyes.

"It's a little note, stating some facts not included in Mrs. Grenable's diary. It tells the entire scene that took place the morning of her death—a scene between her, her two sons, and—"

The sound of a muffled cry filled the room. It was neither a scream nor an exclamation, but more like the whimper of a wounded animal trapped and in pain.

Gerl Palmer stood up from her chair. Her face was without a trace of color, other than that of her vivid hair. Her lifeblood seemed to have run out of her veins and her eyes were great dark chasms in her white face.

"Oh, stop it!" Geri screamed at them. "Of course I did it. I killed Lavinia Grenable. I killed Andrew Grenable. I killed them both. I cut the brake while Lavinia slept and hid the saw in the storm cellar. Andrew knew Ellsbeth often went there and it would look like she killed her later."

"Why?" the question came from the sheriff.

"I had to get rid of her—she wouldn't let Court marry me, even when I told her I was carrying his child!",

Lisa's shoulders sagged as the words came from Geri's lips, the words that at this moment forged a knife that severed the last bond between her and Court Grenable.

"You were right, sheriff! I thought it was the 'evil eye' for me," Geri went on. "There was nothing in the diary about me. How could I know that she would write it down somewhere else—she would—she would—"

Geri broke off, sobbing now, wildly, insanely and the mist and the rain were like a world of ruin behind her as she stood before the long pale windows of the room.

"He knew too much...that Andrew...he threatened me, twice, twice. He said he'd tell Lisa Farwell. He was drunk Saturday night, and I gave him more liquor, but it was full of his mother's sleeping pills."

"They were sleeping pills I'd been saving for Mrs. Grenable. But I never found a good time to use the pills on her. But when I had to kill Andrew, the pills were there. He would have talked."

Gerl Palmer's words lost their coherency. The weird chanting of her voice shattered the silence. Her hands still fumbled behind her and no one in the room knew what Geri was planning.

"Yes, I killed them both," she repeated. "Lavinia Grenable deserved to be killed. And Andrew was no good, either! Besides, I was afraid of him!"

Before anyone could even see what she was doing, before anyone could stop her when they did understand, she had released the catch on the French door behind her.

Geri turned and darted, sobbing, out into the fog and the rain and the world of white that had no boundary.

Lisa heard Geri's scream echoing back from the ravine — the same ravine into which Geri had sent Lavinia Grenable to death.

And Lisa Farwell, clinging to Angus Kent, when he put out his arms for her stared at the mist on the windows. And for a terrible moment, Lisa thought that the mist was tinged with crimson.

"There were so many little things," Angus told her, "that led us to Geri. As Sheriff Lane said, the diary was the key. It struck me that Geri would have had the best opportunity to read it and to know Mrs. Grenable's most minute habits. And then, several times after the murder I was around Grenable's place early in the morning, and each time Geri looked ill. I didn't think she was mourning her employer that much."

The shock was beginning to wear off and Lisa was remembering things too.

Lisa recalled the telephone conversation Angus had had with Geri Palmer the morning after Lavinia Grenables' murder. Angus had questioned that. It seemed to have been crying. Perhaps that was when Angus's suspicion had first been aroused.

"Whenever I saw her in Hilton," she mused, "she was always with Court."

"I recalled seeing her several times with him in Chicago," Angus said. "She was in his car the day he gave Tim that note." He looked at Lisa gravely. "That's why I had to know how you felt about Court before I started anything," he said gently.

"It didn't really matter from the moment I met you," she said honestly.

"I knew after that day at the beach," he said. "When I talked to Dr. Gibson he told me he'd open his books to the police and he admitted Geri's condition. She had been to see him twice. She wanted the baby. I think she loved Court."

They were sitting in the Farwell living room. Angus and Lisa with her father and Elizabeth Stratton. Elizabeth was going to have the guest room, for a while anyway, Lisa decided, watching the animation in her father's face.

Court would sell the Grenable house and give away, she didn't know or really care about his plans, but in that interval after Geri's confession he had said:

"I suppose this is the end of us Lisa."

"I believe it is," she had replied quietly, avoiding the black misery and shame in his eyes.

"I don't want you to think I wanted to marry you for the money," he was begging for a crumb of self-respect.

She hastily wanted to help him but she could feel only a very terrible emptiness. It was even worse than the first revulsion she had felt.

"It doesn't matter," she told him, it really didn't.

Looked at Angus now and asked the question that remained to puzzle her.

"Why didn't the police find the will and that note when they first searched the house?" she asked.

Angus laughed shortly. "A trick," he admitted. "That was just a scrap of paper I handed Lane with information from Dr. Gibson. Lane tricked Geri with that."

He rubbed his chin characteristically. "Nasty job all around—not the enjoyed any of it. I think I'm going to drop criminal law and take up farming."

He walked over to the open window where the sun played on the lawn and the fresh sweet smell of the garden came in on a breath of the wind.

"Only thing is," he speculated softly, "a farmer needs a wife."

There was a prolonged silence during which Mr. Farwell accepted Elizabeth's nod and they went out, closing the door behind them with a reminding click.

Lisa Farwell and Angus Kent were alone in the room together.

Lisa walked over to the window. She put her hand on Angus arm. She began to hum softly gaily.

"The farmer takes a wife,
The farmer takes a wife,
Hiedy the derry oh,
The farmer takes a wife!"

Add 9,000 Beds In Ontario Since War's End

Toronto (CP) —By the middle of 1952, Ontario will have increased its net hospital accommodations by 9,000 beds since the end of the Second World War.

That will leave the province with 5.67 beds for every 1,000 residents—well below the generally-accepted standard of seven to 1,000, but a considerable improvement over the cramped conditions of a few years ago.

Nearly $100,000,000 is earmarked for the expansion program, which began in 1947. A large portion has come from Ontario government grants, matched by equal grants from the federal government.

The full program provides for construction of 29 new hospitals and major additions to 71 others. Most of these projects have been completed and are in operation.

Despite the building program, Ontario still has hospital problems.

Increased staffs are needed to man the new accommodations and provincial health department spokesmen admit that the increase isn't keeping pace with physical expansion.

"Our hospitals haven't enough staff to [illegible] after present requirements," a department official recently said. "Unless steps are taken to overcome the shortage, hospitals are going to be a lot worse off by the time the expansion program ends."

Rising costs are another headache. Provincial maintenance grants to hospitals have increased from $1,045,000 in 1945 to $6,000,000 in 1950, but every public hospital in Ontario's larger urban centres is operating at a deficit.

Health department officials say it would take another $1,500,000 annually to bring the hospitals out of the red under existing conditions. And, with a 10 percent increase of costs from 1949 to 1950 and a similar increase expected this year, that figure may have to be revised upward if the current trend continues.

The expansion program itself was badly needed. Apart from the marked increase in population over the last few years, the growth of hospital insurance schemes and the increased amount of spending money available to many Ontario residents has put hospitals within the reach of many who had previously been unable to afford them.

Health department officials also note an increased tendency on the part of physicians to put sick persons in hospital rather than to treat them in their homes.

Aged Paris Cabbie Recalls Marne, Would Drive French Troops Again

By PHILIP CLARKE

Paris (AP) — Some of the grizzled veterans of Paris' famed First World War "taxi brigade" are ready to don their hacks in front again if necessary— this time for General Eisenhower.

"I'd even shut off my meter and drive for nothing," said 68-year-old Julien Blanc, whose fleet of about 20 survivors of the brigade who still drive for a living.

The brigade—more than 600 quisitioned cabs in all—won a place in history by driving 10,000 French troops to the Marne river battlefront in September, 1914, helping save Paris from the onrushing Germans.

Do it again? "Sure we would," Baby told a reporter. "We follow our destiny."

But Baby, a proud little man with grey hair and a bristly mustache, said many young Paris cabbies feel differently— "they are communists and they might drive the soldiers the other way."

Baby, a Catholic and a rugged individualist, faces communism on the home front almost every day. Like most other anti-communists in Paris, he is fed up, built of red thrusts, ridicule and intimidation.

Many young cab drivers taunt him and other oldsters for refusing to join the communist party or one of its unions. "They call us pigs and stupid fools," he said. "But it is they who are imbeciles, Politics, bah!"

Baby still works a regular 10-hour day at the wheel of his 15-year-old Renault sedan and boasts he hasn't been sick in years. "Red wine and raw garlic keep me going."

He brings home an average of about 600 to 700 francs a day ($1.30 to $1.50) after paying the driver's share of the fare—25 percent—plus tips and a 75 franc daily garage charge to keep up the taxi company.

Baby supplements his slim income by living rent-free in a two-room concierge's "lodge" with his wife, Marguerite, in a near the taxi company garage in the workers' suburb of Levallois-Perret. Besides giving a few extra francs running errands and doing odd jobs, Baby looks after tenants of the apartment building all part of the duties of a concierge.

Most of Paris' 14,000-taxi drivers, all of them women, make about 1,000 francs a day, Baby said. They are younger and drive faster, making up more business on the way.

Baby drove steadily to and from the Marne front from late 1914 for 12 days and never had a breakdown. "My old two-cylinder Renault chugged along gluc-gluc-gluc along some of the worst roads you've ever seen. Never even had a flat tire."

Baby remembered that he made about two round trips daily to the front, then some 30 miles from Paris, carrying four or five soldiers at a time. He travelled in a convoy of about 500 cabs, all at the breakneck speed of 30 miles an hour.

Baby collected about 500 pre-war francs ($125)—a lot of money in those days—taxiing the troops. He was paid regular cab fare by the war ministry.

"I made more money in the old days," he admitted, "but I still would rather drive a taxi than be a president."

U.K. Chancellor Praises Spirit Of Canadian Govt.

London, Feb. 21 — (Reuters)— Britain will draw no further on the dollar credit which Canada made available in 1946, Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced Tuesday.

The Canadian government was told of this decision yesterday, he told the House of Commons.

Gaitskell said Canada granted a credit of $1,250,000,000 in May 1946, to expire Dec. 31, 1951. When drawings were suspended last June, he said, $625,000,000 was untouched.

After discussion in Ottawa between the British High Commissioner and the Canadian government, Britain decided it would draw no more, Gaitskell said.

He expressed his "warmest appreciation for the spirit which prompted the Canadian government and people to afford us this very generous measure of help in our time of need . . ."

Tories Fail To Unseat Labor Govt.

London, Feb. 21 — (CP)—Another Conservative attempt to unseat the Labor government failed for the fifth this month — was defeated in the House of Commons last night by a vote of 302 to 295.

The opposition censure motion was on the government much-ridiculed peanut-growing venture in East Africa.

Conservative leader Winston Churchill had asked the House to approve a motion which would write off a loss of £36,500,000 (about $100,500,000) incurred by the government in its attempt to raise peanuts in Tanganyika to relieve Britain's dollar shortage.

The government is continuing experiments in Tanganyika in the growing of cotton and tobacco and the silk belt for an additional expenditure of £24,000,000.

Conservative Capt. Harry Crookshank ridiculed the scheme, he said it was "apparent" that the government had set April 1 — April Fool's Day — as the date for completing its new arrangements in force.

Food Minister Maurice Webb said the government had to admit the original plan of growing peanuts in large quantities had failed. But the scheme, he said, still was "a way in time and it would be poor business to drop it entirely with a resulting loss of many tangible assets.

First Flu Death In Windsor That Of Young Boy

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 21—(CP)— A seven-year-old Windsor boy died yesterday of influenza. Keith Mark Head was ill only a short time, and his death was described as "sudden."

Dr. Louis H. Lager said Ronald is not suffering from the flu.

Health authorities said a sudden increase of flu cases in Windsor have been mostly of the "mild" variety and the youngster's death is the first reported.

DOCK STRIKE

Welland, Feb. 21—(CP)—Intervene of them women, make about 1,000 francs a day, Baby said. They are younger and drive faster, picking up more business on the way.

Baby drove steadily to and from the Marne front from late 1914 for 12 days and never had a breakdown. "My old two-cylinder Renault chugged along gluc-gluc-gluc along some of the worst roads you've ever seen. Never even had a flat tire."

Baby remembered that he made about two round trips daily to the front, then some 30 miles from Paris, carrying four or five soldiers at a time. He travelled in a convoy of about 500 cabs, all at the breakneck speed of 30 miles an hour.

Baby collected about 500 pre-war francs ($125)—a lot of money in those days—taxiing the troops. He was paid regular cab fare by the war ministry.

"I made more money in the old days," he admitted, "but I still would rather drive a taxi than be a president."

'Straight Thinking' Needed On Limited Access Highways

--- DOUCETT

Toronto, Feb. 21 — (CP) Highways Minister Doucett of Ontario said Tuesday that "some straight thinking" is needed about limited access highways.

The topic has stirred controversy in recent years, especially in the Niagara peninsula, where at least one lawsuit has resolved around a property owner's attempt to have his laneway open on a provincial express highway.

"It will not be very long before we have in full operation the new dual-lane highway from Toronto to Barrie," said Mr. Doucett in an address prepared for delivery to the Ontario Good Roads Association. "We have the Queen Elizabeth Way (from Toronto to Niagara Falls) and No. 2-A highway from Highland Creek to Oshawa, the latter now being extended easterly.

"These highways were extremely costly. We cannot afford to build them and then immediately sanction practices making for destruction of their primary purpose.

"By and large, these highways are to afford quick and safe transportation over long distances. Highways of this type are not designed for the dual purpose of quick and safe transportation plus access to adjacent land.

"Once there is a material breakdown of the limited access feature, these highways begin to present excessive traffic hazards and their primary purpose is largely defeated.

"I am hopeful that all our people, and more especially those who reside adjacent to these costly express highways, will take a patriotic and generous attitude in this matter so that we may preserve at full efficiency a very valuable asset created by the bounty of all our people and for the benefit of all our people."

Hints There's Some Relation Between Dice and Verse

London, Feb. 21—(AP)—Maybe there really is some connection between verse—great, mediocre or the kind of ingrest usually employed—and the way dice behave.

The idea is that the shooter should just recite something.

If "Little Joe from Kokomo, bring your daddy back some dough" or "over from the south, make 'em down at the mutt" fail to make the cubes behave, a couplet from Shakespeare or Milton—however odd it might sound, depending on the game's locale—might be effective.

This was suggested Monday by Dr. Robert H. Thouless, lecturer on educational psychology at Cambridge University who has been experimenting in an effort to determine whether some psychological factor influences dice. His findings are published in the proceedings of the society for psychical research.

Dr. Thouless said "too strong motivation tends to result in too much effort and failure results. . . effortless intention to succeed seems to me to be the ideal attitude."

The luncheon marked the first visit by their majesties to the high commissioner's new official residence in upper Brock Street in London's exclusive Grosvenor Square area.

Later in the day, Canadian newspaper men in London paid their first formal visit to upper Brock Street for a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Wilgress.

Small Metal Fabricators Are Hardest Hit

New York, Feb. 21—(AP)—The Iron Age, metal-working trade weekly, says today that the pain of an economy shifting from peace to war goods was never more evident than it is this week.

"Hardest hit," it says, are the small metal fabricators," the publication says. "They are being starved by material cut-backs and juicy defence contracts are not offered in any quantity."

The dislocation largely results from the time lag in shifting production, reports the Iron Age, adding:

"Some of the major contracts that already have been placed will require as much as 18 months for tooling up before assembly line production can begin. This explains why the machineatool industry is staggering under an ever-increasing backlog of orders, while many small manufacturers face production curtailment."

Foster Hewitt Opens Own Radio Station

Foster Hewitt's long-cherished dream of some day owning a radio station will become a reality at 7:30 this evening when the new call letters "CKFH, 1400 on your dial" go on the air for official use by the first time.

And it is only natural that the station, which Mr. Hewitt says would include plans for many sports programs on his agenda, is opening in the fall season of the NHL game between Toronto and Montreal. He intends to broadcast all midweek games over CKFH. The station will not carry Saturday night hockey, however.

Of a special attraction between the second and third periods of this evening's game, Con Smythe, managing director of the Leafs, will be interviewed by the sports broadcaster and by the sports newspapers, Milt Dunnell of the Star, Bobby Hewitson of The Telegram and Jim Vipond of the Toronto Mail.

Other plans include the broadcasting of wrestling shows from Maple Leaf Gardens each Thursday night, minor hockey games Friday nights and Saturday afternoons.

"We will have a live sports broadcast from some arena or stadium in the Toronto metropolitan area every night of the week," Hewitt explained. "We will be open at 9:30 and we hope to do lots of broadcasts of community affairs such as hockey games in which York or a lacrosse game in Milton."

Foster's 22-year-old son, Bill, will be sports and special events director.

The new studios are located at the corner of Yonge and Granville, the studio tower and transmitter are on Centre Island.

The station is owned by the only fourth independently owned, is owned outright by Hewitt.

Two High Police Officials Deny Making Complaints Against Rush While on Force

ANNOUNCES PLAN TO TRIPLE FORCES OF U.S. IN EUROPE

London, Ont., Feb. 21 (CP) — The provincial inquiry into the dismissal from the London police force of Mayor Allan J. Rush took an unexpected turn yesterday.

In a crowded courtroom two high city police officials denied that they had made complaints against Mayor Rush while he was serving on the force.

Police Chief A. E. Knight had said earlier in the hearing before Mr. Justice W. D. Rosch that complaints by the two officers about Mayor Rush's views were the basis for his dismissal from the force.

He said he had never had reason to complain about Mayor Rush. He described the ex-detective's work as "excellent."

Former Inspector George Tomkins, until last year chief of the London morality squad, told the inquiry that not only did he not have a beef about Rush, but that he recommended that Rush become inspector of the morality department in his (Tomkins') department.

The present inquiry arises from the dismissal of Rush by the police commission last year. Rush alleged in dismissing finally to learn the reasons for his dismissal. Toward the end of 1950 he ran for the office of mayor and was defeated, thus becoming a member of the police department still able to get the story behind his dismissal, he went to the attorney general and the inquiry was ordered.

Received Complaints

Chief Knight testified Monday at the opening of the inquiry that he had received complaints from Rush's superiors and that he presented these complaints to the police commission. Still others acted upon his recommendations and fired Mayor Rush.

Yesterday, two police commissioners, County Judge Ian Macrae and City Magistrate Donald D. Menzies, said they had accepted Chief Knight's statement and fired Mayor Rush because of it.

Under questioning, they admitted they had not attempted or verify the chief's indictment or Rush—either by calling in the alleged complainants or confronting Rush with the statements.

Mr. Justice Rosch expressed the opinion at yesterday's sitting that the commission in firing Mayor Rush was fired did not give the commission authority to dismiss the detective without giving him any reason.

The police commissioners said they thought the section—No. 13 b. the Police Act—had contained Dennis and he intends to broadcast all midweek games over CKFH. The station will not carry Saturday night hockey, however.

Of a special attraction between the second and third periods of this evening's game, Con Smythe, managing director of the Leafs, will be interviewed by the sports broadcaster and by the sports newspapers, Milt Dunnell of the Star, Bobby Hewitson of The Telegram and Jim Vipond of the Toronto Mail.

Other plans include the broadcasting of wrestling shows from Maple Leaf Garden each Thursday night, minor hockey games Friday nights and Saturday afternoons.

"We will have a live sports broadcast from some arena or stadium in the Toronto metropolitan area every night of the week," Hewitt explained. "We will be open at 9:30 and we hope to do lots of broadcasts of community affairs such as hockey games in which York or a lacrosse game in Milton."

Foster's 22-year-old son, Bill, will be sports and special events director. The new studios are located at the corner of Yonge and Granville, the studio tower and transmitter are on Centre Island.

Aussie Pilot Has 20,000 Hour Flight Record

Sydney, Australia —(CP) Capt. Keith Virtue recently logged his 20,000 hour of flying time. This is an Australian record, believed to be exceeded only by a United States pilot who has 22,000 hours flying time logged.

Captain Virtue is 41 and he has been flying since he was 18. He flies now for Australian National Airways and pilots DC-4's usually on Australian runs, but sometimes to London.

He has logged a lot of his time on the runs between Sydney to Brisbane run (453 miles) which he has flown 3,030 times. He has flown Sydney-Melbourne (435 miles) 667 times, and Brisbane-Cairns (930 miles) 696 times.

He flew his 20,000th hour on the run from Sydney to Brisbane where he lives and as he stepped from his pilot's seat he remarked "I'm still got years of flying left in me."

Better Jobs Done, More Stability By Hiring Oldsters, Says Magazine

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

This column yesterday dealt with the proposition that despite high production, we are capable of much greater production if we are forced to it.

The Conference Board, the Rotary issue of "Canadian Business," published by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, points up that, aside from development of technological deficiencies, we are able a far greater number of hands to go to work than is generally supposed.

The publication, in effect sets it out as follows, using Bureau of Statistics figures:

Failed Keep Pace

The labor force has not only failed to keep pace with the growth of that sector of the population which is over-14 years of age.

The group now in the labor force includes housewives, students, retired persons and persons not able to work. It would appear that there are more of these than there were four or more two years ago. As things tighten up, it is to be expected that considerable number of these will be forced or persuaded to go to work. High wages and good employment opportunities near home will persuade some women to leave their kitchens, elderly men with small pensions and women to leave their easy chairs, and students to forsake their books for the shops.

Overlook Elderly Men

Of the classes of possible recruits mentioned in the foregoing by Canadian business, perhaps the most interesting from a long-range point of view is the one described as "elderly men with small pensions."

So much thought has been devoted to making it possible for a man to retire at a certain age that he is almost overlooked that he may not wish to retire.

He may wish to have the right to do so, but, once retired, he will often be happier working.

Right now many firms are experiencing fast staff turn-over in junior jobs because youngsters they hire find more inviting opportunities elsewhere. They get better jobs done and more stability by hiring oldsters.

MELROSE

W.M.S. Holds Day of Prayer

Melrose — The Women's Missionary Society of Melrose United Church joined with other Canadian church women in the observance of a day of prayer. This year's theme was "Partners in Life" and the keynote address was given by Mrs. Ralph Hall, Belleville, who spoke on the subject, "Partners in Prayer." Mrs. Hall is a former missionary to Korea, and a strengthening of the bonds of Christian unity.

The theme was "Perfect Love Casteth out Fear." This World Day of Prayer Service was prepared by Christian women of Germany and was the material of Prayer Committee of New York. For use in this country it was adapted by a committee of the Women's Inter-church Council of Canada. This service was observed by the Melrose W.M.S. when they met at the home of Mrs. John Wesse. The president, Mrs. Russell MacFarlane, opened the meeting with a prayer for peace and was followed by various members participating in the worship service under the headings, "Adoration", "Penitence", "Petition", "Intercession of Self". Suitable hymns were sung ending with the hymn "Just As I Am Without One Plea".

Missionary Prayers

Prayers were offered by Mrs. Walter Bell for the Baptist field with all its authority, for our own country and the commonwealth; Mrs. John Wesse for the World Family of Nations and for homes; Mrs. R. Hamill for all missions and for the church universal.

Mrs. Lloyd Weese, leader, gave an interesting talk on "Our Debt to Missionaries". A missionary is one who goes and tells the message about the Gospel. This means courage, strength and sacrifice and most of all a heart and life that is fully surrendered to do and willing to do anything for the Master bids.

It is the missionary who has largely helped to open the world; he has opened up a larger part of the geography of the world. The whole dark continent of Africa and much of India, shrivelled through him, as were many other countries as Korea, Siam, Arabia, Burma, Japan.

Unifies the Church

It is the missionary who is leading the church to unity by preaching the truths of love and equality as against hate and rivalry. The missionary teaches that God has made of one blood, all races of men, that the same blood was shed on Calvary for white faces here, and yellow faces across the sea. She closed with these remarks "We owe it to the missionary for inspiring us to continue in our faith and to see to it that the whole of humanity is redeemed and gathered into one great kingdom of love".

The Christian Stewardship secretary gave a reading and the secretary read a letter from Mrs. Fred Wilson, Belleville, extending—an invitation to attend a rally in the Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, when Right Rev. C. B. Nicholson, B.A., B.D., the moderator of the United Church of Canada, will be the principal speaker. The choir of Tabernacle church will lead in the service of praise.

The special offering was received and dedicated and will go to a general fund raised by the Christian literature for use in missions in Canada and in other parts of the world and for other missionary projects.

The singing of the hymn "The Day Thou Gavest Lord is Ended" and the benediction brought the meeting to a close.

The hostess served refreshments.

During the previous week, the president, Mrs. Russell MacFarlane, kindly opened her home for a quilting for the society. Nine ladies with a young visitor, Miss Shirley Pascoe, of Monroe, enjoyed a pot-luck dinner at noon and accomplished much work during the day. Two quilts were completed.

Ten Trappists Escape Reds, Settle Peacefully in West

St. Norbert, Man.—(CP)—Ten is 10 miles south of Winnipeg. Trappist monks — nine Chinese and one Belgian—entered the Notre Dame de la Prairie monastery here a year ago after escaping from the communists in China.

Granted permission to speak to a reporter—by religious vows they are sworn to silence among themselves—Rev. Simeon Chang, leader of the Chinese monks, and Rev. Victor Chu said they accordingly desire to return to China.

"But," they said, "it may be two years—it may be 10—before we can return. It may be forever."

They arrived in the monastery of Our Lady of Joy in Cheng-Tmy, Hopeh province, before fleeing after torture and oppression by the communists.

One of their number, Rev. Benedict Joseph, is in good health now. A communist bullet, "fired just for fun," entered his chest and came out his back while he was standing in the door of the Chinese Monastery.

The monks here have a self-contained little world of some 50 fathers, lay brothers and students for the priesthood. The monastery schedules.

It was suggested that the manager of the local theatre be contacted regarding the showing of films during Education week (March 4-10), which are available from the Department of Education.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The squeeze play in bridge must wait until only a few cards are left in each hand; usually three, sometimes four. Among squeezes are three general types: Simple, inverted and double.

A simple squeeze is where you force the left hand opponent. An inverted squeeze is where you force the right hand opponent. Double squeeze is where you tighten the screws on both opponents.

South was declarer at a contract of seven no-trump. West started with an opening lead of heart jack, indicating he had the ten. After nine tricks were played, the remaining cards are shown here:

NORTH
♠ None
♥ 4
♦ 3
♣ 3 2 4

WEST
♠ None
♥ 10 8
♦ 7 10
♣ None

EAST
♠ J
♥ K
♦ K Q
♣ None

SOUTH
♠ 4 2
♥ None
♦ A 5
♣ None

The ninth trick was taken by dummy in north from which the next lead must come. A club was led from there. East must let go of a card from the four he holds, his spade, heart or one of his two diamonds.

East must not give up his spade. If he does the south spades will be good and the show would be over. With west protecting hearts, east can afford to throw his remaining heart. He will thus block the diamond suit for the moment and let west protect hearts.

So, east fired his heart and south cinched a spade, West gave up one of his hearts and could still protect both red suits. Right here, however, north led the last club and east is up against it.

If he releases his spade, south will shuff the small diamond. So, east flings one of his diamonds and south flops the spade. It was now the turn of west to do something. But what?

If west gives up his heart to protect diamonds, dummy four of hearts will be good. If west gives up a diamond to protect hearts, both the diamonds in south roll in when the ace takes.

In other words, when north leads the last club, both opponents are relentlessly squeezed. Neither could protect the other. What you have just seen is a double squeeze in action.

Vancouver Feb. 21, (CP)—Three officers of the Vancouver Optimist Club were convicted yesterday of "disposing of goods" by conducting a lottery. Remanded to the end of the assizes for sentence were David Cohen, president; Thomas Hincks, business manager, and V. Gordon Hindle, draw committee chairman. They were charged following a $12,000 raffle conducted by the club Jan. 28, 1950.

Movie Column

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 21 — (AP) — A top beauty expert of Hollywood today rapped the younger crop of male actors for their "sloppy" hairdos.

"They're messes, all of them, exclaimed Patricia Steen, who operates what appears to be filmdom's only male beauty salon. Her specialty is restoring and treating hair, and her customers have included Dick Powell, Gary Cooper, Fred MacMurray, John Lund, Joe Ferrer and Mel Ferrer.

"I just shudder when I see some of the young actors," she shuddered. "They look awful and they're ruining their hair. -

"Farley Granger is one of the worst. He wears sideburns and lets his hair dangle over his forehead. I suppose he thinks it looks cute. I think it only makes him look unkempt.

Sexes Unbalanced

"On the other hand the girls cut their hair so short they look like boys. The sexes are getting out of balance."

John Derek also looks in need of a good combing, she added. As for Burt Lancaster — "he looks as though he had just stepped out of a shower and run his hand through his hair."

Miss Steen blamed the increase of baldness and scalp ailsies to improper care of the hair. She cited these causes: Harmful hair tonics and shampoos (those containing acids or alkalis); failure to clean the hair properly (it should be done twice weekly); harmful haircuts (she disapproved of the crew cut, required for army men); improper diet.

Capsule Review

"Royal Wedding" is a musical delight. Thanks to some imaginative directing and three or four inspired musical numbers, the M. G. M. musical factory has turned out one of its best productions. The plot is slim — about a brother and sister dance act with romantic complications. Fred Astaire and Jane Powell are given free reign for their unique talents and come through handsomely. Peter Lawford and Sarah Churchill supply the romantic interest.

B.C. Member Visits Voters By Sea and Air

Vancouver (CP) —British Columbia will get its second seagoing legislature member this summer when H. J. (Bert) Welch takes to the ocean to reach his constituents.

Mr. Welch, member for Comox district on Vancouver Island, already uses land and air transportation (he was a naval air pilot in the First World War) to cover the northern section of the island.

In April, he will launch the 42 foot cruiser Helen Grace, named after his wife, to complete the transportation cycle.

The Helen Grace will take Mr. Welch into isolated settlements along the west coast of Vancouver Island from Winter Harbor at the mouth of Quatsino Sound to the northern tip, and on the east coast from Nanaimo north.

Another member, B.C. Macintyre of Powell River, operates a boat.

Will Co-operate In Commonwealth Colombo Plan

Colombo, Ceylon, Feb. 21 (CP) —The International Committee for development of south and southeast Asia yesterday ended its third conference session with a secret report to member governments.

The United States and the International Bank, represented at the eight-day talks, promised to co-operate with the commonwealth Colombo plan.

The plan, estimated to cost $5,000,000,000 during a six-year period, will affect millions of under-privileged Asians.

So far the only concrete offer of aid has come from Canada. David Johnson, the Canadian delegate, yesterday offered $25,000,000 toward the first year's work. He said the offer is conditional upon other countries making "appropriate contributions."

TEACHERS ASK INCREASES

Fort William, Feb. 21 (CP) — A double-barrelled pay raise request by the elementary and secondary school teachers of Fort William was presented to the Board of Education yesterday. An immediate across the board pay increase of $500 was asked by elementary teachers while secondary teachers requested a pay boost of $800.

Threatens Arrest Of Any Inciting Disobedience

London, Feb. 21—(Reuters) — The government today threatened to jail anyone inciting military reservists to disobey call-up orders.

The move follows circulation of a chain-letter urging 235,000 wartime service men to ignore recall for 15 days' training this summer.

Attorney-General Sir Hartley Shawcross told parliament last week that he believed the chain-letter was sent out by a communist run organization.

A new government bill, sent to the House of Commons for approval lays down penalities up to two years' imprisonment or a £500 ($1,500) fine for incitement to disaffection.

Many Motorists Without Licences And Permits

Toronto, Feb. 21 (CP) —The Ontario Highways Department made no decision whether to give a last minute reprieve to motorists still using 1950 motor vehicle permits and drivers' licences, Highways Minister Doucett said today.

With the time limit for use of old licences already extended to Feb. 28, Mr. Doucett said there is "no definite indication as to what further extension may be granted."

Up to Feb. 15 it was estimated only 32 percent of last year's total motor vehicle permits and 41 percent of last year's driver licences had been issued.

Seven Churches Favor Report

Toronto, Feb. 21—(CP)—Seven Protestant churches said yesterday the Hope report recommendation that Ontario Separate-school jurisdiction be reduced from eight elementary school grades to six is "educationally as beneficial to separate as to public schools."

The churches, in a report issued by the inter-church committee on Protestant-Roman Catholic relations, expressed opposition to expenditure of public monies for the support of Separate schools beyond the elementary grades. The report will be sent to Premier Frost, ministers and church courts.

Chairman of the committee is Very Rev. George C. Pidgeon, Toronto, of the United Church of Canada. Committee members were appointed by the national executives of the Baptist Federation of Canada, Church of Christ (disciples), Church of England in Canada, Evangelical Church, Presbyterian Church in Canada, Salvation Army and United Church.

Two Rookies From the West Meet Head-on in Hot Race For Coveted Vezina Trophy

By MEL SUFFIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A couple of fellows who learned to play hockey in Western Canada will fight each other tonight in what is shaping up as one of the nastiest little dramas of the National Hockey League season.

The principals are Al Rollins, part-time goaltender for the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs, and Terry Sawchuk, who lends class for the eagles — eading Detroit Red Wings.

High Stakes

The stakes: first place in the league, and the Vezina Trophy, awarded annually to the league's least — scored — on goalie.

At the moment the Red Wings have a five - point lead on the Leafs in the standings, but Toronto has had five fewer goals scored against it so far this season. The Leafs have played one game less than Detroit.

Both Rollins, a 24-year-old native of Vanguard, Sask., and Sawchuk, born little more than 21 years ago in Winnipeg, are rookies. Both would like to turn the feat of winning the coveted Vezina Trophy in their first N.H.L. year.

However, while Sawchuk is the lone Detroit goalie, Rollins has been sharing duties with Turk Broda who, incidentally, is another vezina winner. He owns two.

The Vezina Trophy is awarded to the goalie who plays the most games for the team with the fewest goals scored against it during the regular season.

With this fact in mind, the Leafs have a real idea of arranging things so that Rollins and Broda would play in an equal number of games, which would mean they would share the trophy and the money that goes with it if the season wound up the season with the fewest goals against.

There's a Problem

But there's a problem. Rollins, who has played 28 games to Broda's 27, is doing so well that the Leaf hierarchy hesitates to take him out.

"How can you take him out when he's winning?" asked Conn Smythe, Leafs general manager. "The team comes first with me every time. Sure I would like to have Turk and Al share the Vezina Trophy, but Rollins has been going so well I don't see how we could replace him, at least until he is beaten."

Rollins has been beaten only twice in the last 18 games and his goals-against average of 1.82 is best in the league.

While Toronto and Detroit are booking up in Toronto tonight, another game with significance will be played in New York. The Rangers play host to Boston Bruins in an affair which may change the standings.

Bruins are currently in third place, a single point ahead of Rangers and both teams will be attempting to consolidate their position against the threats of Montreal Canadiens another point back in fifth place and striving to get into the four — team playoff circle.

Mercurys Wallop Stouffville 13-2

Owen Sound, Ont., Feb. 21 — (CP)—Owen Sound Mercurys last night walloped Stouffville Clippers 13-2 in the first game of their best-of-seven series to declare the O.H.A. big senior championship in the Allan Cup playoffs. Tommy Burlington dazzled the Clippers with a great display, scoring four goals and two assists.

Biltmores Make Early Move For Top Spot

(By The Canadian Press)

Guelph Biltmores, who surprised quite a few people last year when they came from nowhere to take the Ontario junior hockey title, are making their move earlier this season.

The Bills, who finished well down in the league standings in 1950 and proceeded to knock off highly-touted opposition in the playoffs, currently have designs on first place in the 10-team O.H.A. Junior A loop.

If they make the top, it will have been a long, uphill climb. Six weeks ago, Guelph was tied for fifth place, 10 points behind the leaders. Since then, Biltmores have won 10 and tied four against two losses. Now they're in third place, four points out of the driver's seat.

You've got to give Guelph marks for gameness. They've been short as many as five regulars in recent games due to the influenza epidemic and injuries. Yet they haven't let up in their drive.

Four regulars were still out of action last night when the Bills moved into third place by edging Stratford Kroehlers 7-5. That left them two points out of second place, but Barrie Flyers played another game ahead by whipping St. Catharines Teepees 6-2 to break a first-place tie with the idle Windsor Spitfires.

Henderson Gets Three

Chuck Henderson led the convalescent Biltmores to victory with three goals, the last being the clincher in the final minute of play. Herb Dickenson added a couple and Andy Bathgate and Ken Laufman had one apiece.

George Aitken netted a pair for Stratford, while Guy Henri, Gord Haas and Ray Ross got one apiece.

Real Chevrefils was the three-goal man for Barrie, with Leo Labine getting two and Jerry Toppazzini one. Bibber O'Hearn and Skip Teal counted for St. Catharines.

Ken Wharram's second goal put a till ahead for keeps in their see-saw battle with St. Michael's, which was tied no less than three times. Johnny Sleaver also notched a pair for the winners, while Don Hogan and Len Cooke fired one apiece. Jim MacDonald scored two for the Irish. Bill Lee and Mike Ratchford completing their tally.

Guelph tackle the second-place Spitfires in Windsor tonight while St. Catharines play a return-engagement at Barrie and the fourth-place Toronto Marlboros visit Oshawa Generals.

All four major series clubs will see action, the league-leading Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs playing the third-place Tigers at Hamilton while the last-place Kitchener Dutchmen entertain Toronto Marlboros.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Chris Newton of Toronto won the Canadian Lightweight Boxing title 24 years ago tonight, beating Cliff Graham also of Toronto, in a 10-round bout there. Newton lost the title two months later to Leo (Kid) Roy at Montreal.

Beanstalk Blackwell Figures He'll Be Jack For Cincy Reds

Cincinnati, Feb. 21 (AP) — If Ewell Blackwell is the great pitcher that he was in the closing weeks of last season, he is going to be hard on the rest of the National League Clubs.

And the hopes of the Cincinnati Reds for the a place in the first division will ride with his pitching.

Going down the stretch through last August and September, the "Whip" lashed out with two one-hitters, three four-hitters, one five-hitter, two six-hitters, one seven-hitter, and one 10-hitter.

In those weeks some of baseball's keenest analysts called Blackwell the greatest pitcher in the game. He won seven of those games and lost three. One of the losses was a one hitter.

Blackwell's first game in 1950, in which he let Pittsburgh down with seven safeties Sept. 24 and won 1-0, was finished with the help of a boy from California in great form. A few days before the game, he was rushed to Cincinnati, and his appendix was removed.

Manager Luke Sewell and his staff, meanwhile, Blackie is said to be in good condition and ready to shoot at his 1947 record of 22 wins, seven losses.

Won 16

In that spurt, he won 16 consecutive games.

Blackie, who ended with a record of 17 games won and 15 lost last year, has spent most of the winter in Florida, fishing and hunting in addition to getting his word received here.

Blackwell's comeback triumphs have been of the nothing because of the hard luck that has accompanied him. Despite his brilliant showing in 1947, that long, snaky right arm went bad. He was of little value in 1948, and had a record in 1948, winning only seven games and losing nine.

Then came the blow, one which it was thought for a time would end his baseball career. A kidney had to be removed.

Blackie did not oppose a rival team in 1949 until May 30, and was well along, and his record for the season ended at five won 8 lost.

The Reds' management headed by Warren Giles, general manager, however, did not give up on Blackie, and his big salary was not cut.

That in itself was a morale ...ter for the great pitcher, and he proceeded to begin paying back.

Sports Roundup

By MURRAY ROSE
(For Mark Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Feb. 21 (AP) — Jake Kearns is a fellow who commands plenty of respect from his fighters, since he definitely is not one of the "they don't hurt us—go get 'em" school. In his days as a manager, Kearns, who piloted Jack Dempsey through a gold mine, Kearns had a guy who broke his hand before a date, and it looked like ... to were out of a $100 purse ... was big money in those days. So Kearns fought the opponent himself—and knocked him out.

Ring Record

We got that little anecdote out of Nat Fleischer's "Ring Record ...ok for 1951." It's the 10th anniversary number of this invaluable collection and it's bigger and better than ever, its 813 pages are crammed with facts and figures about the great and near-great in boxing—since the earliest days of the fistic(uffs sp.)rt. Who was the first heavyweight champion? Ten-to-one if you ask someone, he'll say John L. Sullivan. The answer is James Figg, born in Oxfordshire, England, in 1695. He died at the age of 38.

Fleischer's book, just off the presses and limited to an edition of 3,000 copies, lists the records of some 4,900 fighters, about 1,000 less than last year. That indicates the decline of boxing in the United States as well as the deep inroads the draft is making into the game. ... the European list, however, has 300 more boxers than last year.

Kayo Records

The record time for a knockout is 11 seconds, or just about as quick as sleep can be produced. For fighters, share the record: Battling Nelson kayoed Willie Rossler in 12 seconds, the record of a name gladiator. The best Jack Dempsey could do was 16 seconds. The up-and-down fight of the century was on April 17, 1907 battle between Joe Jeannette and Sam McVey in Paris. Jeannette was floored 27 times and McVey 11. But Jeannette won in the 49th round when McVey quit.

Three Tied For Top Slot In Curling

Nelson, B.C., Feb. 21. (CP)—Mighty Alberta crumbled last night in the Canadian High School Curling championships, going down to defeat in the first two, while the result was a three-way tie for first place at the end of sixth-round play.

Tide for first with five wins and one loss apiece are Alberta, Saskatchewan and Quebec.

Alberta was beaten 13-6 by Manitoba.

Gary Thode's Saskatchewan rinkmates defeated New Brunswick 14-6; Ontario trounced Nova Scotia 8-5; British Columbia defeated Northern Ontario 12-8 and Quebec took Prince Edward Island 12-3.

B.C. is in second place with four wins—one of them a 12-8 victory over Saskatchewan in fifth-round play—and Ontario and Manitoba are deadlocked for third with three wins.

It's a tie for fourth place, too, with Prince Edward Island and Northern Ontario winners of two games.

Nova Scotia, with one win, is in ninth position and winless New Brunswick holds down bottom spot.

Canadian Idea Of 'Amateur' Cure for Scandal

(By The Canadian Press)

Hockey manager Frank Boucher says adoption of the Canadian definition of an amateur would help avoid gambling scandals such as that now sweeping United States college basketball.

Boucher, whose New York Rangers of the National Hockey League grace the arena that the basketball scandal has befouled—Madison Square Garden—put it this way:

"In Canada we consider any boy an amateur who does not play with acknowledged professionals or in a professional league.

"We permit a boy to play anywhere he can for money and still permit him to retain his amateur standing."

This definition he said, removes the prime motive for any fix in sports—money.

"In that way we have no proselyting and we have no undercover-table payments by the colleges to lure players.

"Everything is above-board.

The mushrooming college basketball title will be at stake at London Ont., Friday night when University of Western Ontario Mustangs face McGill University Redmen.

The Mustangs have already clinched a tie for the college cage crown but need a win Friday to claim sole possession of the Wilson trophy, emblematic of intercollegiate hockey supremacy.

Second-place McGill, with three games yet to play, could force a tie by storming Friday. There is no play-off.

Pitcher Ted Wilks, who had balked at an earlier offer, signed his contract with the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday after a brief talk with owner Fred Saigh. Terms were not disclosed.

At Baltimore Jack Dempsey was released from Johns Hopkins Hospital yesterday after responding very well" to treatment and removal of an abscess. The former world's ... heavyweight boxer was operated on Feb. 14.

Armand Savoie, Montreal lightweight, signed yesterday for a 10-round bout Monday with Solly Cantor of Toronto next Tuesday, Feb. 27. Savoie replaces Allan McFater, Toronto fighter who was laid out by influenza and is unable to fight.

At Chicago, George Chenier of Toronto was defeated by Joe Diehl of Rockford, Ill., 150-142 in 10 rounds Monday in the national pocket billiards tournament. Chenier is Canadian champion.

Yachting was dropped yesterday from the list of sports to be contested in the Pan-American Olympic Games which start at Buenos Aires March 1. Only Argentina and Chile were prepared to compete in the sport. There is no chance of interest in the 17 other sports.

Speaking of games, word from Auckland, N.Z., says last year's Commonwealth games are expected to turn a profit of £25,000 (about $70,000) when the accounts are cleaned up. The money will go to the New Zealand Olympic and Empire Games Association to finance teams going overseas in future competition.

At Ottawa, Syd Goodsy, 53, member of Canada's swimming team at the 1920 Olympics in Antwerp, last night was presented with a life membership to the Ottawa Y.M.C.A. at a "birthday" party celebrating the 34th anniversary of the Ottawa "Y".

Alvin Dark Giants Captain Has Ideas

Sanford, Fla., Feb. 21 — (AP)— Alvin Dark, who still considers the move that transferred him from Boston Braves to New York Giants the greatest break in his life, has set not one but four goals for himself for the 1951 season.

First, the popular team captain and star shortstop is determined to hit 300 or better. Second, he has design on drawing at least 75 pases on balls. Third, he would like to better the club's top double play mark of 181 which he and his keystone mate, Eddie Stanky, helped set last year. Fourth, and by no means least, he is shooting for some World Series dough.

"Offhand, this might sound like quite a order," he said yesterday following his initial workout. "But I'm confident I'll achieve all four."

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Caution generally. Get around to facts, be in best position to answer or act accurately. Take full advantage of rest periods to relax mind as well as body. Do things betty daily.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—May be sort of upsidedown day, things seem in reverse. Be wary, alert to what's going on at home, work, government. Keenness of deduction is important.

..December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Take nothing for granted; be on the beam. Do things to best of your ability. Don't be an alarmist, neither be lackadaisical. Face fun and problems with some solid faith. Smile a lot.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius)—This is a day for you to show of what you are made. Hard hours? Well then, sturdy attitude to conquer. You can enjoy your day if you but put your mind to it. Stick at it and win.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Duel sort of day. For some it may be a big story for others, maybe not all successful, but no honest living or doing will go unrewarded. You can be the leader, get forth.

Britons Organize Small Armies In 90 Boroughs

London (CP) —A far-reaching plan to foster keener civilian interest in the development and consolidation of Britain's expanding territorial forces, has been launched by the war office.

Disclosing details of the plan, Maj.-Gen. C. F. Loewen, director of the territorial army and cadets, announced that 90 boroughs in London and the metropolitan areas of the home counties had been asked to set the scheme in motion.

The result of more than a year's study and preparation, its main objectives provide for:

1. Assurance that units are so distributed that servicemen can reach them conveniently and enter into their traditional life.

2. To train national servicemen suitably in their full-time service and in their part-time duties in the territorial army.

3. Strengthen local ties so that co-operation and understanding can be built up and common problems discussed and settled speedily.

Aimed at a spur to national pride in the reserve forces and to whip up the young man's spirit of service, the plan envisages the setting up of a "little army" within each borough. The idea will later be extended to other areas throughout the country.

By the time the buildup of the reserve army is completed in 1954, approximately 66,000 national-servicemen will be on call within the greater metropolitan area. Of this force, representing one-fifth of the total for the country, about 40,000 will go into the territorial army and the rest into the supplementary reserve.

All are required to put in 60 days' training annually during the remainder of their 3 1-2 years in the reserve.

Mood Teamwork

The scheme places special emphasis on the development of close teamwork between army and civilian authorities. Towards that end a committee will be appointed in each borough to promote and advance in every way possible local co-operation and feeling of ownership of the units.

The plan also provides for establishment of "rank friendly" to be drawn from interested local citizens. Their task will be to give advice and practical assistance as well as maintain liaison between the unit and the man-in-the-street.

Officers will be appointed by each territorial unit to assist in sorting out differences that may arise over a man's training duties and his job. Local firms are being invited to appoint special links of their own to keep managements in touch.

As a further step in development of closer relationships periodic area receptions are to be organized to bring together civic representatives and all ranks of the territorial units. Parades in honor of the boroughs and "at homes" at the territorial army centres, are also planned.

"I do not underestimate the complexities and above all the human problems of a scheme of this sort," said War Secretary Strachey. "What we now need is understanding and co-operation to make it work."

General Election Moved For Irish Republic

Dublin, Feb. 21 (AP) —Political writers are talking about the possibility of a general election in the Republic of Ireland this year.

Although the coalition government headed by personally-popular Prime Minister John Costello has given no indication that it intends to quit before its five-year term is up in 1953, the compromise cabinet is suffering from stresses and strains which threaten to tear it apart.

To combat rising prices and bring stability out of a growing inflationary situation, Costello's government instituted price freezes last Dec. 2.

It has been branded as a preeminently labor action penalizing the rest of the community. Manufacturers, the importers and shippers and everyone else concerned with the world market complain bitterly.

The coalition also is putting into effect a big social service program. Although it pleases many townsmen, it is arousing the farmers, who charge it is a big aimed solely at improving the lot of city laborers.

The bill has drawn the ire of the important Irish clergy on the same grounds.

Back of all these moves, they say, is vice-premier William Norton, who heads the Labor party of the coalition. Costello's fine Gael party, Republicans of the Minister of External Affairs Sean ...eBride, the Farmers Bloc, and the Independents of Agriculture ...inister James Dillon make up the rest of the coalition.

Three Face Charge Of Armed Robbery

Sudbury, Feb. 21—(CP)— Two men are in custody, charged with the armed robbery [illegible] of $207,000 from International Nickel Company payroll Monday. Police arrested the two men within minutes of the incident and recovered the stolen cheques—none negotiable.

An accident was a factor in the quick capture. They tried to escape in a stolen automobile and it hit a seven-year-old boy, John McCumber, and plunged into a snowbank. The boy was unhurt. The men left their car and took over a truck at gunpoint but were trapped in a lane between two police cruisers.

One man was arrested in the truck. The other fled and was arrested shortly after in a hotel room. Police said they are Jack Campbell, 27 of Sudbury and Fred Montgomery, 28, believed from Fenwick, near Welland.

Police said Montgomery first gave his name as Jack Chadwick. Both carried loaded revolvers, police said.

Both were remanded a week when arraigned in magistrate's court yesterday.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Puds Simkins, just walking along, and some lady in front of us dropped her handkerchief and kept right on going without noticing it.

Being a lady with high red heels and tha handkerchief being a little bit of a one with lace on it, and me and Puds both made a grab to pick it up, the result being we both stepped all over it trying to push each other out of the way, and I said, Heck, look at all the mud on it. That's your fault, Puds said, and I said in a hurry because you thawt she'd give you a reward if you ran after her with it I said.

Oh yeah? That just shows your guilty conscience, Puds said, and I said, No it dont, either, because I was just going to give it back to her out of good manners.

Well so was I and you can't prove different, Puds said, and I said, Well anyways, we can't give it back to her now, out of politeness or anything else, or she's libel to try to make us pay for it. She's libel to claim, it's ruined forever, I said.

But heck, we got to give it back to her now, according to law, Puds said. If you know who lost a thing and you dont return it, that's steeling. It's the law, he said, and I said, Heck, gosh hang the luck.

Which just then we saw the lady coming back looking as if she was looking for something, and Puds said, Oh boy, if she finds it by herself, that'll make us innocent.

And we quick went and sat on somebody's front steps as if that was the only place we had ever been, and the lady came up and saw her changed handerchief, saying, Well of all the stupid thawtless ignorant people.

Not meaning us especially but proving we were rite about the generel effect on her, and she gave it a mad push with her foot and kept on going without picking it up again, and so did me and Puds.

WHY WE SAY By Bob Hatfield "BUCKLE DOWN"

A knight in armor.

When we tell someone to "buckle down" today we seldom think of knights. But the expression comes from the buckling down of the armor that knights had to do before combat.

CAMPBELLFORD

Icy Roadway Said Cause Three-way Crash

Campbellford—A car and two trucks figured in a three-way smash about noon on Saturday here, and resulted in a considerable amount of damage to the three vehicles.

Mr. William Bertrand was driving a milk truck of Anderson's Dairy north on Mill Street, following a Bell Telephone Company truck, being driven by James L. Post, an employee of Davidson's Garage, where the truck was being repaired.

The driver of the Bell Telephone truck attempted to make a left turn into the garage, and was struck by the heavier truck travelling behind, which could not stop because of the icy roadway.

None of the three vehicles was seriously damaged. Chief Constable George H. Hardy investigated.

PRINCESS PATRICIAS MOVE INTO FRONT LINE

Canadian Army Brigade Will Fight in Korea

Bulk Will Leave Fort Lewis Within the Next Two Weeks

Ottawa, Feb. 22 — (CP) The 25th Canadian Army Brigade, 6,000 to 7,000 strong, will fight in Korea.

The bulk will leave Fort Lewis, Wash., within the next two or three weeks to join the one battalion already fighting under the United Nations banner.

The remainder of the Special Army Force, 3,000 to 4,000 men, will remain on this continent, probably to be built into another brigade which, in turn, would be sent to Europe.

Defence Minister Claxton told an approving House of Commons last night that Canada will field a full brigade in Korea at the request of the U. N.'s unified command, in effect the American Chiefs of Staff.

Slated to join it, under the over-all command of Brig. J. M. Rockingham of Vancouver, are the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment commanded by Lt.-Col. R. A. West of Fort William and Ottawa; the 2nd Battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment under Lt.-Col. J. A. Dextraze of Montreal; the 2nd Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery under Lt. - Col. A. J. S. Bailey of Duncan, B. C., as the supporting units.

Canada's decision to field a brigade in Korea means that the way is clear for formation of a Commonwealth division consisting of the Canadian formation and two British brigades.

The decision also indicates that the U. N. intends to keep on fighting in Korea now that the Chinese are on the defensive.

The term 25th brigade has no special significance. It would mean, for instance, that there are 24 other brigades in the army. There actually is one, the regular force airborne brigade group. Officials said when it was formed the number was picked out of the air.

Go By Boat

However, the fact that it is called the 25th and the two British Brigades in Korea are called the 27th and 28th Brigades is more than coincidence. It indicates that some formation will be created on the day when a commonwealth division would fight in Korea.

At Fort Lewis, Brig. Rockingham told his men yesterday that between 5,000 and 6,000 of them will be moving within two weeks. They are expected to go by boat.

There are 3,000 to 4,000 Canadians in Korea now.

The number of the special force probably will move from Fort Lewis to Wainwright, Alta., early soon. The corps consists of the 3rd battalions on the three infantry regiments remarked now as training battalions.

The fact they are staying in Canada is considered significant. The expectation is that a new brigade will be formed and that the booming recruiting totals for the regular army will be tapped to build it up. The idea would be reinforcements for both brigades, the one here and the one in Korea. In time, the brigade here would be ready to serve in Europe.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP) Synopsis: Considerable sunshine today will round out a week of mild weather in Southern Ontario.

However, colder weather now affecting northern regions is still pushing southward and will likely reach southern Ontario by Friday.

SETTLES IN CANADA

Prescott, Feb. 22. (CP)—A well-known Italian painter Mario Aircenti, has settled in Canada and is teaching art to residents of this St. Lawrence river district. One of the old world, he dislikes impressionistic and surrealistic art.

Allied Forces Sweep Northward On 60-Mile Front

Tokyo, Feb. 22 (AP) —Allied forces charged northward today on a 60-mile rainswept front, gaining to kill, maim or capture all but a few of the Communists in the valleys of central Korea.

Advances in the new offensive —"operation killer"—ranged up to 12 miles on the east-central sector and up to 8 1-2 miles on the central valley, north of Wonju.

Resistance was spotty most of the day but was stiffening at dusk as allied spearheads neared the main forces of the dug-in Chinese and North Korean reds.

Field dispatches reported the American division on the right flank of the United Nations line splashed 12 miles to within three miles south of the valley town of Pyongchang. Deep mud and red mines slowed the advance of other units in the area.

The new offensive committed strength was arrayed in and around Hoengsong, key point of Wonju in the central sector.

A tank-led American spearhead advanced to within four road miles of Hoengsong by nightfall. The Chinese earlier had fought briefly and then run — some in panic.

They were beset by rain, snow, fog, mud, washed-out bridges, raging streams and landslides. Such conditions virtually knocked close aerial support at outset. But U.S., Australian and South African planes roared through holes in the clouds to plaster red targets.

Teamed up in the new drive were American, British, Australian, New Zealand and Dutch German troops. They moved up behind tanks, the improvised guns, weapons, carriers and jeeps.

(Originally troops of nine countries including Canada, Greece, France, and India had been reported taking part in the drive, but the latter withdrew. Later the Eighth Army headquarters said those units had no part in the offensive were American, British, Australian, New Zealand and South African soldiers.)

MINERS IDLE

Lethbridge, Feb. 22 — (CP) — All 650 miners in the Lethbridge field were idle Wednesday as the area's three coal mines closed operations. A lack of orders was believed the reason.

At 80, Clerk of Township Believed Oldest Municipal Clerk in Canada

Rutherglen, Ont., Feb. 22 (CP) — A spry Irish youngster of 80 years is believed to be Canada's oldest municipal clerk both in age and in length of service.

For 52 years Mike Dunn has been handling the affairs of the Northern Ontario township of Bonfield, and during that time nine reeves have come and gone and 10 councils have attended the meetings of most of them.

Mr. Dunn's comeback who took over the clerk's post in 1897 at the request of Councillor Andrew Sheilds, a lumberjack who could quit or been fired with monotonous regularity, Mick can still handle an ax with pep and skill.

At 77 he taught himself to use the typewriter — "I'm a one-finger artist" — and the ladies of the area promptly descended on him to type programs for their bazaars and church festivals and what have you.

when as a slip of a lad of 10, fresh from Ireland, he worked as a waiter boy helping build the transcontinental C. P. R. line across Northern Ontario. He was paid 50 cents a day.

In those days it was a common sight to see 2,000 lumberjacks gather for the spring logging drive down the Ottawa River and Mick could can remember when Andrew Sheilds a legendary figure in those parts, used to barter with Indians by trading groceries piled on one end of a canoe against the weight of furs piled on the other end.

Mick can also remember when Rutherglen was moved lock, stock and barrel from its old site four miles away because nobody had settled in the original location. Today it is hard to find it difficult to remember children's names these days, although his clerking job is still an easy chore, he says.

CANADA TO GIVE WHEAT TO INDIA IN NEW PLAN

Contribution Will Help Battle Communism

Ottawa Feb. 22 (CP) — Free wheat for India and other material aid for Pakistan will be part of Canada's contribution in the anti-communist economic development plan for southeast Asia.

External Affairs Minister Pearson told the Commons yesterday that Canada will open discussions immediately with the Indian government on the wheat offer. Parallel discussions will be opened with the Pakistan government which wants Canadian raw materials and machinery.

Mr. Pearson said any wheat going to India—he did not know how much would be available—and any aid to Pakistan would be financed out of the $25,000,000 Canada has promised as a first-year contribution to the six-year Colombo plan for development of southeast Asia.

The wheat would be resold in India through the food-rationing system by the Indian government which would use the money to aid with the country.

The announcement came at the evening of the House which was to be discuss "routine members' business. Another highlight came just before the close when Defence Minister Claxton announced Canada will shortly dispatch a squadron and a special brigade—all except the third battalion—to Korea. This will give Canada 6,000 to 7,000 men in Korea, including the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, already there.

The House spent most of the time on a resolution by Robert Fair (C-Assiniboia) to one part road miles of Hoengsong by nightfall. The Chinese earlier had fought briefly and then ran — some in panic.

They were beset by rain, snow, fog, mud, washed-out bridges, raging streams and landslides. Such conditions virtually knocked close aerial support at outset. But U.S., Australian, and South African planes roared through holes in the clouds to plaster red targets.

Teamed up in the new drive were American, British, Australian, New Zealand and Dutch German troops. They moved up behind tanks, the improvised guns, weapons, carriers and jeeps.

(Originally troops of nine countries including Canada, Greece, France, and India had been reported taking part in the drive, but the latter withdrew. Later the Eighth Army headquarters said those units had no part in the offensive were American, British, Australian, New Zealand and South African soldiers.)

Miner Plunges 85 Feet Down Shaft to Death

Sudbury, Feb. 22 (CP) — A Finnish miner, Marco Jalich, 45, plunged 85 feet to his death in No. 7 shaft at Creighton Mine yesterday while directing a removal of timber preparatory to sinking the shaft.

Creighton Mine, 12 miles west of here, is owned by International Nickel Company.

As shaft leader, Jalich was in charge of timbermen and knew how he lost his footing and fell the remaining depth of the shaft to the bottom of the pit.

The body was recovered from the pit after the collapse of the shaft with grappling hooks.

He had worked 19 years at the mine.

He is survived by a wife and four children at Creighton.

THEIR FREEDOM WAS SHORT-LIVED

Freedom for two would-be bandits who stole $397,000 payroll belonging to International Nickel Co. at Sudbury, Ont., was shortlived. For suspects, 28-year-old John Campbell of Sudbury and 27-year-old John Montgomery of Fenwick, seen with Det.-Sergt. Matt Mercer, were captured within an hour after robbery. Money was snatched from company clerks just after they had left the bank. —

Churchill, Roused, Asks House If There's Not British Admiral Capable of Allied Command

London, Feb. 22 — (Reuters)— Winston Churchill growled like a bridled bear in the House of Commons today when Prime Minister Attlee announced that an American admiral will be appointed Supreme Commander of Allied naval forces.

"Is there not a British admiral capable of discharging these functions"? demanded Churchill, who bossed Britain's naval affairs during two World Wars and was firmly holds that Britannia rules the waves.

"How is it," he went on, "that when our experience is longer and wider than that of any other country, and when we have all agreed with so much pleasure that Gen. Eisenhower should command the armed forces on land, we should have to resign any claims we might be thought to have to command the sea?"

Churchill's cheers and hoots as Attlee replied that no power in the Atlantic Treaty Organization could dictate its views of any appointment and "I understand that the American admiral appointed was generally acceptable."

He said an official announcement would be made later.

(Unofficial reports have said that Admiral William M. Fechteler, Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Atlantic fleet, is the probable man for the job.)

No one country could insist on its right to some particular command, said Attlee, only to bring Churchill to his feet with the declaration:

"It was possible not very long ago for one country to sink 22% German U-boats compared to 17% by the United States" — a reference to the anti-submarine campaign of the British navy during the Second World War.

"No one is going to argue that I am hostile to the United States, but I don't think our country ought to have fallen so far into the wake of humility."

John Hynd, Labor M. P., joined the argument on Churchill's side. He said the world at large was beginning to think there was something wrong when the American had leadership of Atlantic forces on land, leadership of Korean forces, and now were apparently to have leadership of another force.

Charges Chinese Reds Tortured Roman Catholics Opposing Independent Church in China

New York, Feb. 22. (AP)— Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen yesterday accused Chinese communists of torturing Roman Catholics who refuse to join a red campaign to set up an independent Catholic church in China.

Msgr. Sheen's statement issued by the society for the propagation of the faith, of which he is director, said Chinese communists have been dynamiting missions, imprisoning nuns and torturing missioners and native priests, alike.

"A foreign power has no jurisdiction for priests today," it said, "is to sell their backs, fill the wounds with cotton soaked in gasoline and ignite it, turning the men into living torches.

"Nuns, both foreign and Chinese, have been stripped naked and dragged through the streets of Chinese cities tied to the tails of horses.

"The whereabouts of numerous priests, and of at least one Catholic bishop, is unknown."

Msgr. Sheen said the communist campaign for an independent Catholic church in China "follows the familiar communist pattern which attempts to set up a 'national Catholic church', free from Rome.

"We recognize the 'made-in-Moscow' label from having met it, previously, in Poland, Hungary and in Czechoslovakia," he said.

SHIP SINKS OFF TWO JIMA

Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Feb. 22 — (AP) — The Norwegian cargo ship Ramo sank Tuesday night in a storm about 150 miles southwest of Two Jima, the United States Navy said Wednesday. The British steamer Silvermaple picked up the master and 10 crew members of the 4,986-ton vessel. Information from the air — sea search and rescue headquarters at Guam said 11 men still are believed in one lifeboat adrift at sea.

PROCESS SECRET

Washington, Feb. 22 — (AP)— The Atomic Energy Commission yesterday said it has developed a process for extracting bomb-making uranium from phosphate rocks as a by-product of fertilized production. The process is secret. The Commission said that with the new development, uranium contained in phosphate deposits "can be extracted economically in the production of highly-refined fertilizer known as tri superphosphate."

POLICE OFFICERS PROTECTED BY NEW GOVT. BILL

Commissions Must Give Reasons for Firing

Toronto, Feb. 22 — (CP) Protection of municipal police officers from unexplained dismissal is provided in a bill introduced in the Ontario Legislature yesterday by Attorney-General Porter.

Mr. Porter did not mention the case of Mayor Allan J. Rush, former London, Ont., detective who successfully campaigned for Mayor of London on the issue of the refusal of that city's police commission to give reasons for firing him.

However, the government measure would remove from the present Police Act the provision that police could hold their jobs "during the pleasure" of police commissions. It would give order — in council power to the Ontario government to make regulations governing police suspension and dismissal.

A government - ordered investigation into the beating made in London by Mr. Justice W. D. Roach into the reasons for the dismissal of Rush, was begun Monday for an airing of his case were refused by the commission that fired him.

Mr. Porter said the new bill aims at setting up procedure to let a dismissed policeman obtain information about his dismissal and gain a hearing of his case.

The Legislature today resumed the Throne Speech debate. Premier Frost said yesterday he hopes to have the legislature ended time for the provincial budget to be brought down the first week of March.

Five opposition members' bills were given first and then killed, yesterday's "private members day."

Three proposals to provide minimum paid holidays of two in a year, one week, and a proposal to reduce the maximum workweek from 48 to 40 hours were given six-month postponements on recorded votes of 42 to 29.

Bill Defeated

A similar vote defeated a bill by Eamon Park (CCF—Toronto Dovercourt) to amend the Ontario Labor Relations Act to provide compulsory municipal election candidates.

Of the other proposals blocked by government members for a six-month postponement, L. F. K. Fell (CCF—Toronto Parkdale) and Donald Bell (Liberal—Toronto St. Andrew) sponsored bills for two-week holidays after one year's employment. Alex Salesbury (L.-Waterloo North) sponsored a bill for two-weeks holidays after two years' employment. Mr. Salesbury lost on a bill for a maximum 40-hour work week.

In each case a solid vote of C.C.F., Liberal and Labor Progressive Party members lost to a government majority.

Texas Monument Maker Chips Away At New 'Stone of Scone' for England

Goldthwaite, Tex., Feb. 22—AP —Inconvertible value of a new monument maker is chipping out a replacement for Britain's missing Stone of Scone, just because he's friendly.

Ira Stocky E. B. Adams of Goldthwaite wrote the British ambassador:

"We are well aware that there can be no recompense for the irreplaceable value of the stone. But we do feel that our proposal also will result in a gift that will carry its own appreciation as an expression of friendship between your people and ours."

The Stone of Scone, ancient symbol of the British kings, was stolen from Westminster Abbey on coronation chair in London's Westminster Abbey on coronation day last Christmas Day. Scotland had believes Scottish Nationalists stole the stone, which was taken from Scotland by England's King Edward I.

"You're always talking about being friendly to the people of other countries," said Allen. "Why don't you make a Stone of Scone for the people of England?"

"Well, I will," said Adams, who is of English-Irish ancestry.

Since then Goldthwaite having heard something about a law that requires visitors cant communicate with heads of foreign states.

"Who do I write about this?" he asked R. H. Atkins, editor and publisher of the Goldthwaite Times.

"You'd better write the State Department," Atkins said.

Adams hunted until he found just the right kind of sandstone. He rounded up magazine pictures showing details of the original Stone of Scone. And he wrote his letter to Ambassador Franklin Lewing: "I will appreciate your advice as to how the presentation should be handled.

Now he's chiseling away at the new Stone of Scone and awaiting his reply.

Take Over Position Recently Occupied By U.S. Forces

Permitted to See Mistake Made by Not Posting Guard

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

With the Canadians in Korea, Feb. 22 (CP) —Canada's Princess Patricias were in the front line today.

The Patricias overlooked the village of Kudun, five miles east of the tiny settlement of Chipyong, after investing two series of hills between Chipyong and the burned out village of Norae. United Nations forces choked up a fresh gain of 2 1-4 miles southeast of Chipyong where untill recently beleaguered French and American troops were encircled by communists forces.

The Patricias lived to look at Kudun perhaps because they profited from the experience of the last United Nations troops to move ahead of Communist-United States' infantrymen who made the mistake of sleeping after taking a town.

Many Stark Naked

As they advanced toward the front yesterday, the Canadians saw the bodies of the Americans left, many stark naked, killed in flight as they struggled out of their sleeping bags and attempted to get away.

The Patricias learned that their predecessors bedded down after taking the village and posted a solitary sentry instead of digging in and maintaining a proper watch.

The Chinese silently established a road block behind the Americans and attacked from the front, moving down the awakened troops mercilessly.

Maj. Gordon Henderson of Calgary, Alta., and Vancouver, B.C., the Patricias' commanding officer.

While Col. Stone was forward reconnoitering, Major Henderson told of the Patricias' first action — the occupation of a territory abandoned by apparently withdrawing communists — abandoned.

The Patricias moved with Sherman medium United States tanks, U.S. heavy mortars and New Zealand artillery.

St. Thomas' Ch. Allowed to Sell Land to Company

Toronto, Feb. 23 (CP) —A bill which ends a 120-year-old Royal Grant clause on a plot of land in Belleville was approved by the legislature's private bills committee today.

It will allow St. Thomas Anglican Church to sell to the Bell Telephone Company one plot of the land which was granted to the church in 1830 by King George IV. The original grant provided that the land would be held by the King and his successors for the use of the church.

The bill would also amend a bill to extend the Belleville bus franchise of Thomas Frederick Hawson for 10 years. Malcolm Robb, solicitor, told the committee that the city had neglected to take the proper steps for renewal of the franchise and required special legislation.

Use Icebreaker To Remove Flood Danger

Chatham, Feb. 22—(CP)— The ice breaker Atomic today was in the River Thames steaming through four feet of ice in the vicinity of Jeanette's Creek. The icebreaker arrived last night from Amherstburg after an 18-hour trip.

The Thames is continuing to rise slowly but there has been no general break-up of ice.

Orval Crow of Prairie Siding, representing the lower Thames ice-jam committee on the tug, said over the radio-telephone that when the Atomic has finished its job the danger of flooding will be minimized.

Fishing Pole Thief Gets Year in Jail

Hamilton, Feb. 22 (CP)—Complaints about a Peeping Tom and prompt police action last night resulted in the capture of Hamilton "fishing pole" thief. In police court today 21-year-old Kenneth Devine admitted a separate theft over the last six months.

Appearing on three counts of theft, he was sentenced to two months on a day concurrent on each charge.

Devine told police that he had never entered a home. He used a long pole to fish articles from rooms through open windows.

Detective Gerald Brant said captured Devine on what had started over the telephone in complaint of a "Peeping Tom" complaint. Two men had called police on the complaint at a Main Street apartment building and they spotted a man who fled.

A search of the premises turned up a pair of binoculars and a fishing pole beside it. The man was reported seen near a Carrick Avenue home where detective Reed apprehended him.

55-Year Service Emblem Presented To J.W. Redner

For the first time in the history of this district, an emblem for 55 years service has been presented to a railroader. And in the same time, two brothers were honored for having enrolled 45 years each in railroad service.

John W. Redner, retired trackmaster, was presented with a 55-year emblem the first such award issued by Lodge 108 of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. General yardmaster James W. Ross pinned the award on Mr. Redner.

Two brothers, Anson J. Jordan and William J. Jordan, had another first in local railroad history. They pinned identical records of 45 years of service on each other. Both are retired conductors.

Mr. Redner has been retired for a number of years, but is in good health. His hobbies are sailing and fishing. He is the proud owner of a captain's certificate. He also holds a stationary engineer's ticket.

Members of the lodges presented Mrs. Redner with a bouquet of roses as her husband received his award. Percy Alexander sanded the emblem, and Charles Funnell was master of ceremonies for the event.

Magistrate W. T. Wallace, Justice of Peace, Mrs. R. Cooper, will take over the office now used by Judge Anderson.

Alterations to the magistrate's court room are now virtually completed while this week workmen commenced on the sheriff's office and on the ground floor the magistrate's court room which is to be fitted for use by Sheriff Solmes.

Dog Catcher, Constable 'Rassle' And Corral Pig

City dog catcher Charles Thorn and Constable Charles Lockwood of the city police department were called on to act in the role of pig jockeys Wednesday afternoon following the report of a half grown porker roaming in a backyard on Grier Street.

It was exactly a case of catching the greasy pig, but the two officers reported the porker gave them quite a "rassle" before he was corralled and returned to the proper owner. They cornered the porker in the yard of J. and J. Cash Ltd.

Earlier in the afternoon, Jack Whitefield, Foxboro Road, reported to the police department that the pig had escaped from the livestock sales building north of the city.

The car driven by Nagel was in a headon collision with another car driven by Robt. Slavin of th's city, seriously injuring Mr. Slavin.

Getting back to the Trenton Boxing Club opening up in a make-shift gym candidates enrolling for training will be tutored by two men who have put through the school of hard knocks and both held Brockville and district championships.

Good Coaches

In one corner no doubt will be featherweight champ Pyck Zigman, 31, who won-out O.A.A. building as club headquarters and aims to handle some of the boys. His friend and former flyweight champ of Brockville and countryside will be giving him a hand.

Jack Dean, recreation commission chairman, has put his shoulder to the wheel of the Trenton boxers worthy cause and has arranged to set up an underdating, speed bag, heavy bag and skipping rope for conditioning. Mr. Dean's efforts will not stop at organizing but will be combined with actual training and instruction.

Mr. Dean feels that enough progress will be made by four weeks time when outside talent will be sought for a benefit boxing and amateur boxing show. Trenton Club officials have invited especially boys from Belleville to take part in training and join up with the outfit. Anybody, honorary or otherwise is welcome.

And while speaking on a sport commission chairman Jack Dean sent out a request to contact the old Lakeshore group of O.A.A.A. which was made up of softball teams from Bloomfield, Point Anne, R.C.A.F., Cobourg and Trenton and operated in a very lucrative manner for about some years back. Mr. Dean thought that the intermediate brand of ball dished up in those days would again appeal-to the fans. He considered short distances travelled and that would cut team travelling to a minimum and appeal to league entries.

It is Mr. Dean's fond hope to have a couple of representatives from the teams in the old Lakeshore group.

75-Foot Retaining Wall Collapses No One Injured

New York, Feb. 22. (AP)— A huge 75-foot-long retaining wall collapsed with a roar last night, releasing a muddy avalanche of bricks and earth that hit a Bronx apartment building with staggering force.

No one was injured, but 25 families were forced to leave their homes lest the damaged building and another nearby collapse.

The 17-foot-high brick wall tore from the side of the Bronx apartment to a lower level where a second apartment stands. Behind it are tons of earth upon which the higher apartment rests.

Half of the retaining wall let go suddenly, front of brick, rock, rubble and mud plunged at high speed into the rear of the lower-level apartment building.

Windows were shattered and their frames twisted. Plaster cracked and fell from walls and ceilings. The walls of the apartments did not collapse but were bowed inward by the great weight of the slimy debris.

Three Men Die As Car Strikes Radial Train

Brantford, Feb. 22. (CP)—A level-crossing crash of an automobile and a two-car radial train in Preston, south of Brantford killed two young men from the Tillsonburg district and an elderly hitch-hiker.

The victims were Johannes Schoenmaker, 22, described by police as the driver of the car, and Henry Van Den Brugge, 23, both of R.R. 2, Tillsonburg, and George Stickles, 82, of Waterford, who had been picked up by the hitch-hiking a ride to Brantford.

Police said the car crashed into the middle of the electric train near the point where the eastern section is installed and dragged 100 feet before it was thrown free.

Motorman of the Lake Erie and Northern Railway said the two-car passenger and express train set out from Brantford for Port Dover, about 30 miles south on Lake Erie, at 6.56 a.m. a few minutes after 7 a.m. The crash occurred about 15 minutes later. The radial line runs from Kitchener to Port Dover.

Motorman of the radial was Harry Halberstadt of R.R. 2, Preston, and the conductor was Arthur Jeskins of Preston. The third member of the train crew was Clarence Wagner, baggage man, also of Preston.

One report was that the train carried only one passenger at the time of the accident at the Maple Grove level-crossing.

The two young men were described as Dutch immigrants who worked on tobacco farms in this southwestern Ontario district.

Conductor Jeskins said the driver of the car made no attempt to stop for the crossing, although a wig-wag danger signal warned of the train's approach. Jeskins said the road surface was frosty.

New Trenton Boxing Club Has Starry Array of Talent

Trenton (Special)—In about a week's time the Trenton Boxing Club organized the night before last will swing into action in improvised quarters behind the scrap iron yard on Front Street. And what an array of talent they have to start off with. Probably the most colorful and best known around these parts will be that one time great "Jiber Jaber Jiber" thumped everything his size and weight in these parts a few years back.

Big Sammy's brother "Jiber" over a handful of 500 rumble cards in the fireball yesterday announced his comeback.

Boys who followed the clouters back before the last war will remember "Jiber" as the slugger who struck terror into the hearts of some of Eastern Ontario's best and had a match slated with lightsted "Hub" Smith which never materialized. A grudge match it was considered better for sport's sake and all concerned to cancel the bout. Nevertheless the proposed 10 round battle created more controversy around the streets and in the press than a Joe Louis comeback struggle would today.

Former Talent

It will be remembered "Jiber" and "Hub" were to meet in one of the airport hangars. Those were the days when fights brought local promoters real cash awards. Could have been that the talent was top class and commanded respect from the followers. Anyway boxing was good back in 1937 and a fight that would have packed a big aircraft hangar to overflowing flopped. So blow cancelled to start boiling on the downhill grade around the district.

Some of the other battlers who gave the customers their monies worth included Howard Colle, Harry Smith, Bob White and Arlie Baudoe. They were eager wrapers with dynamite in each fist. They sent home satisfied customers.

Juror at First Refuses to Obey Verdict of 'Not Guilty', Ordered by Presiding Judge

Peterborough, Feb. 22—(CP)— A petit juror at an Ontario Supreme court trial refused at first to obey a "directed verdict of not guilty" as ordered by Mr. Justice R. T. Ferguson.

Though twice told by Mr. Justice Ferguson that it was the jury's duty to take their law from him, the juror, Roy Pitchford, a Peterborough photographer, refused to do so.

He was permitted to address the court and said his conscience wouldn't allow him to bring in the "not guilty" verdict. After having registered this protest, he complied with Mr. Justice Ferguson's direction and voted with the other jurors.

The action came as a climax to the day-long trial of Mrs. Amelia Elizabeth R. Warren, on charges of manslaughter and dangerous driving. Mrs. Warren was charged with the death of five-year-old Garry Faiers, who was struck down on a street here last October 14, and fatally injured.

Jury Retires

When it came time to charge the jury, Mr. Justice Ferguson told them to retire while he spoke to counsel.

"What possible evidence of negligence have we in this case before I allow it to go to the jury?" he asked crown attorney John Bradshaw.

Mr. Bradshaw said that a zigzagging trail of 215 feet of skid marks and the severity of the force of the accident was an indication of speeding and negligence.

Mr. Justice Ferguson then recalled the jury and informed them there was no indication of criminal negligence.

"I must direct you to bring in a verdict of 'not guilty,'" he said.

Then he asked that the jury be polled, usually considered a formality. The foreman, John O'Neill of Peterborough asked if they could retire and discuss the verdict.

When the jury returned five minutes later, the foreman announced that they couldn't reach agreement. A show of hands in the box showed four in disagreement with acquittal.

"The fellows feel a lesser charge should have been laid," said the foreman.

Mr. Justice Ferguson explained that they must find on the indictment: manslaughter and dangerous driving.

"This is not open to debate," he said. "It can't make it any plainer. As a matter of law there is no evidence for a conviction on the charges of the indictment."

The dissenting jurors then all agreed on acquittal with the exception of Pitchford. Through the foreman they requested permission to speak.

"I have the highest regard for your knowledge," said Pitchford. "I am a man who drives a car . . . enjoy the occasional drink and I have three children.

"These are the facts that prevent my conscience from being persuaded. My experience of law is not to be considered against yours; so having expressed myself that way I change my views and agree with the rest of the jurymen."

Finally, the court Pitchford said he only gave way because he felt "legally compelled" to do so.

Tax Exemption Appeal Dismissed

Ottawa, Feb. 22—(CP) — The income tax appeal board has dismissed the appeal of Joseph E. Dunkelman, Toronto man, who sought to claim tax exemption for income derived from a trust fund established for his three children.

About $7,000 was involved, covering the years 1946, 1947 and 1948, and derived from a $16,000 property purchased from The Canadian Bank of Commerce in Belleville.

Counsel for Mr. Dunkelman contended that though the law calls for exemption of income derived from transfer of property to a minor...there never had been any transfer; for Mr. Dunkelman never had owned the Belleville property.

"It is true that the appellant never owned the building or the land on which it was built" said the board in a judgment made public today, "but the appellat at one time owned the money with which the property was purchased."

"In this case, the buildig purchased was substituted for the amount of money owned by the appellant and advanced by him to the trust."

Sioux Slated For Korea Again

Ottawa, Feb. 22—(CP)—The destroyer Sioux is slated to have a second crack at the Korean war. She got back to Canada Feb. 4 after six months of operations.

The navy said today she is due to sail April 8 on her second trip to those waters but that about 40 per cent of her crew will be non-veterans of Korea. About 120 of her men are being posted to schools and elsewhere to open the way for others to get operational experience.

The Sioux will relieve the Athabaskan, The former is commanded by Cmdr. Paul D. Taylor of Victoria, the latter by Cmdr. R. P. Welland, Victoria. The Athabaskan will be the last of the original three destroyers to return from Korea.

Ends First Phase Study for Atomic Propelled Planes

Washington, Feb. 22. (AP)—The U.S. Air Force and the Atomic Energy Commission announced today completion of the first phase of study leading to atom-powered aircraft.

A joint statement on the conclusion of their "Nexus" project (Nuclear energy for propulsion of aircraft) said "other projects being supported by the air force and the A.E.C. in the field of Nuclear- powered flights will be continued."

The statement made no mention of who will head the next phase, but it is understood that it will be the General Electric Company's Gaz Turbine Division at Lockland, Ohio.

The next phase will be closer to the building of an atomic engine, presumably starting with some experimental components.

CHAMPION SKINNER

Champion skinner of small furbearing animals in Northern Ontario is Eglin McKee of Metagama north of Sudbury, Ont. He is shown at work on a beaver at the annual meeting of the Ontario Trappers Association, McKee set a record of seven minutes, 2 1-5 seconds in defeating Fred Burnham of St. Charles. TAKE OVER cluded a rugged 1,200-foot hill. A third under Maj. George Flint of Montreal went over the forward slopes and sent a patrol into Kudun.

Meanwhile, a company under Maj. Bill Stutt of Edmonton and Calgary had become "sort of a palace guard," Stark quipped. He had taken over British battalion's at Noean preparatory to the battalion's shore-off. Finally he found himself so far behind that the brigadier was scouting the area as a possible future headquarters.

In the same area an English regiment, which took over the U.S. infantrymen's sector, had broken a 600-strong Chinese attack. The Chinese assaulted in waves but the British stood firm. The Chinese carried off their wounded but left 62 dead.

The British Scotch

Throughout the day's advance, the Patricias kept in touch with Scottish troops to the east.

Accents of many varieties are likely to be heard over the Canadian wireless links in this theatre.

Pte. Jim Nelson of Vancouver, an operator at Col. Stone's headquarters, said: "At first today I couldn't get a word at all. First cockney, then Australian, later still Scotch—it took me a while to get them sorted out. I think we've got 'em beat now though."

The battalion's move from Mitzyang in the south was uneventful through scenic, if cold, countryside.

Major Stutt said that the night his company was holding the front it was only about zero. But "it was colder than anything I experienced in the air force," and the A.E.C. in the field of Nuclear- powered flights will be continued."

The statement made no mention of who will head the next phase, but it is understood that it will be the General Electric Company's Gaz Turbine Division at Lockland, Ohio.

The next phase will be closer to the building of an atomic engine, presumably starting with some experimental components.

War Office Calls One-Armed Man From Toronto

London, Feb. 22 (CP)—A War Office spokesman said today it is "quite possible" a call-up notice has been mistakenly sent to a one-armed former anti-aircraft officer who now lives in Toronto.

He was commenting on British press reports that 32-year-old Geoffrey Ronald Darby has been summoned for 15 days training in May. The call-up papers went to Darby's father in the London suburb of Chiswick.

The summons follows Britain's recent decision to recall nearly 250,000 reservists — for 45 days' training this summer. The War Office spokesman said that in recalling so many men some mistakes were bound to occur.

From Toronto, the Daily Express quoted Darby as saying he would come back to Britain if the War Office would pay his return fare. But the War Office said this would be necessary — the call-up notice would be withdrawn.

Darby, now a printer in Toronto, emigrated to Canada last November with his wife and two children. He lost his right arm in a motorcycle accident while serving with an artillery regiment.

Anti-Communist Persuasion Works Behind 'Curtain'

Number voting in the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic last Sunday for the Supreme Soviet (legislature)—64,321,310—99.98 per cent of the total 64,333,212 eligible voters.

Number voting for the government's communist and non-party bloc candidates — 64,665,567 — 99.76 percent of those voting.

The government announced these results today. Ten of the Soviet Union's 16 republics elected legislatures on Sunday's elections. The Russian republic is much the largest of the 16.

Unanimous election of Prime Minister Stalin to a legislative seat already had been announced. Among other politburo members elected were V. M. Molotov, G. M. Malenkov, L. Beria, N. S. Khruschev and N. A. Bulganin.

Composer Dmitri Shostakovich was elected from a Leningrad district in Moscow's Shchelkovo district and Pierre Li-Gen, Vassily Stalin, the Generalissimo's son, also was elected.

Flu Epidemic/ Still Hitting Schools, Shops

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada's waning outbreaks of colds and influenza cut attendance at schools, shops and factories in many communities again today.

A Canadian Press survey showed however, that a steady return to work and classes is continuing, even in communities where winter illnesses have struck hard during the last two weeks.

In Toronto, where an outbreak is said to be slackening with clearing weather, hospitals kept a ban on visiting. Authorities blamed flu for the death of a 32-year-old nurse-assistant last night and of a 61-year-old man yesterday.

Of the 200 public school teachers in Windsor Ont., 24 were off sick. Officials said this was about 10 more than usual.

Hamilton Street Railway service has been cut down temporarily by illness of about 25 of its 750 drivers.

Prescott, 12 miles east of Brockville closed its collegiate institute and public schools until an outbreak in that area ends.

Other communities battling outbreaks include Kirkland Lake, Ont., Sarnia, Kenora, Sault Ste. Timmins, Ont., Winnipeg, Edmonton, Dundas, Ont., and Ancaster, Ont.

Sudbury Epidemic Over

Sudbury's flu epidemic appears to be over said Dr. J. B. Cook, medical officer of health, who added that some tapering off would occur and anti-flu precautions should not be abandoned.

Since the outbreak began two weeks ago, between 2,000 and 3,000 persons are believed to have been stricken in Sudbury, Dr. Cook said.

In Rouyn, Que., two separate schools which re-opened Tuesday after a slight decline in sickness, in New Liskeard public and separate schools remained closed although the high school re-opened after a three-day shutdown. The Haileybury school is to open Monday but Cobalt schools are not scheduled to re-open until March 5.

Ex-Pupil Now 87 Presents Teacher, 100, With Apple

Eddie Murray, 87, had grown indeed, since he was a schoolboy in Miss Smith's class. They met yesterday at a party marking Miss Smith's 100th birthday.

"Yes, I remember you—you were good in geography and arithmetic," she said.

Murray grinned and held out a shiny apple.

BRIDGE SHAKY

Toronto, Feb. 22 — (CP) — A 60-year-old bridge in Toronto's East End is in shaking condition and should be replaced before it falls down, the city's works committee recommended Wednesday. Deputy works commissioner Leslie Allan said vehicles are limited to a speed of 10 miles an hour on the bridge and heavy vehicles are not permitted to use it.

Yard Office Wins By 6-3 Score In CNR Finals

The Yard Office team took the first game of the Canadian Pacific Railways Belleville Interdepartmental Hockey League finals this morning when they defeated the Firemen, 6-3 in the opening tilt of the three-of-five series. The second game will be played in Memorial Arena next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The tilt was a heavy-checking affair with eleven penalties handed out by Referees Red Carson and Vern Glover, one of them a misconduct to Foster.

They led 4-0 at the end of the first period but were held scoreless in the second while the Firemen rattled home a single counter. Both teams scored twice in the third heat with the Firemen battling hard in the final minute in an effort to cut down the margin.

Nolan sparked the Yard Office team with two goals and two assists with Loveless getting a pair. Graham, Hurst and Bull accounted for the remainder of the tally with Graham drawing a pair of assists.

Lupinette starred for the losers getting a goal and two assists while Corbett, Bowerman and Burley shoved home Lupinette's assists to score the final Firemen tally.

Yard Office Wins By 6-3 Score In CNR Finals

(By JACK CAMPBELL)

Under the bright, blazing lights of the YMCA gym, an uninspiring group of spectators, saw a dark and foreboding future for the damaged bones who took a trouncing of 40-8 from the stinging, sharp-shooters of the Intermediates. And the dark clouds of despair were upon the 'unelectric' Electrics who despite their valiant attempts, were driven deep into the dust with a 22-7 defeat hanging over their heads. Thus, the girls from Dundas Street and from the radio-assembly lines of Northern, "the two underdog teams of the league", were casting a weary yet hopeful eye at the score boards, for despite the lopsided total, they realized they had come a long way since their inauguration into men's basketball.

With keen, eyes, the BCI bombshells took the command from the onset, laying lengthy shot after shot into the hoop-net, until it looked like the swishing skirt of a hula-hula dancer. Flying Faulkner really played hard-to-get" and constantly evaded her check with split-time, to finally score a 12-point pinnacle for her BCI sisters. The beautiful, bouncing Bennetts were at it again. Barb and her second half—Anne—rang the proverbial bell for another 14 point donation to the cause. And dancing Diane Gourley, not the score-keeper's fingers tired and his pencil whirling with her 8-point clinic. This was an exhibition of sharp-shooting, exciting Intermediates—40.

Lineups: J. Faulkner 12, J. Clark 2, J. Smith 8, S. Faulkner, D. Gourley 8, A. Bennett 6, B. Bennett 6, D. Lawrence 2, S. Winters, J. Varcoe, P. Campbell 2. Descon—4.

Business Girls 22, Electrics 7

The bustling, Business ladies really got their hooks in to balance this week with their hardscrapping, rough-pasting team calculating up a 22-7 win over the high-voltaged Electrics who despite their unpolished ways, could make any men's teams look precious points to take the match single handed. Cousins, ever the inspiring and efficient passing really set an example for any player and pushed herself into the 8 point total. Don't think the Electrics were sleeping, though. Double barrelled, Betty Young, a continual driver, clicked into high gear with her sharp, hook-passing and her neat one-hand set shots. And the "Tnt" Dot Taylor exploded up and down the floor to run her check ragged while at the same time accounting for the points Barb didn't get.

Lineups:

Business Girls 22: M. Cousins 6, M. Niblock, E. Locke, S. Day, D. McLean 2, J. Mathews 2, R. Chambers, S. Culkin 10, D. Poulton 2.

Northern Electric 7: B. Young 5, H. Reeves, B. Robron, B. Alborn, T. Howard, J. Smith, M. Thibaudeau, D. Taylor 4.

The "most valuable" player award" went as follows: Shirley Culkin really deserved top honors with her high scoring and all-round, clever playing. Betty Thrasher, who has certainly shown remarkable improvement since her baptism into this sport also took awards. Anne Bennett opened everyone's eyes with her dead-eye shooting while Barbara Robson stood out with Leola Putnam as solid citizens. It is interesting to note, that these girls who play here on Wednesday nights, have that do-or-die attitude and deservedly do their utmost for their teams.

UNSEASONABLE WEATHER

Sign of snowflakes yesterday was a very welcome sight and a relief from the damp soggy weather which is so unwintry. The reason is of course that colder weather is more seasonable and it is generally accepted as more healthy. This season seems especially sound at a time when there are a good number of people ill with colds and the usual ills of winter time and there is in some places an epidemic of influenza.

Those who usually find the winter long have a satisfaction now that there is less than a month of winter remaining. That does not say that there will not be more snow in the latter part of March and even some in April, but it does mean that winter is aging fast, more than two thirds of the season having passed.

The forces of nature are on the side of the coming spring season. Rough as March sometimes is and even as early April may possibly be, the winter is on the way out, blustery though it may become from time to time. The approaching season has all the compelling power of nature on its side as it shows gains on all fronts, the days are lengthening and many of the usually hard periods of the winter are gone.

That time will not be very far off when nature will become tempestuous as winter draws to its close or as April steps in.

It is of course too early to expect evidences of the spring season now and it is better so. Let winter be winter while it is winter, rather than so mild as in the recent spell.

More rugged weather is better for the health of individuals and in due time will come the spring with its compensations for all the evidences of winter's autocratic rule.

HIDING THEIR FACES

The Hamilton Spectator has a very impressive article which is worth reading for the manner of those who are against the law, that is the 'toughs.' In an editorial headed "They Hide Their Faces," the writer says, "when the law catches up with the toughs as it usually does it and the police take them in, the young badmen make a sorry looking spectacle. Invariably they hide their faces with their hands, their hats, a neck muffler or handkerchief. There is something grimly ludicrous about these attempts to cover up something extremely tragic, too, that any one in the early years of adulthood could be so thick in the head as to throw away the best years of life and bring shame and heartbreak to those close to him.

"But the hiding of the face when arrested is what puzzles newspaper readers. The practice appears to be universal among the low-brows and is sharply out of character with the bluster with which too often marks a gangster's behavior at the time a crime is committed.

"These morons of the hoodlum breed go swaggering into branch banks, small neighborhood stores and even the homes of peaceful citizens. They waylay a lone pedestrian on some dark street. Any weapon from a gun, an ugly looking knife or a heavy bottle will serve their fell purpose. They snarl out of the side of their mouths; they delight in shoving decent persons around, terrifying old helpless folk, even torturing them, knocking them down and 'putting the boots to them.' Do they consider themselves to be cowardly brutes, lacking every manly attribute? Not at all. As long as they can get away with it, and thus hustle a few bank bucks, they believe that they are the real 'stuffero.' Those Hollywood crime pictures don't quite know what the score actually is; for a smart cookie never gets nabbed.

"That is where they are so stupidly wrong. So, when the 'nab' inevitably comes, they start to hide their faces—the so-called big shots and the punks alike. It seems to be part of the underworld's code. It could be something that stems from a living caught. Or it might be the crushing revelation that, along with the impending processes of the law, is the penalty of ostracism that has to be borne. For soon the knowledge must become widespread of who the rats are.

"Whatever the motive that prompts the gesture of facial concealment, it earns little but contempt from law-abiding citizens whose reaction is: 'They may well try to hide their faces!'

"The swagger and the snarls depart."

ROYAL EXAMPLE

A royal example has been set by Their Majesties the King and Queen who have bought for their grandchildren Prince Charles and Princess Anne the first 15-shilling certificates in Britain's new National Savings Series.

Such can be an inspiration and example not only to the family of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip Edinburgh but to the people everywhere. The example will not go unheeded in Britain where the British people have learned to practise economy especially in the past few years and in the present.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1951, Edgar A. Guest)

THE GREAT AND HUMBLE

Worse off I'm sure this world would be,
And rather the blows of fate,
Without the gracious company
Of all who never will be great.

Who'd stop to comfort the bereft
Or help some faltering youth along,
If every need of life were left
To Society to the wise and strong?

Who'd take the humble heart and mind,
Which gives to life the gracious touch,
To whom then should we look to find
The thoughtful care we need so much?

'Tis simple folk who make the throng,
And choose of life the humble way,
Who give the aid the great and strong
Are much too busy to provide.

'Cheap American shoes are, on the whole, better looking than cheap Canadian shoes. But they are just cheap shoes, regardless of their appearance. If you want shoes as good as Canadian shoes in the United States, you pretty hat, be crisp, so cocky, turns out not to be straw, scientific, stylish, and at a distance every bit as good as straw, you understand; but not out of doors.

The inclination of a Canadian shopping in the United States with only $100 worth to bring home is to buy as many things as possible of the cheaper kind, therefore to err on the side of cheapness. To suggest that you cannot buy good things in the United States is absurd. But to get those good things, you have to pay more for them than for their equivalent in Canada. It is that chic, that style, that shine, that false appearance of quality which Americans excel in, that imparting to their cheap goods which fools Canadians. In Canada, good old honest Canada, cheap things look cheap.

Six Convicted On Moral Charges

Kitchener, Feb. 22 — (CP) — Three teen-aged girls, a 15-year-old boy, a woman and a man were convicted Wednesday, and three acquittals were made in this district's most sensational morals case in years.

The man, who had been keeping company with her, was fined $100 or a month in jail on a charge of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Three parents were acquitted after testifying they had no knowledge of their daughters' improper conduct.

OUR TOWN

LAW BREAKERS

Anyone who had led a sheltered well-insulated life and never been inside a cabaret or night club might have a serious idea of the people involved.

Reading this column in the past four days which we have been devoting to a study of the city's nightly flaunting of the liquor laws, one might imagine that the celebrants were mobsters, thugs, alcoholic bums or the work kind or riff-raff.

This is not the case. Some undoubtedly characters, of course, are represented wherever society blooms after dark, but nine out of ten of the people encountered are decent, usually law-abiding citizens, from all walks of life, who just happen to like to go out at times, enjoy the odd drink or two (or three) and hate the idea of feeling guilty about breaking the law.

• • •

A large number of these people drink more than they ought to, but in the main they are harmless and altogether ludicrous system of drinking that prevails.

It stands to reason that a man with a big fat bottle of spirits is more vulnerable to the charge of illegal drinking than one who is ordering an ounce at a time. At any rate, this being the case, the fact that almost any night, around midnight, you will see more drunks in Vancouver's night clubs than in the sinful City of New Orleans. Indeed, a certain fake glamour has come to surround drinking in our town, as it did in the United States during prohibition, because people are conscious of breaking the laws and because they are compelled to purchase stimulants in the large, family size.

• • •

Some of the nicest people in town do this. The dining room manager of the Hotel Vancouver, for example, one may see what appears to be a perfectly proper Wednesday or Saturday night trying stubbornly to preserve an air of sophistication while sipping from large bottles.

All sorts of people attend the Panorama Roof before the war it was the custom of the society pages of the newspapers to print the names of those present."

Then and now the guest list might include an attorney general or police chief, doctors, lawyers and professional men, business men, the racing Set and many leading citizens.

The Panorama Roof was one of six night spots observed Wednesday, February 14 in the fourth night of our survey of the city's illegal drinking.

In all, some 850 persons were observed drinking and 101 bottles of rye, Scotch, rum and gin were counted. There was no police action.

An estimated 360 persons were observed at "the Roof" between 8:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. A total of 46 liquor bottles and two 15-ounce bottles were observed in one section.

Most drinks were poured here discreetly under the rim of the table although in eight cases drinks were poured openly. In two instances men moved from one table to another, carrying their partly-consumed bottles with them.

Because the Wednesday affair is a dinner dance, winding up before 11 p.m., there is no liquor may be seen not only being carted into the premises (under coats in hand cases), but also being taken away.

Only five empty 26-ounce bottles were observed under tables at 10:30 p.m. More than 20 men were seen leaving the Roof with half-empty bottles.

One young woman carried her empty bottle, waving it gaily and playfully at friends. One middle-aged man carried a partly-depleted bottle of rye in his hand while descending in the elevator, putting it in his overcoat pocket before entering the lobby.

At 10:30 p.m. 14 persons, nine men and five women, were seen to be drinking to an obvious state of intoxication.

• • •

Some 400 patrons were observed at the Palomar Cabaret between 8:30 p.m. and midnight. Six bottles being counted in one section, the majority of them being opened and emptied.

Three bottles were seen to be poured openly in one party of nine. There were four 25-ounce bottles under the table.

Open drinking was again observed at the W.K. Oriental Cafe (where there are 13 tables), at the Dixie Chicken Inn and at Principle's. In each case liquor was being consumed openly.

• • •

A short visit was made to the Commodore Cabaret where a large number of celebrants were observed. It is being noised around that the forty-sixth annual ball of the Police Mutual Benevolent Association.

This was the only cabaret at which any policemen were observed Wednesday night. A fine time was being had by all.

Tomorrow we will conclude this survey of the city's drinking habits with some over-all impressions.

Letter to the Editor

CLAIMS ROAD DANGEROUS

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Dear Sir: I-hesitate to ask for space in your valuable columns, but think it is about time that somebody came out in the open to protest against the dangerous condition of the road between Belleville and Trenton.

Large falls of snow are not cleared off till late in the day when another fall has been rolled over the road since early morning. The snow is then packed and ground down by the traffic remains when the snow — plow has been gone for several weeks and until a thaw comes, there is a series of deep ridges running parallel on the road over which the cars must pass safely. In these days to see more accidents is a miracle to those who unfortunately have themselves must use this road.

Then after frost there is no guarding of the shoulders on the day when most people have to travel, as they are gone round by Marmora and Stirling, a circuitous route of more than four-times the distance.

Most of us who sometimes have to travel this road know that these fourteen miles might mean the difference between life and death in a hurry.

A few weeks ago I was travelling on this trial with a patient in the back of my car on a frosty day. It was soon and no other traffic in sight. I reduced speed to less than twenty miles an hour, and even at this I skidded down a hill and ended up at the foot facing the way I had been travelling.

Since then and before others have had like experiences. If somebody would only hold the county responsible, it might then get action. I suggest that this road should be taken over by the Highways Department because It is the main road between Bancroft and Hellenville and is used by tourists as if it were a highway.

I would like to thank Belleville

Project Will Change Entire River 'Front'

Ottawa, Feb. 22 (CP) — Development of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project will change the entire river "front" for 50 miles, Transport Minister Chevrier said Wednesday.

He spoke about the proposed Iroquois Point-Cornwall project in an address to the Canadian Club.

"All along the front, communities will be relocated," he said. "Farmhouses, schools, churches, graveyards and the like will disappear. These, it is hoped will rise again on the new shoreline where modern and up-to-date communities will be relocated."

Mr. Chevrier said the joint St. Lawrence deep water and power project will cost $806,000,000. Canada's share would be $380,000,000 of which $132,000,000 has already been spent on the Welland Canal.

TWO OFFICERS KILLED

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 22 (CP) — Royal Canadian Navy officers were killed Wednesday in a chartered light plane they had hired to look at their ship, the aircraft reported. The aircraft plunged into deep waters near the entrance to Nanaimo harbor.

tention to the narrow bridge that spans the Moira Lake, approached on either side by dangerous bends. During the last year there have been three accidents there, two of them fatal.

One would think, that in this year of Grace human life is the most valuable thing and still cheap. If some notice is not taken of this letter I shall not leave the matter rest.

Thanking you,
I remain, Yours sincerely,

Personal Health Talks

WHAT EVER BECAME OF CARBUNCLES?

In horse-and-buggy days carbuncle was as common as spasmodic croup and typhoid fever. Now these maladies are nearly as rare as ra-bi-es and gout — if ra-bi-es and gout occur at all in man. Mind you, I'm no authority but just a plodding family doctor.

A carbuncle begins, like a pimple, pustule or boil, as a tender or slightly painful, red, hidden accessory induration or hardening and swelling of the skin and subcutaneous tissues, affecting an area as large as a palm, on the back of the neck. The skin becomes dark red or purplish as the swelling and pain increase, and there is great prostration, chilliness, high temperature, weak pulse, in short, gross septicemia (blood poisoning).

Maybe people do have carbuncle today. They just don't tell me about it. Perhaps they know by now that, like the Friesia in conference on the Jio at Plymouth, I won't quit the press.

Takes carbuncle eight or ten days to run its development — then the slough separates in two days and leaves a deep sore. If the victim lasts long enough — the slow process of healing. But of course one lives without information of a scar.

I have not observed carbuncle myself—not yet—but I can testify that it is an inconceivably painful, exhaustive affliction.

Oddly enough, a discovery I made somewhere, waving it was that the pain or carbuncle responded unexpectedly to aspirin, to moderate doses of that least dangerous pain-killer, as-pi-rin. A single dose of five grains, or if the patient seemed unusually tough, perhaps ten grains of aspirin let in the evening brought enough relief to permit several hours of much needed rest. This was a revelation to me, because I had regarded aspirin (acetylsalicylic acid) solely as a relief for common headache, neuralgia, headache and the like.

Several years ago I referred to impetigo (contagious) as a common minor ailment of infants and children, which I found to be the most frequent in youth. Carbuncle was found to occur in later adult life and in men often-er than in women.

I have said enough to indicate that carbuncle is a grave illness which, fortunately, is rare. I had rather not dwell on the risks involved in "trying" remedies or treatments suggested by Ben Hall or Mrs. Sumsey.

In any case the question whether to rely on local applications and supporting the patient with internal medicine or to resort to immediate surgery is best left to the attending physician's judgment.

If in doubt whether the trouble is a boil or a carbuncle, apply the moist cream recommended until the doctor comes. That is, crumble two or three yards of washed cheesecloth (surgeon's gauze), wet with a solution of tablespoonful of table salt in each pint of hot water and apply as a dressing, wetting it with more salt water often enough to keep it moist.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Don't Fash Yourself

In reply to numerous correspondents who have chided me for calling readers such names as Stupid, Geek, Geezer, Salvey-tamp, Ben Thild, Miss Sunnyjam, Yankee Wiseacre, Sucker, Knucklehead etc, etc, I am happy to say "don't fash yourself—so far not one of the correspondents has addressed me as I have spoken for himself—they are concerned only about the sensibilities of the nincompoops to whom the epithets apply. So, let's carry on as we have been until some one protests in his own behalf." (Ol' Doc Brady.)

Milk Not Constipating

Your statement that milk is constipating astounds me. For 2 years ago if I drank milk with my meals I had to use dynamite. My nurse told me to put a pinch of salt in each glass of milk. Since then, I haven't taken a physic in ten years. (M. C. S.)

Answer—You mean you have reduced the daily requirement of dynamite by 2 years' use? Neither milk nor any other substance causes "binding" or "binding". Some foods are less laxative than others, and the habit with which one's sessions as yours may learn something to the advantage of health and comfort by reading the booklet The Constipation Habit and Its Cure. Write "For," copy send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Electric Blanket

Are electric blankets safe, healthful to sleep under? Please give your opinion of them. (Miss Ellen.)

Answer—Yes, I tried one and gave it away, I tried also a newfangled rubber mattress, and gave it away. But if you find such devices comfortable they are all right.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LITERATURE OF THE FACE

There are more unwritten stories, stamped upon the face of human beings than all those that are encased in paper printed books, with gaudy wrappers to invite their purchase. The plain fact is that realism is a facial literature—writing the story of biography.

The literature of the face is often the most revealing from the literature of books. Expression and not the written word is the weaving together of words. There is an unwritten style of expression in the human face that could well challenge the greatest writers in the land of Shoreau: "It takes two to speak the truth—one to speak and another to hear."

I once spent a long evening with a group of intellectual people. It was merely the silent reporter —with no intention, however, of ever committing that report to print and paper. One was an outstanding woman author, a well known novelist, one a vigorous member of Congress, and one a rising young editor and writer. One of the group remained silent. I listened and kept attention to all the talk, which shot out like live flames from time to time, but the silent listening of the group was the one who merely looked on and said nothing! His face talked! I seemed to take note of his agreements and disagreements.

As a youth in college there was a man who had fascinated me —Edwin Booth and Daniel Webster. Both dramatic faces, but Booth had the greater power of written there. The only thing that I enjoy reading about Webster is a book are the faces of the people there—and what stories I read, interpretations of the human face is concerned!

Novelists create many a character from what they read in the faces of those with whom they meet. Many a character is built into literature for publishers to sell. Often one face will furnish material for a dozen stories! Yet no writer has ever transcribed the human face. There is always something

By GREGORY CLARK

HIS GREATNESS WAS REAL

George Washington is to the average American an almost unknown figure. Hundreds of books have been written about him, and comparatively few about Washington. He is the man who became President of his Country, and anyone who has made a study of his life is forced to admit that Washington was one of the most exceptional human beings that ever lived.

His was not a man of great intellect. He was a man of great character, sound judgment, and indomitable courage, and these qualities were in a balance which resulted in the creation of an unbelievably great character. Of course Washington's greatness was to a very great extent due to the fact that he lived in a time when

Waste Write Off

Mr. Fair said that 25,017 veterans were settled on farms under the legislation and 1,272 still owed $1,439,069 at Jan. 1. He urged this be written off.

His argument brought the reply from Labor Minister Gregg, speaking in the absence of Veterans Minister Lapointe, that the government had been gradually liquidating the indebtedness of the old soldiers but it could not be written off in one swoop.

The issue came to a vote and the resolution was defeated 133 to 53. The Social Credit, Progressive Conservative and C. C. F. members supported the resolution.

Mr. Pearson told the House that famine caused by floods, drought and locusts had brought a real human and economic problem in India. He did not know what types of wheat would be wanted.

Only about half Canada's 450,000,000, 1950-51 crop is of millable grade, and if India wants millable grade she may have to wait. Otherwise Canada should start shipping almost immediately negotiations were complete).

Not Conditional

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, asked if Canada's contribution is contingent on a substantial U. S. contribution to the Colombo plan. The U. S. now is considering a gift of 2,000,000 tons of wheat to India.

Mr. Pearson replied that Canada's contribution "in a sense is not conditional on anything." But, he added, if it became clear the plan could not be completed Canada would have to take cognizance.

Supporters of Mr. Fair's resolution, besides the Social Credit, Progressive Conservative and C. C. F. members, included a number of Liberals. One was Walter Thomson, (L — Ontario), new leader of the Provincial Liberal Party.

The resolution was one of two discussed at the brief mid-week sitting, devoted to proposals of private members. Roch Pinard (L — Chambly - Rouville) set off a discussion with a resolution calling for abolition of tolls on the Victoria and Jacques Cartier bridges over the St. Lawrence River in Montreal. The debate was not concluded at the adjournment hour and will be resumed later in the session.

POLICE OFFICERS

Premier Frost argued that Mr. Park's bill for an increase in election expenditures would be "very unjust" to all but the largest municipalities.

Mr. Park said there was an unhealthy situation in city elections. "Candidates in Toronto elections are spending $6,000 to $7,000 for jobs worth $1,200 a year," he charged.

Government arguments against the two-week vacation and 40-hour week bills centred on the fact that unions should bargain for any improvements over the present laws.

The government was not opposed to the principles involved, Premier Frost said. But collective bargaining to attain further benefits was "the key to the problem."

E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader, said large numbers of workers were not protected by union contracts and lacked methods of gaining improvements.

Not Pioneer Legislation

Mr. Fell said his holidays bill was not pioneer legislation, but merely reflected the present trend. Most employers were in favor of longer holidays, but wished to see them legislated for by industries.

Mr. Salesberg said he expected his bill to be defeated. However, the government should make attempts by opposition members to pass social legislation in the past had resulted in the government finally bringing in its own legislation to implement opposition proposals.

A new type of local option vote is provided in a bill introduced by Provincial Secretary Welsh.

It would allow votes on the question of liquor outlets in areas which have been legally wet since the present liquor control law went into effect, but which have no opportunity to vote on the question of becoming dry.

A number of these areas were strongly against liquor outlets, Mr. Welsh said, but under present regulations could not vote themselves dry until a liquor outlet was established.

A second provision in the bill would protect the status of municipalities under the Liquor Control Act when they are annexed or amalgamated with wet communities. The dry areas would not become wet unless they voted to repeal their local option after annexation.

The bill would also maintain the status of communities which have certain types of liquor outlets but do not want to adopt other types of liquor outlets allowed in the area to which they are annexed.

CHAINED BY WIFE

Gastonia, N. C., Feb. 22 — (AP) — Oliver D. Moore, 35, was arrested yesterday on a charge of chaining his 32-year-old wife to a bed when she wasn't on her mill job. Solicitor Oscar Mason of municipal court said Moore had him he chained his wife, Mamie, a small woman, with an eight - foot chain so she wouldn't leave home. She was unshackled when she had to report for the night shift.

Mrs. I. L. Moore Gives Travelogue Talk

The Soroptimist Club met recently for their regular dinner meeting in Lettimer's Town Room, with Miss Gladys MacDonald presiding in the absence of the president, Miss Leona Rigby.

The program, followed the dinner, was under the direction of Miss Helen Keeler. The guest speaker, Mrs. I. L. Moore, was introduced by Mrs. Frances Bennett.

Mrs. Moore, who is a native of Melbourne, Australia, gave the Club a humorous and vivid travelogue of her trip by plane from Melbourne to Vancouver, with brief stopover on Fiji and Honolulu. As her trip was made at Christmas time, Mrs. Moore enjoyed three Christmas dinners, one in a hotel at Honolulu; one on the plane, and the third in Vancouver.

Mrs. Moore had made the journey to Australia several times and states that her trip by airlines was the most adventurous of all.

Miss Margaret Fairbairn conveyed the thanks and appreciation of the Club to Mrs. Moore for her delightful talk.

Frances Willard's Life, Work, Theme of Study At W.C.T.U. Meeting

The February meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held in Mr. Ivey's, took the form of a study of the life and work of the beloved founder, Frances Willard.

After a welcome was extended to all, a quotation from the great Edmond Burke was given, "All that is necessary for evil to triumph, is for good people to do nothing".

Health Work

This being Health week in Canada, the quotation of Dr. Charles Mayo, of the famous Mayo Clinic, "All we say, or know, or see, or hear, or taste, or think about, comes to us through our brain; consequently we should do everything possible to keep from injuring our brain." "Alcohol is a brain poison, so let us abstain."

Abstinence

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. (Rev.) Somers, who based her thoughts on Jeremiah 35:1-10. The Rechabites had in their family history the command to "drink no wine neither ye nor your sons forever". They were tested and found to be true all through their generation. In this chapter of history is given that is used in the law court to this day.

The study book was taken by Mrs. F. O. Bennett, "Why Alcohol Education?"

Alcoholism is the term applied to the diseased condition of the system due to excessive use of alcoholic liquors. Alcoholism is one of the four great health scourges of civilization—cancer, tuberculosis and venereal disease being the other three. If the alcohol question were solved, there would be only social questions; with no other question of social betterment can be taken up with any prospect of ultimate solution, while the alcohol question remains unsolved.

Causes Many Deaths

Dr. Emil Bogen, chief physician at Olive View Sanitarium, California, a specialist in the symptoms, causes and nature of disease, says "No other poison causes so many deaths, or leads to or intensifies so many diseases, both physical and mental, as does alcohol in the various forms in which it is taken." The effects upon cell protoplasm, nerve action of white corpuscles and other body protections, and when tissues are compared with moderate drinkers, it proves the statement is no exaggeration, but a comprehensive statement, of one who knows from wide experience and observation.

Loving Tribute

In February, the "Little White Ribboners", all around the world, some million and a half, pay loving tribute to Frances Willard. Great honors have been paid to the memory of this sainted woman, but the greatest and most lasting monument is the world-wide Woman's Christian Temperance Union. It was the first woman-sponsored, international organization to function and marked the beginning of world co-operation. It is an organization of Christian women banded together for

The protection of the home;

The abolition of the liquor traffic; and the triumph of the golden rule in custom and law.

It was organized 72 years ago and into 52 countries, the little white bow, with its prophecy "The liquor traffic shall not ultimately triumph" can be traced.

Tabernacle W.A. Holds Pot-luck Supper.

Monday evening, the ladies of Tabernacle United Church served a pot-luck supper to all the groups of the Woman's Association.

This was the first venture in 1951 under the Council, and tables were beautifully decorated by the members of each group. Prizes were offered for the best decorated tables.

Head Table

Members of the executive council were seated at the head table. They were Mrs. William Judge, president; Mrs. J. Charlton, recording secretary; Mrs. J. Kerr, treasurer; Mrs. A. Townsend, corresponding secretary; Mrs. S. R. Coon, social convener; Mrs. E. A. Schlieyert, flower convener; Mrs. A. E. Cornish, manse committee representative, and Mrs. F. N. Harbeck. Mrs. W. Langridge, vice-president, was absent because of illness. Other guests taking part in the program and seated at the head table were, Mrs. Helen Large, Mrs. Jean Cornell, Mrs. M. P. Duff and Mrs. R.I. Varcoe.

Church Year Plan

After enjoying the sumptuous meal, a very sing-song of favorite hymns was led by Mrs. Harbeck. Mrs. R. Varcoe presided and to the members the "Church Year" plan of raising money for the church was discussion followed.

Mrs. Helen Large provided two delightful solos, "The Garden of Your Heart", and "The Sunshine of Your Smile". Mr. F. Charlton gave two suitable readings and Mrs. Jean Cornell pleasingly sang "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" and "Little Bit of Honey".

Miss Ethel Horton read a story of Dr. A. J. Myers, "The Boy With His Lunch". All three numbers responded to by hearty applause and Mrs. Harbeck, as chairman, gave a special vote of thanks to Mrs. M. P. Duff, who graciously acted as accompanist.

Presentation Made

Three members who had completed over 20 years of service on the executive were presented with suitably engraved leather bound hymn books. They were Mrs. A. H. Fisher, Mrs. G. F. Lent and Mrs. A. Gausden.

Tribute was paid to them for their splendid service by Mrs. A. Charleton, Mrs. Ray Lockyer and Mrs. F. Isard, respectively.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. William Judge, and her committee for arranging such a lovely occasion. Three plans were presented for money raising during the year and adopted by the entire membership.

Such a happy time was had by all that plans are being made for another such occasion in the early spring.

Couple Raises 18 Children On $60 Week

By ANGELO NATALE

Cliffwood Beach, N.J., (AP)— Take the patter of a child's feet around the house—then multiply it 18 times.

It can be noisy, but to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carey it's been a pleasant sound. The Careys recently welcomed their 18th child in 18 years of married life.

Carey, the father of the brood, admits it gets a bit difficult at times managing on his $60 a week salary. "But we get along," he says, "and sometimes even have some money to spare for little luxuries."

The Careys live in a six-room house located on the edge of a marsh. The family get the house rent-free from a property owner in exchange for Papa Carey's service as a care taker and custodian.

You might think the house is a little crowded, but the Careys don't think so. Four of the little Careys temporarily are living with relatives. Two married daughter, Patricia, is married and lives with her husband.

That leaves only 15 Careys in the house, including papa and mama, and they manage just fine with their six rooms.

There are three bedrooms. The kids sleep dormitory style.

"We have bunk beds for the children," Mama Carey says, "the girls have one big bedroom, the boys the other."

Close Budgeting

Out of the $60 Carey brings home every week goes $6 to pay as a boiler engineer for Keyport, N.J., Cork Company, $50 goes for food. The remainder goes for miscellaneous items, such as laundry and their old, but reliable car. They even managed to save enough to buy a new gas range and three new, shiny keys for the kids.

Clothing doesn't present too great a problem, either, says Mrs. Carey. "Clothes are passed down from one child to another," she explains.

The money allotted to food goes for 20 pounds of meat, 21 quarts of milk and "plenty of soup".

"We probably eat better than most families," Carey claims. "Every one starts the day off with a good breakfast—and they get anything they want."

Most are become alarmed over childhood diseases, but not Mrs. Carey. "Just getting them measles, mumps and chicken pox, she has her own philosophy.

"When one gets something like that," she says, "I let all the others get it — they get it all over with at the same time."

The Carey children are: Patricia, 17; James, 16; Joseph, 15; Jackie, 14; Crawford, 13; William, 12; Margaret, 11; Raymond, 10; Geraldine, 8; Dorothy Ann, 8; Doris Joan, 7; Frances Elaine, 6; Emily Marie, 5; Dale, 4; Barbara, 3; John Francis, 2; Laurenda, 1; and Bruce Wayne, two weeks.

The household also includes two dogs and three cats.

STRYCHNINE SUPPLIED

Washington, Feb. 22 — (AP) — An emergency shipment of American strychnine has been flown to Greece to kill off huge swarms of rats which were threatening to eat up the country's grain crop. The Economic Co-operation Administration supplied the poison under the Marshall Plan.

HOLLOWAY STREET Y.P.U.

The regular meeting of Holloway Street Young People's Union was held on Monday evening in the form of a pot-luck supper. At the conclusion of the supper, Wilda Wade led in a singsong.

Women Drivers Shame Men, Inspector Says

Montreal, (CP)— "Women are much better drivers than men."

That statement is bound to bring forth howls of protest from every male who ever sat behind a steering wheel, but according to police statistics it is the gospel truth.

Says Montreal traffic inspector Armand Girard who made the statement, "the last time I said this in public I was jumped on from all sides. They even accused me of trying to make a bit with the ladies."

"Although there are fewer women drivers in the city than men their percentage of accidents and traffic infractions is still lower on a percentage basis, Insp. Girard declared.

For explanation, he pointed out that women, on the whole, obey traffic regulations, are more courteous drivers and take better care of their autos.

The men on the other hand are always willing to "take a chance". They will take a chance on parking under a "no parking" sign where a woman would search for a proper place to park her car.

They take a chance on speeding and cutting in on other cars in traffic, things a woman would be afraid to do, Mr. Girard said.

"The men rely too much on their own ability to drive," Insp. Girard declared. Women are more nervous but nervousness in a driver is a good thing if it stops them from taking chances that may lead to accidents.

GOOD MANNERS

BY MRS. BEECHMAN

Washington, at 16, wrote his 110 rules for decent behavior

George Washington, before he was 15 years old, had determined to be a gentleman. And to guide him in the development of his character and personality, he collected for himself "110 Rules of Civility and Decent Behavior of Company and Conversation" — a stimulating and inspiring collection of excellent rules for good manners.

The young Washington's "110 Rules of Civility and Decent Behavior in Company and Conversation" are to be found in a volume in the Library of Congress, written in his interesting, engraving-like handwriting. Everyone of the rules is an index of manliness—sound, practical, thought-compelling. And the entire collection of rules shows that the essential nature of George Washington, boy and man, was kindness, courtesy, an abidingly thoughtful consideration for others, a noble respect for human relationships, a high and deep reverence for God.

These "Rules of Decent Behavior" show that, fundamentally, then and now and always—for young and old, good manners are good manners . . . that there is a standard of good manners and morals that is enduring because it is good, inevitably right.

For example, let's look at Rule 1: "Every action done in company ought to be with some sign of respect to those who are present". In one sentence a stimulating essay on Manners in Public!

To give honor where honor is due. . . . It was natural that the young Washington, determined to be a gentleman of special consideration, should be interested in Precedence. His Rule 84 is a classic that is observed "in military regulations: "In writing or speaking, give to every person his due honor according to his degree and the custom of the place." Also Rule 86: "The most exact place in most countries is on the right side." Therefore place yourself to the left of him whom you desire to honor." And Rule 32: "When you present seats, let it be to everyone according to his degree." (Heads and hostesses . . . are you listening?)

What one says inevitably shows what a man is . . . the young Washington, even at 16 already knew this, and many of his brief rules of behavior have to do with Conversation. Rule 89 is a gem: "Never express anything unbecoming", and Rule 74, for Listening: "If [friends are] speaking, attentive yourself." For the dogmatic: "Be not obstinate in your opinions". Listen, too, to this Ideal: "Be not forward, but friendly and courteous". For the self-conscious: "Be not pensive when it's time to converse." And these are "rules precepts": "Let your conference be pleasant" "Let your conversation be without malice or envy for 'tis a sign of a tractable and commendable nature"; and speak not evil of the absent, for it is unjust".

Table Manners?

What parents wouldn't be proud of a 16-year-old who knew these how-to-behave-at-table Ideals: "Feed not with greedi-ness" . . . "Sup not with noise nor cramm with your mouth full" . . . "Keep your finger clean" . . . "Put not another bit into your mouth till the former be swallowed. Let not your morsels be too big for the jowls" . . . "Be not angry at table whatever happens, and if you have reason to do so, show it not. Put on a cheerful countenance especially if there be strangers. For good humor makes one dish a feast". . . . "Lean not on the table. Lay not your arms, but only your hand, upon the table" . . . "It's unbecoming to stoop much to your meat."

And listed to these great rules, standards to the young Washington who was to have such a powerful influence among men: Rule 108. "When you speak of God or His attributes, let it be seriously and with reverence. Honor and obey your parents". Rule 109: "Let your recreations be manful, not sinful".

And Rule 110, the last rule and a masterpiece: "Labor to keep alive in your breast that Little Spark of Celestial Fire called Conscience".

Many, many times, in his "110 Rules of Civility and Decent Behaviour in Company and Conversation," the young George Washington speaks of a "man of quality". At sixteen he had already definitely decided what "quality" of man he was to be!

Pretty Protection

Gay and practical

By VERA WINSTON

APRONS that have ventured out of the kitchen to find themselves at home in the living room, are definitely part of the smart accessory picture. The first sketch is of an apron of pale green organdy, the high light of which is a broad band of eyelet embroidery dyed to match, and concealing capacious pockets. Good coverage is another pleasing feature. Frivolity rather than protection is the keynote of the other apron, which is fashioned of white taffeta overplaided in gray. There are gray taffeta sections appliqued at the hem and for the sash, and in addition bright red, green and purple sequins are scattered on the sash and hem.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

She's having trouble with her friend in service

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 years old and deeply in love with a boy now in service. I went steady with him for nearly two years. I know he did love me then, but now I'm not sure he still does.

He has been in service about seven months, and last month he wrote and said he thought it would be better to break up. He gave as the reason that he hadn't been told I had been stepping out on him. Well, I did go out on a date with another boy, but I still love the other one and don't want to break up with him. We still write to each other on friendly terms, but I want him to keep on loving me.

This other boy is in the navy and he was on furlough when he asked me to go out with him. He asked me to be his girl but I don't love him. Should I try to forget the one I really love and try to learn to love the sailor?

P. L. B.

Dear P.L.B.:

Suppose you stop thinking about trying to "learn to love" anybody right now. You're only confusing yourself with so much talk about "love". You'll get along much better if you just decide to stick to the "friendly terms" basis with the boys for awhile, without worrying about whether you "love" any of them or not.

Your boy friend in service ought to realize that it's unfair for you to go out and have good times with other friends while he's away. Perhaps he felt hurt because he heard about your date with another man instead of yourself. Tell him frankly in your letters what you've done, and he'll probably feel all right about it. And you, on your side, should also realize that he should have other friends where ever he is, and not give up making dates because of you.

Her best friend cut her out with her boy friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For some time, I've been going with a boy I like very much. One night at a dance he met my best friend and they seemed to fall for each other. I felt quite bad, and after the dance told my girl friend off. She told the boy about it, and because of this, he began to think that I was getting envious about him and hasn't been to see me since with me. What can I do about this?

N. L.

Dear N.L.:

It's never very smart to give any boy an opportunity to discover that two girls are competing for his attention. It not only flatters his ego and makes him think he's quite a fellow, but it's also likely to scare him away from both girls. It would have been much better if you had treated the whole thing very casually, instead of going to the length of scolding your girl friend.

This is the time for you to go about your business and give the young man no further reason to feel that you're seriously interested in him or that you're miffed if he pays attention to some other girl. Don't make a point of handing him, of course. Merely treat him the same as you do any of your other boy friends. If there's a chance of his coming back to you that's the best way to encourage him.

Scarlet Handbag for Accent

By FRUNELLA WOOD

THE bright scarlet handbag, handsome enough to hold the spotlight it attracts, is a pet accessory for women, who like it with tailleurs and sports clothes.

This bag is a French import of calfskin, leather lined, and with silk and an unusual three-dimensional lid for its closing. The semi-oval bag is not closed, the lid is a flap with a stiff collar which holds it well out beyond the first side of the bag. The single strap is attached by swivel screws at either side.

Being Too Idle Can Lead To Unhappiness

Toronto (CP) —Too much leisure time is the reason so many women are unhappy, said Dr. Hedwig S. Kuhn, American woman physician, at an American women's club luncheon here. There should be more of the home and children in a woman's life, more emotional woman's life and more worthwhile work in a married woman's life, the Hammond, Ind., eye specialist told the meeting.

Mother of two sons, both studying medicine, Dr. Kuhn and her husband, Dr. Hugh A. Kuhn, conduct a 24-hour service eye, ear, nose and throat clinic in the heart of a highly industrial area. In addition, Dr. Kuhn, is industrial consultant to the United States Air Force and Air Materiel Command, and secretary of the joint committee on industrial eye work of the American Medical Association and American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology.

A "complete" woman, said Dr. Kuhn, should have health, plus home, plus children, plus work. "A career woman's life is an empty shell unless she has home interests. Every woman cannot have children of her own, but she can adopt some," Dr. Kuhn said.

She states that many women think they find happiness "when I can then they join some civic group, but it is not enough to read and study about children if women must do them.

Graduate of Ruh Medical College, Chicago, Dr. Kuhn did postgraduate work in New York, England and on the continent. She met her husband while she was interning at the Cincinnati General Hospital.

Kinette Club Stages Artistic Fashion Display for Lads, Lassies At the Collegiate Auditorium

Even the youngest generation likes to be dressed in the smartest togs and on Wednesday evening the newest in the clothing for the little lads and lasses was demonstrated at the Collegiate auditorium when the Kinette club staged their second style show with clothes from the Children's Shop.

Dressing up has always been a delight to the feminine heart, and the little girls paraded on the platform with an enjoyment that reached to both sides of the footlights. The small boys were interested in the cars and tractors and other stage props, and with a male indifference to dress were perhaps more self-conscious than clothes-conscious, but they too went through their paces like professionals.

The Kinsmen's Boys' band, directed by Mr. A. C. Cooper, entertained the audience with several selections, and were followed by Dean Whalen at the electric organ, whose accompaniment to the stage performances set the mood for each showing.

The curtains parted to show the children at play in swim suits, some in a sand-box and some in a rubber raft. The backdrop was a scene showing a park and was painted by Phillips Faulkner. On the stage were tall standards of salmon-colored gladioli, and ferns at pulled by the Templer Flower shop. To the right sat the commentator, Kinette Kay McCutcheon, whose fine style of delivery and informal manner added greatly to the description of the clothes the young models wore. The stage furniture was supplied by Percival's store and the props used by performers, roller skates, tennis rackets, and others were loaned from McNeil's Sport store.

President Introduced

The drum majorette of the Kinsmen Band, Miss Sylvia Motley, opened the show by introducing the President Kinette Marian Harden who welcomed the visitors, and gave credit to all who assisted, particularly to Kinette Eva Yanover, Eva Wannamaker, who directed the children on stage, convener of the production, Kinette Norma Bacon, and chairwoman Kinette Helen Wilbur.

Sun dresses were next with Judy McKnight making her entry in a flowered dress with eyelet trim and sunbonnet to match; and tiniest model of all, blond Anne McGeachen in a captivating pink sunbonnet, and pink sun dress trimmed with pique.

Gordon McKnight appeared in a playsuit of yellow cabana with seersucker blouse Johnny Mulvihill with red corduroy jodspurs striped jersey, and jacket in red and white, Penny Cavers red polka dot pushers and a blouse with eyelet trim.

Rickey Colsborne displayed a matching trio set in brown, white and green with a tam o'shanter to match and Judith Ann Jones appeared with her hair doing in fetching pigtails wearing a white pique sundress with reversible bolero. Another attractive Paradise sundress was shown with a detachable cape, the skirt design with a motif of red apples, This was worn by petite Heather Ketcheson with matching bows on her blond hair.

Mary Vechsler made her appearance in a white and navy sailor dress with a deep collar bearing twin stars in the corners; followed by Cara Butler wearing turquoise strides and a yellow blouse, and twins Diane and Joanne Rawson in identical slacks of Margaret Rose plaid with white nylon handkerchief, Jane Scott looking demure and smart made her entry in a riding habit with a suede vest, jodspurs and a topper on her pigtailed coiffure.

Were Navy Slack Suit

Barbara McCracken with bright red bows in her hair came on stage in a navy slack suit, the cardigan belted in the back, and navy set trim to match the hair ribbons. Jo-Anne Bateman looked captivating in a four-piece set of paddy green trimmed with brown velvet. This set consisted of slacks, vest and jacket which she wore and a skirt, which she carried.

Johanne Graydon wore a plaid corduroy jacket in ensemble with grey slacks and pretty Suzanne Cavers made a charming model in corduroy brown slacks with a scarlet jacket. Checked slacks and a navy jacket with the same checked trim were shown by Carol Bacon; and Margaret Arnott wearing a slack suit styled by Little Nugget in wine corduroy captivated the audience with her pleasant smile as she displayed clothes for the teen-age group.

Maxine Rose appeared in a practical nylon sweater with plaid slacks; Stephen Beare in the popular suede popover suit; Larry Lennox in dark green suit with sleeves and collar of grey, Peter Lloyd in a corduroy suit or rust color with cap to match and smart check trim; Ian Scott with tailored navy blazer and cap and grey shorts.

Strictly For Sunday

Alan Martin wore a steel blue slack suit trimmed with pearl buttons; and Lou-Howe was very fine in a white sportline suit (strictly for Sundays, this) with a dark navy shirt. Holly Lloyd, Jimmy Lang and Linda Lennox also made attractive models for showing what the well-dressed young people are wearing.

The favorite new materials appear to be suede, corduroy and nylon, all washable, which makes it appealing to busy mothers. Dark colors seem to predominate which is another good feature for wearability.

A birthday party with Linda Lennox as hostess gave the young performers a chance to don their prettiest and frilliest party frocks. This was topped with the singing of "Happy Birthday" and the appearance of a cake bearing lighted candles donated by Mrs. R. Stiver.

An Easter parade brought the models in two by two as they showed the smartest styles in coats, hats and accessories of gloves and bags to match. When the coats were removed pretty print dresses in harmonizing shades were displayed.

The climax of the showing was a bedtime scene, when the little performers appeared in nightgowns, pyjamas, and housecoats. While Gordie McKnight knelt at the bed, Suzanne Cavers sang sweetly "Christopher Robin Is Saying His Prayers".

Solos Given

Heard in vocal solos were Miss Sylvia Motley, and Miss Suzanne Cavers, who won a winner in the soloist class at the recent Kiwanis festival of Music in Kingston. Miss Patty Jenkinson performed two dance numbers, the first a ballet and the second in an acrobatic number.

Corsages were presented to the youngest grandmother present, to the youngest mother and to the mother of the largest family.

The winner of the doll with the complete wardrobe was Mrs. Cryster, Bleecker Avenue, and the other lucky ticket holders were Mrs. W. Breach; Mrs. T. J. McGinness, Mrs. Meagher, Mrs. H. K. Carruthers and Mrs. O'Brien.

Out of bed, the leg felt cold as though in cold water, so I stayed in bed. A friend persuaded me to take T-R-C's and I'm glad I did. In a short while I was relieved of my pain and was soon on the job again.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1951

Secretary Maintains Seaway And Power Project Should be Given the Highest Priority

Washington, Feb. 22—(AP)—Interior secretary Oscar L. Chapman told congress today that unless the St. Lawrence seaway is built "I do not see how we will be able to meet our national ironore requirement five years from now."

The secretary said the dual-purpose seaway and power project "should receive the highest priority" and that construction should be started immediately.

His testimony before the House of Representatives public works committee backed that of three other cabinet members earlier this week. Each said the $1,000,000,000 development is "vital" as a defence measure.

It is part of the administration drive to unblock the long-sought waterway which would permit ocean-going ships to sail clear up to Duluth, Minn. It is estimated that the power feature would develop 13,200,000,000 kilowatt hours of energy annually.

President Truman is leading the effort to get authorization for the project.

Already in the record, in addition to Chapman's testimony from Defence Secretary George C. Marshall, State Secretary Dean Acheson, Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer, and Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson.

Crux of the argument of each has been the need of a deep-water route to bring in iron ore from the Labrador-Quebec area to supplement diminishing reserves on the Minnesota Besabi Range.

Changes Picture

Chapman said the Korean war has completely changed the steel-making picture.

"Today the steel-making capacity of the United States is 104,000,000 tons as compared with 99,000,000 a year ago.

"And instead of looking forward to steel capacity of 110,000,000 tons by 1960—as the industry estimated early last year —we can now look forward to a capacity of as much as 127,500,000 tons by the end of 1952.

"In 1953 and later years we expect that steel-making facilities will be expanded still more to meet growing requirements.

"These steel-capacity figures completely change our national perspective on the St. Lawrence projects. Unless we build a deep waterway from Montreal into the Great Lakes I do not see how we will be able to meet our national iron-ore requirements five years from now."

Chapman said that 100,000,000 tons of domestic iron ore was used in 1950 to produce 96,000,000 tons of steel, and "our ore requirements will rise to 141,000,000 tons in 1955 and 158,000,000 tons in 1960."

Although the ore supply on the Mesabi range "is by no means exhausted," an increased proportion of the output "is in the form of concentrates produced by beneficiating intermediate grade ore."

A step up of shipments of ore from foreign countries was the only alternative to meet the rapidly rising demands of the steel mills.

The best source, he said, is the deposits in the Labrador area, some 360 miles north of Seven Islands on the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Deep-Draft Vessels Needed

"The plain fact is that the only practical and economical way of shipping any substantial tonnage of Labrador iron ore from the port of Seven Islands to consuming steel mills along the great Lakes is by deep-draft ore vessels through a St. Lawrence seaway."

"If we fail to build the seaway, it seems likely that major shifts in steel-plant location will occur, and that the industry will gradually move away from present inland locations toward the coastal areas of the country."

Chapman said the 46-mile international rapids section of the St. Lawrence River between Ogdensburg, N.Y., and Cornwall, C.I., "is incomparably the finest single, undeveloped hydro-electric site on the North American continent."

"At a time," he said, "when we are seeking by every practical means to build up the country's capacity to generate electricity, in order to meet rapidly-growing defence loads, I do not see how we can afford any longer to let the waters of the St. Lawrence River run wastefully into the sea."

He said the seaway would also aid in bringing in from Canada deposits of nickel, cobalt, tungsten, lead, zinc, and aluminum and other strategic metals.

Will Trade Auto For Horse, Buggy And Bale of Hay

Reopen Spy Trial, Lunan Seeks to Quash Extra Year

Toronto, Feb. 22—(CP) — One of the more sensational cases in Canada's 1946 spy trials will be reopened Friday when David Gordon Lunan seeks a writ of Habeas Corpus to quash an extra year in prison given him for contempt of court.

The former army officer and member of the Wartime Information Board was convicted in November, 1946, of conspiring to communicate confidential information to Russia, and sentenced to five years.

The following March he was given an extra year when he refused to testify against Israel Felperin, who was acquitted later on a conspiracy charge. Lunan now is nearing the end of his five sentence in Kingston penitentiary.

G. A. Martin, his counsel, will argue Friday before a judge here that the contempt sentence was illegal on the grounds that it was made consecutive to another prison term, rather than concurrent with it.

Foresees Oshawa With Population Of 100,000

Oshawa, Feb. 22 —(CP)—Prediction that Oshawa will one day have a population of 100,000 was made late night by Gordon B. Conant, former liberal premier of Ontario. The present population is 33,000.

In an address at a ceremony of the presentation of a chain of office to Mayor Michael Starr, R. Conant, a lifelong citizen of Oshawa, said:

"Within the lifetime of many of its present citizens, Oshawa will be populated by 100,000 people, rivalling Hamilton. Every present point to that conclusion.

"If war comes, Oshawa industries will be engaged to capacity in making armaments and equipment for war. If there is peace, the development of Canada and the demand for our products in domestic and foreign markets will increase our production and the extent and numbers of our industries."

BELIEVE PROTEST NULLIFIED

Toronto, Feb. 22 — (CP) — George Panter said Wednesday that he believed a Walkerton protest over three Elmira players "is nullified" by Walkerton's elimination of Elmira in the intermediate B Ontario Hockey Association playoffs.

Panter, O. H. A. business manager, said the Association has received a report from a detective agency engaged by Walkerton to investigate the Elmira club but he knows whether anything further will come of it.

ANOTHER WAR FOR U.N. TO FIGHT

Like 1918, when an estimated 15,000,000 people were killed in three months by influenza, the tiny virus once again threatens to play havoc with humanity, but this time science is fighting back in the form of the world influenza centre, set up in London, Eng., by World Health Organization, a branch of U.N. The chief problem in fighting influenza is the difficulty of tracking down its cause: The highly changeable and elusive virus can take on a number of different forms. That is where the little ferret comes in. One of the few laboratory animals susceptible to influenza the ferret will develop a mild attack if the virus is present and indicate type of flu. Yet it will suffer no after effects. — Central Press Canadian.

Moose Floundering In Broken Ice Lassoed, Rescued

Corner Brook, Nfld., Feb. 22—(CP)—A crew member of the motor vessel Trepassey swung a lariat from the forecastle Monday and roped a 400-pound cow moose right in the middle of Humber Arm.

The ship was breaking its way up through the channel when the moose was spotted floundering around after falling through thin ice. Capt. Joshua Winsor decided to take her on board and brought his ship alongside.

The moose rode in the hold until the Trepassey reached here. Then she was ceremoniously transferred to a truck, driven a few miles inland and turned loose.

Mrs. Roy H. Thomson Dies in Florida

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Feb. 22—(CP) — Edna Annis Thomson, 58, wife of Roy H. Thomson, Canadian newspaper publisher, died here today after an illness of several years. She came to Fort Lauderdale shortly after Christmas.

Mrs. Thomson was born in Drayton, Ont., and married Mr. Thomson in 1917, before he entered the publishing business. Her home was near Port Credit, Ont., where she lived with Mr. Thomson and her two daughters, Mrs. C. E. Campbell and Mrs. Irma J. Elliott. She had one son, Kenneth R., manager of the Galt Reporter.

Burial will be from her home.

Day-Dreaming Drivers Called Killers on Roads

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP) — Day-dreaming drivers are killers on the roads, J. D. Millar, Ontario's Deputy Minister of Highways, said yesterday.

"What other reason can be found for many of our fatal accidents?" he asked in an address to the Ontario Good Roads Association convention.

"We have widened the highways, made sure the shoulders were adequate, put in centre boulevards and put down the finest possible road surfaces. And still we find people killing themselves, often without leaving the road.

"Pre-occupation with current affairs, a sort of day-dreaming behind the wheel, is apparently responsible for accidents which can be attributed to no other cause."

Fourteen Flee Rooming House Fire in Sudbury

Sudbury, Feb. 22 (CP) —Four teen persons were forced to flee for their lives some of them in night attire, as firemen battled for almost two hours to extinguish a fire which gutted the first and second floors of a rooming house on Shaughnessy Street early today.

The blaze broke out shortly before 1 a.m. and spread rapidly, cutting off escape for tenants on the second and third floors. They were forced to jump from windows onto the roof of a ground floor verandah and from there onto the ground. Deep snow around the verandah broke their falls and prevented what could have been a number of injuries.

Many of the roomers lost all their belongings in the fire. One old-age pensioner had nothing left but the suit of underwear he was wearing when he jumped from the verandah roof.

Peter Winichi, owner of the building, suffered burns to the back of the neck and hands. He did not require hospital treatment.

Cause of the blaze has not been determined.

Deputy Police Chief Leach Supports Chief's Evidence In Rush Inquiry at London

London, Ont., Feb. 22—(CP)—The rush probe mired down in a mass of contradiction yesterday as deputy police chief Morley Leach supported Chief A. Knight's testimony, which had previously been contradicted by two other top officials and two junior officers.

The third day of the provincial inquiry being conducted by Mr. Justice W. D. Rouch into the dismissal of Mayor Allan J. Rush, 43, from the London police force was marked by Attorney General Porter introducing a bill in the Ontario legislature which would make such dismissals impossible.

A veteran detective with 16 years of service, Rush fought and won the mayoralty contest this year on the issue of his being fired without any reason being made public.

All witnesses in the probe are testifying under oath. Eleven remain to be heard, among them exmayor George Wenige, who was ousted by Rush at the polls, Wenige will be heard Tuesday.

Yesterday Deputy Chief Leach described Mayor Rush as a "troublemaker" while on the force. Leach contradicted the testimony of inspectors William Snell and George Tomblin, who in turn had contradicted Chief Knight's sworn statement that they had complained about Rush's work as a detective.

Knight testified Monday that it was on the basis of these alleged complaints that he recommended to the police commission that Rush be fired. Tuesday both inspectors denied making any complaints, and they repeated their denials yesterday after Leach had testified.

Chief's Evidence Challenged

"The best man I ever worked with," Tomblin, now retired, described the dismissed detective, "I recommended him to succeed me."

Knight's evidence was also challenged yesterday by Acting- Det. Leo Eagle, who described how told the chief that Rush had said: "from now on the (police) association is running the department, not the police commission."

(This alleged statement was described by Magistrate D. B. Menzies, a member of the police commission, as being enough in itself to warrant Rush's dismissal.)

Sgt. Pat McKinley testified that, again contrary to Knight's evidence, he had never been asked to put a complaint against Rush into writing, nor had he ever made any such complaint.

Spectators who have been crowding Middlesex County courthouse in increasing numbers since the probe began also heard yesterday that Rush had appeared before the police association and decided that he was a communist and that he had "another woman."

The hearing is expected to end Friday.

45-POUND PIKE HOOKED

Stouffville, Feb. 22. (CP)—"I thought we'd hooked a submarine!" Mel Venn told reporters yesterday after he and Howard St. John hauled a 45-pound pike out of ice-bound Lake Simcoe. It took 30 minutes to land the monster fish.

13 French Army Rookies Repulsed In Pillow Fight

Paris, Feb. 22—(Reuters)—Repulsed in a pillow fight by a bevy of girls, 13 French army rookies are likely to look pretty shamefaced in uniform whatever the law says about their raid on a girl's school.

The night before induction the youths invaded the school at 1 a. m., but the girls threw up a barricade of beds and mattresses in the dormitory, ably commanded by the headmistress in her nightdress.

The outraged public prosecutor demanded that heavy fines be slapped upon the raiders. The judge will give his verdict later on the charge of breach of the peace.

Princess of Gratzen

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

Madame Fabre – Lusignan temporarily finished admiring her wrinkled visage in the silver-backed hand glass, straightened her fine lace cap, hitched her bed jacket up around her bony shoulders and yelled "Entrez!" in a voice that had often evoked applause in Le Comedie Francaise in the best theatres of London and New York. She tried it again in a higher key as the door was slowly opening and, finding her voice with a lovely timbre this morning, went on to curse the war, the times, all things in general, especially life here at the Chateau Philibert, now that all the servants had gone to fight or to do war work and there was left only this ancient hackasbag, Rudolph, and the aged Florian, the gardener, who was deaf and stillen and, she often thought, had really been dead for ten years—old zany.

Rudolph entered with a tray on which were coffee in a grand silver pot, Tokay grapes, crescent rolls and a fresh copy of La Presse. More war news to spoil her day. Accursed be the war that had, along with so many more precious things, taken her pretty maid Felice who used to come in, all big black eyes and olive skin, and cherry red lips, to do up the pillows and ahfy touch her arm. Now there were no attentions like that from the staid, white-headed Rudolph, nothing at all like that. Instead

"Batache!" Madame screamed a good French-Canadian expletive as the hot coffee showered over the bed, over her legs, over the paper she had just taken from the tray. "Son of a misbegotten goat, what do you do here! Drunkard, imbecile, homicide! You h..ve decided to scald me to death with a loud click and looked quickly at the old-fashioned, tasseled bell-pull. No one to hear if she did yank it. Even the cook was gone and Rudolph was in charge in the kitchen. Maybe if she screamed—one of her very best screams, that of the mad witch Giselle in The Black Castle, even, say—that deaf fool Florian would hear and come running with a bottle of a fork to finish crazy man—

"Please, madame—please!" Rudolph Morpin seemed to know what she was thinking. "Will you hear me before you cast me into the street? I—I am a colossal liar."

"That is nothing." Madame waved her hand airly. "Nothing at all."

"It come from Gratzen, madame" continued Rudolph miserably. "There I was the Baron Rudi de Morpin. There I was—"

"Ah!" Madame forgot her coffee-wet legs that were cold now, jerked herself higher up on the pillow and took an Egyptian cigaret from the ivory box on the taboret. Rudolph lighted it for her. The glittering black eyes studied him through the smoke. "Continue baron."

He bowed briefly. "It was a poor little country, Gratzen. We of the ruling family had nothing. And I—well, I was—"

"You were the—what is it we say? —dark mutton."

Rudolph bowed his white head. "I was the black sheep madame. I was exiled. I was very young then. I vowed to them all that I would become a great man, that I would be wealthy, that I would own a chateau that would make the castle of Gratzen look like a cowshed. I—madame—" he faltered. He bit his lip. He looked resolutely out at the green green park, the wonderful gardens and vast lawns of the Chateau Philibert, which he, blackguard and villions of Jean Pierre Goseo had created high up here in the loneliest part of the Laurentian Mountains. All this had come to Mimi, Rudolph's widow, whom in youth he had adored on the stage as Mimi Fabre. Ah, he had adored his Mimi, had little rolypoly Jean Pierre. The memory of the way he had loved her, cherished her, watched over her, seen never a ange in her in the years, made her penile now.

"Continue, my friend," she said "I like to hear this—this phantasy."

Rudolph drew himself up. He was no longer the butler— no need for that self-effacing mask any more—he was Baron de Morpin. Baron Rudi. "So, when I came to this grand place, this Chateau Philibert, I—I made to think, those in Gratzen, it was mine. I had pictures myself taken as I stood in the great doorway in the hall, by the mirror lake, in the grand salon. The under chauffeur was a good man with the camera. Always I was dressed in my morning coat and stripped trousers like a gentleman. I have letter paper and envelopes with my name and crest and Chateau Philibert. Si, Didier des Montagnes, Quebec them. I never dreamed that I would be found out. No one in Gratzen ever had money enough to come to America. Now little Meridel and these children, Pol Martin and Rosine, come to me for succor, for food, for shelter, to me. He turned away. "I shall procure you some fresh coffee, adame, I am sorry—so sorry."

"Bring some brandy," said madame, "along with the coffee."

When Rudolph had gone she hopped, muttering, out of bed, a queer skinny old creature in bright crimson pyjamas. Old of face, old of body, with an unruly crown of curly white hair that gave her, with the strangely young and vivid black eyes, an elfin, gamin look as if she were a little girl, made up for 6 play to portray an old, old lady. When Rudolph returned she was reclining on her chaise longue at the door opening onto the balcony wearing a morning gown of peach-colored silk and mules with great white pompons.

"I have bathed in some strange liquids, Rudolph," she giggled, "but it is the first time I showered with coffee. I am sure I like it."

"It was unpardonable clumsiness, madame, even under the circumstances. How can I tell you —"

"My successor will be one, trust, who is not a liar, the leadety of a double life, a deceiver however of—of helpless children."

"Yes," said madame absently. "Yes, we'll see that we don't get any more kings in disguise or Russian Jews masquerading as house boys."

"But you will permit me to stay until the children come? It will not be easy to—"

"Don't be a fool baron! Don't be a gross imbecile! Of course you will stay. When I spoke of your successor I meant— very simply—a man to butile. You, of course, will stay on."

"I will bow—"

"Name of God. He asks how! It is all very simple. You stay on as the Baron de Morpin, here in your Chateau Philibert."

"But you, madame—"

"I? The bright eyes danced and sparkled. "Well, I have thought of that. At first I dwelt on King Carol and his friend, Madame Lupescu, I thought I should play Magda to your Carol" She grinned fiendishly as Rudolph crimsoned and busied himself with the coffee, slowly and ultracautiously. "That is out. You are definitely not the romantic type. So I shall be your secretary."

"Stop making objections. This place is like a museum and it's dull as a morgue and it is the mercy of the good god that has caused some excitement to happen. It will be good to have these little ones. There is no reason in the world that they should ever know you were the butler. We can have a new man in the morning. I'll phone to Hotel Follet at once."

"But will it not be cruel to deceive them, to let them think—"

"No!" screamed madame, slashing coffee into her saucer. "No! No! No! But it would be cruel to have them learn, after being bombed and torpedoed and frozen and starved, that they are very likely to be at least frozen and starved again, my old one.

"There!" She lowered her voice as the saw the hurt, the trouble, the defeat in Rudolph's pale blue eys. After all—he had dreamed of greatness, of the high places of ease and opulence. "I did not mean that you would be unable to maintain them, but three is quite a number and children need so much! Believe me, too, you will be doing a kindness to a lonely old woman. Not in years have I had the prospect of such fun or looked forward so much to anything. You must do as I tell you. Monsieur le Baron. I must begin calling you baron."

Flying Dutchmen Out of Running For Major Series

(By The Canadian Press)

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen kissed the Ontario Hockey Association major series title goodbye for 1951 last night as Toronto Marlboros handed them their seventh straight home defeat 6-3. In a second major clash, Hamilton Tigers hammered Toronto St. Michael's 8-1.

Goalie Ed Rafferty accounted for much of the Marlies' victory, aided by team-mates Red Johnston and Scotty Muir with two goals each, and Al Buchanan and Don Rope. Struggling to save a playoff berth for the Knuts were Harvey Jackins, Billy Flick and Bill Mitchell.

At Hamilton, the Bengals chalked up their third straight win over the league-leading Irish, with Frankie Lisconbe doubling and Murray Comfort, Harvey Fraser, Carl Smith and Al Conlick getting one each. Johnny Ubrisco put St. Mike's on the scoreboard.

In O.H.A. Junior A title, Barrie Flyers spiked St. Catharines Teepees 5-1 to retain first place. Windsor Spitfires grabbed second place by thumping Guelph Biltmores 5-3, and Toronto Marlboros earned third place by downing Oshawa Generals 5-3 to tie with Guelph Biltmores.

Flyers pushed two goals in both first and second periods, adding a third matched by Teepee in the third. Lou Labine hit twice, with Chuck Wood, Jack McKnight and Jim Morrison adding a trio. Wayne Brown came up with St. Kitt's single.

It was Guelph's third loss in 19 starts, Windsor's Erwin Grosse led Spits with a pair, Eddie Joss, Earl Johnston and Martin Zorici grabbing singles. League-leading scorer Ken Laufman, Chuck Henderson and Andy Bathgate scored for Biltmores.

A wild cash by Ron Stewart broke a 3-3 tie in the Oshawa game, with Bob Coopers goal making the fifth Marlies' tally. Earlier, Joe Lumley, Dan Wimbley and Norm MacDonald had connected for the Toronto team. Lou Jankowski sparked Oshawa, with two, Bill Berwick getting the Generals' other goal.

Redmen Outscore Queens 12-9 In Wide-open Senior Game

Kingston, O. Feb. 22—Potent attacking and weak defensive play was glaringly conspicuous in the Hardy Arena last night when the Belleville Redmen defeated the Queens University Combines by 12 to 9 in an OHA senior 'B' pro-a fixation. It was the twenty-sixth defeat sustained by the Tricolor in thirty-one starts and Belleville's thirteenth victory as against nineteen reverses.

With nothing not even prestige at stake the checking reins were loosely held and only six penalties, equally divided, were inflicted by referee Pete Nye of Peterboro. The attendance, approximately 300 fans, was far above expectations in view of the lowly position held by the Combines and the unfavorable weather conditions.

Never Headed

The Belles were never overtaken after Vernon Goyer shot them into a 2 to 1 lead at the 16.20 mark in the opening period. They held a 3 to 1 advantage at the first intermission and were 7 to 4 pacesetters at the next. After Jack Wardhaugh made it 8 to 4 early in the third round Gerry Wagar struck for two fast tallies and over the rest of the route the visitors shaded the locals 4 to 3. Goyer Gets Four

In a cleanly played but lackadaisical exhibition, big Vern Goyer paced the pointgetters with four goals and two assists, Shredder got four assists, Wagar three goals and one assist and Don Murray two and two.

Green opened the slaying fifty seconds after the game began but the Combines rallied defensively and made it a battle worth while. The latter also forced a deadlock when at 15.12 Don Murray soloed for a counter. Goyer got the tie breaker at 16.20 and late in the period Mulvihill made it 3 to 1. The Belle rang more loudly early in the middle session and in a space of five minutes and fifty seconds Wardhaugh scored once and Vern Goyer twice while the Gaels duplicated that scoring feat when Budiak, Don Murray and Graves racked up consecutive counters. "Red" Jones got the next at 19.05 and provided the visitors with their winning margin.

Wide Open Third

In a wide open final period each team scored five times and kept the statistician going around the circles. Davey Latimer drew the only penalty while the tallyhaul spree was in operation and thus the besieged defences had few alibis to offer. The rival forwards, however, did not stress the art of defensive checking and provided spectacle that made the attacking rules look rather tame.

Final stages the Combines trailing by only two goals but they couldn't get any closer while striving in a hopeless cause. The Redmen exhibited glaring defensive weakness and failed to show the improvement in spots of a team about to enter the group playoffs.

Spokane Flyers Issue Challenge To Chatham Team

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 22—(AP)—Spokane Flyers, western international league hockey champions, Wednesday issued a challenge to the Chatham, Ont., Maroons of the International League in hope of winning at least a moral victory in a long-standing dispute.

Flyers offered to play a seven-game series next month here or in Ontario.

The dispute arose last year when Spokane defeated New York Rovers in a series they believed would settle the national U.S. championship. At the same time, however, another playoff was started in the east and Chatham was the winner.

Since Chatham and Spokane could not agree to terms for a playoff, the Amateur Hockey Association named Spokane the western champion and Chatham the eastern titlist.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

Fleming MacKell of Toronto who scored in the third period to give Toronto a 2-2 stalemate with league-leading Detroit.

Zellis Toppazzini, who did the same for New York to tie the game up 2-2 with Boston.

Sports Roundup

By JACK HAND
(For HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)

New York, Feb. 22. (AP)—They say the field for the $63,000 handball commissioner handicap has been reduced to four. Still in the running are Jim Farley, former U.S. Postmaster-General, Governor Frank Lausche of Ohio, George Trautman of the minor leagues and Happy Chandler, defending champion.

Latest tip is that baseball may come out of its March 12 "showdown" meeting at Miami Beach, Fla., with no commissioner at all.

Anti-Chandler mean expect to show Happy that his re-election is imporable because of a strong non-budge bloc that never will vote for him. In that case, they hope Chandler will step down.

A prominent baseball executive, whose name cannot be used for obvious reasons, predicts a stalemate at Miami Beach. If Chandler accepts a stalemate as defeat and resigns, a three-man commission would rule the game. Prediction Ford Frick of the National, Will Harridge of the American and a third man to be named by the two presidents would form the commission.

Fixes and Dumps

The kids in the candy store talked about the basketball scandal. On the news stands the red headlines blared "Probe More Fixes" and "Stars Admit Taking Bribes".

"I don't blame them," said a teen-ager. "Fifteen thousand people paying to see you play and you not getting a nickel."

Maybe this lad was an exception. You hope so, of course. But his ideas and reasoning smack you between the eyes. It's the all-too-common story of "what's in it for me?"

Flatic Notes

With Sandy Saddler signing for a Feb. 28 bout at Havana against Diego Sosa, prospects of a featherweight title match between Saddler and Willie Pep are remote. Pep severely gashed in a tune-up fight, hasn't made up his mind yet. . . will Jake LaMotta let his weight sky-rocket to 125 again after getting down to 160 pounds the hard way?. . .

Petes Trim Eagles, Cinch First Place In Senior Group

Peterborough Petes cinched first place in the senior group standing last night when they defeated their intra-city rivals the Eagles by an 8-5 score.

Kingston Nylons can win second place with a victory over Queen's which is good for four points. With that a strong possibility it looks as though the teams will finish, Petes, Nylons, Eagles and Belleville.

Leafs and Wings Play 2-2 Draw While Rangers, Bruins Have Same Score in N.Y.

It's a rare occasion when a referee gets a chance to play anything more than an insignificant role in a hockey game, Bit George Gravel got the opportunity last night in Toronto when the league-leading Detroit Red Wings fought to a 2-2 tie with second-place Maple Leafs.

Gravel was in the limelight, not by choice, but because of the current controversy between the bosses of the two teams regarding the disparity in penalties called on them this season.

Conn Smythe, general manager of the Leafs contends that the reason Detroit has had 252 minutes less in penalties than Toronto is the amount of heeling the Red Wings' front office does to the National Hockey League officials.

Jim Norris, who owns the Wings, replies that the reason they are the least penalized in the league is "because they are better coached."

Gravel, of course, must be credited with calling them as he saw them, but the result of his game was to take much of the sting out of the controversy. He called four penalties against the Red Wings and only two against Toronto.

As it turned out, however, not one of the penalties produced a goal, all four of which were scored with the teams at full strength.

Indecisiveness wasn't confined to Toronto last night. In New York, where the other N. H. L. game was played, the result was the same, as the third-place Boston Bruins and the fourth-place Rangers wound up in another 2-2 tie.

Sizable Crowd

A sizable crowd of 12,363 saw Zellio Toppazzini put the Leafs in front midway through the third period to tie it up for New York, which temporarily held top point behind the Bruins.

The game was scoreless until the last minute of the second period when Vic Lynn took a pass from Ed Sandford and beat Charlie Rayner to give Boston a 1-0 lead. The third period was 40 seconds old when Ed Slowinski tied it up. Bill Ezinicki sent Boston to a 2-1 lead on a scoring play with Milt Schmidt a few minutes later and then the Topper got his tally.

A crowd of 13,600 saw the Leafs come from behind to tie it up after Detroit had taken a 2-0 lead in the first period. The game left Detroit still five points ahead of Toronto in the standings in 12 meetings with Toronto this season Detroit has won five, lost four and tied four.

Gerry Couture and Gordie Howe scored goals for Detroit in the first period. Sid Smith got Toronto's first goal midway through the second period and Flem Mackrell tied it up at 6:02 of the third.

Leafs had an edge in play, Terry Sawchuck handling 29 shots for Detroit goal while Al Rollins was stopping 18.

Rickey Would Not Recognize Dodger Camp

Vero Beach, Fla., Feb. 22—(AP)—An open letter to Branch Rickey, former boss of the Brooklyn Dodgers who is now the No. 1 pirate in Pittsburgh:

Dear Branch,

I am writing this from your old standing ground, good old Vero Beach, and, Branch, you would never recognize the old place right now. This former navy base which you developed into a $200,000-a-year Brooklyn Dodgers spring training camp still has the same old barracks, the same dormitories, the same mess halls, the post office, the paymaster's window, registration office, swimming pool and even the old 135-foot well you had dug right outside the right-field line to supply water for the boys. But, alas, just generalizing, if you only knew what was missing. Gone are your mechanical pitchers, stationary batting tees, sliding ropes, sewer-pipe retrievers for foul balls, 90-year sprint champions, pitching strings and electric umpires.

And the boys appear happier for it too. None wished to be quoted directly but privately they think your ideas were, pardon the expression, screwy. Maybe they are behind the times. Eh, what?

Anyway for the first time in five years the players feel like grown men. They say they've done away with the chow line, you know, no more eating cafeteria style. Now they sit down like gentlemen and waiters serve them.

No Registration Forms

The boys are not required any more to fill out registration forms like the good old army days, giving their name, rank, state of health and so on. No whistles to wake them up in the morning. No instruction sheets to memorize, no lectures, no more time sheets to study to find out what they are supposed to do at 9:15, 9:20, 9:25, etc. And believe it or not, Branch, there hasn't been a single complaint about a player getting lost. None of them are on the way to the park or being in the wrong place at the right time.

Your old coach, Charlie Dressen, who has taken over old Burt Shotton's role as field lieutenant of the Dodgers, isn't a great admirer of yours, as if you didn't know. His opening address to the players was something like this:

"You men are going to want you to do," he said, "is to forget all about Rickey's methods. All that bunk about swing bats at golf tees, throwing the ball through Rickey's arm, under ropes and other such silly stuff is out.

"We're here to get in condition . . .

Had Best Team

"I've been told you had the best team last year and should have won the pennant but you did not. Something went wrong somewhere. Well, I'll tell you what maybe the fault lay somewhere else. One thing I'll tell you now. We're not going to get you in shape to sell you later for $75,000 to some other club. We're going to get in shape to win the pennant."

Honest, Branch, that's what the man said.

Holding the assembly line over the Pirates training factory will produce a first-division club, I reckon.

Joe Reichler.

NO, NOT THIS!

All is not well behind the pre-clash scenes of the forthcoming Battle of the Blues.

In case you're wondering, the Battle of the Blues is the February 27th hockey bash Jinx Etherwine known as the Police Department versus Fire Department ice-lane frolic scheduled for Memorial Arena that evening.

* * *

It seems the private eyes of the Driscoll Daredevils of the law enforcement squad have been scouting the secret practices of smoke - eating hoboes of Fire Chief Gerald Vance, and have come away perturbed. They have not been satisfied with what they saw. They realized that here was a potent force, even without their short lengths of hose which they carry on their hips.

So it seems the demons of Driscoll are put out, no end.

* * *

So much in fact, that word has come to the underground of the fire-chewers, that the Dick Wilds, Sherlock Holmes, The Fat Man, The Big Guy, Ellery Queen, and other shamuses of the Driscoll Division have been seen in faraway places where police departments exist, seeking hockey talent for the important Feb. 27th tussle.

* * *

"This" quoth Ett Allch Fost, mouthpiece and chief of the hoof-and-ladder underground, "is not as we say over 'ome, cricket. In fact it ain't even crokinole."

"It seems that the shadows of the police department have been holding out enticing offers to members of the pinch-'em-and-fine-'em brigade of other places to come here to centre Turkey Pelmeeno and his pin-feathered robbiers," Ett Allch snorted.

* * *

"Such goings-on should not be tolerated. Not that the gallant men of Vance care one lota. They are ready to stand on their feet (until game time) with what strength they have. They are ten good men and true, who fear nothing of the guys in blue," said Postie waxing poet-like.

* * *

"We of the Fire Department are not worried about the epicene of Police Chief Turkey Pelmeeno and his pin-feathered robbiers," Ett Allch snorted. Le Fost, three buttons flying from his waistcoat as he tossed out his 36 chest. "We are fully confident we can take the measure of the Driscoll demons in any sport they wish to name be it cricklnole, cricket, checkers, pinochle, or a rollicking joust of canasta."

* * *

"As for hockey" snickered the diminutive Frank, "those big kays won't stand a chance against the flying speedsters of the Vance - Culhane crew. "I'll bet my cost-of-living bonus on that."

* * *

Seriously, members of both teams are letting no moss rather on their jankers in an effort to make the forthcoming annual hockey tilt, one of the best yet. Both teams have been practicing faithfully, and there will be plenty of fun, frolics and good-natured fireworks at the arena next Tuesday night.

The firemen have invested heavily in equipment, paying for it out of their own funds. Chief Gerald Vance has entered wholeheartedly into the effort to assist the Mark of Dimes and is going all out to make the affair one long to be remembered.

* * *

There'll be gala entertainment between periods. The Municipal Band and Kinsmen Boys Band will be there dispensing jolly old rhythms. There'll be figure skating kings and queens, not to mention clowns, and other mirth-provoking numbers.

* * *

The tickets cost but twenty-five cents and can be procured from any fireman or policeman. If you can't make the show buy a ticket anyway. Those crippled and other fellows who can't help themselves, and who get every dog-gone cent of the proceeds will remember your act with gratitude.

* * *

WANNA BUY A CAR?

Jimmy Irvine, starry young goalie of the Redmen has associated himself as a salesman with the Bonn Motor Sales. Jimmy has become Austen-minded and will welcome any business that comes his way. His pleasing personality and neat appearance should aid him a lot in his quest for success as a car salesman. He'll be glad to see you if you're in the market. He'll be glad to see you anyway.

* * *

Tonight is minor hockey night in the city as three teams of youngsters go a'running for victories in the first Ontario Minor Hockey Association playdown rounds. The bantams, midgets and juveniles take on three Kingston teams in a two-game goals-to-count series in Memorial Arena with the second series of games scheduled for Kingston on Saturday. The local kidlets are ready and rarin' to go and hockey fandom should get out and support those stars-in-the-making. The bantams start the triple bill at seven o'clock with the midgets following and the juveniles lowering the curtain after that. Bantams and Midgets clash with the Kingston Young Rangers while Jim Ethier's Juveniles meet the Kingston Vics.

* * *

Twill be a weekend of hockey for the upper brackets boys. Tomorrow night the Redmen clash with the Queens University Combines in their last meeting of the schedule season while Saturday night the junior "B" Rockets face the barrier of the Playoff Stalwa Race with the upsurging Oshawa Bees in the first game of their three-of-five semi-finals series. Both squads hit the trail on Monday evening with the Rocks trekking to Oshawa and the Redmen journeying to Peterborough where they wind up the homestead schedule against the Eagles.

Dick Wakefield Will Play Ball For Nothing

Lakeland, Fla., Feb. 22 (AP) — Outfielder Dick Wakefield, one-time $52,000 bonus baby of Detroit Tigers and last year a $17,000 player with Oakland of the Pacific Coast League, said Wednesday that he'll play baseball this season just for the fun of it.

"I don't want a salary and won't take one unless there's something in baseball law that makes me," he said in an interview.

His statements constituted a change about-face on the salary question.

"I decided to do it last year at the end of our season at Oakland" he explained. "I went up to see Brick Laws (Oakland club president) . . .

"I said I would play for exact-ly $1 this season. He was surprised but we shook hands on it and I haven't heard from him since.

$250,000 Memorial Centre At Brockville Opens Sunday

Brockville, once the Eastern Ontario home of the colorful Magadons Senior Hockey Club and a hot bed for the junior ice game during the 1930's, will celebrate the opening of its new Memorial Civic Centre on Sunday, February 25, when the Hon. Leslie M. Frost, premier of Ontario, will officiate at the afternoon ceremonies.

In company with Alan Single-ton, former Island City athlete who was stricken with polio two years ago, the Ontario premier will cut the ribbon on a new era for the St. Lawrence River community. Proceedings following the ribbon-cutting will take place inside the huge structure, with government and civic leaders in attendance.

The town that gave the hockey world such stars as "Dubbie" Kerr, Bill Cully and Thain Sinclair, Mahon, Verdall Price, Herb Foster and a host of others, had reason to celebrate too, for the last arena fire burned down in February, 1937, just one year after the power-packed Magadons went through to the Eastern Canada Allan Cup finals. Since then Island City athletic enthusiasts have been enjoying their favorite sport on open-air rinks while hockey teams were playing their home games in nearby towns.

Built at Cost of $250,000

Built at the cost of $250,000, the huge brick and stone structure which is heated, will accommodate 2,100 fans in individual stadium-type seats—the first four rows are cushioned—while there is also ample room for over 2,000 standees. The immense 195 by 90 foot artificial ice sheet can be removed within hours and with additional seating for boxing, wrestling and stage shows installed, the building will accommodate close to 7,000. Besides an ultra-modern cafeteria, two lunch bars and numerous skating, hockey and meeting rooms, the building also contains a spacious auditorium with a seating capacity of 500 for use by Brockville and district people as a centre for various recreational and community activities.

Some seven miles of piping make up the distributor end of the $25,000, nine-cable-inch refrigeration plant the modern machinery guaranteeing a hard sheet of gleaming ice on the smooth terrazzo floor despite warm weather or the heated arena.

Contributions Galore

The corporation of Brockville contributed $60,000 towards the $250,000 total cost of the building while the energetic Project Group of the Young and Mature Committee raised $150,000, the remainder of the money being collected through public subscription. The Project Group not only contributed their $150,000 to the building fund, but also paid all expenses of the two-year campaign and have purchased a bus for the free use of all Brockville's sporting groups.

Arch Miller, well-known Brockville sports promoter, has been appointed manager of the Brockville Memorial Civic Centre on a two-year contract, vowing that he will make the huge enterprise pay during its initial seasons. In planning an ambitious year-round operational scheme Manager Miller will bring all types of entertaining sports and stage entertainment to this community, while plans are afoot to book rings for the varied types of conventions and agricultural shows so popular in this section of the country.

Plenty of Activity

The newly-laid terrazzo floor is presently deep-drying and therefore ice will not be put in until approximately March 14, but plenty of activity is scheduled for the new structure in the intervening weeks.

A dedication ceremony will be held March 4, when the plaque on which the names of all Brockville servicemen lost in the past two wars are inscribed will be unveiled. A motor show will hold the main floor on March 1, 2 and 3 while a dance will be held in the auditorium on March 5 and 7 and 8 will feature a fashion show and on March 9 the Brockville firefighters will hold their annual "Firemen's Ball" in the arena section. A wrestling show on March 10 will be the last "dry" event and following the installation of ice on March 14, Barbara Ann Scott, this city's favorite granddaughter, will be featured along with the Ottawa Minto Follies, March 17.

According to Manager Miller, the ice will then stay in as long as there is someone to use it with the chance that a city hockey circuit will get under way and many district teams will use the Centre as their home ice for playoff engagements.

Saskatchewan Wins High School Curling Title

Nelson, B.C., Feb. 22 (CP) — The Saskatchewan rink skipped by Gary Thode last night won the Canadian high school curling championship and the Sifton trophy with a 9-4 victory over Alberta that was settled by a thrilling big three in the ninth end. The trophy thus went to Saskatchewan for the third time in four years. Manitoba has won it once.

Alberta and British Columbia tied for second place and tournament officials said they will play an additional six ends to decide the runner-up.

The British Columbia rink swamped Nova Scotia 9-3 last night while Alberta was losing.

In other games last night, Northern Ontario trounced Manitoba 12-8, Ontario beat Prince Edward Island 8-8 and Quebec took winless New Brunswick 17-4.

Quebec followed the three top t ams with six wins for the east's best effort in the western sweep.

Northern Ontario was on Quebec's heels at the end, and Ontario and Ontario followed with four wins apiece.

Prince Edward Island ended with three wins, Nova Scotia could claim only one victory and New Brunswick drew nine blanks in nine tries.

A big three in the ninth end s tiled the issue in the Alberta-Saskatchewan final. The Alberta rink picked up eight up in the eighth end, then counted three to go ahead 7-6. But the Saskatchewan rink tallied up a three in the ninth to again take the lead 9-7. Alberta was able to make up only one more in the 10th end.

Least-Penalized Because Better Coached—Morris

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Red Wings are the least penalized team in the National Hockey League "because they're better coached," owner Jack Adams Morris said Wednesday night in Miami, Fla.

Manager Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs charged earlier that Norris' "crying" was the reason the Red Wings had been penalized only 643 minutes this season. Toronto leads in penalties with 695 minutes, he said.

"It's just going off half-cocked," Norris said. "All the Leafs do is clutch and hug on. They ought to be penalized."

Smythe said Norris "has done so much crying and letter writing asking that this official be fired and that official not handle games, that the Wings have been having things their own way."

Norris replied that he didn't believe he had done "any extra crying. We always do our beefing through the proper channels."

Thirty-two rinks have been entered in the fifth annual Brant Curling Club's three-day bonspiel which will get under way at Brantford Monday. Each entry is guaranteed at least four games. W. L. G. Hardie, Hamilton Thistles, will be defending the title he has held for two consecutive years.

Two international all-breed dog shows will be held in conjunction with the 1951 Canadian National Sportsmen's Show for the benefit of the Toronto Humane Society, it was announced Wednesday by Frank H. Kortright, President of the Toronto Ateliers and Hunters Association. The Sportsmen's Show will be held for eight days starting March 8 and the dog shows will be held March 14, 15, 16 and 17.

A torch lit from the eternal flame of Athens' Olympia, and to be used in the opening ceremonies of the Pan American Games at Buenos Aires, left Rome Wednesday aboard an Argentine Airliner for the Argentine capital.

Edmonton Eskimos have lost import Doug Brightwell to the American army draft, officials of the Western Football Conference team reported Wednesday. Brightwell, a centre came to Edmonton last year via Regina, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Texas Christian University.

Keith Weese of Centreville, near Napanee, who racked up 20 wins in pitching Shallow Lake Rangers to the Ontario Junior baseball title last season, has signed a professional contract with the St. Louis Cardinals organization, it was reported Wednesday.

The 12-year-old righthander had a strikeout total of 206 last season.

A. Sidney Dawes, of the Canadian Olympic Association, said Wednesday that the Olympic Games and the British Empire Games are the only international competitions Canada can reasonably be expected to enter at present.

Mr. Dawes was commenting on Canada's inability to send other than a synchronized swimming team of three persons to the first Pan-American Games at Buenos Aires Feb. 25-March 8.

Canada's representatives in this competition will be Mrs. Marjorie Sochand of St. Marguerite, Que., and Misses June and Gale Taylor, London, Ont., sisters.

Lawrence Tech Defeats Varsity

Toronto, Feb. 22. (CP)—Lawrence Tech of Detroit combined speed and accuracy Wednesday night to defeat University of Toronto Blues 78-57 in an exhibition basketball game.

A small crowd of about 1,000 saw the Blues take a first-quarter lead, then fade under the effects of a classy display of teamwork by Lawrence. Shooting accuracy of the Detroiters was illustrated in the third quarter when they sank eight out of nine set shots in a brief period, a barrage which proved the major portion of their winning margin.

Bill Wagner, with 15 points, Jim Siepler with 13 and Blaine Denning with 11 were the high scorers for Lawrence Tech which came from behind to take a 38-27 lead at the half. Eddie Bowman scored 12 and Jack Gray 11 for Toronto.

Lawrence Tech meets McMaster University in Hamilton, Ont., tonight.

Buffalo Bisons Increase Lead In E. Division

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons further increased their lead atop the eastern division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night, blanking Pittsburgh Hornets 4-0. In the only other game scheduled, Springfield Indians downed Providence 8-3.

Defenceman Connie Dion posted his first shutout of the season and earned the cheers of 4,321 fans.

Grant (Nobby) Warwick, second in the league's scoring race, netted two goals. Bid McVeheny and Ross Lowe each had one marker.

Referee Harry Ornest called match misconduct penalties in the first period against Harry Dick of Buffalo, who recently broke the league record for penalty time, and Frank Mathers of the Hornets. A high-sticking exchange touched off the fight.

At Springfield, the Indians moved back into a third-place deadlock with Providence Reds in the eastern division.

The big guns in the Springfield line-up were Sammy Casanato and Kelly Burnett, both of whom tallied two markers and an assist apiece. The other Springfield tally was marked up by Ken Hayden.

Four Countries Rate Tops For Skating Title

Milan, Italy, Feb. 22—(CP)—Canada, Britain, France and the United States Wednesday night were rated as the top contenders among the 12 countries entered in the world figure-skating championships starting here Friday.

Canada's chief hopes are riding on the slender shoulders of Toronto's Suzanne Morrow who finished fourth last year in the championships at London when Aja Vrzanovo won the women's title. The Czechoslovak girl is now in the United States and has turned professional.

In the men's division Bill Lewis of New Westminster, B. C., Canada's senior men's champion, holds the dominion's hopes in this division.

Canada's other entrants are Yevi Smith of Toronto, 18-year-old carnival skater and runner-up to Miss Morrow in the senior women's contest at Vancouver last month and Betty Hiscox of Toronto, a newcomer to international skating contests.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Among the various non-forcing bids in bridge is a simple raise in no-trump. Each such raise shows an additional high card (ace or king or queen.) But it does not show partner to bid again.

When a player sees (nine) enough high cards in the pair for a no-trump game, he jumps. Otherwise, he does not jump. As in the pair of partnership hands shown here:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A 5	♠K 9 8
♥A Q 10 4	♥K 3
♦K 7 6	♦10 7 3 2
♣K 8 6 5	♣Q 9 4 2

South opens with a bid of one heart. Among other things, high card points are shown. His fifth high card entitles him to one raise in no-trumps. This he may do later, if he gets the chance.

North, content with a bid of one no-trump. This shows a minimum of 7 high cards. He has exactly three high cards so he should not make any no-trump raise in the direction of the majority, that's it.

South does not yet know that north lacks a fourth high card. He raises to two no-trump to show off his own fifth high. If north has a fourth high he should raise to three no-trump. So, north passes.

Instead of a simple raise to two no-trump, South could have jumped to three no-trump? No. The three high shown by South and his own five are only eight no-trump tricks. Not enough for game.

There are, of course, many players who will not dare so fine a bead on no-trump bidding. To them it is something close to ridiculous. They did not come here to be so restricted.

So, in a match by game, experts will not confine themselves to high card values only. They will sometimes raise no-trump with an extra jack or a couple of kings. And even on something less.

I have no quarrel with such players. Theirs is not the joy that comes from making the contracts they reach. Unless ignorant, they know their values are not correct. They aim to experiment this with brilliant play. They like to take the chances.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood Feb. 22—(AP)—In the old days, an actor usually had two questions about a new job:

1. "How much does it pay?"
2. "What's the billing?"

Billing—how the actor's names appear on the bill and in the ads—still is as important in Hollywood today.

Nearly any film performer of any importance has billing specifications written into his contract. And when he is not billed properly, an actor can raise a fuss.

One of the most noted cases concerns Jeanne Cagney. In early '50s, he wanted to get out of his contract at Warner Brothers. They didn't want to let him go, since he was one of their biggest stars.

One night, Cagney was driving past a Warner's theatre. A new bill was going up and another star's name was placed above Cagney's. He hurriedly called a photographer, who took a picture of the billing before it was altered. Cagney sued and broke his contract because it said he must receive top billing.

A more recent case concerned Merle Monter. Against her will, she performed what was called "a glorified bit part" in "The Exile" with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. When she ads came out, Fairbanks was billed above her. Her contract called for top billing. She sued and won $25,000 and her freedom.

Studios are sometimes faced with a dilemma when both stars in a film demand top billing. That was the situation in "Life with Father" with Irene Dunne and William Powell. The problem was solved by having half of the films and ads printed up with Miss Dunne's name on top and the other half with Powell's name foremost.

Nearly all featured players have choosen in their contracts an "must receive first billing under the picture title" or "name must appear in type 75 per cent the size of the stars' names."

NAMES REQUIRED

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP) —Sqdn. Ldr. S. A. Rutland, commanding officer of the Toronto Aircraft Control and Warning Unit (reserve), Wednesday asked young women between 18 and 30 to get in touch with his department if they wish to learn the work of the unit.

"This is not recruiting, because we haven't got the go-ahead from Ottawa, yet," he said. "But we want to build up a backlog of names so we can send out applications as soon as it comes."

Winter Repair to Lake Freighters Big Business on Welland Canal

By T. N. MORRISON
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Welland, Ont., (CP) —The annual overhauling of Great Lakes freighters in winter berth at Welland Canal ports is in full swing.

This reconditioning of the vessels in preparation for their summer task of hauling grain and iron ore has become big business for Welland and the other communities. Contracts in hand in this area alone for 25-mile seaway linking Lakes Erie and Ontario are worth $2,225,000.

Surveys of the work that had to be done were made soon after the lake carriers, canallers and barges were tied up at their winter berths in mid-December. Then the contracts were let late in January.

From now until navigation reopens in the spring, the work front will continue to be busy. Hammers clang, Welders' torches hiss. Paintpots swarm over the ships.

Much of the work involves repairs to boilers. Coal bunkers are replaced on some ships, tank tops partly renewed on others. This year minor repairs have been ordered more extensively than in the past, as shipping firms expect the season ahead to be one of the busiest ever.

Extend Ship's Length

Each winter brings its own special jobs. One of the unusual operations now underway involves making the coal-carrier Coalite 50 feet longer. The first step was to cut the vessel in two. The work is being carried out at Port Weller, at the Lake Ontario end of the canal.

At Port Colborne, plates are being ripped out of the freighter Donnacona to enable workmen to straighten the keel and frames. The ship was damaged in a mishap that sent it crashing against a Hamilton wharf last season.

Firms that do the overhauling at centres along the canal employ close to 1,000 men. A good deal of their skilled help comes from the ranks of mechanically-inclined second and third engineers from the ships that are tied up. Many ships bring up in this area find winter haven at Port Colborne and Port Weller. Firms from these centres overhaul craft at various other points along the canal and have been known to go still farther afield on special jobs.

Sixteen steamships and six barges make up this year's winter fleet at Port Colborne. There are 35 vessels at Port Weller and another half-dozen at Port Dalhousie.

All must be outfitted before they start the 1951 season. Deck and food supplies for each ship — at approximately $1,500 and they are bought from concerns in the canal-area.

But this is not the only large item of business brought to this area by the lake ships. During the navigation season, the passing freighters keep ship chandlers busy. The supplying trucks race to rendezvous with ships at all hours as the vessels enter the canal.

Vests Definitely Out for Men This Season

Montreal, Feb. 22 (CP) —Mink and ermine for males?

Well, things haven't gone that far yet, but after looking at some of the exhibits shown by the Men's Fashion Council of Canada here this week, one never knows. Some 40 garments, products of leading Montreal and Toronto manufacturers, were on display.

First, there was a 1-two-tone creation, a sleeveless, collarless, easy-to-fold-and-pack-for-travel affair that came under the heading: negligee for the male.

Gone, apparently, are the days of parlor-best stiffness. All suits were functional, comfortable, and —it is claimed—the coolest in history.

Garbed in eight ounces of suit, tomorrows man-in-the-know will parade in a pastel-shaded, single-breasted lounge suit. Perhaps he will flaunt a wide, gay tartan ribbon in his hat as well as a pair of the first all-Canada wedgies.

Vests are definitely out. Their absence, it was pointed out, is still a further avidence of the "trend to trim comfort."

The coat will be a full inch longer and the hat will have a slightly-narrower brim and a little higher crown.

One casual coat number was an oxclot design fabric resembling velveteen, single-breasted with a one-button link. A banana-yellow jacket with contrasting blue pants and a corduroy rust-brick coat with "dog chain" belt, showed the "trend to brighter, more comfortable clothes."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, February 23

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—A day for forethough, caution, sensible action in all activities. Don't deviate from right path nor make unnecessary changes in matters running profitably, unless emergencies arise.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Time to finish important things rather than start new; and not wholly necessary projects or tasks. Day may be irritating in spots, so be prepared and wear your sunniest smile.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Likely more friendly for keen mental work than other matters but day requires patience, double ling of effort. If schedule is demanding try first to finish things started.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—No time or room for gloomy moods or doubt. You are best and can "lick" obstacles quicker once you put your mind to it. Don't overcrowd your calendar but hustle through essentials.

July 23 to August 21—(Leo)—Not as auspicious a time for asking favors or seeking what you have not earned. Stick at your job even though it may be tedious. We must forget self and pay for more urgent matters.

August 22 to September 23—(Virgo)— Not too helpful tendencies nor yet unfriendly. What does your program call for? Be judged by it and tune your tempo to meet demands. Don't assume more than you can handle but go forward.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Good time to retrench, check how you have been doing, where can you improve? Familiar matters, daily routine and work for which you are trained most favored now.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Some restrictions may be felt but don't let it worry you, go ahead sturdily with your planned schedule. Meet opposition sensibly, weigh the pros and cons, you may learn much of value.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) Tricky day in spots, it may take extra initiative, urge from within for you to get on with matters as you wish. Be patient, pursuit others their view. Familiar work favored.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—It is not always necessary to have showy gains or quick advancement for a constructive day's endeavor. Any honest work done well, however unobtrusive, will earn credits.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—You, like most of us, must be on the conservative, not side-side all day to avoid needless errors, carelessness. Be mindful first of the important tasks. Relax also over weekend.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Advice to Scorpio can prove advantageous. Without fear but with sane caution tackle day's problems as well as be easier and more pleasant chores. Plan for days ahead, too.

YOU BORN TODAY: Ambitious, hopeful of achievement, fond of learning but not always as active and energetic as should be to realize lofty aims: You are likeable, just, instately generous—characteristics which are all assets if rightly applied to everyday living. It is well for you to compete with successful people, it will give you more faith in you. Whether in profession, a trade, or just at home, stay ambitious, enthusiastic; keep improving always. Some excellent months in 1951, and new means for advancement.

Mrs. C. Minaker Celebrates Her 99th Birthday

Picton.—Beautiful flowers, and potted plants, the gifts of friends, decorated the home of Mrs. Charles Minaker, Ontario Street, on Saturday afternoon, when she was "at home" to relatives and friends on the occasion of her 99th birthday.

The party was arranged by her niece, Mrs. John Minaker and her great niece, Mrs. Russel Minaker, of Cressy, and other close relatives.

Many neighbors and friends called during the afternoon to offer felicitations to this grand old lady, who still lives alone and does all her light housework.

She received many lovely gifts and cards and thoroughly enjoyed visiting with those present, being remarkably alert mentally. She attributes her great age in part to a policy of early to bed and early to rise.

The tea table was centred with spring flowers and adorned by two lovely birthday cakes. Post Master Laverne Minaker, of Picton, is a great nephew of Mrs. Minaker.

Crisis Threatens Weak Economy In Red E. Germany

Berlin, Feb. 23—(AP) — Communist East Germany admitted today a growing coal and steel crisis is threatening its already weak economy.

The free German youth (F.D.J.) tipped off the situation, believed to be launching a recruiting campaign to lure young men into the mines.

The F.D.J. announcement called for 1,000 volunteers for work in the hard coal mines within the next two months as a "gesture of patriotism on behalf of the communist five-year plan, just under way.

West Germany also is suffering from a coal shortage which western occupation authorities have blamed on bad management in the coal industry. West German economic ministers say Eastern Germany countered that the crisis developed because the occupation authorities set too high export quotas.

Meanwhile, western sources said the east zone had hoped to turn out 3,000,000 tons of steel in 1950 and accomplished only one-third of the goal.

Sharp Decrease In Still-Born, New-Born Deaths

Chicago, Feb. 23 — (AP) — A sharp decrease in still - born and new-born deaths at the Toronto hospital is credited in part by two Canadian doctors to effective methods of resuscitating babies who fail to breathe.

Drs. John P. Fletcher and Joslyn W. Rogers, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, said the still-birth and death rate in a series of 2,531 deliveries at Toronto General Hospital has fallen off steadily for three years and that resuscitation efforts played a "considerable part" in the improvement.

They said a complete clearing of the mouth and throat was performed in all cases immediately after birth.

If breathing failed to fall into a normal pattern within two minutes, they used a simple apparatus to clear the airway to the lungs by suction and to supply air or infant with oxygen.

The doctors estimated an infant must breathe five to eight minutes after birth to avoid damage to tissue and organs by a lack of oxygen.

BELIEVED METEOR

Kansas City, Feb. 23—(AP)— A brilliant flash of light, believed to be a meteor, was observed over a wide area in three states last night. The flash, which occurred shortly before midnight, was seen in Missouri, eastern Kansas and northern Arkansas. Newspapers and police departments received scores of telephone calls from observers.

Born in Teeswater, Ont., they led varied careers. Robert, a cattle-buyer and farmer, retired here last year. William, a former steamfitter and plumber, now heads a gospel mission here.

ONTARIO WILL NOT SUPPLEMENT OLD-AGE PENSIONS

Responsibility Lies With Ottawa - - Frost

Toronto, Feb. 23 — (CP)—The Ontario government wants no part of supplementary allowances to old-age pensioners, Premier Leslie Frost said yesterday at the end of a fiery Throne Speech debate.

Premier Frost took the floor to explain his policy after a verbal attack by Joseph Salsberg (LPP—Toronto St. Andrew).

Replying to Mr. Salsberg's demands for a $10 monthly payment to pensioners, the $40 federal pension, the premier said payment of such allowances in Ontario between 1943 and 1948 had delayed adoption of universal pensions on an unbelievable extent."

Ontario now expected to see "within a few months" federal payment of $40 monthly to all persons between 65 and 69. Federal-provincial payment of pensions with the means test to those between 65 and 69. Adoption of the plan waits agreement on a constitutional amendment and federal legislation to enact it.

"The responsibility in increasing pensions now lies with Ottawa, where it belongs," Mr. Frost said. Ontario would keep to its policy of paying one-quarter of whatever old-age pension is decided on by the Dominion government.

Mr. Salsberg said the provincial government was guilty of "moral indifference" in waiting for Ottawa to increase pensions.

The legislature today continues the Throne Speech debate, with Mines Minister Gemmell scheduled to speak. Government legislation also comes up for debate.

480,000 H.P. Is Reached By Des Joachims

Des Joachims, Que, Feb. 23 (CP)—Ontario Hydro's big Des Joachims generating station reached its 480,000 horsepower capacity today as the last of eight units was put in service.

Des Joachims, on the Ottawa River 40 miles upstream from Pembroke, Ont., is Ontario's second biggest plant, ranking next to the Queenston - Chippawa Falls. The first two units were put in operation here last June.

Cost of the Des Joachims development was an estimated $75,775,000. Another $5,000,000 will go into transmission of power to major distributing points.

The generating process is generated at 60 cycles and transmitted to Kipling (near Toronto), Burlington (Hamilton), Hanmer (Sudbury) and Essa (Barrie) for relay throughout southern Ontario.

Bomber Canberra Averages 439 MPH On Flight From Gander to Washington

Washington, Feb. 23. (AP)—A British Jet Canberra bomber crossed over Andrews Airforce base at 12:35 p.m. E.S.T. today, completing a 1,210-mile flight from Gander, Nfld., in two hour 49 minutes.

The plane had spent two nights at Gander Airfield after a record 3,150-hour flight from England via the North Atlantic.

The Canberra's average speed for today's flight was around 439 miles an hour.

Sqdn.-Ldr. A. E. Callard made several passes over the airbase, which is near Washington, for the benefit of military and civilian officials waiting to greet him.

The twin-engined plane, first jet bomber in the world, will be studied by the United States for possible use. It was delayed at Gander after a 2,000-mile circuit from Montreal to take care of routine servicing.

Sqdn. Ldr. A. E. Callard and his two-man crew hopped off from Gander across an altitude of eight miles or more and average 445 miles an hour, according to preliminary reports.

The crossing will not be recognized as an official international record because the British Royal Aero Club was not asked to send observers to Gander for the 3,000-mile flight.

The operation is part of the exchange of military information among Britain, the United States and Canada. The plane, a product of the English Electric Company, is 65 1-2 feet long and has a wingspan of 64 feet. Maximum speed and ceiling are military secrets.

The R.C.A.F. said the Canberra, which took off at 9:56 a.m. E.S.T. would take an estimated two hours and 45 minutes for the trip to Andrews Field, near Washington.

HOPE TO SCARE THE ENEMY TO DEATH

Britain's Press Waves Flag, Sings 'Rule Britannia' On Naming of Pact Admiral

London, Feb. 23—(AP)—Britain's press today waved the flag victoriously and defiantly and sang "Rule Britannia" over the nomination of an American admiral to head the Atlantic Pact navy.

Even more forcefully than did Winston Churchill in the House of Commons yesterday, the papers asked: "What's the matter with a British admiral?"

The furore arose over the choice of Admiral William M. Fechteler, now commander-in-chief of the United States Atlantic fleet, to head the combined naval forces of the North Atlantic countries.

Churchill plunged the commons into an uproar yesterday with his charge that this selection "brushed out of the way" the wave-ruling Britons. Prime Minister Attlee finally said his government would reconsider its position on the appointment of an American to the top international navy post.

Today the empire-minded Daily Express, under a streamer headline "U.S. navy chief row," said editorially:

"If Churchill had been prime minister, this appointment would never had been made. . . There would be no row and no bad feeling generated on the subject between Britain and America. It is fairly put to them, the Americans will understand that Britain—as one part of a partnership between equals—rejoices in having her land forces under the command of Eisenhower, but that as another part of the same partnership, the ships should be commanded by a British admiral."

The conservative Daily Telegraph wrote:

"It cannot be agreeable to have to point out at this stage how strongly people in Britain would resent the assumption that less seagrip should always fall to our American associates under the (Atlantic) treaty. But there it stands."

The liberal News Chronicle said:

"There exists in this country—or in any other—no better friend of America than Churchill. No one can pretend that he was motivated by anti-American feelings when he raised objections to the nomination. Churchill was there-fore right to raise the issue and Attlee was wise to promise that he will reconsider it. America will understand both our anxiety and our point of view."

Defence Sources' View

Ottawa — (CP) — Canada does not care whether the head of the Atlantic Pact Navy is a British, American or French Admiral, so long as he is the "best man" obtainable, defence sources said today.

They were commenting on criticism expressed in Britain over the reported choice of an American admiral to head combined naval forces of North Atlantic countries.

Officials did not agree with Winston Churchill that a British pact navy is the best man, they said. "We are not interested in his nationality."

Issue of Parallel Has Not Affected Conduct of War

Tokyo, Feb. 23 (AP)—Informed sources said today the international debate on the sanctity of the 38th parallel—artificial dividing line between north and south Korea—has not affected the conduct of the Korean war.

They said the question has not arisen in connection with the tactical dispositions of the allied land, air and naval units under Gen. MacArthur's command.

Top officers have decided reports that British and Australian warships would refuse to confine their activities south of the boundary.

British and other allied land troops now participating in the U.N. offensive on the central front are still some distance short of the disputed boundary. There is no indication that "operation killer" is designed to push as far northward as 38.

It is understood that commonwealth commanders have decided on a flexible policy in their basic instructions placing them at MacArthur's discretion.

The general tendency among top officers here is to concur with MacArthur's statement that any discussion of whether land troops will cross the parallel is "force remains "academic."

EDUCATION LEFT WITH PROVINCIAL JURISDICTION

Federal Government Will Not Make Grants

Ottawa, Feb. 23—(CP)—The commons decided yesterday that the federal government shouldn't make money grants to the provinces for general educational purposes.

The only thing it can do, the house decided, is give financial aid for specific purposes.

The chamber came to that conclusion, though there were many dissenters, as it ended debate on a private resolution urging the government "means of expanding and equalizing educational opportunity across Canada" by extending federal grants to the provinces.

The resolution sponsored by H. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon), a former school teacher, was defeated by a vote of 112 to 45. The C. C. F., Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties and two Liberals — David Croll (Toronto Spadina) and Howard Winkler (Lisgar)—supported it.

Health Minister Martin, the government spokesman said the government agrees with the objectives of the motion, but would be limited by the constitution if it tried to give specific grants.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, disagreed. The federal government, he said, already gives aid to hospitals through federal grants, though the constitution placed hospitals strictly within provincial jurisdiction.

Supported by Many

The resolution, debated on a day set aside for study of private members' bills, was supported by members, some with present or past links with the country's educational institutions either as teachers or members of administrative and financial boards.

Banquet Liquor Licences Not To Make Money

Toronto, Feb. 23—(CP)—Brig. J. G. Sprague, Ontario Liquor Control Board chairman, announced today that after March 31 transport liquor licences will be granted only to organizations or persons serving full-course meals.

"It is not the purpose of the board permit to make money by selling liquor," Brig. Sprague-principle said. "Many clubs which have been in the habit or receiving permits have used them only to make money."

Previously, organizations such as veterans and sports clubs have held regular monthly or quarterly meetings under which beer, liquor or Edmonton, and others to the far-off bomb bursts and said:

Lead Brigade Of Commonwealth On Left Flank

Dig in on Rain-Swept Rocky Slopes of Their Sector

Tokyo, Feb. 23, (Reuters)— The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry led the 29th British Commonwealth Brigade in a thrust-hill attack on Korea's central front today but were bogged down in mud late in the day.

The Canadian battalion, whose part in the United Nations offensive marks its first action of the war, met light communist resistance during the day but its advance gained less than 2,000 yards in little more than a mile—because torrential downpours and deep mud stopped the vehicles.

The sector in which they are fighting is just west of Hoengsong in the United Nations centre.

Throughout the morning, the Patricias were under fire and at nightfall were reported facing two battalions of communists dug in on important hill northwest of Hoengsong.

Before the Canadians struck the 29th Brigade had gained seven miles in their first 36 hours of fighting.

Last night the battalion dug in on the rain-swept rocky slopes of their sector and threw back one light Chinese counter-attack.

But there appeared little activity in forward areas up to noon today. But it was believed they had razed some outposts of a main Chinese defence line.

Knee-deep mud choked roads and fields and the Patricians, like the British troops, shed their fur-like coats to manhandle equipment forward.

There was little strong opposition in their first 24-hour advance which began at dawn yesterday.

They romped through a company of entrenched communists and swept on to mop up small pockets of communists northwest of Chipyong.

In breaking up the Chinese regiment they formed the first objective of the war — a rugged, inaccessible hill position that tonight has been in the Rocky Mountain foothills.

Survey Land Ahead

On the Central Front, Korea, Feb. 20. (Delayed)—(CP)—The Princess Patricias, from heights overlooking their first big advance in the Korean campaign, today surveyed the land ahead and made the best of what amounted to a day off.

Although the snow-covered, mountain-ridden, uphill-and-down battle terrain before them lay Chinese and North Korean forces. To the northwest were six sounds that have not been dropped from United Nations aircraft. On either flank there was patrol contact with fire and mortar bursts.

But stop ridges held by communists under the Red Star gave way to Lilley's men and Lieut.-Col. Jim Stone, of Edmonton, commanding the battalion.

Lilley's men saw troops from London, England, go forward to verify something that Lieut. Ned Pace of Kitchener had found earlier—that a virtually-unknown village was unoccupied— and that was the Patricias.

On George's ridge, Cpl. Alvin Pendry, Edmonton, added to the far-off bomb bursts and said:

"They really must have spotted something over there. Planes have been plastering those hills with bombs all afternoon."

Men in the forward slit trenches kept a constant look-out with binoculars, but otherwise the battalion settled down to consolidate than before the recent Miryang-Twaling exercises prior to going into battle. Blankets were spread out to air. Most of the men spent their time deepening their slit trenches.

Line Trenches With Straw

Over on Lilley's mountain, the troops remembered the zero cold of the previous night in the trenches hewn out of the rocky hill, went back in groups to the valley behind for bundles of straw, lined the slits with straw, the trenches are more comfortable.

The temperature on the mountain during the previous 24-hr. was in the 60s. Spring insects filled the air and some of the troops were in shirt sleeves. But after dark the temperature went down to zero.

It was so cold that water bottles split and froze solid.

Most of Lilley's men had their boots off yesterday thawing them out in the afternoon sun. Lieut. Harold Ross of St. Catharines, Ont., had his platoon "headquarters" around a cheerful log fire, where there was talk of the war and home.

Have First Wash

Lilley exploited the chance to get his men off the hill in sections of a Korean house manoeuvred by Lieut. Murray Edwards of Kelowna, B.C. There Edwards and his men found the cauldrons filled with boiling water so the troops could have their first washes and shaves in several days.

Meanwhile Sgt. Monty Farrell of Campbellton, N.B., kept men busy digging trenches on the mountain.

En route to the position, I passed Cpl. Louis Moores of Oshawa, Ont., Pte. Ziol Dore of Cornwall, Ont., and others, all with packs on their backs.

If the troops, even on the move, make themselves comfortable, it doesn't reflect on their tactical cleanliness. Lilley, pointing out the layout, stressed its impregnability.

Three Brothers Go to Reformatory On 29 Charges

Sudbury, Feb. 22 — (CP) Three teen-age Sudbury brothers yesterday were sentenced to two years less a day definite and one year indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory on a total of 29 charges laid as the result of a series of break-ins and thefts dating back to last Dec. 1.

The brothers, after pleading guilty to all charges, were given concurrent terms on each count. Joseph Delmar Smart, 18, faced three charges; Victor Smart, 16, was held on 14 counts and Melvin Smart, 17, admitted taking part in 12 break-ins.

Their father, Joseph W. Smart, 51, facing four charges of possessing stolen goods, was committed for trial in a higher court.

No Country More Completely Fulfills Empire Builders' Dreams Than Canada — London Telegraph

London, Feb. 23 — (CP) The Daily Telegraph today devoted its main editorial columns to a detailed examination of Canada's account of Canada's rise to world prominence.

The Daily Telegraph, Conservative, is regarded as one of Britain's quality newspapers.

Its 1,500 - word article, headed "Phenomenal industrial expansion in a nation of 14,000,000," said Canadian achievements in trade, industry and commerce "are startling."

"No country today can be said more completely to have fulfilled the dreams and ambitions of builders than has Canada. She has attained world stature after having been successively, the domain of French and British chartered fur-trading companies, a string of unconnected colonies, a self - governing dominion and a fully-independent nation. It is the story of the British Commonwealth writ large."

In world affairs, it could be truly said that "no other country with a comparable population has reached such eminence . . . in so short a time."

The article was contributed by Geoffrey d'Eyville, formerly associated with Canadian publications in Montreal.

SOME DAMAGE CAUSED TO DUMP

A spark from an electric switch which set fire to fumes in a gasoline pump at the South Front district of Imperial Oil Ltd., caused a bit of excitement late yesterday afternoon.

Employees of the oil firm were unable to fill a gasoline attack with foot and after placing the hose in the tank had burned on the electric pump. Flames in the pump caught fire and the flames flared up causing damage to the pump.

Firemen made a quick run to the scene and extinguished the flames with liquid foam. No damage other than to the pump was caused, it was reported.

One of the fire-fighting laddies of the Belleville Fire Department is looking for a hockey glove, the loss of which could have an effect on the game of the next Tuesday's clash of the ice lanes between the firemen and policemen.

Red Cross Serves Large Areas Through Outposts

In Pierceland Outpost, a dot on the map of Northern Saskatchewan, a Red Cross nurse is busy bringing two sets of twins into the world. On the same night the nurse from Alkzis Creek Station is half-way in her 252-mile trek by plane, auto horseback and foot into the interior of British Columbia to answer an emergency call from a family gravely stricken with influenza.

These are but two examples of the work accomplished day after day by the nurses in the chain of 32 Red Cross Outpost Hospitals and Nursing Stations linking Canada from coast to coast"

"More than 90,000 persons received medical care and services through our Outposts in 1950," reports Miss Helen McArthur, national director.

"Because these remote centres of medical care must be ready to play an even more important part in the present crisis, doctors must carry a greater weight of services in time of disaster and national emergency."

Nine communities reached a point where they could take over Red Cross Outpost Hospitals during 1950, thus enabling Red Cross free to enter ten new communities and to extend the Nursing Hospital facilities in remote areas, without increasing the budget.

Two new Nursing Stations were opened in Saskatchewan for the first time, two more are being considered. New Brunswick operates three outposts and one planned. A new Outpost was opened in Nova Scotia and two new Outpost Hospitals were opened in Manitoba, the first since 1945.

Proposal Fails To Meet Approval Of Magistrate

A request by Arnold E. Ives, foreign born and with no given address, that a charge of trespassing on C.N.R. property be dismissed following which he would agree to pay his railroad fare, failed to meet with approval of the court in city magistrate's court this morning.

Ives was one of a weekend five was taken off the Toronto-Montreal train when he failed to produce a ticket and was charged with trespassing on railroad property. Later friends in Montreal forwarded $40 by money order but Ives refused to sign for the money or to pay the fine.

Today in court Ives, in highly accented but good English, asked that proceedings against him be dropped.

Again, following questioning by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, he declined to accept the money and pay the $3.90 railroad fare owing the C.N.R.

Notice that the Department of Justice could closely scrutinize the action of the court in dealing with the matter Magistrate Wills emphasized that proper court procedure be followed.

"This man must understand that he cannot get everything his own way," stated Magistrate Wills as he enlarged the case until Tuesday, the C.N.R. crown and the defendant were asked to have their witnesses present at this time.

Rev. D. McTavish Guest Speaker At Y's Men's Club

Rev. Duncan McTavish addressed the Y's Men's Club at the regular meeting in the YMCA. last night acting as his theme "World Brotherhood". He stated that in spite of all that experience had taught us in the past we were living in fear of a third world war. He continued that many would have us believe that we could return to the retrospect than in its present mess but, he added, it always has been in a mess. Our greatest need he established was re-placing fear with faith. Until we learned to trust one another insecurity would continue, he stated.

The speaker reminded the members of the claims to ideologies which should be equal rights for all people and yet in pre-war Asia nine tenths of the people were illiterate. Other inequalities of masses and minorities were quoted to illustrate some causes for unrest and bitterness.

The speaker was introduced by Bryson Leslie and thanked by Archie Bickert. Bob Woodcroft presided. A motion by Robbie Clarke to increase the number of directors to include the chairman of the World Outook Committee was adopted.

At the previous meeting Alec Gordon spoke and demonstrated the art of reading and appreciating poetry. He indicated distinction between poetry and verse and stated that the latter was more descriptive of his own creation. He read many of his own compositions which he said were the ramblings of a school teacher.

The speaker was introduced by Jack Wilson and thanked by Archie Boyd.

Bees Flying About!

More signs of an early spring —or at least of warmer weather —are reported this week, this time by a Sidney township resident who says that honey bees have started to fly outside.

Last summer part of a hive of honey bees took refuge between the brick and the framework beneath the window sill of the residence owned by Mr. and Mrs. James Murray, 2nd concession. Sidney, just outside the city. The bees found the sheltered spot and hibernated there for the winter.

But the warm weather of the past few days has brought them to life and yesterday Mrs. Murray reported the bees had crawled out and were flying about her kitchen window.

Mrs. Murray says they do not keep bees, and has no idea where they came from.

Describes World Scene in Words Of Football

Ottawa, Feb. 23 (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson a one-time football player but not a curler, last night spoke to curlers wrestling up the three-day centennial bonspiel of the Ottawa Curling Club.

He spoke about the international "game" but not with the curlers' jargon of "hogline" and "back-ring weight.' Mr. Pearson used football language.

"In what may be termed the 'international scrimmage' to help win the situation by carrying car-loads to distant points.

The fine freight car shortage has resulted from the recent United States auto-workers's strike and an extra-heavy volume of shipping from Canada's industrial area.

During February, new car and truck production in Windsor has been maintained at one of the highest levels in history with a total new-unit production of about 1,100 a day.

Ford and Chrysler plants in Windsor require a total of 170 railways box-cars a day to keep up with their shipping commitments to the east and west and to dealers past Toronto. Within the Toronto radius it is normal to ship new cars by truck transport.

BEEF IN STORAGE

New York, Feb. 23 — (AP) About 1,000,000 pounds of locally dressed beef is reported in storage here because of consumer resistance to high prices. Miss Anna Blumstein, secretary-treasurer of the Metropolitan Dressers Association, said a considerable amount of western dressed beef also remains unsold here.

Storage Lots Jammed With New Cars at Windsor

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 23—(CP)—New cars, estimated at over 2,000, jammed factory storage lots in Windsor today because of a railway box-car shortage.

Car-hungry dealers from points as far east as Montreal and from Northern Ontario are using train, bus, car and chartered planes to bring drivers into Windsor to drive new cars to their showrooms.

Meanwhile car transporters are working overtime to help ease the situation by carrying car-loads to distant points.

Gardiner's Talks With UK Officials 'Most Helpful'

London, Feb. 23 — (Reuters)— Agriculture Minister J. A. Gardiner of Canada said today his talks with British officials here have been "most helpful in clearing away what could have been misunderstandings" between the Canadian - British wheat agreement.

Gardiner told a press conference he has exchanged views on the possible purchase of other food products in Canada by Britain.

We have made known the facts that prices for pork, beef, cheese and eggs are comparatively high in Canada," he said.

"Supplies of all these products are being marketed as fast as produced. Greater production or a movement of exports from other markets to Britain could be induced by assuring purchase of supplies for some time ahead."

Glasgow University Will Bestow Degrees

Glasgow, Feb. 23 (AP)—Three Canadian professors were listed today among a group of 70 persons who will receive honorary degrees during celebrations of June of the 500th anniversary of Glasgow University.

The three Canadians Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and Gen. Eisenhower, supreme Allied Chief of the Atlantic act forces.

Canadians to be given honorary degrees are Charles Lemesurier, Professor of Civil Law at McGill University; Norman MacKenzie, President of the University of British Columbia; and Reginald Trotter, Professor of Colonial History, Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

Attlee Govt. Loses On Minor Issue

London, Feb. 23 — (Reuters) The Labor government was defeated by eight votes in the House of Commons today but the defeat was on a minor issue so that no question of its downfall was involved.

Nonetheless, wild cheers and cries of "resign" greeted the announcement of the vote — 242 to 234. It was on a bill seeking to modify the state-owned road transport system.

Today's vote gave second reading agreement to principle to an opposition bill seeking to extend the scope of privata enterprise road transport.

It proposes that private hauliers should be allowed to operate up to a radius of 60 miles from their headquarters instead of 25 as at present.

The measure will be up for discussion in the House of Commons again, when Labor will marshal all its forces in efforts to defeat it.

The bill being debated was not officially brought in by the Conservative opposition.

But all Labor M. P.s had been informed the government wanted it killed because, if it became law, it could cancel a part of the act which nationalized transport.

The opposition therefore regard the outcome as a serious moral reboff to the government.

MARMORA

Icy Condition Of Road Believed Cause of Crash

Marmora—A transport of the R. Shepherd line bumped into the rear of one of Joseph Doyle's workmen's buses, causing damage to the rear of the bus and to the radiator of the transport, about 8.10 a.m. on Thursday. Men returning home from the night shift at Deloro were passing when the Doyle bus driven by George Presnick The transport was descending the hill on No. 7 highway by St. Andrew's United Church, as it collided with the bus. Fortunately no one was hurt. Constable Percy Embury investigated and found the icy condition of the highway to be the sole cause of the collision.

Flashing Blue Light Carried By Plow, Sander

Toronto, Feb. 23—(CP)—Motorists on wintry roads in the future will see a flashing blue light mounted on a truck will know they are looking at a highways department snowplow or sander. Highways Minister Doucett said today.

Use of the flashing light, strong enough to penetrate the snow mist usually attending a snowplow in action, has been decided on following a conference of the Ontario Motor League, provincial truck and bus associations, provincial police and the highways department.

Powerful U.N. Forces Advance All Along Front

Tokyo, Feb. 23—(AP)—Powerful United Nations forces, spearheaded by Australian troops, shoved ahead late today all along the central Korean front after brief but bitter communist resistance in the mountainous middle section.

The communists apparently are using fight-and-run tactics in a series of delaying actions against the 100,000-man offensive on the muddy 80-mile front. This would account for the sudden changes in the scene of battle reports.

On the east flank of the rugged, twisting front, American forces pushed unopposed into rubbled Pyongchang, 25 miles southeast of the main objective—Hoengsong.

Allied forces were closing in on Hoengsong, road and railroad junction of 10 miles north of the offensive kick-off point, Wonju. A field dispatch reported the first resistance on a line east and west of Hoengsong at early Friday. Soon afterward the sector was reported quiet.

Also suddenly still was the area north of Chipyong, 20 miles west of Hoengsong. Here the 2nd battalion of Canada's famed Princess Patricia's regiment swept easily through and opposition astride the Seoul-Hongchon road west of Hoengsong.

It was the first action of the Korean war for the Patricias.

And brought to six the countries in the current drive against the Chinese and Korean reds. Others are Australian, British, Australian, New Zealand and South Korea.

Canadians Leading

(Reuters news agency said the Canadians are leading the Commonwealth force on the left flank of the offensive, and added:

("The Canadians have cut off a light communist counter-attack and, from there, reports indicated, hit the Chinese lines at noon today. They were believed to have mixed a force of communist outposts.

(During the first 36 hours of the offensive, the agency said, the Canadian force pushed forward about seven miles.

AP correspondent Tom Bradshaw reported that the Canadian soldiers led Commonwealth forces in a northeasterly wheeling movement following the first action of the war. The Patricias fought their way through an estimated company of communists.

The far western and far eastern sectors were relatively quiet today. Allied troops south of the Hwachon Reservoir, near Chorwon were under some communist artillery, tank and mortar fire. U. N. forces have made no large-scale assault on the now-useless former South Korean capital.

Na'Seoul was abandoned to the reds early in January after a bitter battle. The conflict forced the U.N. forces to withdraw to better defensive positions south of Parallel 38.

Agreement was worked out at a round of meetings between the importers and federal agricultural officials in Montreal and Toronto. Government-held butter is being sold at about 57 cents a pound wholesale in carload lots.

The importers now now is being unloaded at Halifax and is expected to be distributed in eastern Canada where the need of butter is greatest.

Cancel Leaves In N.Z. Strike

Wellington, N. Z., Feb. 23 — (Reuters) — Strike for the Royal New Zealand Air Force was suspended today following a government — declared state of emergency caused by a country-wide dock strike now in its fifth day.

Earlier the government formally ordered the dock strikers back for higher pay, to return to work by 8 a. m. Monday or be prepared for government action against them.

Labor Minister William Sullivan promised New Zealanders that the government would maintain a supply of food and essential commodities.

The Waterside Workers Union, to which the back-to-work order was issued, will decide at deadline — hour meetings whether to resume work.

River Seaway-Power Project Up for Congress Approval

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP) — Vice-Admiral Edward L. Cochrane, Maritime administrator, goes before Congress today in the administration's drive for quick approval of the controversial St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Four cabinet members and other top administration aides have already called it "vital" as a defence measure.

The main support of authorizing legislation before the House of Representatives public works committee has been that the seaway would provide a deep-water route for shipping in Labrador iron ore.

Interior Secretary Oscar L. Chapman—recalled for further questioning today—told the committee yesterday that the known reserves on the Minnesota Mesabi range of high grade ore would last only from 10 to 14 years.

He also said that Canada will build the sea route on its own side of the river if Congress does not approve the joint endeavor.

Under a 1951 United States-Canadian agreement, only two countries would build the dual-purpose development on a 50-50 basis. Each would receive rights to half of the estimated 13,200,000 kilowatt hours of energy to be produced annually.

Under the proposal, tolls to be charged shipping and revenues from the power would pay off all costs of the estimated $1,000,000,000 waterway during the next 50 years.

May Be Approved

Representative John A. Blatnik (Dem. Minn.), a member of the committees and sponsor of one of eight measures to authorize the project, said he believes the committee will approve it "although it is nip and tuck at present."

If a "none count" of the 25-member committee is held, he believes nine members are in favor of the project, seven are against and nine are "doubtful."

There is also some speculation that, even if a bill gets committee approval, it might have trouble getting approval by the powerful Rules Committee. A block of it are could stalemate it in the House.

The House hearing, which began Tuesday, may last another two weeks, as opponents will be given their say when the backers complete their testimony.

CONQUEST OF DISEASE

The "flu as the influenza is now called was known in 1918 as Spanish Influenza. The epidemic this year though it claimed many lives in Britain is of a much milder type than that which swept the world in the last year of the First World War. Where the present epidemic originated is not clear, though some say that it seems to have originated in Scandinavia or at least it was first brought to attention in that part of the globe. This year's outbreak is typed as "Virus A" and has covered already a good many countries. It has been felt in Greenland and is reported as far south as Sardinia in the Mediterranean.

It is noted by the Halifax Mail-Star that the 1918 visitation took a triple form, there being three epidemics separated from one another by a few months.

As far ago as 1893 it was experienced in the Eastern world.

History records the dread visitation of an epidemic dating back in the year 1403 when the courts in Europe had to be closed by reason of the prevalence of the great pestilence.

The present influenza which has affected a good number of people in this part of the world is fortunately now on the wane, it is believed.

While numbers have been "down" with colds or with influenza, modern science have proven a great safety measure for the advance in the science of drugs has produced means to combat the spread of the malady.

Whatever the form of the disease which has spread in fact fortunately reveals that fatal termination of the disease has been very rare in this part of the world. It was not so in the British Isles where the victims of the disease were numerous.

Today's tids as in other cases of sickness one of the main measures to be followed is to rest and to go to bed. That is a simple means and yet many persons do not like it. It is however time-honored and has proved its efficacy for down through the years.

Plenty of water to drink is also advised. And then there are those modern drugs which are a mighty agent in the hands of the medical man which are an effective means of combating the outbreak.

No one knows the mystery of this influenza, why it changes its form at different times. The 1918 outbreak was deadly and hit at the young adult. The present form hits the people of British Isles.

As time goes on medical men and scientists gain more and more knowledge of such maladies and can do a magnificent work in handling the battle against such unwelcome visitations. Those who live in this age of medical progress and scientific advance live in a privileged era of history. Everyone knows how the span of life has been lengthened in the past half century.

DEVELOPING SELF-CONFIDENCE

Col. F. Spencer Chapman said recently in an address over the BBC that "personality is now doing dangerous things; but as I am very easily frightened and dislike being frightened I have always gone out of my way to do advantageous things, in order to drive out fear and develop self-confidence and self-respect."

He has a message for the people whom he tells to "beware of the man who says he is never frightened! If I were choosing a party to climb a difficult mountain or in war time for a patrol behind the enemy's lines, the last person I should want would be one who claims that he is incapable of being afraid."

Colin Chapman points to Sir William Slim, who in his brilliant broadcast once said that you must not allow your fears to be exposed to fear for otherwise their stock of courage may be all used up and disappear.

He adds "one can do this on the mental, or did I say moral" — as well as the physical sphere. You agree, then, that anything that will "get" you to do a certain thing, may be to undertake a broadcast or a parachute drop, and having once committed yourself, there is no getting out of it unless you are prepared to let other people down and to sacrifice your own self-respect."

"Yes, I have been more frightened by tigers and elephants than by anything else in the world. But, much as I believe in living dangerously, for both pleasure and character building, one of the things I would not volunteer to do is to sleep in a haunted house, because if there is one thing that would really terrify me even more than an elephant it is a ghost!"

Always vote for a principle, though you vote alone, and you may cherish the sweet reflection that your vote is never lost. — John Quincey Adams.

INHERITANCE

"On the inheritance we had," I said unto my brother:
"I drew a little bit from dad, But more, I'm sure, from mother.
Our father kept accounts, and she Checks accurately price things. But, down from mother came to me These boundless love for nice things."

"Did added figures on a page And get right answers to dad,
And that was in a bygone age When machines could do so?"
"Dad?" she said, "I have business mind,
I must be more like mother."

Vor keeping books and records straight
He had both skill and merit,
But, not one trace of such a trait
From him did I inherit.

"In Eton collars I was clad,
One Sundays, velvet costed.
Such finery was spurned by dad,
But on it mother doted.
Now, when I check myself to find
What comes from one or t'other,
Deprived of dad's keen business mind,
I must be more like mother."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is a romantic streak in us all that encourages us to believe that there is a kind of direction are of some different sort of clay than ordinary men. It is always a shock to be invited to the home, say, of a famous author and find him not spreading newspapers on the floor, from the vestibule to the living room, before his dog has mud on its feet.

Behind called to the committee of a charitable organization, you are summoned to a meeting of the board of directors of a big trial magnate. A sort of terror grips you, as you face the problem of what clothes you will wear, amid such high company. On arrival, you are admitted by a bossy Irish maid. Your first glance about the august premises reveals that it is a large house, as you might have expected from the outside. But beyond that, it appears to be a house that is put to the normal uses of a family. There are unopened magazines and parcels on the hall table. A child's garcard, folded, leans against the costly panelling. A frowsy fox terrier comes hurrying from an inner room to inspect your trouser cuffs. The maid takes your hat and coat and chucks them in a closet. With her thumb, she signals you toward a living room from which comes the chatter of your colleagues and some female fellow committees.

On the landing upstairs, the wife of the industrial magnate appears and calls loudly for her spouse. She smiles absently down at you. Now the industrial magnate bumps you as you collide in the doorway.

"Why, dear" he calls up, impatiently, like any other husband, poor, bewildered 23,000 a year husband.

"Where the heck," his wife demands from afar off, "did you put that wicker box thing with the needles and thread?"

"I didn't see any wicker box," snorts the magnate heatedly. The lady vanishes. The magnate turns and welcomes you to his mansion with a warm handclasp. He conducts you into a big room, it is true, but all is not as it is at first glance, tables, pictures, a rug, a book case and a bunch of ordinary characters just like you.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

BOOZE AFLENTY

When called upon from time to time to defend the operations of British Columbia's liquor laws, Attorney-General Gordon S. Wismer, the big-chested man with western world, likes to refer to "public opinion."

The most vociferous opinion comes not from the public, but from rabid abstinentialists politically opposed to the idea of cocktail bars and the serving of beer and wine with meals that they are willing to turn a blind eye on the orgy of alcoholism openly on view in Vancouver six nights a week.

There's a very simple and obvious reason why the Attorney-General is not exposed to the real view of public opinion. The reason is that the law which prohibits drinking in a public place, is not enforced.

In the past three days, in our survey of the city's drinking, an estimated 7000 citizens have been observed breaking the law openly without let or hindrance from the police. Thus the law, being ignored, is not put on trial by either the drinking or abstaining public.

The Attorney-General ignores his duty to see that the law is upheld. An excellent example is that made by the police dry squad, which did, according to press reports, recently called "a farce and a waste of police personnel". Police Chief Walter Mulligan's contribution to enforcing the law is to give somewhat wistful advice asking the public to "cooperate."

The law is not working, as a result. Every night spot may quickly confirm, but the onus is not on the public. It is on the police. It is on the Attorney-General who talks of temperance while ignoring the law and the Chief Constable who talks of temperance and is its result.

• • •

What the law has done is to make booze joints out of most restaurants where you do not have the cocktail bars that the temperance people have in mind, but they're drinking by the bottle.

The Cabaret Owners' Association consents to 40 per cent of total patrons drink.)

Either the Attorney General or the Chief Constable can see this for himself by visiting any one of the bars in Chinatown, not more than three blocks from Police Headquarters, any night of the week. Our report for today happens to cover the night of Friday, Feb. 14.

There were just five tables occupied in the Mayling Cafe restaurant, 648 Pender, between 10:45 p.m. and 11:45 p.m. Three 25-ounce bottles of whisky, soda and ice cubes were on the table. Two bottles of the same brand were on the table of the nearby bar and the small number of patrons were drinking quite actively after the owners had glanced nervously about the premises.

In two cases male patrons made an attempt to hide their bottles when they noticed that their topcoats, these men wore their coats to the table, placed the bottles of whisky on the horse-shoe leatherette seat and covered them with their coats. Curiously enough, both men pour-ed their drinks openly, above the table, returning the bottles to their hiding places.

This restaurant was visited again between 12:30 and 1:30 a.m. when nine 25-ounce bottles and one 40-ounce bottle were observed in one section. One man was seen to be drinking beer from the bottle. On an estimated 100 men and women present approximately half showed outward signs of intoxication.

• • •

Two couples were observed specifically at the Chip Inn Cafe on Granville, between 12:10 a.m. and one a.m. The couple drinking from a 25-ounce bottle of rum which the woman kept in her handbag. The second pair kept their liquor, a 25 ounce bottle of rye, under the table.

This second couple sat directly under a sign which read, "No liquor allowed on these premises."

• • •

Attendance at all night spots Tuesday was far below normal and only eight tables were occupied at The Wu Chow on Keefer, the East Pender Street, between 1:50 a.m. and 2:05 a.m.

This second couple of one bottle to each couple was noted as well as the alleged father to George O., man shouted at his companions in obscene language. Bottles were concealed in the pockets of the half-empty 25 ounce bottle of rum was left on the table during the time observed.

• • •

The Mandarin Gardens was visited between 2:50 a.m. and 3:15 a.m. Respectable citizens were in more furtive about pouring liquor than at other cabarets visited, but the bitch of a hostess there is intolerances where for legal reasons drinks may be served to adults.

Mackenzie's Column: Red 'Peace' Machine Gathers Momentum

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Communism's "peace" machine is gathering momentum under the Stalin's policy statement to the Moscow newspaper Pravda a few days ago.

The key to that statement was contained in a brief sentence which proclaimed: "The wide campaign for the maintainance of peace at any cost must be on this basis."

It was an order to intensify the peace crusade in an effort to counteract the defensive rearmament campaign of the democracies. This new campaign is supplementing our big smooth propaganda machine with a big military machine.

Old Method

This long has been Stalin's method of driving orders direct to his workers in the field, without the intervention of any middle men. It gives an added punch of authority to the directive, and puts the rival parties in foreign countries on their toes.

Stalin's statement came at a time when communism was showing striking weakness in some key countries and growing influence in some others. He aimed to remedy the weakness and capitalize on the strength.

Specifically, the press office of the Italian Catholic action in Rome reports that a survey shows that communism is losing ground throughout Europe. This decline, it said, has damaged the major communist organizations of various European countries. The French communist party alone is down 1,000,000 from 1946, 600 members during the last two years. The Communist movement's power is said to have been "most impressive" in Britain and in Scandinavian countries.

One would assume that the red peace crusade is specially aimed at countries which obviously are treading circumspectly in order not to displease Russia. Naturally the caution is most pronounced among European countries which, sitting under Russia's big guns, and among Atlantic countries which have to watch their step in dealing with communist China.

Reflection Noted

For instance, I believe we get reflection of this in the report that Britain has told Washington it cannot send more troops to United Nations forces to reconquer north Korea.

Not for one moment is it suggested here that Britain is seeking to "appease" Russia. Britain is anxious to avoid getting involved in a major war with China — and who can blame her.

India is also moving carefully, and has refused to participate in trying to make peace between the western world and her vast Chinese neighbor.

It is situations like this which the communists are counting on in trying to capitalize. And so long as the red "peace" machine displays a willingness to ease real dangers, it will continue to roll.

COULD HAVE DONE BETTER

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 22 (CP) — The pilot who helplessly broke the Atlantic crossing speed record told Premier Joseph Smallwood he would have "cut another hour or so" from the record if it had not been for the headwinds.

IN CASE OF DOUBT

In the distressing incidents which periodically are publicized concerning doubtful parentage of a baby, blood tests serve a very useful purpose. Ordinarily, these tests apply to the determination of the blood groups to which the baby and alleged parent belong. Blood groups are determined by heredity and the laws involved are beyond dispute.

Blood tests may show that an accused man could not be the father of a certain child, but they do not positively identify a man who could be the father. In the latter instance the evidence is circumstantial. It does not follow that a man who could be the father actually is.

There are four general blood groups—A, B, AB and O. If a child belong to group A or B, the mother belongs to group A or AB, the mother to group A and the alleged father to group A or O. If the alleged father is cleared. If the child belongs to group B, the mother to group B or AB and the alleged father to group A, the alleged father is cleared.

There are eleven combinations involving the blood groups of alleged father and child which child in which it would be impossible for the alleged father to be the actual parent. Although the question usually arises shortly after the birth of a baby, there are instances where for legal reasons blood tests may be advised in adults.

There are other means of determining parentage aside from the question of the four main blood groups. These are based on certain factors in the blood such as the so-called M and N factors discovered in 1927 and the Rh factors discovered in 1940. As the names of these factors are hard to remember, I will merely say that in the presence of these factors in an individual, just as are the factors determining main blood factors may also be utilized in cases of disputed paternity.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON PRAYER

There is no known power so certain in its comfort as prayer. The human are emotionally influenced by our own thoughts, observations, and moods, are usually at a loss to know other things of life that daily touch our consciousness. But of the power of prayer, so intimate in relationship as sincere prayer to God.

Said Stevenson, "I am sure that prayer is never presented in vain; the petition may be refused, but the petitioner is always, I believe, rewarded by some gracious answer." We invite God as our guest when we pray, and so there is instant peace the moment we begin to pray. We feel that there we commune.

When we pray it is as to a Father and Friend. God is not concerned with the literary expression of our words in prayer. He is only interested in the language of the heart. His answer is threefold, no matter what the language. No one ever goes into a new day after a prayer of thanks and guidance that he doesn't face his day with courage and faith.

Prayer melts away so much of fears, worries, confusions, misunderstandings and troubles. It is not though they never existed, so spontaneous is the effect of prayer. People who habitually pray have nearly always happy people, no matter how much they may have to contend with. Have their problems safely locked until they free them through prayer.

Solomon's wisdom conquered through prayer. It has been done by countless others. Pray, pray yourself to sleep—and awake to a new day in every sense of the word. Pray for the welfare of the great granary of the soul, and be sure of a lasting spiritual nourishment. Never does he turn away one away empty handed.

God is the fulfillment of all our dreams and high desires. We have only to go to him in prayer, seeking His counsel and learning from Him just how we should distribute those gifts. Then we can go to our greatest good and to the good of others. Prayer is the Golden Key to peace and happiness. Ask anyone who has used this key!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THINK IT OVER, COMRADE

It is hard for us to understand the passion which impels a communist to do his bit to bring about world revolution. People who have joined this party are so anxious to see the present order of things broken up that they will stop at nothing. Betrayal, lying, and even assassination these are only a few incidents in their passionate attempt to reach their goal.

What is the matter with these people? Some of them of course are abnormal. Others are jealous, envious of still others, with proclivity toward violence is overcompensation for their failure to get ahead in life. Also we must recognize that there is a certain percentage of communists who actually believe that capitalism is wicked, and in this category are the zealots, and that true morality consists in destroying in any way possible those whom they believe has corrupted human life.

Then regardless of what their motives are, these people are trying to put an abnormality into the world which, when revealed in any generation, has brought nothing but the same fatal results. Communism was never freedom; communism is servitude, and it is today claiming a justification which many different varieties of standards of right continue to obtain no matter what men say or do.

Perfect Cribbage Hand Held By Local Player

Trenton—(Special)—Provincial Police are investigating a break-in at Gerald Fraser's store at Hart's Corners just outside north Trenton.

According to investigation a person or persons unknown shattered a window and took a number of packages of cigarettes, in order to take the smokes a shelf of groceries had to be moved.

Perfect Crib Hand.

A chance in one and a half million times came up yesterday when Horace Ketcheson local cribbage enthusiast got a perfect 29 hand. Ketcheson was playing with Fred Colyer at the Recreation Hall, when the phenomenon happened. He held three fives and a jack and out a five.

Mr. Ketcheson has played crib for 18 years and yesterday was the first time he has held a limit score. Witnesses were: Sandy Davidson and A. Cunnell.

With luck he managed to have tough luck as well. He was only playing as a pastime yesterday. Had he been playing in a regular league match he would have qualified for a cash prize from the league, one from the league president Peter Stefanyk and Bill Lawson. As it was he only experienced the thrill.

Funny Fire

Fireman Gerald Lewis did the hat trick yesterday.

A call that came into the fire-hall yesterday announced the presence of a woman's expensive hat lying on the ice-surface of the town bridge on the east side.

Lewis on the reels went to the scene. With a long pike pole the firemen was able to retrieve the hat and satisfy the loser.

It was the first time firemen had been called out to save a hat.

Belleville Presbytery Meets

A unanimous gathering of 80 ministers and laymen of the Belleville Presbytery here yesterday voted to commend the Hope report for its recommendation that religious instruction be carried on in public and secondary schools.

Noble Hatton suggested that a United Church minister be appointed in Kingston to visit United Church sick in the Kingston hospital. He advocated paying the minister selected a salary. He was appointed to investigate the situation.

It was felt that since Kingston is a medical centre and patients from all parts of the Belleville Presbytery go there for treatment it would be a convenience to have a United Church minister at hand to visit the outside sick and lighten the work of the minister from travelling to the hospital from far out places.

During the afternoon Dr. A. J. Wilson editor of the United Church Observer dwelled on increasing the circulation of the religious paper.

Rev. A. L. Sisco, of Tweed chairman of the Presbytery for this year was chairman of the gathering.

A number of the visitors toured the new Trenton Memorial Hospital before the afternoon session started.

Mental Telepathy Fails to Find Stone of Scone

London, Feb. 23—(CP)—Scotland Yard has admitted that a detective method that would have caused Sherlock Holmes to shed tears of happiness and gratitude has failed to unearth the missing Stone of Scone.

Home secretary Chuter Ede told the House of Commons yesterday that the efforts of Peter Nurkoy, Dutch telepathist, had drawn a blank in the search for the Coronation Stone.

The famous and conservative Yard, baffled on all leads by the disappearance of the stone ,had allowed Nurkoy to see all the clues. Yard officials told him to sit back and track down the thieves by mental telepathy—sort of an amateur Perry Mason.

The experiment in mysticism, Yard admitted out, did not cost the British taxpayer anything. Nurkoy had volunteered his services.

The stone, thought to have been pinched off by Scottish Nationalists, is still missing from its place in Westminster Abbey.

London, (AP)—The custodian of Britain's missing Coronation Stone, Dr. Alan Campbell Don, replied today with a polite "no thanks" to offer by a Texas monument maker to replace the stone.

The Texan, E. B. Adams, wrote British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks in Washington that the gift "...will carry its own sentiment, an expression of friendship between your people and our people."

But Oxford-educated Dr. Don, Dean of Westminster, said:

"I am afraid that I cannot accept offers from individuals to replace the Stone of Scone. Naturally we are still hoping that it will be found."

WINE FUTS OUT FIRE

Kofu, Japan, Feb. 23 — (AP)— The Kofu school house was afire. The fire hose was not long enough to reach the nearest hydrant. Next door to the school was a winery. Seventy - five gallons of wine put out the fire.

RED CROSS OUTPOST NURSES, serving in the Society's 82 hospitals and nursing stations scattered throughout the far northern stretches of Canada, assisted in the birth and care of more than 4,388 babies last year. Often representing the only medical care available to Canada's pioneers, Outpost staffs served more than 28,000 persons in 1950. Maintenance and expansion of the Outpost services depends upon generous support of the 1951 Red Cross national appeal this March.

CAMPBELLFORD

31st Birthday For Kinsmen Is Observed

Campbellford — Deputy-Governor Bill Moss of Montreal was the distinguished visitor at the fortnightly meeting of the Campbellford Kinsmen Club at the Trent House on Monday. He reported the local club in a healthy condition. He delivered an informal "shop" talk on matters pertaining to Kinsmen and the organization as a whole. This solely Canadian service organization was celebrating its 31st anniversary and letters were read from founder Hal Rogers and National President Ken Pierce, by Kinsman Bruce Grills and Kinsman David Vice, respectively.

The deputy governor stressed the important work done by small clubs throughout the nation and expressed the hope that the immediate objective of 10,000 Kin members in Canada would be realized within a few months.

A letter of thanks from a pupil of St. Mary's School on behalf of the children receiving milk provided by the local club, was read. President Ron Hazel was in charge of the meeting.

Mental Health Theme

Mental health was the main theme at the February meeting of the Home and School Association, capably conducted by Dr. J. Anderson. A film was shown entitled "Over Dependency," dealing with a young man who, through childhood, was not allowed to do for himself; but was dependent on others for kindness and sympathy. He grew into manhood, was married, and found himself unable to cope with little everyday emergencies. In due time with a doctor's help he was cured.

Dr. Anderson elaborated on the film, saying that, although not all diseases were caused by mental disturbances, a great many could be cured through research into the life of the patient to determine the cause. He went on to say that the atmosphere in which a child, between the ages of one and six, is brought up, has a great bearing on his future life. The home surroundings should be such that the child will have only pleasant memories.

A Founder's Day Acrostic was ably conducted by Mrs. Roberts, assisted by eleven Home and School members.

Music appreciation was presented by Dr. Betty Bright based on children's records and the part it play in enriching the child's life, both as to education and recreation.

The study groups have proven very successful, there being 12 members in the crocheting group, 20 in nursing and two in sewing. The March meeting is to be Father's Night, and a quiz initiation is extended to all fathers to come and enjoy a good program, with refreshments and square dancing.

Rotary Club Holds Ladies' Night

Campbellford — The Rotary Club held their annual ladies' night on Wednesday evening, at the Masonic Temple.

After a delicious banquet, president Art Loucks, welcomed the guests and the Rotary Anns to the meeting. Rotarian George Nicholls was the master of ceremonies, and led in community singing with Don Bennett as the pianist.

Miss Georgina DeCarrol sang "Love is Where You Find It," and as an encore, "The Last Time I Saw Paris." James McKie entertained with his guitar, giving a comic number which was roundly applauded, and he graciously responded to two encores.

Tap Dance Numbers

Barbara Diment and her pupils Gayle and Garry Tremaine, all of Belleville, displayed their skill in the former's tap dance and the kiddies doing several tap dance numbers.

Ray Williams conducted an auction sale of a number of articles which had been donated by various club members.

Rotarian Arn Bright, proposed the toast to the ladies, to which Mrs. J. P. Archer responded.

The tables were cleared away and the ladies, their escort and guests, enjoyed dancing to the music of Jim Black and his Dixielanders.

Nurses Meet

The regular meeting of the nurses of Campbellford and district was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Wm. Tallman, Saskatoon Avenue.

Dr. C. A. Bright gave an instructive talk on the Rh Factor, and answered many questions pertaining to this subject.

Mrs. Tallman gave a report on the Home Nursing classes which are being held every Thursday night. There are 20 members in the class with a waiting list of approximately 10.

Plans were discussed further for providing scholarship for a girl wishing to go to training for a nurse.

The next meeting will be held on March 13 at 8.15 in the Co-op Rooms.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Auxiliary Report

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Hospital Auxiliary opened with the secretary and treasurer's reports, the latter showing a balance of $164.37 with $28.67 outstanding accounts.

Mrs. Denyes reported purchasing blinds, tape and thread. Mrs. E. Craighead reported she had sent to the hospital, 15 patients' gowns, 2 bedside gowns, 4 binders, one dozen cotton sheets and one dozen draw sheets.

The Coddington Institute requested a speaker for their meeting to explain the work of the Auxiliary as they wished to assist with the sewing. Mrs. R. Fox and Mrs. A. McColl were appointed by the Auxiliary.

It was decided to hold a rummage sale in the "Armstrong Store" from Feb. 21st to March 2nd and serve a cup of tea each day. Mrs. E. Craighead was asked to purchase more factory cotton for patients' gowns. Three members paid their fees. The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Eight Testify Rush Not Hard To Work With

London, Ont., Feb. 23 — (CP)— The Rush probe closed yesterday with eight of the dismissed officer's fellow-detectives testifying that he had not been difficult to get along with on the London police force.

Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, who conducted the investigation into Mayor Allan J. Rush's dismissal last July, said he would review the evidence taken during the 4-day hearing before reporting to Attorney General Porter of Ontario. This would not take "too long."

The probe was instigated by Mr. Porter after Rush won the mayoralty in the last election on the issue of the secrecy surrounding the reason he was fired.

The hearing's contradictory evidence became further entangled yesterday as the eight officers denied allegation made against Rush by Police Chief A. E. Knight. Earlier, two top police officials and two junior officers had contradicted Knight's evidence in the face of support for it from Deputy Chief Morley Leech.

The probe appeared to have narrowed down to Knight's recommendation to the police commission to dismiss Rush on the basis of alleged reports that the veteran detective was a "troublemaker."

This recommendation was attacked by several witnesses yesterday for being based on "hearsay and second-hand information."

Underlying the whole situation is a conflict in the police force over a personnel evaluation plan and a switch from a police pension plan to a city-sponsored scheme. Witnesses said two factions were wrestling for control with Mayor Rush apparently having the major part of the police force on his side.

B.G.H. Student Nurses Receive New Caps In Colorful Ceremony

Marking the first milestone in their career as student nurses, 21 young women were formally admitted into the school of nurses after three months' probation at the Belleville General Hospital, on Thursday evening. In a colorful capping ceremony the class entered the hospital auditorium singing the processional hymn, "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee", each girl looking immaculate in her blue and white striped dress with crisp white aprons and cuffs, and a corsage tied with red ribbons pinned to each bib. Miss A. Dorothy Potts, director of Nursing, spoke briefly congratulating the students and welcoming the guests. Rev. J. G. Horner, by offering prayer.

New Caps

The "Big Sisters" of the Intermediate and Senior classes pinned the new starched caps on the "Little Sisters" and then handed each a lighted candle. The ceremony took place around a long table centred with a five-branched candelabra and twin bouquets of spring flowers flanking it.

Miss Shirley Fenwick, president of the Student Association, welcomed the Class of 1953, advising them always to do the pleasant and personal things for their patients because they need kindness and thoughtfulness.

Guest Speaker

The class sang in unison "I Will Be True" with Mr. Benson directing. Mrs. L. McLaughlin, who is associated with the Children's Aid in social work, was introduced by Miss M. Hatcher, and spoke to the girls about their calling. The speaker illustrated her remarks with the story of a man who built a cottage in which he put one chair for solitude, two for friendship and three for a crowd. "You will need a quiet time," she told her listeners, "a time for big thoughts; you will need friends for companionship; and the crowds will be all the interesting people you meet in your work, all your patients."

Two numbers were given by the student choir, after which refreshments were served with Miss Ivy Dickens presiding, and the friends and relatives of the girls gathered to congratulate them.

ARRIVE AHEAD OF STORK

Detroit, Feb. 23—(AP)—Donald Odum, 26, rushing his wife to maternity hospital had the windshield of his automobile shattered by two police bullets yesterday. Odum said he was "running all the red lights because I knew I was going to be a father any second." Mrs. Odum was lying prone on the back seat. Odum stopped, shouted to police why he was speeding and the policemen escorted him to the hospital. They arrived five minutes ahead of the stork which brought an infant girl.

Pork and Beans Inexpensive, But Still Tasty

By KAY REX

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 23 (CP)—Add the potato we'll bet the bean is about the most versatile food there is.

You can bake it a variety of ways, make it into a soup, even put it in sandwiches.

And—oh joy—it's inexpensive even these expensive days.

Home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture have prepared a booklet on white navy beans, otherwise known as the Ontario white pea bean.

This bean is produced in the five counties of Ontario represented by the Ontario Bean Growers Marketing Board. While a small quantity is produced in other provinces, Canada depends almost entirely on Ontario production to supply export requirements.

Pick over beans and wash them carefully; soak overnight in cold water to cover (three cups water to one cup beans); cook beans slowly in same water.

Baked Beans

Ingredients: Two cups white (navy) beans; one quarter pound salt pork or smoked pork fat; three tablespoons brown sugar; three tablespoons molasses; 1 1-2 t spoons salt; one half teaspoon mustard; one quarter cup chopped onion; two tablespoons catsup; 2 1-2 cups water.

Pressure cooker method; soak beans overnight in enough water to cover. Drain and place in bottom of pressure saucepan with other ingredients. Cook at 15 pounds pressure for 30 minutes.

Oven method: If using a three-quart bean pot or baking-dish, double the above recipe. Soak beans overnight in water to cover. Drain. Cover with fresh water and simmer, covered for one-half hour. Drain. Place slices of salt pork in bottom of bean pot. Add beans and remaining salt pork. Mix brown sugar, mustard, salt, mustard, onion, catsup and water and add to beans.

Cover pot and bake in a slow oven (250 degrees Fahrenheit) from six to eight hours. Remove cover during last hour of baking. Add boiling water as required during baking to keep beans covered with liquid. Yield: about 12 p.

Ham and Bean Sandwich Spread

Ingredients: Two cups baked beans; one cup chopped cooked ham; one half-cup chopped celery; two tablespoons chili sauce; one teaspoon horseradish; three-quarters teaspoon salt.

Combine ingredients and blend together lightly. Yield: three cups.

Cream of Bean Soup

Ingredients: One cup dried white (navy) beans; six cups boiling water; one small onion; one tablespoon fat; one-half cup chopped onion; one tablespoon flour; one cup milk; one cup cream; one teaspoon salt; one-quarter teaspoon pepper.

Soak beans overnight in enough water to cover. Drain, add boiling water and one teaspoon salt. Simmer covered until tender (about two hours).

If a pressure saucepan is used cook the soaked beans in water to barely cover for 50 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Fry onion in fat until clear, add flour and blend well. Add hot milk, cooking and stirring until slightly thickened. Add drained, cooked beans and season with remaining salt and pepper. Reheat and serve hot. Yield: six servings.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

When Life Begins to Sag

By ROY L. SMITH

Sooner or later in the experience of most of us there comes a time when life begins to sag. The honors that have come to us seem so empty; the achievements in which we were so proud begin to appear rather small; the great hours of our life fall under suspicion. Our dreams seem to fade and our success seems to be ravelling out.

Good Religion Has a Message

For any who find themselves in that condition this week's Sunday school lesson has a message. It is a very simple one. Down among the people there is a work you can do.

On the mountain Jesus and his disciples had passed through one of the most amazing experiences of his entire career. For one brief little hour Moses, the founder of the nation, and Elijah, the first of the long line of great prophets, had come together to visit with the young prophet of Galilee. Nothing like it had ever happened in all of history.

Just one short hour and it was all over. That is usually the way with the great hours of life. And when the cloud had received the heavenly visitors out of their sight, and Jesus was once more a maniac and the fathers—well, anyone can understand that father's anxiety. Nothing is more pathetic than the grief of a parent on behalf of a suffering child.

The Sunday School lesson for February 25: "Glory and Service," Mark 9:2-50.

It is easy to imagine the disciples looking forward to an audience to which they could recite the story of their amazing experience. At least they might have expected that Jesus would regale the crowds with some astounding accounts of the tremendous events which were to occur within the next few days.

It is quite possible that at least some of the disciples hoped they might bask in the fame that the mountain-top experience would bring them. Thousands would be glad to hear what Moses and Elijah talked about, and to hear what they had to say.

But there was no opportunity for any such personal satisfactions. Within ten minutes after their arrival in the valley they were occupied by the case of a maniac lad and his distracted father.

Service is the Cure

The surest cure for boredom or cynicism is some service for others. No man lives who will long go weary with life and in contempt of himself if he forgets himself and turns to help others.

There was that woman who, suddenly bereft of her husband with whom she had lived a marvelously happy life for thirty-eight years, found herself completely at sea and drifting. Her life did not need to work for her own self-support. Therefore she was challenged to open her home to lonely girls who had come down to the city from the country to find work and were in need of a friend. She was dared to forget herself by thinking about others. She accepted the proposition.

Within the space of a few months she was a transformed person. She still grieved, of course, and she continued to honor the memory of her splendid husband, but all the same she endurable because she was bearing the burdens of others along with her own.

It is strange, but true, that when we lose sight of ourselves then the easiest way to lighten our load is to lend some of the loads which others have to bear.

Christ Church A.Y.P.A. Holds Film Night

The last regular meeting of the Christ Church Sr AYPA was a "Film Nite". Pictures prints were shown "Trappers of the Sea", "4 Songs by 4 Gentlemen", "First Steps", and "Historic Highways of Lower Canada." The last of these, a color film 17 minutes in length, was recently purchased by the Belleville Public Film Council. As the title would indicate the film deals with the historic sites along the St. Lawrence, concentrating on Quebec and Montreal.

Prior to the showing of the films a short business meeting was conducted. Preliminary arrangements were made for the Sunday evening Fireside to be held March 4. At this get-together, to which all young people of the congregation are invited, Rev. J. W. R. Meakin rector of the Anglican Church in Richmond, Ont., will be the special guest. Mr. Meakin is conducting the Mission being held in Christ Church the week of March 4.

Following the films refreshments were served. The meeting was under the direction of James Wright and his group who were ably assisted by Pat Kelly, volunteer projectionist for the Film Council.

Undie Problem Rocks Commons

London, Feb. 23. (AP) — The House of Commons took up yesterday the question of whether British women are getting too big for their underskirts.

Labor M. P. Norman Dodds suggested, conversely, that British underskirts are getting too small for British women. He blamed this on the Board of Trade, which fixes the standard sizes for clothing of the low priced kind known here as "utility".

No firm conclusions were reached.

An underskirt, female type, is known in Britain as a vest. It is worn with a topless slip over a brassiere.

Dodds said the cold snap in the United Kingdom during December and January disclosed a chilling fact: many women's vests of the utility type are at least two inches too short.

The women could tell because of piercing winds across their midriffs.

And what, Dodds demanded, did the Board of Trade intend to do about it?

Harold Wilson, president of the Board, protested that he had received "no evidence" of the sale of any short vests.

He said vests are supposed, by order of the Board, to comply with "minima laid down by the lingerie advisory committee of the British Standards Institution."

This outfit represents the government, manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers of women's undies.

"Is the minister aware," Dodds asked sternly, "that the vast majority of women have a vested interest in this problem?"

Wilson replied cautiously that he was hardly close enough to the vast majority of women to say, but he remarked that at least three persons of this sex are members of the lingerie committee.

Conservative Gurney Braithwaite sprang up and asked:

"Does this Board order provide elasticity in the size of women or is there a utility size of woman as well?"

The Commons became helpless with laughter and the speaker seized the chance to call the next order of business.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

Letters and Answers

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a married woman with a small son, and I have been separated from my husband for over two years.

During that time I met a man whom I have grown to love very much. I know he loves me and the baby, and would like to give us anything he wouldn't do for him. But his sister is trying her best to break us up. She doesn't like the idea of his marrying a woman with a child, and, in fact, she can't bear the thought of her brother being interested in anyone. I have known her a dreamy yet because it isn't very easy to support yourself and a two-year-old child, and I also feel it would not be right to expect this other man to pay for the divorce.

The worst problem is, what should I do to stop his sister from interfering with our lives?

Mrs. L. M.

Dear Mrs. L. M.:

I think it is up to this man to settle the problem about his sister and not to you and you should make him understand this clearly. If he hasn't the force or character to stand up to her and let her know that she has no right in living his own life and she is not running it for him, then you would be better off to face a great deal of trouble if you married him. You yourself cannot do anything about this interference, and you would make a serious mistake if you became involved in it. Any disagreement between these two, Keep out of their affairs entirely, and let this man handle it on his own. expect him to work things out in the street.

As for the divorce, I don't see why you don't divorce some work and earn some money to do it for yourself. While it may not be easy for a woman to support herself and a young child, thousands of women have to do so, and they can, too, if being free to remarry means enough to you.

One thing I would like to add, however, is this: If you seriously intend to get a divorce, you had better stop seeing this or any other man until you have done so. A married woman who is not living with her husband can get into a very real of trouble and may even find her husband able because her much legal difficulty. If she associates with other men.

Don't concentrate too hard on any one girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 17, and for almost a year I've been seeing a girl of 16 nearly every night. We've gone out on whether a lot, too.

A month ago, at a dance, she introduced me to her friends, who is just my age. Now I find that I like her even more than the first girl and I'd like to go out with her, but I can tell the first girl I'd rather go out with her cousin.

Peter Z.

Dear Peter:

Do you really think you have to go so far as to tell your first girl that you don't care for her as much as you did and that you like her cousin better? Don't you think it would be wiser to continue anything so drastic awhile? For all you know, you might meet still a third girl one of these days that you'll like even better than the second, then you'll feel bound to go through the routine all over again.

My suggestion is that you play around a little with a lot of girls and every off the idea of concentrating on any one. That's the best way to keep out of trouble, and avoid hurting anyone, until you reach the point where you're old enough to know what and who you really want.

GOOD MANNERS

BY MRS. BEECKMAN

Wedding bells are the best man be expected to give a proper wedding expenses?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be married next month—and the controversies we are having about who buys whose flowers! My mother and my girl friend both insist that the best man buys my bouquet and my maid of honor's bouquet. They insist that the groom has no wedding expenses whatever except to buy the corsage for the bride's mother. I always thought the groom bought the bride's bouquet as well as the bride's mother's bouquet, and that the best man bought only the maid of honor's flowers. I thought that the best man also gave the fee or gift to the minister who performed the ceremony. Also we are uncertain as to who buys the boutonnieres—does the groom buy the boutonnieres for himself and the best man, or is it the reverse? Please help us with the answers!

Perplexed

And you certainly need help! In the first place, the best man has only two financial responsibilities in a wedding—he provides his own attire for the wedding, as prescribed by the groom; and (2) he gives a wedding gift to you, the bride-to-be. He does not pay for, and should not be expected to pay for, any of the wedding flowers, either for the bride's attendants or for the groom's attendants, or for the church or reception flowers. And it is the groom—not the best man—who gives the gift or fee to the officiating minister.

The groom does have certain other responsibilities—too many, but very definite ones. The groom pays for:

Wedding ring
Marriage license
Wedding present to the bride
Bride's bouquet; bride's going-away corsage
Corsage for bride's mother and corsage for his mother
Boutonnieres—one for himself, best man, ushers, bride's father, his own father
Presents to best man, ushers; also their ties and gloves, for a formal wedding
Contribution to the officiating minister
Transportation: car in which he and his best man come to the ceremony; and the bride's wedding car and the bride leave the reception.

The bouquets for the maid of honor and bridesmaids are paid for by the bride's parents.

When husband criticizes his wife's brother-in-law

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a friendly discussion we are having, please answer this: Is my sister's husband considered by my husband's brother-in-law, as well as my brother-in-law? And when my husband introduces my sister's husband, should he say, or at least is it correct for him to say, "This is my brother-in-law, Michael"?

P.

Although your husband and your sister's husband are not actually brothers-in-law, it is quite proper for your husband to speak of the husband of his sister-in-law (your sister) as "my brother-in-law". And the proper and customary way to introduce would be, "Mrs. Clark, this is my brother-in-law, Michael Blake". Or, when the circumstances call for a more definite explanation of the family relationship, "This is Mary's sister's husband, Michael Blake".

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

What is glamour?

We're sick and tired of the word glamour

It seems that glamour, like personality, isn't always just what you see, but what you make other people think you are. The popular ideas of glamor visualizes a girl of perfect form, shapely figure and mysterious charms. But the dictionary gives a different interpretation. We read: "Glamor, a charm making objects appear different from what they are; making objects appear delightfully unreal or glorified." According to that statement glamor isn't real. What will the pretties say to that? Just stand up on their beautiful legs and ponder it.

Frankly, we are sick and tired of the word glamor. It has a phony sound, somehow. It smacks of artificiality, as Mr. Webster implies. We think of the glamor girl as a spoiled child who would lie down and die before she would budge on the issue. We may be doing her an injustice, but there you are, that's how she is. We think of her as having breakfast in bed, feeling that the hand of fate is raised against her if she is limited to only three or four fur coats. Maybe we're all wrong. But that is the impression created by the overworked word.

Our favorite is the girl who wants to make the most of herself, intellectually as well as in appearance. What she is means more to her than how she looks, though she does not undervalue pulchritude, realizing that it is sort of passport.

She doesn't intend to make beautiful, but to enhance it. Recognizing that she has a talent, she makes an effort to develop it. A gift for music, literature or art should be regarded as a blessing, not held lightly.

She has sense enough to know that her education isn't finished when she graduates from college. There's plenty to be learned after that, if she is to be a charming and interesting woman.

There is, undoubtedly, a big difference between glamor and charm. The first appeals to the eye alone; charm makes a more mind and the heart. Any girl can complete.

Women's Activities

MOUNT PLEASANT W.M.S.

Rawdon—On St. Valentine's Day, Mrs. Will Potts was hostess for the February meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Women's Missionary Society with nine members, six visitors and three Baby Band members in attendance. A bowl of daffy tulips reminded all of spring just around the corner.

To marry the prime consideration was not the happiness of the two individuals most concerned but the carrying on of the family line. In that country there is a great sense of obligation to mere trivial details.

There is a fatalist streak in the Japanese character and even yet fatals is glorified more than life. Love of the Beautiful

However the thought life of the people has found worthwhile avenues for expression. Their industriousness has helped to make the Japanese to forge ahead. Their love of the beautiful has produced a wealth of art and Japan has charmed the world with her artistic products. Western education has spread until Japan had everything from kindergarten to university. Superstitions abound and the fortune tellers are consulted about their lucky days, even by the well educated.

Mrs. Smith also conducted an interesting Bible quiz of "Names and Places."

about FOOD .... What's Cooking ?

If it's bitter, it's good for you.

The outside leaves of celery have more nutritive value than the stalk or the heart, and the rough outside stalks contains more vitamin A and C than the sweet inner stalks.

You might also say that if it's green, it's good for you too. Tests at the Utah Experiment Station, establish the fact that the green Pascal celery contains much more carotene, (vitamin A) than the white blanched celery.

Leaves of celery can be used in soups, sauces and always in poultry stuffing. The outer stalks of celery are often a little too coarse and stringy for eating raw. They may be chopped or diced, as in today's recipe, and combined with other foods particularly fish or oysters.

Tunafish croquettes, for instance, are lighter if made with diced cooked celery. Croquettes are at their best when slightly soft inside, but the brown crust must be crisp and sizzling hot.

Canned tomato sauce or any slightly diluted cream soup may be prepared as a quick sauce for croquettes.

Tunafish and Celery Croquettes
4 Servings

1 cup celery cut into small dice
3 tablespoons vegetable fat.
1-4 cup finely chopped onions
Flour
1 cup hot milk
Salt
1—7 ounce can tunafish
Salt—pepper
Sifted dry bread crumbs
Fat for deep frying

Cook celery in boiling water to which 1-4 teaspoon salt has been added. Boil until tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Drain.

Melt the 3 tablespoons fat in a heavy saucepan. Add the onions. Saute until onions turn yellow. Remove the pan from the flame. Stir in 4 tablespoons flour. Gradually stir in the hot milk. Sauce will be very thick. Stir over low flame slightly. Break tunafish into flakes. Add tunafish, the celery and the 1 egg to the mixture. Mix well. Place the mixture in the top part of a double boiler over simmering water. Cook, stirring occasionally, until all heavy taste has disappeared, about 30 minutes. Remove from heat. Turn into a cool pan. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Cool mixture in refrigerator overnight, if possible. Remove, shape into croquettes. Add a few dry bread crumbs if mixture is too soft to handle.

Dip croquettes first in flour, then in 1 beaten egg to which 2 tablespoons of water have been added, and finally in bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat heated to 390 degrees.

Fashion Flashes

TAKE YOUR PICK from among a variety of fun new coats, including the duster. A really handsome duster is of navy yarn-dyed taffeta. Lining, bow-tie neckline, revers and flared cuffs on the short sleeves are of red and white candy striped taffeta.

ONE OF THE SUCCESSES of the Piquet collection is a floor-sweeping evening coat of slate blue satin, with collar, tuxedo stoles and cuffs of platinia fox.

ATTRACTIVE ACCENTS mark many of the new spring suits that are destined for almost year-round wear. One such suit is of wool crepe in various colors, a two-button suit with its horseback collar emphasized by raised floral and leaf embroidery. Same detail also marks the cuffs of the big, bagging pockets. Five gore skirt has a centre pleat.

NEW ENSEMBLES are most interesting, such as a new design from Schiaparelli. Over a neatly tailored dress of black jersey is worn a hip-length topcoat of royal blue tweed with deep, pointed cape revers replacing the sleeves. The revers are lined with black jersey. High-standing collar and flat patch pocket are other coat details.

BREAKFAST IN BED is nice enough, but how much nicer with a quilted satin bed cape bordered all around with marabou. Nice in white, lilac, pink or pale blue.

NICE AND NEAT is the keynote of the most wanted hats for early spring wear. White toyo is used for a little bonnet with clusters of tiny fruits nestling in the ripples of the brim, and here and there dipping over. Wide green velvet crown band with bow ends at back.

Chiffon is used for coat lining and separate scarf, as well as for the soft dress. Crystal buttons march down the dress front, and fasten the coat.

China Extends Death Penalty Drastically

Hong Kong, Feb. 23 — (AP)— Communist China, extending the death penalty drastically, today admitted that the underground has killed thousands of red militiamen and that open defiance is spreading.

In an astonishing announcement, Peiping conceded that resistance rode with the outbreak of fighting in Korea.

Some observers here, however, believe the announcement is intended primarily to justify a widespread purge which they expect to increase in intensity.

The reds ordered immediate country - wide imposition of the death penalty for any and all actions which might be construed as "opposition" to government authority.

Observers said that by giving the penalties highest government sanction, Peiping also apparently is trying to take some of the heat off regional and local governments. Dissatisfaction with local government is reported widespread.

The Chinese communists in the Peiping announcement admitted that peasant opposition to land reform is spreading rapidly and "armed defiance" to the communist regime is getting out of control.

Submitting the stern new program to the central people's government council, highest administrative body in communist China, Deputy Chairman Peng Cheng of the political and law committee said "the government must no longer be magnanimous and lenient."

In the opening stages, External Affairs Minister L. Pearson, of Canada has not been asked to join in talks now taking place between the United States, Australia and New Zealand on the formation of a Pacific Pact.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said he cannot say definitely yet whether the government will set up a special committee to study defence problems.

The Senate heard Senator A. R. Hugessen, deputy Liberal leader, suggest that its members be retired at the age of 75 and that the provinces be allowed to appoint a third of its 102 membership. At present, senators are appointed for life.

In the Commons, opposition members opposed a private bill introduced by J. L. MacDougall (L — Vancouver Burrard), which would provide for the celebration of the Dominion and Victoria Day holidays on the Monday following the date upon which they fall each year. The measure is in committee stage.

The Commons also rejected, by a voice vote, a motion by Roch Pinard (L — Chambly - Rouville), for the abolition of tolls on Montreal's Victoria and Jacques Cartier bridges.

New Formation Hinted

Prime Minister St. Laurent hinted at possible establishment of new "special (military) formations" when answering a question by Mr. Drew, who asked what the government proposes to do to raise army forces to send to Europe now that the special force's 25th brigade is being posetd to Korea.

Mr. St. Laurent said he had nothing to say beyond what has already been said by the government. However, he closed his statement by saying that "when decisions about special formations have been arrived at by the government they will be communicated to parliament."

Defence Minister Claxton announced Wednesday that the 25th brigade will go to Korea. Canada has also promised to field a brigade in Europe and it was originally intended that it should be the 25th.

Mr. St. Laurent's statement fortifies reports that the brigade's 2,000 to 4,000 reinforcements being left in Canada will be used as the nucleus of a new brigade to be built up for European service.

Mr. Drew rose at House opening to draw attention to Mr. Claxton's announcement and to ask what the government proposes to do about the European commitment.

Mr. St. Laurent said he had just received a letter from Mr. Drew on the subject. He could say nothing about Europe beyond what Mr. Claxton had said—that the departure of troops for Europe could be affected by Korean developments.

Buy Back Part of Mine

The Prime Minister said the decision to send the brigade to Korea is in accord with statements made in the Commons — presumably statements that it would be sent, when ready, where it could do the most good.

Trade Minister Howe said the government has bought back part of the Emerald Mine properties in British Columbia to produce Tungsten, an essential mineral in short supply. During the last war the government operated the mine.

Following the war, the price for tungsten dropped and made its production unprofitable. The government sold the mine to Canadian Exploration Company for $900,000. Recently the government repurchased for $328,000 the mine properties known to contain tungsten deposits. The private company will continue the mining of lead and zinc.

At the fight sitting, a former labor union official said union employees were more time off with pay. He was immediately accused of being "irresponsible."

The statement was made by James Byrne (L-Kootenay East), former president of the Mine Workers, B.C., local in the International Mill and Smelter Workers Union. Criticism came from Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) and Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South).

In debate on Mr. MacDougall's bill, Mr. Byrne said if the holidays fell on a Saturday or Sunday this year workers would get no pay for time off. If the holidays were celebrated on Mondays then the workers would get another day off with pay.

"That's what the unions want —more time off with pay," he said.

Mr. Gillis, a member of the United Mine Workers Union, said Mr. Byrne was "irresponsible" when he claimed that the unions were looking for more holidays with pay. That was not so.

Two New Committees

Unanimous approval was given by members yesterday to a government move to set up two new standing committees—on administrative government commissions and on lands and forests.

The first committee will examine the operation of such commission-run provincial enterprises as the Ontario Northland Railway, Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Liquor Control Board and Niagara Parks Commission.

Premier Frost said establishment of the committee was recommendation of the argument of E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader, that such commissions should not be subjected to the type of examination now given in the committee of supply, which discusses budget estimates.

Mr. Salesberg was preceded in the Throne Speech debate by four other back-benchers: Gordon Ellis (CCF—Essex North), S. J. Hunt (PC—Renfrew North), J. M. Newman (Lib-Lab—Rainy River) and H. W. Walker (L—Welland).

Mr. Ellis, who is also a member of the Windsor Board of Control, registered a spirited defence against what he termed "unfair, unjust and often malicious propaganda" against his city during law enforcement investigations there last year.

Rates Too High

Mr. Newman welcomed development of hydro service in Rainy River but said rates were high and might be equalized with rates elsewhere in the province.

He urged that men hired on a part-time basis by government departments be given compensation for injuries. Many of the employees, such as truckers, were classified as contractors.

The Steep Rock mine area needed a road outlet east from Atikokan to the lakehead. Residents of the mine area however, wanted a road outlet and didn't want it delayed by argument on the route, Mr. Newman said.

"The mines in this area can be classified as Canada's iron-ore backlog."

Mr. Hunt said the government had gone a long way to equalizing education opportunities. Teachers had never been paid salaries equal to their responsibilities, but local boards had raised wages considerably.

"I was gratified to hear in the Throne Speech that something would be done to improve rural telephones," he said. Renfrew county had 12 separate telephone companies that could be consolidated.

Provincial and federal governments should attempt decentralization of industry for civil defence purposes, and to benefit rural sections.

Eastern Ontario wanted its share of the hydro produced in Ottawa power developments. "We should get our share of industries too."

Claims Propaganda Unfair

Mr. Ellis took arms against "the unfair, unjust and often malicious propaganda spoken and written about the city of Windsor."

Windsor's political problems, its law enforcement and citizens had become targets for attacks by "the uninformed, the half-informed and the totally ignorant."

"We have had a shakeup in our police department. We have formed a new police commission. A police chief and his deputy have been retired. A crown attorney has resigned. But all these things happen elsewhere."

The province had "suddenly noted" that working men bet 50 cents on horse races through bookmakers, if it was a crime in Windsor it was aterime elsewhere.

Forty per cent or Essex county people supported separate schools. The county would fight any attempt to restrict constitutional right of Roman CaDolic citizens, Mr. Ellis said.

Never Challenged

The right of CaDolics to have their own schools was never challenged in Essex county. "We never question whether this right is confined to any particular grade."

Premier Frost indicated that the Ontario legislature may complete its business in another month.

If it does it will adjourn, as in most other years, the week before Easter. This year Easter falls on March 25, with Good Friday March 23.

We have set Easter, but not later than, say, the first week in April, as target date," Mr. Frost said Thursday in an interview.

The session last year ran seven weeks. A seven-week session this year, with the Feb. 1 start would mean a March 22 adjournment.

Earlier, Mr. Frost said the house would ot necessarily prorogue by Easter. If it required more time to complete its business, it would take a brief Easter recess and sit again after the holiday.

Application Will Be Made to Appeal Decision

London, Ont., Feb. 23. (CP)—Application will be made to a judge of the Supreme Court of Canada in Ottawa, March 2, for permission to appeal a decision reached by the Ontario Court of Appeal, Thursday, dismissing Walter George Rowe's appeal against a murder conviction here, Jan. 13.

The 59-year-old Detroiter was sentenced to hang April 9 for the death of Clare Galbraith, London, following a shooting in a local gas station last November. Rowe was said to have fired a bullet which went through a door, striking Galbraith as he worked on his car in another room of the garage.

W. R. Poole, London lawyer who appeared for Rowe at his trial before Mr. Justice R. L. Ferguson and an Ontario Supreme Court jury, and also on his appeal before five justices at Toronto's Osgoode Hall this week, said the Attorney-General's department had agreed to pay the expenses of the motion in Ottawa. At the same time the Attorney-General will oppose the application.

Most of Cases Now Cleaned up

Kitchener, Feb. 23. (CP)—A half-drunk got a month in jail and his wife was fined $10 for neglecting her young daughter, as the 30th and 31st charges in Kitchener's morals case were tried Thursday.

Two girls were sent to reformatory on juvenile delinquency counts, a third girl was remanded and her parents had sentence reserved for six months. One charge that of contributing to juvenile delinquency, remains to be heard.

The father, who was temporarily ejected when he appeared in court in an intoxicated condition, was told by the magistrate that his attitude warranted a sentence of five years. The man's daughter, admitting sexual relations with a boy was sent to training school, along with another girl whose parents had been separated for 12 years.

The third girl was remanded after she testified she had indulged in improper relationship with a boy because she "wanted to be friendly with the other girls".

Chicago Black Hawks Beat Montreal Canadiens and Show What Might Have Been

A small hockey crowd of 4,912 ...ssed in the Big Chicago Stadium ...sday night and saw what might ...have been.

...They watched Chicago Black ...awks play as they have seldom ...played it this season. The result ...as a hard-earned 3-2 victory ...over Montreal Canadiens.

It was only the second win ...for the cellar-dwelling Black ...Hawks in 21 games, but it was a ...fair illustration of what the team ...might have been if it hadn't run ...into one of the worst epidemics ...of injuries to befall a National ...Hockey League team in years.

It was the first time since Nov. ...22—three months ago—that Eddie ...Goodfellow had sent a full com...plement of 18 men into the game. ...It was also the first game in two ...weeks for Harry Lumley, one ...of hockey's best goaltenders, ...whose fate most of the season ...has been to play behind a de...fence sadly weakened by injur...ies to many performers. Max ...Mick Stewart and Bill Gadsby...

Gadsby made his presence felt ...last night, scoring Chicago's se...cond goal besides playing a good ...game back of the blue line.

...Lumley also played a terrific ...game in the nets. The Chicago ...performance was a fine ...demonstration of how a good ...goalie gives a team confidence ...and how it can also do the same ...for its goalie when it is flying ...on the offensive.

The Hawks set up a furious at...tack for two periods and it gave ...them a 3-0 lead. Bill Mosienko ...got the only goal of the first ...period on a pass from Gus Bo...nando. Don Morrison and Adam ...Brown set up Gadsby's second-...period goal and Morrison got the ...third minutes later on a play ...with Jim and Roy Conacher.

...Montreal turned it on in the ...third period and Bernie Geoffrion ...a rookie, was the first to beat ...Lumley on a relay with Bob ...Bowes and Paul Meger. Maurice ...(Rocket) Richard scored the sec...ond goal of the season with less than ...two minutes left, Geoffrion as...sisting. That set up the short or...der, the figure at which Richard ...qualifies for extra money.

...It was a particularly unpleas...ant loss for Canadiens, who fig...ured to pick up two much-needed ...points at the expense of the ...Hawks. It robbed them of a ...chance to pull into a tie with ...New York Rangers for fourth ...place, the last of the playoff ...spots.

LEADERS BEATEN

Cornwall, Feb. 23 (CP)—Hull-Volants Thursday night bounced the league-leading Cornwall Calumets 7-4 in a rough eastern Canada Senior Hockey League game.

...Eno Zanatta paced the Volants ...with a pair of markers, while ...Carman Maville, D'Arcy Bender...ge, Roland Landry, Marcel Le...gris and Pete Gaudreault notched ...the singletons.

...Jim McKeown, Don Batten, ...Billes Genereux and Bob Bing...ley tallied for the Cals.

Two Convicted Of Fixing Two Prize Fights

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 23 (AP) — A criminal court jury late Thursday night convicted two men accused of fixing two prize fights here.

The jury fixed a penalty of 11 months and 29 days for gambler Frank Carone and 30 days for James A. Manley, promoter-referee of the two questioned bouts.

Formal sentences probably will not be held for two weeks.

Both were charged with bribing boxers to enable placing of cinch bets at the Fair Grounds Nov. 21.

The match involved in the trial was between heavyweights Harold (Buddy) Scott of Dallas and Oscar Buchanan of Memphis. Scott, the eight favorite, drooped to the canvas in the third round.

The other bout, not included in the bribery charge, was between welterweights Sanford L. Barron of Memphis and Johnny Burke of Birmingham, Ala.

Rider Refused Permit to Enter United States

Hamilton, Feb. 23 — (CP) Bill Matthews, Hamilton motorcyclist, who twice has won the National Police Motorcycle race at Daytona Beach, Fla., will have to forfeit his title this year without competing in the event.

United States immigration officials refuse to issue him a permit to enter the country. The reason, Matthews said Thursday, is that he failed to complete conforms 12 years ago.

"It's such a minor detail," moans Matthews. "I won the race easily last year and am a cinch to win it again this year. It's like sticking a gun in my ribs and taking $2,500 away from me. That's the price."

Matthews said that in 1939 he filled out papers to enter the United States. However, the war started and he dropped the application without completing the forms.

Hawks Bury Pembroke Under 13-1 Shellacking

North Bay, Feb. 23 (CP) — The high-flying North Bay Black Hawks Thursday night bombarded goalie Dave O'Mears with 55 shots to bury Pembroke Lumber Kings under a 13-1 shellacking. Victory consolidated Black Hawks grip on second place in the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League.

Cliff Ryan, the Comet winger, and Ralph Orlando set the scoring pace for the smooth passing Black Hawks with four goals each. Andy Maptha chalked up a pair while singles went to Aub Percival, Fred Valenti, and Dave Morland. Veteran pivot Johnny Inglis spoiled Al Picard's bid for a shutout when he caromed a shot off Morland's leg at 8.36 of the final period for the lone Pembroke tally.

Buffalo Bisons Show Big Lead Although Beaten

(By The Canadian Press)

Few changes were made in American Hockey League standings Thursday night although eight teams saw action.

Providence smothered Buffalo, eastern division leaders, 10-5, but the Bisons still show a 10-point league lead over second-place Hershey which downed Springfield 8-3.

Cleveland increased its western-division lead over Indianapolis to 20 points by defeating Pittsburgh 4-2. St. Louis won over Indianapolis 7-5 in the other game.

At St. Louis, the Flyers struck for four goals in the second period to defeat Indianapolis.

Centre Billy McComb scored twice for the winners and set up two more for linemate Paul Gladu. The other three went to Ernie trigg, Eric Pogue and Roy Kelly. Gord Haldy fired a pair for Indianapolis, and Ott Heller, Fred Glover and Joe Carveth got one apiece.

At Cleveland, the Barons defeated Pittsburgh before 4,465 fans in a game in which Ray Hannigan scored both Hornets goals.

Eddie Busch, Hy Buller, Joe Lund and Les Douglas were Cleland's goal-getters.

A crowd of 3,113 saw the lanky left-winger score twice in the opener and one each in the second and third periods.

Harry Pidhirny clicked twice for the losers, with Frank Bergerton netting the other.

The victory gave the Reds two points ahead of Springfield Indians in their battle for the last play-off spot in the eastern division.

Roy Campanella Wants to Stay In Majors for Life

Vero Beach, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP) —Roy Campanella, sturdy catcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is so it. love with the major leagues he doesn't ever want to leave.

"I'll stay here as long as good-natured Negro slugger remarked yesterday. "This too good a here. They'll have to carry me off. After my playing days are over, I'm going to get me a job as a bullpen catcher if they'll have me. I love the game too much to quit."

There isn't anybody in baseball who wants to stay more than Campanella. He doesn't even regard catching as work. A perfect season for him would be to catch every game.

"They say catching is the hardest position to play," he said. "Shucks, if you know how to catch, it ain't hard. No position is hard if you know how to play it. Baseball is fun for men—especially the way they play it up here."

Right now the Brooklyn brain trust is a bit worried about the extra weight the robust receiver is carrying around. But Campy isn't worried. Leaning back comfortably in his chair, Roy took a deep puff of his big black cigar and said:

"Heck, I weigh 213. That's only seven pounds more than I weighed at the end of last season. I can take that off catching every day."

Manager Charlie Dressen has been after him to go on a diet but Roy wants no part of-it.

"Look," he said. "I knocked around nine years in the Negro ...gues and three in the minors eating nothing but sandwiches. Now that I can eat steaks, I certainly don't intend to give them

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A TOUGH TRAIL!

Now come the playoff leags-of-war in Ontario Hockey Association circles hereabouts.

The feuding and the friendships cease. The Redmen and the Rockets, the two "E's" of Belleville hockey endeavor must perforce get down to serious business if they are to get anywhere along the playdown trail.

And both trails are marked with rough tough obstacles that will need the best the local squads have tucked away under their hockey shirts to harden. The other teams in the groups won't be fooling. So it behooves both the Reds and the Rocks to produce their best hockey bibs and tuckers in the series coming up.

* * *

Both teams have been erratic in schedule play. But so have other squads in the various groups, as far as that is concerned. It's the team that can show its worth "when the chips are down" that usually comes home with the playoff bacon. Many a squad has played ordinary hockey in schedule play, to emerge shining stars in the money series. And by the same token many a starry aggregation that has cut a victory swath in reasonal battles, has gone down to more or less ignominous defeat in the important playoff series.

* * *

The Junior "B" series playoffs get away to a start here tomorrow night with the Rockets meeting the Oshawa Bees. If the last performance of Smiley Mercosky's crew can be judged a criterion of playoff performance then the other squads are in for a rough ride. The Rockets uncorked one of their best efforts of the season against the gallant Port Hope Panthers, (and they had to, to win), and it is hoped the agressive, hard-checking display of teamwork they provided that night stays with them.

* * *

For they'll need it. This Oshawa crew, despite the fact they finished in fourth slot in the group standing will not be pushovers. They are big, fast and hard hitters. Besides, as was mentioned before, this is the "skips-down" series, and everybody starts from scratch. That league standing and record is now water under the bridge.

* * *

However the Men o' Meronek are ready and standing by their guns. They're exuding a lot of confidence, but are by no means selling the Oshawa feamers short. But they are determined to put this first all-important game away in their victory bags and get a foothold on the series.

* * *

QUEENS HERE TONIGHT!

The Redmen, who went through a wild wide-open scoring spree against the Queen's University Combines in Kingston Wednesday night play their final local of the season with the Tricolor tonight in Memorial Arena. The Reds fattened their scoring averages against the Gaels, knocking off an even dozen goals with big Vern Gover leading the parade with four.

If the Redshirts win tonight, and they should, it will give them 28 points. Monday night they go to Peterborough in what appears to be a dress rehearsal for the group semi-final series. Providing Nylons knock off the Queen's squad (and that's another "should"), the teams will finish in this manner, — Petes, Nylons, Eagles and Belleville. Since the first and second squads and the third and fourth teams play off, it will be Eagles and the Redmen in the 'B' series with Petes and Nylons in the Allan Cup playdown series.

* * *

"NEVER COUNT THOSE CHICKENS . . ."

Faces are red, and some guys are blue,

They said Petes and Eagles would finish, one, two.

* * *

Ever since the Peterborough Petes and Eagles set an early season terrific pace and romped out ahead of the senior hockey pack some questions in the Littlock City freely predicted the teams would finish first and second in the order named. hey had the Indian sign on both Nylons and Redmen and forged far enough in front to make the race look almost like a rompaway.

* * *

In fact, one enterprising sports scribe connected with the Peterborough Review, a weekly publication came out barefaced with a streamer to the effect "Petes and Eagles start playoffs on February 28th".

"Unless," he wrote, "you are an out-and-out pessimist, you will readily agree with this reporter that Petes and Eagles will have battling for the right to compete for the Allan Cup at the end of the month."

What a guy to have go out and pick a couple of bantgalls at Hialeah. Or anything, for that matter.

* * *

Well, kiddies, there's apparently a lot of "out-and-out optimists up around Petesville wearing countenances of scarlet since the doughty Nylons, their ancient enemies from Kingston have definitely the haughty Eagles. Even Marse Perdue, the old smoothie, was highly confident the Petes - Eagles duo would celebrate the schedule ending with a home series. Thk, ak, and he an ex-regimental quarter-bloke.

Brown Bomber Ready For Tough Andy Walker

San Francisco, Feb. 23 (AP)— ...s Louis, fighting his way along ...to comeback trail in earnest, ...crack at the title he held for ...nearly 12 years, squares off to...night against tough Andy Walker in a 10-round bout at the Cow Palace.

The fight starts about 10 p.m. EST (1 a.m. Saturday EST).

Louis, still the greatest ...fistic attraction of them all, is almost ...solely responsible for drawing a ...capacity crowd to the huge pa...vilion. More than 17,000 fans will ...join the place. The 16,000 seats ...were sold out several days ago. ...Some 1,500 standing-room tickets ...go on sale tonight. Gate receipts ...are expected to go over $35,000.

The 36-year-old ex-champion is preparing himself for another ...little match with Ezzard Charles, ...who whipped him in 15 rounds ...last year. He will go into the ring ...an overwhelming favorite to add ...his rangy San Francisco opponent ...to the list of recent victims.

He has beaten Cesar Brion, ...Freddie Beshore and Omelio Agramonte in turn. He stopped Beshore in four rounds and took decisions over the other two in 10.

Walker rates among ring "unknowns" but he holds the California lightweight crown and has never been knocked out, except for technical knock-out due to ...ce cuts. He is 28 years old, while Louis will be 37 next May.

Louis looks powerful fit. He ...trained well and his sparring partners vouch for his hitting power. Admittedly slower than ...en he was absolute kingpin, Louis is still the 25 clouter, he still packs a punch. All he wants is for an opponent to get in and ...f with him.

Walker is a rugged fellow who h... stood up under stiff wallops. He's faster afoot than Louis and if he elects to hit and run, the Brown Bomber may not be able to ...ag him.

Wagering on the outcome has been virtually negligible. About ...e only odds heard of has been ...peculation on whether Walker ...ould go the distance.

WIN FOURTH STRAIGHT

Hamilton, Feb. 23 (CP)—Lawrence Tech, the touring quintet from Detroit, Thursday night racked up their fourth straight win over Canadian college squads defeating McMaster University Marauders 62-37 in an exhibition basketball game.

Previously they had trimmed University of Toronto Blues, University of Western Ontario and Queen's.

The Tech Technicians poured into a fast first-quarter lead of 23-1. They piled up a 40-23 edge at the half and held the pace for ...s 58-46 margin at three-quarter mark.

HEROIC FARM WIFE GRAPPLES WITH ANGRY HOLSTEIN BULL

Mrs. Anne Cryer, of Lac Blanc, Que., saves husband from gory death by grasping horns of enraged animal

1. It was 6:30 A.M., said Mr. Cryer was bringing the cows in to milk at his farm in Labelle County. Suddenly his 17-month-old Holstein bull attacked him from behind and threw him to the ground. Laughing, Mrs. Cryer grabbed the bull's horns . . . but the animal shook him loose and tossed him in the air. When he fell, the bull pressed his attack, ripping the farmer down the slight grade to a pile of logs . . . never letting up. The farmer screamed out in pain.

2. Mrs. Cryer, hearing her husband's cries, ran from the house and screamed at the top of her lungs to arouse others in the family. When she had crossed the road to the field she saw her husband, bleeding and still being gored. She feared the worst but she didn't hesitate a second. Running straight to the bull, she grasped it by the horns and hung on grimly. The surprised animal tried in vain to shake her off.

3. With a strength she never knew she possessed, Mrs. Cryer kept her hold. And it was only after helpers had arrived and rescued her husband that she let go, ran out the gate and, for the first time in her life, fainted. We are indeed proud to add the name of Mrs. Cryer to the list of those who have won The Dow Award for outstanding bravery.

THE Dow AWARD

THE DOW AWARD is a citation presented for acts of outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Brawling Battle Features Juvenile Win Over Kingston in OMHA Game

Bantams Win, Midgets Defeated

Featured by a wild and woolly Donnybrookesque clash between the juvenile teams, Belleville emerged with two wins and a tie against Kingston squads in an O.M.H.A. five round playdown triple-header here last night.

In a 21-penalty game, and there should have been more, Bert Ethier's Senior juveniles outfought and outscored the Kingston Vics by a 6-3 count.

Twice Holway's Midgets went down to an 8-4 defeat before Bill Reason's Young Rangers.

In the best hockey game of the night the Rockets Bantams under Stan Hagerman defeated the Young Rangers by a 7-3 count.

The second game of the 'goals-to-count' series will be played in the Harty Arena, Kingston, on Saturday, starting at four o'clock afternoon.

Seven major, one miscodout and various minors featured a juvenile game that almost approached powder-puff.

Five fights with both teams playing the man rather than the puck, marked what at first appeared to be a good game. Referee Keenleyside of Kingston, had his hands full at all times and could have tossed off twice the number.

Kingston led 3-1 ending the first period and added two more before the Belleville squad came to life. Then they bunched on them three goals in two minutes to tie the count. They added two more between brawls in the third period while Kingston came back with a single counter.

Penalties came thick and fast, with the Belleville goalie, Barrett being tabbed. On two occasions both teams played three men out front.

Midgets

Weight and experience told against the Belleville Midgets in their 8-4 loss against Young Rangers. It was good hockey in y/-li first period, and again 1-1 in the second when the Holway kids faded somewhat and Rangers ran home four goals in as many minutes to clinch the game.

The Holway kids came back strongly in the third period and scored goal for goal in a fourtally splurge but could not overcome the second period Kingston margin.

Bantams

Playing by far the best hockey of the night's triple bill, the Hagerman - coached Bantams came from behind to win a neat 7-5 victory.

They were on the short end of a 3-2 score ending the first period, gave up an early period goal in the second to trail by 4-3, then hit back strongly with a pair to tie the count.

Led by Bobby Hull and teammates Ab Wright and Fred Hagerman the Bantis smashed home three goals in the third against a single by Kingston to end emerged with a well-deserved win.

The summaries tell the scoring story.

St. Catharines Boxer Given Spot on Card

New York, Feb. 23 — (AP) — Jimmy Flood was ruled out of tonight's Madison Square Garden bout with Tony Janiro as "not in condition at this time to engage in a boxing contest". Pilade Pardeo, of St. Catharines, Ont., was signed as a last-minute substitute for the 10-rounder.

Flood was ordered out by chairman Eddie Eagan of the New York State Athletic Commission at the suggestion of three doctors, including Dr. Charles Mondazio, acting chairman of the Medical Advisory Board to the Commission.

Pressed to find a sub on short notice, matchmaker Al Weill called in Pruden, a Jan. 1 Milwaukee winner over Beau Jack. Pilade, it has won 45 of 58 bouts. He's a capable boxer and good puncher, handicapped by a skin that cuts easily.

Janiro, Ohio, playboy and veteran of 91 fights, lost his last two to Gerardo Gonzalez and Cesar Gavilan. He upset Charlie Fusari last year and fought a surprising draw with Graziano last March 31.

O.H.A. Rejects Protest Entered By K-W Squad

(By The Canadian Press)

Last chance of Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen making a playoff spot in the Ontario Hockey Association major series disappeared yesterday.

The club was notified that its protest against Toronto St. Michael's victory Feb. 14 had been rejected by the OHA.

The league told the club that it had no ground for the protest and returned the protest fee. The Dutchmen claimed referee Jack Hogan erred in giving a 10-minute misconduct to Kitchener Waterloo player for fighting but not giving the same penalty to a St. Michael's player involved in the affair.

The best the Dutchmen can do in their remaining games is get eight points. They're 10 behind the third-place Hamilton Tigers.

Boston College's hockey team has eight players from Canada's Intercollegiate hockey champions from the University of Toronto Varsity.

Coach Wally Halder of the Toronto team and 1948 Canadian Olympic captain, was charged with a misconduct penalty after he rushed on the ice to protest a holding penalty called by referee Art Smith against Jack MacDonald.

Halder was ordered from the team's bench and left only after police had been called. The game was delayed 10 minutes.

Glen Skov of Windsor, Red Wing rookie forward who was stricken by flu epidemic in Montreal, will be back in the Detroit lineup for Sunday's game against the Rangers in New York.

Two-ton Tony Galento of Newark, N.J., wrestler and former heavyweight boxer, will fly to England March 6 for a series of wrestling bouts there and on the continent.

Galento, knocked out by Joe Louis in a heavyweight title bout in 1939, will meet Colonel Jack Doyle, Irish heavyweight who fought in the United States in the middle '30s, at Harringay Stadium, London.

Gorgeous Gussie Moran will drop out of the Bobby Riggs tennis match on the 26th. Other members of the troupe will continue without her, it was revealed when the star tennis player arrived for their scheduled exhibition at Shreveport, La., Thursday.

Bobby McLellan's Truro rink Thursday lifted the Nova Scotia senior curling championship, defeating Rocky Bonnell's Halifax rink 14-8 in the finals.

Fred Saigh, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said Thursday he would not sell a "strong-fisted" man take over baseball commissioner A. B. Chandler's job.

Such a man would be one who "preferably has been out of politics."

Asked who he had in mind to fill the role of a strong man he said he had no choice.

The major league club officials met at Miami Beach March 13 to discuss the commissioner question. The meeting was called by Chandler.

Skiing conditions in Ontario generally are only fair, the Ontario Travel Department reported Thursday.

Conditions are good at Haileybury, Haliburton, Huntsville, Collingwood and Bancroft—but bush conditions are good at Flesherton and Markdale.

There is no skiing at Barrie, Cobourg, Peterborough and Toronto summit and conditions are poor at Dagmar, Fort William, Port Arthur, Havelock, Kenora and Orangeville.

Big Bookmaker Stops Taking Bets on Games

New York, Feb. 23—(AP)— Maybe the bookmakers will solve the problem of fixes themselves. A big bookmaker told us he has stopped taking bets on college basketball games. "It's getting so," he said, "none of the big money commissioners will handle 'em. I got clipped for five grand on one dump and it's not going to happen to me again."

Our informant might be called a wholesaler. He doesn't do much business with regular bettors. Most of the wagers he handles are from other bookmakers in different cities. The individual betting money that he does handle, however, is watched by gamblers. Most of the bets he takes are from $500 up, the "up" reaching into five figures. If he gets too much "action" he spreads some of the bets to bookies in other cities.

Bookies Clipped

"Dumps are arranged by punks," said the bookie. "The regular dealer wouldn't touch 'em. They make our living by the vigorish (The regular percentage or commission for taking bets). We got the vig running for us and we've been in it for a long time. The punk is out to clip us. He fixes a game and tries to catch us.

"How did I happen to get caught on a dump, you ask? Listen, I see a line on what looked good. I bet that I'm open for business. But if I get too much one-sided action, I'll start laying off. If I can't lay off enough with other bookies, I'll "wash" the bet off the boards. (Won't take any more bets) . . . so the stooge taking action on those college games. The other big guys will too. Oh, there'll be plenty of small bookie taking other bets, say for $25, $50 and $100. But with too much one-sided action, the small bookie won't dare take too much money on a game."

Small Interest

"Big-league baseball is my game. Not football. That's all we want to know. I'll take action as long as it's dished out to me. Betting on baseball is big and getting bigger all the time. Tremendous amounts of money are bet on baseball games, especially Army-Navy and other traditional games. There's lots of action on the bowl games. "The biggest plungers? They come from Cuba, Canada and Texas. Those oil and cattle guys will bet $100,000 on a football game without batting an eye. They bet like they were handling small money. That's schools like. All the way. If they lose—they'll just go and dig another oil well."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyrne can get along with any man, Except as his partner in a bridge game. Every rule she hears goes into one ear and comes out of her brain backwards, or upside down.

She was told that the lead from the sequences is the top card. So, what does she do? She forgets this applies only to the lead from a sequence; not to the play with a sequence.

When it is your lead from a sequence, why should you lead the top? To advise your partner that you have the card below it, also to admit that you have not the card above it (except A, K).

When your partner leads a suit in which you have a sequence, do not play the top; play the bottom of your sequence. This will give him better line on where to look for the higher cards in that suit.

Put these two rules together. With a sequence, lead the top; play the bottom. As in the case where you have the hand shown here:

♠A 5 3
♥Q J 7 10 4
♦K 8 4 3
♣9 5

You have a sequence in hearts. If you lead this suit, lead the queen. This tells your partner that you have the jack. It will also tell him that the king it not in your hand, or you would have led it.

But, suppose a heart was led by some other player. Do not play the queen in your attempt to win or force the trick. Play your ten. Partner will then discover which higher hearts you have.

If somebody takes this trick with the king, partner may assume you have the jack and queen. Otherwise, the trick is your's.

'Six Inches of Top Soil, Man's Greatest Inheritance' Rotarians And Farmers Told at Banquet

Stirring Members of the Rotary Club of Stirling entertained their farmer friends at the regular weekly dinner meeting in the community hall on Tuesday evening, the occasion being Farmers' Night, Fred Young, of the Ontario Agricultural College, who stressed the important position occupied by the farmer in world affairs in the present day.

Interspersing his remarks with humorous stories, Padre Young congratulated the Rotarians on trying to bring about a better understanding between the different classes in the community and based his address on what he termed "the sixty-four dollar question" — when do we eat?

Food—Most Important Question

This is the most important question in all the world, stated the speaker, and upon its answer depends the happiness, health, well-being and survival of the human race. There is a great deal of hunger in the world today, with one-third of the population living at an undernourished level, one-fifth at a starvation level. In India alone, 20,000,000 people were starving this winter.

Padre Young said that hunger, bred war and the man who was hungry was the greatest menace to world peace and democracy. Every war in the past had been fought largely for food and if there is another war it will be because there has not been enough food.

Communism Result of Hunger

Continuing, he said that communism could not have made headway in many countries had it not been for the case. He pointed out the importance that the farmer plays in the production of food. The farmer's part is not a dramatic or a spectacular one, but one of the most important in the whole world. In order to produce food from the soil the farmer must know more about more things than any other man. He must have skill, know something about mechanics, animals, and diseases as well as a knowledge of science.

"Eighty - seven research projects are in progress at the Ontario Agricultural College to aid the farmers in the problems he meets on the farm," stated Padre Young. If the sixty-four dollar question was to be answered, the farmer had to know the answer to a great many problems and everything possible was being done to find a solution to them.

Greatest Inheritance

"Man's greatest inheritance was the six inches of top soil God gave him, and it was not our right to misuse it, and put it on less-productive than we found it. If the farmer is to provide the answer to the question, he must have above all, co-operation. This is the key - word today as far as success in Ontario and Canada is concerned," stated Padre Young.

"Two thousand years ago, a young man went about preaching the doctrine, 'As ye would that others would do unto you, do ye also unto them,' and for 2,000 years we have failed to follow His advice. Until we do, we cannot expect to have a world free from war and want and starvation," concluded the speaker.

Rotarian O. Dalrymple, introduced the speaker, Padre Young, and Rotarian C. I. Hutton tendered appreciative thanks. President Bill Cornell presided over the meeting, and Rotarian, George Crown, led in the community singing with Miss M. McKee at the piano.

RETURNS TO HELP FUND

New York, Feb. 23 — (AP) — Maria Jeritza, who took the New York opera world by storm 20 years ago, returned last night to the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House after an absence of 19 years.

She made her appearance for the benefit of the $750,000 fund the Metropolitan is seeking to meet increased expenses.

The dramatic soprano ignored her 63 years as she sang and danced with bubbling exuberance through her role of "Rosalinda" in Johann Strauss' comic opera, "Die Feldermaus." It was the first time in her long operatic career that she had sung the role in English.

Flax Pulp Used For Fine Papers

Saskatoon, Feb. 23 — (CP) — Gerard H. La Fontaine, of the Howard Smith Paper Mills, Montreal, yesterday that flax pulp [illegible] be considered as standby material for the manufacture of high-quality papers. Previously, cotton rags were used exclusively in the process.

He told a barley and oils seeds conference that the use of flax pulp and straw in Canada increased 150 per cent in 1950. The scarcity of cotton rags needed in the defence program had forced paper mills to try flax pulp as a substitute.

It has been found satisfactory in the manufacture of all papers with the exception of cigaret papers and bank notes.

Balkan Experts Attend Meeting Of Anti-Soviets

Bonn, Germany, Feb. 23 (Reuters)—Siritan experts on the Soviet system attended a secret meeting in Munich this week of exiled anti-soviet politicians.

Reports from Germany say the politicians, calling themselves the "anti-bolshevik bloc of Nations" believed backed by money collected in Canada, discussed plans for the political settlement for eastern Europe should the Soviet system come to an end.

The britons are described as wartime experts on subversive operations in the Balkans.

Many politicians attending the meeting claim to head partisan movements in more-or-less-constant warfare with MVD (Ministry of the Interior) troops of the Soviet Union.

They agree that Soviet Russia should eventually be broken up into its component racial parts—Ukrainians, Georgians, Azerbaijanis and so son.

The "anti-Bolshevik Bloc of Nations" is reported to be well financed by the Ukrainian colony in Canada. One of its aims is to set up an independent radio station in western Germany.

The reports say the Munich meeting was attended by anti-communist Ukrainians, Poles, Azerbaijanis, Turks, Georgians, Slovaks, Croats, Czechs and Slovaks.

Many of these fought for local independence against the Russian revolution; some preferred to join the Nazis in 1941 in order to be able to fight communism and were taken prisoner inside German or elsewhere in 1945.

Fought Both Parties

Supporters of the Ukrainian partisan leader "General" Istvan Bandera have fought both Nazis and communists. The movement is led by Jaroslav Seteczko, a Polish Ukrainian now livi ng in London, who was prime minister of the self-styled "Independent Republic of the Ukraine" for four days of its existence in 1941.

His agent in Munich was his wife who lives there under a false name. Bandera also had representatives there, it is reported.

One of the biggest problems of these exiles, in continuous strife with other political groups over their own countries, has been to reach frontier agreements with exile representatives of neighboring states.

An achievement of the meeting is believed to have been that the Ukrainians and Poles came to a common arrangement, whereby the Polish Ukraine would be put under common control, with a plebiscite to determine which government the Ukrainians would prefer.

The Ukraine is the eastern part of Poland seized by Russia after the collapse of Poland in 1939 and incorporated in the Soviet Ukraine.

Washington Feb. 23 — (AP)— Some congressional friends of President Truman today said he is seriously considering running for his old Senate seat when his present White House term expires. Vets Cut Hair In Spare Time

Toronto — (CP) — Giving free haircuts to the crippled and bed-ridden is the sparetime hobby of Toronto barbers Joseph Leone, Jr., 23, and Carl Coffey, 26.

They got the idea from Leone's father, who gave his time to cut the hair of blind war veterans in training at the Canadian National Institute for the Blind after the Second World War.

Both veterans themselves, they started their charitable venture six months ago. Since then, they have put in many hours of extra work in the evenings and on week ends.

"It is just our way of contributing something we can do very easily in a feeling of brotherly love and mercy towards neglected people of this city who through illness are confined to bed and unable to hire a barber," Leone said in an interview.

They make their rounds in an old-model automobile. The names of their "customers" come from a list of sources, mostly from welfare workers, doctors and friends, who know of their work.

Princess of Gratzen

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

Rudolph stared at Madame Foire – Lesigan, comprehension coming like a slow dawn into his eyes. He moistened his lips with his tongue and made an involuntary move toward the wing where that lady had become too tight. He blinked his eyes and rubbed them a bit unsteadily when he said, "there are few words, madame—one that I know in any language, to express it."

"There may be some, to-morrow," said the old lady, biting on a roll, "but skip it, Rudi. When do the young ones arrive?"

"I should judge from the little I have digested of the press account that they will be here on tonight's train. They know the name of the station, St. Didier des Montagnes."

"They speak French? English?"

"I do not know. But I think it is likely that apart from their own tongue, they speak Swiss, perhaps Alsatian with little French, or English."

"It is well then. They will invest in ignorance, even were there any to tell them you do not own the Chateau Philibert."

"Some day they'll have to know, madame."

"Oh, baptism! Tell them then you lost it in a poker game. Now I shall talk to that sly lawyer, Meridel Follet, on the telephone and have him send a staff. I'll also tell him to get home is now the house of my guests, the Baron Rudi de Morgin, the young Princess of Gratzen, the royal Princess of Gratzen, the royal cousins."

"It sounds like a dream, madame."

She smiled up at him over the white telephone, like an old pixy. "I begin to live again, Baron. I must also call my nephew, Roger Fabre, and tell him the same story. He would be no one to come blundering in and spoil things. I take it, Rudolph — Baron — it would overstep everything if the pretty Meridel knew—"

"She would not say I think," Rudi shook his head, "if she is like—"

"Ah!" The black eyes danced. "Ah, it was then her mother for whom you vowed to build the golden castle."

Rudolph nodded slowly. "She was born for a castle."

"All women are," said madame "Though most see theirs in the smoke from the kitchen stove or the steam from a washtub. Ah, you, Follet, my old splittoon, how goes it? I want you to send me some servants at once. I am entertaining royalty. Oh, no, my friend—not Napoleon; not, am I Cleopatre. You listen to me and keep quiet."

St. Didier des Montagnes is only three hours by car from Montreal. Meridel Follet who of late had objected little to madame's most extravagant whims, sent six uniformed domestics up to the mountain chateau so quickly that it savored considerably of Aladdin's lamp.

"The man always reminded me of Cagliostro or Dr. Faustus," muttered the old lady as she inspected the new cook, maids and butler. The chauffeur had already gone to meet the wheezy old train that arrived at St. Didier every other night. The baron, the subdued but stately Rudolph, had accompanied him. These people, madame had stipulated, must know nothing of her status at Philibert and she had probed sharply to be sure that none of them had any suspicions about her. She was the housekeeper, Madame Laurin. She had left off the usual ghastly makeup, donned a black silk dress and white cap and looked the part. She was a great actress, madame.

Rudolph's eyes glistened when he saw the way she curtsied in the great entry hall of the chateau as the princess and her little cousins walked up the wide steps. He worshiped her then, as always in his staid way he admired the old rebel. Ah, but she was une grande dame, a noble woman, this Mimi Fabre, whose father had been a poor cobbler in St. Antoine Street long ago.

The new staff gave their respectful salutations, genuine awe in their eyes. This was indeed a princess. True, she wore an old tweed burberry that had seen many storms and a fawn felt hat that was battered and out of shape, but her hair was like Marguerite's and when she uncovered her head the thick braids of it lay coronet fashion like things woven of golden sunbeams and her mouth, though red, and soft, was imperious; the blue of her eyes was deep and fearless. The blond little boy, Pol Martin, stood on one side of her, Rosine with long straw-colored hair and great blue-black eyes, clung to her hand.

They looked about them and suddenly Meridel's mouth twisted and she flung her arms about Rudolph's neck and hid her face against his shoulder; the little ones came shyly close to him. They were like nearly exhausted swimmers in a wild sea, mused madame, who had at last reached the safe and solid land. And in that moment she thanked God that she had done this thing.

"If it please Your Highness," said Madame in slow French. "Ah, how in divine Sarah would have applauded her acting in this scene—". I shall show you and the little ones to your apartments." With a nod she dismissed butler, maids and cook. The chauffeur had ent reluctantwhose chauffeur had entered with the meager luggage.

"The Princess understands and speaks a little French, Madame Laurin," said Rudolph. "Likewise Pol Martin and Rosine. You may be sure they will learn fast."

"We shall have good teachers, hein?" Meridel's slow, sweet smile warmed the old lady's heart. She wanted to embrace Meridel and these little ones, tell them they were safe from the terrow now, away forever from fear and hungry and hate and misery. One could read in their faces some of the story that was theirs; some of the haunted horror was still deep in their eyes that had a too wide, too wondering look, as if they had gazed upon things beyond the ken of mortals.

"Come on, Bonhomme Fricot," said little Rosine to Pol Martin. The old lady stared. Meridel laughed, a gay, silvery laugh. "It is s'elickness from a story they play. Bonhomme Fricot is a hero of theirs. He is like the Pied Piper. In reality he was some quiet old one who did much good in the village in France where they refuged, then little ones, after Gratzen was—was trampled into the ground. I was in Paris then. By luck, I found Pol Martin and Rosine among the homeless thousands."

"Bonhomme Fricot," said Rosine gravely "was shot dead by a German soldier. We saw the soldier go into Bonhomme Fricot's house and come out with the dead Bonhomme Fricot's poor dead body lying there in his hut and we all had to run for the Panzers were coming into St. Como and—"

"Please come, Rosine," said Meridel. "And try to forget those things."

"We will not forget Bonhomme Fricot," said Pol Martin. "Not ever. When we were starving he gave us chocolate. Everyone in St. Como loved him. He used to teach us games when we hid from the Stukas, and he taught us to sing."

He sang the ancient roundelay that madame herself had sung in childhood, as they reached upstairs. Ah, how small is this world, mused madame that a little song can link nations and blind generations together! How dear and warm and human it was to hear the boy's clear soprano and the little girl chiming in! Not in more years than she cared to think about had the Chateau Philibert heard such pure and lovely piping as this.

The thick door of madame's own suite closed on the childish voices, Madame stood in the hall with Rudolph and looked at him with a moment and smiled and nodded, "It is the best play I was ever in," said old Mimi Fabre, "and the loveliest role I ever enacted."

"And I madame," said Rudolph with a deep and humble bow, "have never before witnessed such superb acting."

Madame had moved her intimate possessions, her clothes, her countless knickknacks and photos to the housekeeper's apartment in the north wing. Now she made a swift, descent on the kitchen and rightly judged the dinner preparations. [illegible] for these hungry [illegible] — plenty of good nahitants — soup, of roast chicken, of rich pudding and strong coffee. Those little bones needed a great deal more firm padding before meeting the winter. Ah, good! she told the new cook. "Give everything a double helping. They will think it's the custom of the country. Sometimes, when I go to a restaurant, I too think it should be."

She went to her new quarters where already she had begun to arrange her things. There had been a sad moment when going through them she had come upon Michel's photograph—Michel as he had been three years before, a few days previous preceding the time he had said, "darn it, Tante Mimi, I shall go to France if I want to, I shall lead the life I choose, I shall be a painter, a poet, a tramp—anything I like; and I don't care if I never earn an honest penny. I'm tired of your dictator ways, I won't be regimented any longer. Roger can take it seemingly, and he's welcome to it. I'm off."

And away he was too, that very night, even though she had risen to magnificent heights of invective, threatenings and pleadings. He should never have a cent of her money—he didn't want it. His brother Roger should have it all he was welcome to it. He was the more ungrateful of nephews —he wasn't, but she was the most arrogant and overbearing of aunts.

Madame hadjflung Michel's picture in a trunk that night and tried to put him forever out of her heart. She had heard no word of him in the years between, nor had his brother Roger, who was now with the air force; nor had anyone else. If he had gone to France as he'd planned, perhaps they would never know what had become of him. Wild young devil anyway; volatile, hot-tempered, reckless and devoid of any fear of self-consciousness. The old lady had set his picture in its ormolu frame in her dresser and had taken it up to look at it, holding it close to her when she heard Roger's step on the stairs.

Lake Success, N.Y., Feb. 24 — (AP)— The United Nations good offices committee was reported today to be ready to fly to Peiping in an effort to communist China to see if Peiping will reconsider and discuss Korean peace terms with it.

Diplomatic sources said the three-member committee had made its move in the last day or so through Swedish government contacts in Red China. No answer has been received yet, it was learned.

The committee is composed of Nasrollah Entezam of Iran, president of the General Assembly; Sven Grafstrom of Sweden and Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico.

Committee members maintained secrecy on their action and have told newspaper men they had nothing to say.

Marriage Act Revision Frees Latt From Wife

London, Feb. 24—(CP)—For the first time since the recent revision of the Ontario Marriage Act a session holding the curtain has been declared legally dead.

Judge Ian Macrae yesterday issued an order dissolving the bonds of Nicholas, 40, of London, Ont., from his marriage to Anna Falks, Aug. 31, 1931.

In his affidavit Silnicks said he and his wife lived in Nica, Latvia, until German occupation authorities sent him to a forced labor camp in Germany. Since then he has heard nothing of his wife's whereabouts.

"I believe my wife has shared the same fate as a very large percentage of people from Latvia who has been deported to Russia as a slave labor," Silnicks said.

He said he had made "every effort" to get in touch with her by letter and has also made "numerous inquiries as to her whereabouts."

"I honestly believe that I have no reason to regard my wife as being alive," Silnicks' affidavit stated.

The Marriage Act of Ontario was revised last year to permit a dec'n ation of death to allow remarriage after an absence of seven years. Previously a similar procedure was allowed under the Insurance act but only to permit collection of insurance monies.

Rail Strike Threat Ends in U.K.

London, Feb. 24 (AP) —Threat of a country wide strike on Britain's state-owned railways ended last night when 600,000 railwaymen were wage increases averaging 7 1-2 percent.

An announcement of the agreement, retroactive from Jan. (1, came late yesterday after long negotiations between three railway unions and members of the railway executive, which runs the nationalized lines.

The wage increase will cost the railways an additional £12,000,000 ($36,000,000) a year. The announcement said if this sum could not be saved by economies and increased efficiency, an increase in railroad fares and freight rates would be requested.

GOVT. APPROVES NEW DEPARTMENT FOR PRODUCTION

Will be Headed By Trade Minister

Ottawa, Feb. 24 — (CP) — The Commons has placed its preliminary stamp of approval on the master blueprint for Canada's new defence production machinery.

It gave first reading yesterday to a government bill creating a new department with wide powers to direct the production of the weapons, tanks and ships needed for the defence of Canada and, if necessary, for war.

The proposed bill, to be known as the department of defence production, will be headed by 65-year-old Trade Minister Howe, the government's aggressive wartime minister of munitions and supply. He will have two new deputies, one already in those under which his wartime department operated.

Piloting the legislation yesterday, he told the chamber that military experts believe the threat of seven targets — he did not name them — Canada, which might invite atomic attack in a third world war. He doubted if atomic bombing would be used solely to destroy the civilian population, but the enemy segment of the government's growing defence preparations, the chamber gave second reading to a bill giving the government broad powers in principle — to a bill giving the government broad powers in principle — to a bill giving the government broad powers in principle —

Milk Delivery Drivers Hit By Old Man Flu

Old Man Flu has gotten in his dirty work with milk delivery drivers in the city with at least ten drivers down for the count unable to report for work for the past two days.

"It's really getting serious," stated a spokesman from Reid's Dairy today. "With so many drivers off it is difficult to get experienced delivery who know the city and the different routes."

As a precaution against housholders going short of milk/should additional drivers be stricken with the flu bug, Reid's request that housewives lay in a supply of milk to carry them over should deliveries become delayed or interrupted.

R.A. Pringle, K.C. Named President Law Association

The annual meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Law Association was held at Shrine Club on Thursday evening. Mr. R. A. Pringle, K.C. was elected president, succeeding Mr. Lance Nethery, K.C., of Picton, who has served as president for the past two years. Other officers elected were Mr. J. D. O'Flynn as vice-president, Mr. Ramsay Park of Trenton as second vice-president, K. Guss Porter of Belleville as secretary-treasurer and Mr. R. B. McCulloch, librarian.

A special interest to the public was the meeting held on the proposal of the Law Society of Upper Canada to establish clinics for the rendering of free legal aid to the needy particularly in Belleville and Prince Edward district, provisions for free legal aid to the needy has been a policy of the association for many years. There was no case on record within the knowledge of the Association where free legal aid had not been rendered in criminal matters to a needy person and that frequently the local Crown Attorney or Magistrate requested members of the Bar to represent persons accused of a crime who could not afford to retain legal defence and these requests had never been refused. It was not a matter, however, which could be given much publicity for fear of embarrassing the recipients of the relief. The Association head or ever, expressed its gratification that an organized effort was being made particularly in Toronto to guarantee fulfilment of this policy.

A vote of thanks was rendered to Mr. R. B. McCulloch, the retiring secretary-treasurer for the efficient manner in which he had handled the affairs of the association and the library for the past five years.

First King Scout to be named in the history of scouting in Belleville, Kenneth Moore, North Front Street, received his gold cords from Scout Commissioner Alfred Duffy at the annual Father and Son banquet of the 2nd Belleville Troop, held in the parish hall at Christ Church Friday evening.

Kenneth, who has been a Belleville scout master for the 2nd Belleville Troop, has been a scout for six years, five of them in Belleville, and has all 18 proficiency badges. He became a scout while living in Madoc.

Presentation of the gold cords to the first King Scout in Belleville's history was the high point of interest on the evening's program, which saw Gordon Davis president of the Boy Scout Association at Trenton, act as guest speaker.

Miss Joan Bronskill and Miss Jean Green were invested as Cub leaders, while scouts Robert Mc-Laskin and Rod. Owens received their pioneer's and knotter's badges. Scout John Bedford received his second class badge.

Interest Helps

As guest speaker for the annual Father and Son banquet, Mr. Davis stressed that a father's interest helps scouting immensely and stressed the value of scouting in training for citizenship.

"Canadian democracy depends on good citizens," he said. "The secret of a good democracy is teamwork and scouting is particularly good for training boys to this end. Scout discipline makes good citizens and encourages a give and take attitude toward life and the sharing of privileges."

"He is a good citizen naturally follows that you will be a good citizen," he concluded.

The toast to the fathers was by Scout Bob McLaskie with Rev. J. H. Creegan giving the toast to the sons. Scout Commissioner Duffy gave the toast to scouting. Chris Craig furnished entertainment for the program of entertainment and Scout Community singing was led by A. Simpson; piano solos by Bob Owen, Robt. Gillan and Doug Bedstone. The 2nd Belleville Scout Troop staged a radio comedy skit, while the Cubs gave a display of a typical night's program. Prior to Vespers by the Chris Craig Grenadiers a banquet was provided the supper was expressed by Ellie Owen.

Feel Concern Over Meadows Bare of Snow

An unusual demand for little pigs and brood sows is reported in Northumberland county in the weekly crop reports of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Reports indicate that the bacon hogs was believed to be responsible for the demand.

Feed grain prices, on the average, have advanced 4 dollar per ton during the past two weeks and farmers welcomed the advanced prices for hay, straw and eggs.

Many farmers in the Bay of Quinte area are concerned about bare meadows and fall wheat fields. The recent mild spell thawed the snow and fields are now either bare or covered with ice.

During the past week apples have commenced to move better from storage.

Farmers are starting to make plans about seed grain. Most farmers assess their feed supplies as being sufficient to put cattle to grass.

Technical Departments at B.C.I.V.S.

The technical department in our secondary school consists of the drafting, machine shop, auto mechanics, and woodworking shops.

This department has an aim behind all its activities. If a visit were to be made to any of these departments, it would be found that boys would be keenly interested in many different phases of practical work.

The main department boys would be learning the various parts of cars, how these parts go together, and what each part is supposed to do. They would be learning judgment factors, that is what pieces to apply to certain parts, what common sense forces to use, and, above all, to take a keen interest in what makes the engine and all its parts function the way they do.

In the machine shop, the boys learn the fundamentals of machine operations, speed factors, cutting operations, the importance of accuracy in sizes and hand skills, and the use of precision tools.

The woodshop would impress anyone with a desire to work in industry. The boys learn the various kinds of wood, their characteristics in growth and in their utility in industry. Boys are taught the fundamentals of woodworking devices and of wood finish methods, keen edge cutting tools, wood behavior, wood turning, the use of electricity and power tools, stains and the art of finishing and polishing.

The drafting department is the hub of all the shops. It is a definite educational subject with and thought.

Churches Support Red Cross Appeal

Saturday and Sunday, February 24th and February 25th., have been set aside as Red Cross Sabbath and Sunday in support of the Society's annual national appeal, Hon. Leopold Macaulay, chairman of the National Executive Committee, announced today.

Observance of the two special days in churches and synagogues throughout the nation precedes the March 1st opening of the Red Cross appeal for $3,000,000. This year the society is appealing for a over-subscription of the regular $3,000,000 objective for peacetime work, in order that it may answer the request of the Department of National Defence for the provision of blood and blood plasma for the armed forces.

Red Cross branches in many communities are planning additional functions this weekend to give the days special significance.

"The spiritual ideal and wide humanitarian principle the Red Cross is emphasized by this traditional practice among clergymen of all faiths," Mr. Macaulay said.

A History of Belleville's Hospital

By Kathleen L. Rust

In the cavity beneath the cornerstone were placed coins of the dominion; a copy of the leading newspapers of the province; a copy of the Act incorporating the W.C.A.; samples of the common stock of the country; and a document worded as follows: "This cornerstone was laid this 25th day of September 1884 being the eighteenth year of the existence of the Dominion of Canada, His Excellency the Right Honorable, the Marquis of Lansdowne, being Governor-General of the Dominion; Hon. John Beverly Robinson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario; Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, Premier of the Dominion; Hon. Oliver Mowat, Premier of Ontario; James W. Bennett, Esq.; Mayor of the City of Belleville; J. F. B. Flint, Esq., Police Magistrate; D. B. Robinson, Esq., City Clerk; Robt. Tannahill, Esq., Treasurer; Lawrence Henderson, Esq., Solicitor; Hugh McKinnon, Esq., Chief of Police; Matthew Sheard, Esq., Toronto, Architect; Thomas Hanley, Esq., Architect and Supervisor; John Forin, Esq., Contractor."

Be it said for the women that, in their eagerness to accomplish things, they weren't rushing into debt. God and the future would look after maintenance and growth, but the start of the project . . . cash in hand! The annual report of the Association for 1883-4 reveals that "on June 6, 1884, the ladies had collected $1,000 towards the building fund."

On June 16, 1884, after some delay, the city granted $1,000. The hospital lot had been sold to Msgr. Farrelly for $4,400, and the late Mrs. Clapp had left a legacy of $817; the Bicycle Club raised $117.36 and a pancake social netted $15.56; the mayor contributed his salary of $200, and an Art Loan Exhibition netted $500. The women themselves had collected $1,065.

The contract for the building of the Hospital and Home (the latter being a separate building from the hospital), was for $13,274, the building cost $15,000 and above that, of course. The total cost was $20,000, which left the Association some $4,000 or $5,000 in debt. This was entirely paid off by 1889.

Formal Opening

On July 30, 1886, the formal opening of the combined Hospital and Home for the Aged, took place, Miss Linke being the first superintendent. In the hospital proper was a staff of three nurses and eight beds, and the total number of patients cared for in the first year was 86. In 1947 there were some 300 beds and a staff of 105 nurses.

Not only has there been a development in the last day years, but it is interesting to picture the development in furnishings and the method of handling patients. In 1886 that little poem hadn't been written about the "antiseptic baby and the prophylactic pup." No one thought of wearing a mask when smoothing an infant. And some of the furnishings in the home would make the present day pathologist shudder. As for instance, taken from a newspaper description — "in the hall is a filter, the gift of Messrs. Harris and Lister."

No doubt the common drinking cup sat beside it. And how proud they were of the mantle and grate in the surgery, and another in the dining room, and one in the private room. And the sitting room walls were papered, and there was matting in the halls. Matting in the halls of some of the present day hospitals would be a God-send in our noise-ridden cities. One good thing they did have was a water bed, probably the forerunner of our air-mattresses.

It was a proud day when the hospital boasted its first operating room. Now there are four, well equipped, with the last word in lighting — giddy affairs with many mirrors.

On completion of the new Home building the original home was given up and the occupants moved to their new quarters. During all this time the members of the Magdalene division and the Ladies Society were carrying on their work of visiting the "gaol" and sewing for the hospital and home, and for the needy throughout the city.

Drive Shed Built

In 1890 a driving shed for the physicians' horses was built. I asked if, at that time there was any record of their having an ambulance, and was told that the patients got to the hospital by horse and buggy or as best they could. Later the police department had an ambulance, a great step forward.

In 1890 the first Superintendent, Miss Linke, resigned and her place was taken by Miss Cooper, who held the position till 1898. Miss Cooper organized a training school for nurses, with the first class of five graduating in 1895. During Miss Cooper's regime the hospital was visited by the Governor-General, His Excellency, Lord Aberdeen. An amusing incident occurred during that visit. There was no patient in the public ward, and the ladies felt that there should be at least one to impress the Governor-General. The visit to this ward passed off very nicely with the distinguished visitor pausing to give a few words of cheer to the "sufferer."

Upon leaving the room His Excellency asked if not the patient, but the ward itself, was empty, on account of her size. The Superintendent decided, however, immediately on the departure of the visitor, the patient calmly resumed her duties in the kitchen. It was the cook who had kindly consented to act as a patient for the time being. Compare that incident with the present day elegance of the accommodation, where, at the present time, in this same hospital, 4 new patients are accommodated in the corridors.

Nine Nurses

By 1898 the staff of nurses had been increased to nine. By 1900 the demand for accommodation was such that the old building — the Home building — was remodelled for hospital purposes, and the old people moved to a house on Moira Street which had been left to the W.C.A. for charitable purposes. This wing contained, when remodelled, wards for contagious or infectious diseases, with nine beds on the second floor, while the public wards on the first floor. By this time the high building, now used as private rooms and four semi-private rooms.

By 1910 the growth of the hospital was such that the W.C.A. felt compelled to consider enlarging the accommodation. A new wing of the old building was added and completed by 1911. This contained two large public wards, one for men, one for women, wards on the first floor; an operating room, three private and two semi-private rooms on the second.

The third floor of the main building was now boiling over with nurses residence, a recommodation for them was made in the east wing.

In 1913 a third floor of the newly built south wing was completed and fitted up as a maternity ward, with properly equipped delivery room. Of course this addition necessitated greater heating and laundry equipment, and by 1911 to 1919 the expenditures amounted to some $35,000. For this the women really had to go into debt a bit, shouldering a mortgage of $18,000. But with the appreciation of the great work of the women, and the complete sympathy of the citizens in general, that this mortgage was paid off in four years, $5,000 a year, face from the bitter opposition with which their efforts met in 1878 and 1879.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

That Sweet Story Of Old

I think when I read that sweet story of old,
When Jesus was here among men,
How He called little children as lambs to His fold,
I should like to have been with Him then.

I wish that His hands had been placed on my head,
That His arms had been thrown
Around me,
And that I might have seen His kind look when He said,
"Let the little ones come unto Me."

Yet still to His footstool in prayer I may go
And ask for a share in His love;
And if I thus earnestly seek Him below,
I shall see Him and hear Him above:
In that beautiful place He has gone to prepare
For all who are washed and forgiven;
And many dear children shall be with Him there,
For of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.

An old-fashioned stage coach bounced along over English roads one morning in 1841 while a young woman inside scribbled verses on a crumpled envelope. It was a rough ride for a writer but Jemima Thompson went on scribbling, unmindful of the rumbling, rocking coach, and when she alighted at her destination an hour or so later she had finished the first two stanzas of her delightful children's hymn.

Jemima had inherited a keen interest in music from her father and several months earlier while visiting an English mission school she was attracted by a Greek melody which a band of children were singing as a marching song.

"What a fine children's hymn that will make," the thought, "if only I can find the right words for it."

In the days that followed she searched through scores of books for verses to fit the music that had caught her fancy. But none that she found quite suited her and finally Jemima discarded them all and decided to write her own. The page-cooking trip, a few days later, brought her both the opportunity and the inspiration for her composition.

The boys and girls in her Sunday School were delighted when she taught them the words and music of her hymn and it was not long until her father, who was superintendent of the school, heard of it. Without Jemima's knowledge, he sent a copy to the Sunday School Teachers' Magazine where it first appeared in print.

For 100 years it has been a favorite in Sunday Schools and throughout the world. Through translations, boys and girls of many foreign lands have been able to share the enjoyment of its beautiful, thrilling message. Adults have enjoyed the hymn as much as have children, and young people have used it in Christian Endeavor conventions and other gatherings.

Jemima was only 28 when she wrote "That Sweet Story of Old." Two years later she was married to the Rev. Samuel Luke. All her life she kept her interest in foreign missions and to make her hymn appropriate for use in missionary gatherings she added this third stanza:

"But thousands and thousands who wander and fall
Never heard of that heavenly home;
I should like them to know there is room for them all,
And that Jesus has bid them to come.

And O how I long for that glorious time,
The greatest, and brightest and best
When the dear little children of every clime
Shall crowd to His arms and be blest."

When the international Christian Endeavor convention was meeting in Baltimore in 1904, Mrs. Luke sent this inspiring message to the youthful delegates:

"Dear children, you will be men and women soon, and it is for you and the children of England to carry the message of a Saviour's love to every nation of this sin-stricken world. It is a blessed message to carry, and it is a happy work to do. The Lord made you ever faithful to Him, and unspeakably happy in His service! I came to Him at 10 years of age and, at 91, I can testify to His care and faithfulness."

ACHIEVEMENT

There are many amazing achievements in this age in the field of industry, in medicine, and in the manufacture of devices which make our progress the swiftest in world history. World War I saw aviation starting on its way and the application of its principles to the science of warfare. By the time of the second war aviation was far developed and during the years of the second struggle came monstrous discoveries and inventions which united aviation to a supreme place in the eyes of the world.

Since the last war civil and military aviation has been steadily developing, the progress being so rapid that it is not possible for the mere individual who is not associated with the industry to appreciate the importance of the developments. How many new records have been set, each marching a great step forward, only the industry itself could reveal.

Now has come a flight which has dazzled the world with its performance. It is the flight of the British jet bomber which navigated the space between Britain and Gander, Newfoundland, in the mere space of time between breakfast and lunch. In exact figures the Canberra drove its way through two thousand miles of atmosphere in four hours, 40 minutes and made a speed averaging 435 miles an hour.

The flight was marked by the fact that it was the fastest flight ever made across the sea and at the same time the ship encountered very stiff headwinds on the east-to-west journey.

This achievement is a proof of the development of aerial engineering and at the same time offers the hope of continued advance in engineering in relation to air transportation.

So great an achievement at any time would be a world-famous event. But coming on the heels of so many developments in aviation, it heralds greater advances yet ahead. For there are decades of the plane has been making amazing advances in time of peace and in time of war.

Science is minimizing space in relation to time and where the end will come it is difficult to know. That more progress is ahead appears as certain as that tomorrow will succeed today.

The Western World has shown great vision and progress in what it has done to help transform life and travel from what it was less than half a century ago to this age of development crowded upon development.

MAKING THE WORLD

"Ours is a civilization that never could have been built without labor, and if it is to be sustained it must be by work which adds to life as well as maintains life, says the Royal Bank newsletter.

"The world is not diminished, small though it may appear in the light of today's speed records in travel and communication. It is in the process of being made, and we are the makers.

"We are helpful to our minds. It is the best outlets for our anger, and the truest escape from self-pity and self-centredness. There is a very special kind of joy in rest after work. As a Vedda cave-dweller told a scientist: 'It is pleasant for us here to rest with our backs on our shoulders, and good to go out and dig yams, and come home wet, and see the fire burning in the cave, and sit round it.'

"Work is not what it used to be. Dr. D. Ewen Cameron, Professor of Psychiatry at McGill University, describes it quaintly: 'In the days of the horse plow and the coach, when candles and cloth and chairs were made in the house, when you clambered out of bed in the dark and stumbled back again at night, work was not a treat, it was literally true that if you did not work, you did not.

"We will live longer and better if we surrender ourselves to some of the other claims of life; even to the point of being, once in a while, foolish and let it show. That we put some of the hours left over for our free disposal. Perhaps like Rousseau, who, when he became modestly provided for, got rid of his watch with the singular reflection that time of it did not need to be known to him.

"Happiness means many different things. Some seem to blossom in doing nothing in particular, but they are in the minority and are properly regarded with disfavor or pity. With the life is action, and we are driven by a biological need for activity."

SCIENCE TO THE AID

A brain that will bounce on the floor without damage has been produced by a South England firm who make anatomical models for experts. Making no claim naturally about the intellectual capacity of the brain, the firm claims that it closely parallels the human brain in that it is made of rubber so that it can be passed around a laboratory or classroom without risk. It will be shown at the 1951 British Industries Fair split up into its various sections.

The same firm also indulges in the manufacture of plastic skeletons, which are reported to be having a tremendous success among medical students. The plastic brain costs just under half of the real thing. This too will be shown at the exhibition this year, together with the first miniature human skeleton which is 24 inches high and is intended for table and classroom demonstration.

JUST FOLKS

ABOUT ALL

A kiss at the door for farewell and hello,
Delight in the eyes as you come and you go,
Life has little much better than that to bestow.

A child or two racing to meet you half-way,
To jump in your arms at the close of the day

Is a much truer tribute than flatters pay.

A few friends to visit; a few friends to call
To console and aid if disaster should fall;
Who has these for a lifetime has just about all.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Winter would kill us if we did not protect ourselves from it. We are protected from that which cold is destructive of nature; whereas the fact is that a great many creatures both animal and plant actually require cold for their development. The seeds of many plants lightly and airily, so that no unexpected warmth will cause the germ to leave it and destroy roots.

Nobody knows yet what part winter cold plays in the continued health of all the insect eggs, larvae and pupae that infect the million are secreted right now around the twigs and branches of all those desolate trees and bushes you can see out the window. But the feeling grows, in scientific minds, that part of the cycle of life demands the long, cold rest that winter provides. Down in the south, they have other species of plants, birds, insects, diseases. Cold might not be good for them. What we should accept as a fact is that cold must be good for the creatures we have here. We, cold ones, are intruders. It is the feeling sorry for ourselves on a really cold winter night that drives around us. They are probably quite comfortable, thank you.

What an insatiable impulse there is in humans to try and impose our conception of life on all life! Filled with righteousness and generosity, we try to impose our way of life on the Hindus, the Japanese. Full of more than righteousness, Russia is trying to impose her newfound way of life on the whole universe. In a indignation with the Russians, it never occurs to us to imagine the indignation of the Hindus, Japs or others on whom we have forced our beneficence. Some day the plants, the animals, may teach us that there are various ways of life.

Find Emotional Conflicts Cause Peptic Ulcers

Detroit, Feb. 24 (AP) — Men suffering from peptic ulcer need lots of love and affection, the American Orthopsychiatric Association was told today.

The conclusion was given a report on intensive studies of 21 patients made by a group of scientists in Detroit and Ann Arbor, Mich. The studies supported the theory that emotional conflicts cause peptic ulcer.

The scientists found that ulcer patients tend to come from households containing alcoholics and other ulcer patients.

The patients studied were described as average or above in intelligence. The report said:

Mrs. "They were eager to please, showed intense rivalry, a universal fear of rejection and an impulse to look out for the under-dog. All felt that emotional conflicts caused their illness."

The studies also indicated that a man sometimes gets an ulcer to have "love". But physical symptoms rather than admit he can't take responsibility.

SENATOR SUSPENDED

Belfast, Feb. 24 (Reuters) — The Northern Ireland Senate Thursday suspended Senator Patrick J. O'Hare, an Irish Nationalist, for referring to the British Royal Family as "foreign monarchs." O'Hare refused to withdraw a statement that a united Ireland would welcome foreign monarchs like the King and Queen. He said: "I cannot withdraw what I know to be a fact."

8TH FLU DEATH IN TORONTO

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP) — A 67-year-old man died of influenza here yesterday, bringing the flu deaths this year to eight.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

PERIL IN A TUB

I knew when my best friend came to me the other day that he was worried about me.

"I say worried about you," he said. "Everything's awful. What ever happened to the loveable old Scott or yesteryear, the bon vivant with a song on his lips and a ready quip for all?" Now you are a surly sort of chap who lops off the tops of daisies with his cane, snaps at waitresses and—if you will forgive me for saying it—is crashing boor."

I wondered if I should tell him the whole, horrible story and I decided I should.

"Everything you say is true," I said, flushing crimson with shame. "And it is all because I cannot get a decent bath. . ."

Some men, I told my friend, can take a bath or leave it alone. With me, a bath is part of my job and a vital part to boot.

Faced with the numbling task of finding an Eva to wyfie about, it has been my custom for years to retire to the peace and tranquility of the tub.

There, sheltered from the world by gleaming porcelain walls I would lie submerged, like an Indian fakir, in a state of meditation. Okay, so "inspiration" may not be quite the word. But some thing collects there, always came along.

Needless to say, my wife has had a vast suspicion about this; has even alleged that it is just another shabby excuse for getting out of the more time flat on my back. (In pursuing this unworthy theme, my ography of Charles Dickens the other day I was interested to note that, literally, 50% of my conception of the idiosyncracies of genius.)

Still, by asserting my masculine will power (and swiftly bolting the bathroom door) I managed to spend my happy and productive hours in my favorite pastime, contemplating like crazy and occasionally playing with a small celluloid duck.

In these years I was a happy, well-adjusted man.

Open Door

All this was changed (I told my friend) when we acquired a third daughter.

Here I must digress a moment to point out a most curious phenomenon, namely, that two daughters are a pair, but three daughters are a swarm, a stunt of mathematics that would have left Einstein. A friend of mine with a brand new baby daughter read this rather well the other day, I thought, when he sadly observed, "it seemed as if suddenly I had become the whole bunch of new kids in the house."

Then, I told my friend, we had my five females (seven, if you want to count Lena and Ella, the cats) and my new little world began to crumble into chaos. The bathroom was the first to go.

This chamber has long since lost its purely functional purpose. It is now cluttered with diapers and the infant wash subject to a daily turnover and the whole a combination dressing room and sort of community hall. If you're looking for a lost sock, missing relative or such, I know just where to look.

My wife's first gesture—and a mighty sneaky one if I do say so—was to remove the bathroom door. I complained piteously, bringing to bear my most withering sarcasm, but it was no good. She merely countered swiftly with a four-letter word on the necessity of going light with the hot water.

Finally, I was then that my once benign countenance began to assume its look of low, dark brooding.

Once the "Open Door Policy" had been put into effect, my life became miserable. I would just as soon have a bath in the intermission booth at Grand Central Station or in the lobby of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel. It is probably the only bathroom in the world that could use traffic signals.

Even on the rare occasion, the fact that the door might burst open at any moment was intimidating. A man found playing with a celluloid duck or—worse!—stealing his oldest daughter's bubble bath powder might never again hold up his head.

The Visitors

In no time at all (I told my friend) my column began to suffer.

How could anyone expect a brilliant idea to come floating out of nowhere when a large, brassy, tangled cherub was perched a foot away on her Teddy-Seat?

How could I try at leisure with magnificent ideas when one or two always cocked to hear that dreaded request, "Mama, I wanna go-go?"

I tried to be scientific about it. I made a survey of "slack" hours. There weren't any.

Occasionally, having "raised" my blood pressure would slip by looking as shadowy as Jimmy Valentine, but it was always the same. I could never lower myself into a steaming tub before the door would crash open and a convention of tots would be dropping sharp-edged toys into the water screaming eagerly to "get in with Da-da."

New England Asks Some Leeway On Seaway Plan

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP) — Interior Secretary Oscar L. Chapman says New England is unwilling to give New York "complete authority" to administer the power phase of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway.

He made the statement yesterday in response to a question by representative Tom Pickett (Dem. Tex.) at a House of Representatives Public Works Committee hearing.

Pickett asked why final agreement had not been worked out on disposition of the power potential.

Chapman added that "New England wants some leeway."

Chapman, who maintains the proposed project is necessary, made his second appearance before the committee.

He said that if New York were given the right to administer the power it would build transmission lines. Such construction, he said, would not delay amortization of the project.

President Truman, who supports the St. Lawrence proposal recently told Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem. Lib. N.Y.) that he agreed that New York should administer the power.

Under some of the many St. Lawrence bills before the committee, New York would be permitted to take over the power after fully reimbursing the federal government for construction costs. This was part of a 1941 federal-state agreement.

The committee hearings will resume Monday with Maj.-Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of the army engineers, and chairman Mon C. Wallgren of the Federal Power Commission slated to testify for the project.

The committee chairman, Representative Charles A. Buckley (Dem. N.Y.) said hearing of arguments in support of the measure would continue until March 2. A recess is scheduled until March 12. Buckley hoped that all opposition witnesses would be heard by March 21.

Meanwhile in New Orleans, four groups reiterated their opposition to the proposed St. Lawrence seaway. They were the dock board, which operates the port of New Orleans, the Board of Trade, and two committees of the Chamber of Commerce.

They said they opposed the St. Lawrence project because they believed it would divert Great Lakes traffic now moving down the Mississippi waterway system.

Mrs. L. Ashley Wins Gilwell Beads, Scroll At Cubs' Banquet

Last Wednesday evening, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the 8th Group Cubs sponsored a f[illegible] and son banquet in memo[illegible] the founder of the Scout and Guide movement, Sir Baden-Powell, in the Kiwanis Centre.

Mr. Angus Duffy, past district commissioner of Wolf Cubs, spoke briefly, basing his talk on "Preparedness", in which he stressed the thought that all, in these times of world stress, should be prepared. The Wolf Cubs, at this time, were too young to play a vital part in world affairs, but that they should be trained to take their place later on. He complimented them on their fine work up to the present, and stated that it was with regret that he was resigning his district commissionership due to martial duties now required of him.

Mr. C. N. Nicholson, president of the local association of Scouts, explained the various tasks required of them, and presented the deserving with their proficiency (tenderfoot), bandsman's, and artist's badges, while Mr. P. Allcorn, newly appointed assistant district commissioner, presented the first and second stars to the deserving Cubs.

One of the outstanding features of the evening, was the presentation by Mr. P. Allcorn, of the highest honor accorded to a leader, when Mrs. Lillian Ashley, "Akela", was awarded the Gilwell Beads, as well as a scroll signed by Viscount Alexander of Tunis.

FROST, CABINET

Would Have Lightened Load

Premier Frost said Ontario's proposals, put forward at the Ottawa conference held behind closed doors, was for pensions in cases such as poliomyletis, tuberculosis and other employment deterrents.

The province, at present, paid allowances for wives and children in some of these cases, the premier told reporters.

"But under that, the husband of the family became an object of charity."

Mr. Frost said his plan would have lightened the load on the municipal relief costs.

Ontario could not have financed the scheme by itself, the premier admitted, but he had suggested it to be applied on a national basis.

Addition of two justices to the high court of the Ontario Supreme Court is proposed in a bill introduced in the legislature Friday by Attorney-General Porter.

Mr. Porter said the present 16 judges were unable to handle the amount of county work forced on them by the increasing number of cases. The justices also were called to sit on conciliation boards, commissions and other boards which often met for long periods.

The bill would also give dentists the same status as doctors to give evidence in a court action involving physical injury.

A second bill proposed by Mr. Porter would reduce the income of division court clerks by increasing the percentage of fees received over $6,000 which must be paid to the province.

Can Keep Skins

Legislation introduced by Lands and Forests Minister Scott would remove restrictions in sales of land for private forest reserves. The cutting of certain types of trees is at present reserved to the Crown in such areas.

Another bill by Mr. Scott would permit his department to keep the skin of an animal sent in for collection of wolf bounties, if the skin is not that of a wolf.

The department was receiving too many skins of cross breeds and wild dogs, he said. The bill would also require approval of the minister before a bear or wolf is released from captivity, since such animals were often more dangerous when accustomed to humans.

Business assessment is included with real property in determining equalized assessments among municipalities in a high school area, under another Act introduced by Mr. Porter.

Mr. Porter said the bill would ensure that urban areas carried a fair share of school costs with rural districts in a compound high school area.

Marker Deadline Set For Wed. By Department

The Department of Highways recent announcement that the last of February would be the deadline for the purchase of new auto markers and drivers' licences has caused a flurry of business at the office of the local licence bureau with queues being the order of the day.

Thursday saw the first lineup at the Front Street office of Fred T. Symons and Friday afternoon from 12 to 15 motorists were standing in line patiently waiting for their turn to purchase licences and permits.

Unless a further extension is given by the Highways Department, 1951 markers will be required on cars after Wednesday.

Dillard Dale was unhurried during the early part of the first heat. He responded readily when roused on entering the home stretch drive. In the final furlong, under prolonged urging, he gradually wore down the leaders and won in a driving finish.

'Medical Economics', Subject Of Talk by Dr. Reg Anderson At Annual V.O.N. Meeting

Last evening, the Victorian Order of Nurses held its privileged to have as guest speaker at their annual banquet meeting, held in Holloway Street United Church assembly room, Dr. Reg Anderson, well known physician of the city, member of the Board of Directors of the Medical Association and also of the Board of Governors of the Victorian Order, who gave an interesting and lucid account of the various reasons why he believed that the medical care of the citizens of this province should be run by the medical profession and not by the state.

Dr. Anderson, who was introduced by Dr. G. R. Cronk, M.O.H., had kindly consented to substitute, on very short notice, for Dr. D. M. Cayley, Director of Lincoln St. Catherines Health Unit, who through illness, was unable to be present. Dr. Cayley, in his subject, "Medical Economics," prefaced his remarks by stating that medical economics was no new subject, but that we were living in days of the high cost of living, had increased in price, while salaries for nurses and other nurses numbered 5; with numbered 15; with 5 beds; with 10 beds; with 25 beds; with 50 beds; with 75 beds; with 100 beds; with 125 beds; with 150 beds; with 175 beds; with 200 beds; with 225 beds; with 250 beds; with 275 beds; with 300 beds; with 325 beds; with

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

HOSIERY

Some centuries ago practically everybody wore red stockings; at another period white was the style; then just a few years back it was good taste to wear black. Now, if a woman appears in grey stockings when others are wearing fawn, she feels that a dreadful mistake has been made. We must follow the fashion. But birds' hosiery has always been varied.

Strangely enough, song birds are most moderate in their choice of colored hosiery; the majority wear inconspicuous browns or greys. But some thrushes and many small warblers prefer clean-color; the redstart, and the catbird give us examples of dark hosiery in Birdland, while the mourning dove's is a beautiful red.

Ducks' stockings come in a variety of colors. Pintails' and baldpates' are black, the wood ducks' yellow, mallards' and shovellers' orange, black ducks' brownish, and the male merganzers' vermilion, though their wives' are orange. Canada geese have black, snow geese red, and white-fronted geese yellow. The popular shade for hawks' is yellow, but fish hawks' are pale grey.

If you were given an outline drawing of a gull, what color would you paint the legs? Our well known herring gull should be given flesh-colored legs and feet, but Franklin's should be black, the California gull's grey green, Bonaparte's red, and the ring-billed's yellowish or greenish. There is a kind of gull called a kittiwake with dark legs or black legs; nevertheless another is actually called the "red-legged kittiwake."

Various Shades

The long stockings of our various shore birds come in nearly all the colors. Sometimes this proves valuable to us in identifying certain species. With only one (easily-seen) difference in size, two tiny sandpipers, the least and the semipalmated, are both known as "peeps." But the former's back has a rusty tinge and its legs are olive green, whereas the latter's back is greyer, and its legs black.

Some of white, long - legged waders look very much alike; their size is not identical, but this is difficult to judge unless the two are seen simultaneously. Leg color is then important. The American egret, sometimes 40 inches in length, has black legs and feet, while the great white heron, about 10 inches longer, has greenish yellow.

More confusing still are two smaller, yet similar sized birds. However, the white, immature little blue heron wears entirely dark stockings, and the snowy egret sports dark stockings and gold slippers.

Briefs From Britain

Southampton, England (CP)—Mrs. Fanny Cole, 100 years old, still reads detective novels and other thrillers, averaging two books a week.

Hungerton, Leicestershire, England (CP)—The local parish council in advertising for a clerk has had little luck—the salary is £5 ($15) a year.

Wetherby, Yorkshire, England (CP)—Local bookmakers had to pin extra cards to their stands at a meeting here. There were 158 horses running, an average of nearly 30 a race.

Dartmoor, Devon, England (CP)—Highlight of festival of Britain activities here will be a flypast of model planes. Best performances will receive prizes.

London (CP)—The London zoo has just acquired two newcomers expected to prove big attractions. They are rare black monkeys, called Moore Macaques.

Norwich, England (CP)—Because free morning coffee for teachers in Norfolk county has become expensively popular, the education committee has enforced a charge of 2d. (About 3 cents) a cup.

Maidstone, Kent, England (CP) —The local citizens' advice bureau gets some strange requests at times but this one caps them all. Two visitors to Maidstone wanted witnesses for their wedding.

Brown Bomber Wins Toughest Comeback Fight by TKO Over Andy Walker in Tenth Round

San Francisco, Feb. 24—(AP)—Joe Louis, master of his comeback fight since he came out of retirement last September, today said he is ready for a return match for the heavyweight championship with Ezzard Charles.

The Brown Bomber scored a technical knockout over Andy Hearted Andy Walker in the final round of their scheduled 10-rounder at the Cow palace last night.

A sell-out crowd of 18,000 fans, accounting for official gate receipts of $92,087.50, saw Louis batter the rangy San Francisco negro round after round until he was arm-weary. It was his fourth win in his campaign to come back after being soundly drubbed by Charles in a 15-round bout for the title he once held.

Louis hit Walker with every punch in the book, but he could not floor him. He knocked the San Francisco fighter, who holds the California State title, into the ropes four times. In the final session he caught Walker with a flurry of blows that had the California champ reeling. Referee Frankie Brown stopped the contest in 1:40 of the 10th. There was some booing by Walker fans, who thought he could have finished the battle.

Sorry Fight Stopped

In his dressing room after the match, Walker said, he was sorry the fight was stopped, but he wouldn't question the decision of the referee.

Louis told interviewers he finished "fresh" and added: "My wind held good. My timing still was a little off. I felt better at 207 lbs. (Walker weighed 194) than at the 216 I've been fighting at.

"I don't need another fight before I meet Charles again. Walker takes a punch better than Charles tried to knock him out from the first round. I landed only three good straight lefts, all to the body, because he stayed in so close and held on.

"I think this was my toughest comeback fight, and it helped me more than any other."

In three previous comeback fights Louis scored 10-round decisions over C. Brion and Omelio Agramonte, and stopped Freddie Beshore in the fourth round.

Walker, who once served as Charles' sparring partner, said the present champion is a better boxer than Louis and is faster, but he declined to predict the outcome of their next title match.

Don Campbell's Rink Winner To Represent Ont.

Kingston, Feb. 24 (CP) — A draw shot which stopped 12 inches short decided the Ontario Curling Association bonspiel last night and qualified the Toronto curlers rink of Gordon Campbell to represent Ontario in the Dominion finals at Halifax next month.

The shot which missed its mark was by Charlie Cassels whose Hamilton Thistles rink was defeated 13-11 in final.

The score was tied 11-11 as the two rinks went into the 12th end, Cassels had to draw in with the final shot in order to win but was a foot short and two of Campbell's rocks counted for the winning margin.

The playoff was the culmination of a series of matches which brought together the winners of eight districts in Southern Ontario.

In a consolation playoff the Orillia foursome skipped by Stan Sarjeant defeated Carl Asmussen's Kitchener rink 9-7.

The victory in the main event marked the fifth time that Campbell has skipped the Ontario representative in the Canadian event. It was something of a coincidence that he defeated a rink from a club which he represented in four previous appearances at the Dominion championships.

Fritzie Pruden Springs Surprise By Taking Janiro

New York, Feb. 24—(AP)—Lucky Billy Daly is aiming at another British "world's" boxing title with Fitzie Pruden of St. Catharines, Ont., his willing victim tonight who upset Tony Janiro as a last minute sub.

"There is no substitute for a good substitute" said Daly last night after Pruden chopped Janiro's baby face into a bloody blotch.

Last time Daly put a sub in Madison Square Garden in 1948, his Lee Savold knocked out roly poly Gino Buonvino. On the strength of that first round kayo, Savold was manoeuvered into a ... at the British version of the world heavyweight championship. Lee came through and won the title for Daly.

...ow Daly talks of a London match. Pruden with Eddie Thomas, European welterweight king. The match isn't set but Daly says it must well be signed for May. He claims promoter Jack Solomons will bill the bout for Lee Wembley Stadium. The International Boxing Club is eager to seat Pruden in a welter tournament.

Title shot or not, Pruden earned it tonight by his 10 rounds unanimous 10-round decision win over Janiro before 4,495 fans with $12,322 in the house. It was 1-2 to Janiro's 154 1-2.

Pruden asked for his stablemate, Jimmy Flood, ruled "unfit" Thursday morning.

There was little knockdowns although Pruden was shoved down the eighth, Janiro's best round, and Tony left after missing a wild swing in the tenth.

Pruden was announced Janiro who showed little of his ... bounce.

Referee Dave Stewart had t 8-2, Judge Jack Gordon 7-3 and referee Ray Miller 7-2-1.

Hamilton Tigers Edge Marlboros In Major Series

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Tigers edged Toronto Marlboros 3-2 last night to move within three points of Marlies in the Ontario Hockey Association major series race.

Frank Lisanelli with two goals led the Bengals against their second-place opponents, aided by Tom Smellie, Murray Comfort and Harvey Fraser. Ross Johnstone registered three goals for Marlies with Howie Lee grabbing the fourth.

In OHA Junior A clashes, Barrie Flyers retained their leagued by taking Guelph Biltmores 3-2, mainly through the efforts of Real Chevrefils, who scored all Flyers' markers. Ron Murphy and Andy Bathgate answered for the Hatters.

In Windsor, St. Catharines Teepees swung an upset by dumping second-place Spitfires 5-0, Tallies by Buddy Boone and Gord Garrett avenged two previous shutouts the Tribe suffered at the hands of Windsor. The loss moved Spitfires four points back from Barrie Flyers.

A slow event in Stratford saw Kroehlers, thump Galt Black Hawks 5-2. Doug Williams got two, Bob Armstrong, Bob Bailey and Gord Skyles racking up the other three for the winners. Don Hogan and Tommy Poeta hit for Hawks.

Today in the senior loop Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen meet Toronto St. Michael's, although the Dutchmen are out of a playoff spot. St. Mike's, Toronto Marlboros face Waterloo Hurricanes, Toronto St. Michael's tangle with Oshawa Generals, and Windsor Spitfires meet Galt Black Hawks.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THAT WAS IT!

There is not much comment to be made on the Queens-... till last night, unless it can be said that the game, ... fact it meant nothing as either team was produc... some outstanding hockey.

* * *

True, the Redmen were shorthanded. True, again, Queens came up with some likely-looking youngsters who battled the Reds time after time to their own downfall, where starry Jim Irvine buried back their efforts in a fine display of goalie-work.

* * *

That is water under the bridge. The Reds are in fourth place and set readying to meet the Peterborough Eagles in the first game of the Senior "B" playoffs on March 2nd in Peterborough. The teams are back here on Monday, March 5th.

* * *

BEES-ROCKS TONIGHT!

The Rocket Juniors face the first taste of what should be an acid test here tonight when they tangle with the Oshawa Bees in the first game of their best-of-five sim-final Junior "B" series.

It should be top-flight junior hockey with both teams fit and ready, and chomping on the bit to grab off that first all-important game.

* * *

FINGERS CROSSED!

This afternoon the three Belleville Hockey Association minor hockey teams took off for Kingston where they met the squads of that city in the second game of the goals-to-count OMHA series.

The bantams take back a two-goal lead. Holway's midgets are down four goals, while the juvenilles under Jim Ethier must defend a one-goal edge.

* * *

Personally, we hope the powers - that - be, including the coaches, drill into their charges, that hockey should be played, as it. That is a piece of rubber must be put in a net.

* * *

In another column, we're going to publish a few letters we received after that, what is termed "a disexercise" in Belleville and the Kingston-Belleville Juvenile here on Thursday night.

Personally, tht exhibition "stunk" to be frank. And the blame is not altogether on the referees.

The Kingston Vics and the Belleville Mercurys, as these juvenile teams are called, should be censured and censured properly. There was absolutely no reason for what has been termed "a disgraceful exhibition" and coaches and sponsors alike should see to it that a repetition does not occur.

Not only was hockey thrown by the wayside, but these kids dropped all ethics of sportsmanship, and indulged in punch-and-kick tactics.

If minor hockey is to be promoted here and in Kingston, its about time those in the "know" should do something about teaching these youngsters a thing or two about sportsmanship.

Not being too nostalgic and trying to be fair, it must be said that the Kingston juveniles started huge chips on their shoulders from the word "go". That is proven when two players were given major penalties after 40 seconds of play in the first period.

Both teams will squawk "They started it". Both coaches will back up their teams. The referee kept the penalty box filled, and the result was, a few clean-minded kids giving the spectators a facsimile of hockey, while their battle-minded pals cheered and jeered from the penalty box.

Call that hockey? Phew!!

Sports Roundup

By WILL GRIMSLEY
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Feb. 24—(AP)—"I'm glad I lived a year ago, and not 1918. There were some pretty decent years back then."

The speaker was Howard Cann, Robust, greying coach of the New York University basketball team. Like thousands of others closely associated with the sport, he was groping for an answer—for the answer—to the staggering basketball scandal.

What would make eight young college boys from good families succumb to the soft lure and easy money of Broadway's sure-thing operators?

"It must be the times—the unsettling times—that's the only way I can figure it," Cann said. "Everything in our society seems all upset and cockeyed right now." New Standards

Cann didn't say so specifically but his inference seemed plain enough: the moral fibre of the United States is threatened by a new set of standards—the lust for an easy buck, the "what's in it for me" philosophy.

This hardening of idealistic arteries is not general, we trust. But it may be a creeping paralysis that needs to be knifed before it takes a firm hold.

In any large-scale offensive to inject some old-fashioned idealism into the American bloodstream the colleges themselves have not only the opportunity but the obligation to lead the way.

Commercialism

College athletic policies hardly would stand up under microscopic scrutiny in this day of 80,00-seat stadia, bowl games and large city arenas.

Football talent in bought on the open market. The bidding is known to be a high-financed, cutthroat proposition in many cases. In hockey even sections you hear talk of lavish pay cheques over and above scholarship fees. You hear talk of automobiles and dozens of tailored suits used as bait to lure a phantom-shaped halfback away from a rival school.

In 1949 American colleges sought to regulate recruiting practices by adopting the sanity code. The code was intended to put college football on a Simon-pure basis by restricting financial aid to athletes.

The college themselves decided the code was sheer hypocrisy. They couldn't enforce it.

All in the Open

Last month the code was shelved at a meeting in Dallas, The colleges decided, in effect, to continue giving athletes all the help they needed and make it above-board.

The strain of big-time football became so intense during the last few years that several coaches said they'had enough.

That's hard for the "die-for-dear-old-Siwash" spirit to breathe in a clouded atmosphere like this.

REMOVE SHRAPNEL DUST

Fort Lewis, Wash., Feb. 24—(CP) — A small piece of shrapnel dust was removed by magnet from the eye of Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of Canada's special force in training here, it was disclosed Friday.

The public relations officer said the shrapnel, "about the size of a pin head," lodged in Brig. Rockingham's eye Feb. 15 as he watched a live ammunition training session. The brigadier was not sent to hospital.

N.H.L. Boss Men Give Opinions As to Winner of Stanley Cup

The National Hockey League schedule still has a month to run but the men who boss the teams already have produced enough predictions for a fairly comprehensive guess at the final outcome.

The men who have off-the-cuff forecasts are Lynn Patrick, coach of the Boston Bruins, Frank Boucher, New York Rangers general manager, Dick Irvin, coach of Montreal Canadiens, and Conn Smythe, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs.

By combining the comments of the four this would be the picture of just about all of the remainder of the season:

The final standing would see Detroit in first place followed by Toronto, Boston and New York. Montreal, in fifth, and Chicago last of that some time back when he mathematical dreamer of would finish out of the playoffs in fifth place while his Rangers and Boston took over the two remaining playoff spots.

Some light may be cast on this aspect of the situation tonight when New York visits Montreal.

As for Chicago Black Hawks, everyone but the most optimistic Chicago fan has counted them out. They're 14 points out of fourth place with little more than a mathematical chance of getting into the playoffs.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

San Francisco — Joe Louis, 207, Detroit, stopped Andy Walker, 194, San Francisco. (10.)

Under no great pressure, Theyfore in third place now. They'd win only two games when we traded Bill Ezinicki and Vic Lynn to them and I think those two have helped Boston a lot."

The situation at present in the league shows Detroit leading the Leafs by five points. Toronto has 14 games still to play, one more than Detroit.

But the likelihood that the Leafs might overtake the Red Wings was played down a month or two back when Irvin remarked that Detroit was a better team than Toronto. That settles the two top positions.

The positions of the next three teams are much closer, however, with only three points separating Boston in third place with Montreal in fifth. Boucher took fifth of that some time back when he mathematical dreamer of would finish out of the playoffs in fifth place while his Rangers and Boston took over the two remaining playoff spots.

Some light may be cast on this aspect of the situation tonight when New York visits Montreal.

As for Chicago Black Hawks, everyone but the most optimistic Chicago fan has counted them out. They're 14 points out of fourth place with little more than a mathematical chance of getting into the playoffs.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

San Francisco — Joe Louis, 207, Detroit, stopped Andy Walker, 194, San Francisco. (10.)

"We'll knock off Detroit," Lynn added. "We've gone very well against that club. I have a feeling."

Smythe, whose team meets the Bruins in one of tonight's two games, was in agreement.

"There's the guy (Patrick) with the most logical contender for the cup," said Smythe. "The Bruins have been coming along steadily,

New York — Fitzie Pruden, 147½, St. Catharines, Ont., outpointed Tony Janiro, Jersey City, N.J. (10.)

Manchester, England — Pierre Montane, 135, France, knocked out Billy Day, 135, England, (12), (for European lightweight title.)

HAP DAY'S FATHER DIES

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP) — Sidney Day, 78, father of Clarence (Happy) Day, assistant general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey club, died Friday in Aurora, Ont.

He had been in poor health for some time.

Prior to moving to Aurora in 1947, Mr. Day lived in Brantford, Owen Sound and Midland. He is survived by two sons, Clarence and Howard, both of Toronto, and two daughters, Mrs. T. Davis, of Buffalo, N.Y., and Mrs. Russell Smith, Sudbury.

The funeral will be held at Owen Sound.

Ho-Hum, Redmen Edge Queens 7-6 in Workout For Playoffs, But 'Twas a Good Rehearsal

The Belleville Redmen, taking no chances of injury or otherwise defeated a Queen's University team last night by a 7-6 score in a scheduled final senior game.

At that it was a good hockey tilt with the Gaels bolstered by several "loaners" names giving the short - handed Redmen an exciting run for their money.

A Rehearsal

The game did not mean a thing insofar as the teams were concerned. It gave the Redmen a couple of unnecessary points and a good workout for their semi-final clash with the Eagles of Peterborough.

Queen's, flashing what looked like junior names on the lineup served up enough ability that threw back the Red lines by a 2-1 score in the first period.

The Reds tied it up and went out to make the count 5-4 at the end of the second session.

Green Starts it

Johnny Green's goal at the six-minute mark paced the Red attack for a final splurge, but Gerry Wagar killed that one with a neat lone-rush effort with Don Murray and Attack.

The Mulvihill, Green, Ward-laugh line aided by Lou Schmidt swept into action and rammed home a pair before Ron Murray banged home Queen's last goal.

The boys did not get rough and referee Dick Oulmet of Peterborough had a more or less easy time. The game was lifeless insofar as body checking was concerned, but Queens get the kudos for defensive work and back checking.

Mal Gets Two

Mal Mulvihill sparked the Redmen offensive with two goals each, two assists, while Schmidt tackle Wardhaugh accounted for a goal and three assists. Johnny Green rammed home a couple of goals with two assists while Vern Goyer grabbed a goal and Jud Semark did the rest. Leo Schmidt shone on the defence and helped himself in fine efforts to a couple of helpers.

Don Murray starred for Queens with two goals and Gerry Wagar did a man's job with a single. Bender Rudiak and R. Murray got the rest.

The teams:

Queen's: Goal, Farrell; defence, Graves, Bender; centre, Rudiak; wings, White, Wild; subs Ohlke, Murray, Wagar, Dunn, Attack, Bastedo, Klym, D. Murray.

Belleville: Goal, Irvine; defence, Schmidt, Basted; centre, Wardhaugh; wings, Mulvihill, Green; subs, Semark, Dyer, Schneider, Goyer, Jones.

Referee: Dick Oulmet. Peterborough. Linesman, Leo Goyer, Belleville.

Suggests First Line be Sent To Help Leafs

Kitchenr, Ont., Feb. 24.— (CP) — Bobby Bauer, coach of Kitchener — Waterloo Flying Dutchmen, suggested yesterday that his first-string line of Mickey Roth, Billy Price and Danny Flanagan, be sent to Europe to bolster Canada's team in the world hockey championships.

The trio was the top — scoring line in the OHA major series, but the Dutchmen failed to gain a playoff berth.

Bauer said that addition of the now-idle Dutchmen would aid Lethbridge Leafs, about whom many sportsmen are said to be complaining because of their poor showing in Britain prior to the world title tournament. Since going in his sentiment, however, the Leafs have held the whip hand over the European tams.

Offer Accepted For Return Bout By Association

(By The Canadian Press)

At San Francisco, sports promoter William P. Kyne's offer to guarantee a $500,000 gate for a return, heavyweight championship bout between Joe Louis and title holder Ezzard Charles was okayed Friday by Truman Gibson, secretary of the International Boxing Club.

"If Kyne wants the fight on the terms he has offered, he's got it," was the way a spokesman said it on the line after a telephone talk with Gibson in Chicago.

The prospective deal was initiated Wednesday when Kyne and other interested parties spent two hours at Bay Meadows race track site of the contemplated bout.

At that time, Kyne was prepared to have offered to put up $500,000 bond guaranteeing that a return Louis-Charles fight would draw much at the Bay Meadows track. The club considered for the event was December Day.

Eleven American colleges have discontinued intercollegiate football since the 1950 season because of national emergency.

Heading the list are St. Mary's of California and Duquesne of Pittsburgh.

Others are Catholic University, Washington, D.C.; Washington (Md.) College; Fort Texas Baptist College; Hartwick (N.Y.); High Point (N.C.); Mt. St. Mary's (Md.); College; Fort Christi (Tex.) University; Atlantic Christian (N.C.); and Detroit (Mich.) Tech.

Sammy Snead, golf's leading money winner last year, was told Friday that his recently-broken left hand is coming along nicely and that it's all right for him to play.

The hand bothered him so much Thursday he quit a round of golf after the first hole.

Snead broke the hand last December in the Miami Open but played in the Los Angeles Open

January before returning to Miami for treatment. He hopes to be in shape for the Miami Beach Open next month.

Skiing conditions in Ontario are generally poor, the Ontario travel department reported Friday.

Conditions are fair at Port William, Port Arthur and Midland; poor at Pagnar, Haverlock, Kenora and Orangeville. Skiing is good at Collingwood, Flesherton and Markdale.

There is no skiing at Barrie, Cobourg, Peterborough, or Toronto summit.

The Bronze Baby—emblematic of the Girls Senior Intercollegiate Basketball championship — was won by University of Toronto Friday night as the Varsity team beat McMaster 49-17 to win the trophy for the second year in a row.

The Varsity cagers had earlier beaten McGill, Western and Queen's teams.

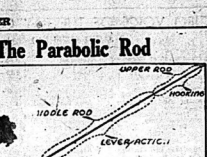
The Parabolic Rod



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Selmax Tables)

Some years ago . . . in 1938, to be exact . . . Charles Ritz, of Paris, France, and I developed the parabolic rod taper and gave it its name. Each of us had been working independently on fly-rod tapers for some years and, strangely enough, along the same general lines.

The design, and the name, were made public through an article in one of the outdoor magazines and the first series of parabolic fly rods were built by Jim Payne in his factory at Highland Mills, N.Y.

While we did not make any attempt to trade-mark the name, we did give all of our data to Jim Payne and authorized him to make use of both the data and the name.

Before six months had passed at least half a dozen American rod manufacturers were turning out "parabolic" rods. Some of these, believe me, were fearfully and wonderfully made.

In all fairness to the fly rod users of the country, let's take a close look at the parabolic rod and find out why it differs from the conventional. There is no much loose usage of the name these days that a little straightening out seems to be in order.

For purpose of illustration, let us divide the length of a fly rod into three portions, the upper rod, the middle rod, and the lower rod.

The upper rod takes in about 20% of the entire length; the middle rod about 45%; while the lower rod takes in the balance, about 35%. This division, remember, is in the true parabolic taper.

The taper pattern of the true parabolic is arranged so that most of the work of casting is done by the lower rod. The middle rod does little bending and acts merely as a lever which transmits the power of the cast to the upper rod. The upper rod, in turn, transmits the power to the line.

Lower Rod Bends

Thus, when a line is cast with a true parabolic rod, most of the bending takes place in the lower rod. The middle rod, acting as a lever, bends very little. The upper rod is tapered rather sharply through the top eight or nine inches (depending on the over-all length of the rod) this to distribute sudden tip strain and to insure the hooking ability of the rod.

At the completion of the forward cast, this design delivers almost all of the power of the cast to the line so that there is little, if any, "follow-through" by the upper rod. This enables the caster to throw a very fast line which goes out almost straight, something which is quite difficult to do with the older designs.

When we were testing the early designs on the Beaverkill River of New York State, Peter Stackpole of Life magazine, took a photograph of yours truly turning a fly over at the end of a seventy-two foot measured cast, while the fly strides the water unlike the old lead leader were still in the air. This, mind you, with a rod weighing seven feet, nine inches long and which weighed three and five-eighth ounces. Try that one time with one of the older "conventional" tapers.

The advantages of the parabolic rod are many. As I say, it throws a line fast and straight, making for better accuracy. The delivery of full power to each cast provides a higher weight-to-power ration than had formerly been possible. Finally, the bending of the lower rod gives the caster flexibility in line handling so that he can control, with little effort, casts ranging from twenty feet to seventy-odd feet with ordinary trout tackle.

There is, however, on distinct disadvantage to the true parabolic design . . . it places far too high a premium on correct timing. The least error on the part of the caster will result in complete loss of control of the line causing it to finish in a "bird's nest" of major proportions.

Few Good Enough

After we had tested Jim Payne's experimental parabolic rods, we concluded that the design should be modified in order to turn out satisfactory commercial models. After all, a very small percentage of the fly-rod owners have good enough timing to allow them to use parabolic rods effectively and, equally important, pleasantly.

Accordingly, the semi-parabolic taper was developed. While this embodies the parabolic principle, the taper is modified so that absolute timing is not required of the user. This modification also serves to eliminate the top-heavy feel of a true parabolic.

The semi-parabolic fly rod is not an easy rod to make; in fact, it is quite difficult to turn out a good one. The extra load that is, of necessity, imposed on the lower rod means that absolute top-grade bamboo must be used if the rod is to give lasting service.

Moreover, the design is so at variance with more generally accepted tapers that the majority of the older rod makers won't believe that the specifications are correct and they make their own adjustments. The result is that a great many rods which are labeled "parabolic" actually bear little or no relation to the true parabolic design.

So far as I know, there are three rod makers in America who understand parabolic design and who turn out good parabolic rods . . . or, to be accurate, semi-parabolic rods. There may be others but I have not seen their rods.

That being the case, so a little slowly, more somebody offers you a "parabolic" rod. It may or may not be what you want. From the foregoing you can judge whether it is or not.

Recently a friend of mine received for Christmas a "parabolic" rod. His one of British manufacture. He asked me to look it over and tell him if it is what he wanted. While it is a good rod, well made and entirely usable, it definitely is not a parabolic.

It is too bad that a true semi-parabolic rod is so difficult to make. However, it is possible, to get them and, believe me, once you have used one you will not be completely happy with the earlier designs.

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 24—(AP)—The Screen Writers Guild this week put on a show which is Hollywood's closest approach to Washington's gridiron dinner.

Just as the gridiron club spoofs figures in the government, the writers' show lampooned Hollywood and its foibles.

Van Heflin was master of ceremonies. He admitted that he had been chosen because Phil Silvers, the emcee last year had been funnier than most of the skits.

"So they chose an actor who has never gotten a laugh in his life," said Van.

Censor Rules

David Wayne, as a frustrated writer, and Edward G. Robinson, as a producer, appeared in a skit wherein they tried to get a Mother Goose film past the censor played by Paul Douglas.

The proposed title, "Sextette", could not be allowed, said the censor.

Groucho Marx put on a satire of his "You Bet Your Life" air show. His contestants were the two producers, Jerry Wald and Norman Krasna. Marx found out from them that producers are people who spend five days in Palm Springs and weekends in Hollywood—"Because the tennis courts are crowded then."

Combination Skit

Next followed all about Fairfax Ave., a skit combining "All About Eve" and "Sunset Blvd." Claire Trevor played a combination of Bette Davis and Gloria Swanson with reverberations of Tallulah Bankhead.

George Jessel posed as the world's oldest living film exhibitor and produced a wealth of charts to show why the movie business isn't what it used to be. He skipped lightly over an item called studio overhead, which he said represented 50 per cent of a film's cost.

It was a gay evening and proved that Hollywood can sometimes laugh at itself.

AT THE CAPITOL — Lucille Ball gets an earful from co-star Eddie Albert in Columbia Pictures' madcap new comedy, "The Fuller Brush Girl," opening Monday at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing. On the same program, South Pacific thrills, love and adventure, "On the Isle of Samoa," starring Jon Hall.

AT THE BELLE — John Hodiak plays an American Air Force colonel who falls under the spell of Mrs. Miniver (Greer Garson), in "The Miniver Story." MGM's Ming-awaited sequel to the Academy-Award winning "Mrs. Miniver." Walter Pidgeon is again cast as Clem, in the new picture, now showing on the Belle screen with the British star, Leo Genn, Cathy O'Donnell, Reginald Owen and Henry Wilcoxon on one of the year's outstanding casts.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, FEB. 25

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—If you have duties today and there are leftover tasks which require attention, get at them and finish jobs well. Good day. Go to church, too.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—There are more ways than one of doing things in many instances and more than one way can be right—depends greatly upon conditions and the subject. Don't be hasty of speech. Pray earnestly.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—It isn't necessary to lose ground because you must slow up. Reconsidering, reviewing, rechecking are important at times, especially now; they really save time in the end. Study, too.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—There should be no day that we spend merely wasting time, and if your birthday is free, consider everyone's duty concerning charities—visiting hospitals, helping children. Look into you.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Make it a day of work at leaving them—the honest, good ones. Let others be. Start day right, gain inner strength at church. Review what you must do next week, but don't be tense.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Begin God's day at religious services, our hope for peace, fellowship with man, request for humanity. And don't be a do-the-same-thing-daily rut. Know the value of diversion.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Make everything in order as is natural to Libra. Don't be rushed by barriers who accomplish, little scattering their energies here, there. Back your work with a prayer.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Lest tension and anxiety, more faith and carrying on in true style needed all these days. You have good common sense inborn, use it. Keep up healthy (but not overdone) exercises.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Consider civic matters. There may be some new or old difficulties, obstacles tomorrow. Why not review plans and methods in free time today, to help eliminate possible mistakes.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Be careful accepting judgment of others; look over facts yourself. Be mindful that a happy disposition will aid others to be pleasant, often forestalls dissension. No impatience!

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Your planet, Uranus, in better configuration than most now, yet for this reason you may have to be more tolerant, forgiving of others. Take thoughtful care of your interests.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Favorable aspects of your chart for this day indicate keen conclusions of people, greater capacity for achievement. To gain in the little things is often most important, remember.

YOU BORN TODAY are under the Zodiacal Sign Pisces; have an abundance of fine characteristics with which to work. Can attain new goals no matter your age. Yet withal your abilities, Pisces, are wont to belittle this, let valuable time slip by in indecision or disbelief that you are able to do things you can. Give yourself a pep talk once a week, aim at stabilized determination. You appreciate the artistic and others' talents. Can get along with everyone, though are happier, accomplish most in company of right-ly ambitious, cheerful folks. Pray daily for guidance, faith.

United Church Club Presents "Singin' Bill"

Ivanhoe.—"Singin' Bill from Hell's Hill", a musical comedy in three acts, by Henry Howland, presented to a capacity audience in Ivanhoe Town Hall on Friday evening, was well received. This play was presented by the Ivanhoe United Church Club.

Story of the Play

Bill Stevens (Devereaux is a noted writer of popular novels, who was tired of the superficial life of a successful young woman in the city. She closes her New York home, dismisses all her servants, except her young French secretary, Francine Bordelais, and goes to a small and remote summer village in the Blue Ridge Mountains. Here she hopes to find peace and quiet, and the companionship of sincere and friendly people. She arrives with the determination of being friendly and democratic with the natives, but because of who she is, they resent her. They are suspicious of Francine because of her French accent. Bill Jessalyn makes two staunch friends; the young bachelor clergyman and a lovable old humanist in the form of old Bill Stevens, who came there 25 years ago and just stayed.

Carries The Mail

Bill carries the mail sacks from train to Post Office and does odd jobs around town. He always has a song on his lips and is known to everyone as "Singin' Bill". He and Jessalyn become firm friends.

Over a period of several months there have been three daring bank robberies in the vicinity. The purchase of a small car belonging to the real and unsuspected Jessalyn is cause for accused of bank robbery among other things. Bill Smith, who is far from being the "old fool", the natives think him to be, does a bit of sleuthing and unearths the real culprit.

Bill's past has always been more or less of a mystery to the villagers but in a thrilling scene in Act III, his identity becomes known, much to the amazement of everyone.

Through Jessalyn's influence the young clergyman has the prospect of a call from a large church in New York City.

And so the play ends with Singin' Bill restored to his rightful place in the sun and with the prospect that Jessalyn will forsake her career as a writer for the more useful duties of a minister's wife.

Cast of Characters

Singin' Bill, (general handy man), George Wood; Jessalyn Devereaux, (a famous writer), Laura Wood; Francine Bordelais, (her secretary), Pearl Lovelock; Rev. Arthur Dunn (a young minister), Eizmer Rollins; Mrs. Josie Bradley, (who runs the Elm Tree Inn), Evelyn Rollins; Beth Bradley, (her daughter), Doris Keshler, Newton Ellis, (a friend of Beth's), Charles Keeble; Jessie Wright, (a news commentator), Eris Mitz; Katie Green, Doris Mitz; Carrie Green, (boarder at the Inn), Margaret Wright; Lee Mitchell, Harry Lovelock; Sheriff Joe Roberts, Ross Twiddy.

The principal role of "Singin' Bill", was well taken by George Wood, whose songs caused much merriment.

Parts Well Played

While all the members of the cast played their parts well, the acting and costumes of Miss Margaret Wright and Miss Doris Twiddy, old maid sisters, were exceptionally realistic. Mrs. Wilroy Rollins, as Mrs. Josie Bradley, put on a fine performance in the emotional passages of the play. Mrs. Clifford Mitz, who portrayed the local news commentator, was a typical small town gossip.

MAY BREED TWICE YEARLY

London, Feb. 24 — (Reuters) — Sheep may breed twice a year instead of once through a new plan to inject them with "life-making" hormones, the International wool secretariat said today.

An Australian scientist's researches at Cambridge University have opened the way to make this form of boosted sheep raising economically worthwhile.

Because the hormones are costly, experts believe a 70-per-cent breeding increase is needed to make the idea a business proposition.

GARDEN CULTURE SERIES
COPYRIGHT CANADA U.S.A.
By HAROLD C. BECKETT, A.H.A.

Within the entire range of garden flowers none are more universally admired than hardy lilies. They have a romantic origin dating back to at least 1200 years B.C.

The Madonna Lilly, first to be cultivated is often depicted as the emblem of purity because of its pure white color and fragrance. There is also variety in color and form which give a steady parade of changing bloom from June to late September. Growing some of the lovely varieties is a challenge to the gardener's originality and skill which pays well in distinctive results. They are indeed a noble family of plants which are outstanding for their hardy, grace and stateliness.

Growers agree that the most essential factor to successful cultivation of lillies is good drainage. The ideal soil is a porous loam with a gravelly sub soil. If the ground is clay, dig a hole at least 18 inches deep and 12 inches in diameter. On the bottom place four inches of gravel. Next one inch of rotted leaf mould or peat humus. Tamp firmly and use water to settle. Next place in the hole some good rich soil mixed with wood ashes and bone meal to within six inches of the surface. Plant bulb in a layer of clean, sharp sand two inch above and below bulb. Stake when planting and label. Mulch in fall after the ground freezes with a light layer of straw or leaves. In cutting the blooms leave as much as possible of the long green stem.

Action Postponed In Lunan Case

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP) — Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly of the Ontario Supreme Court Friday postponed action on a convicted spy's bid for a writ of Habeas Corpus Counsel for David Gordon Lunan, one of the Canadians convicted in the Hill espionage trials, seeks to quash a one-year term Lunan got for contempt of court.

That sentence was in addition to a 10-year term the former army officer and Wartime Information Board employee got for conspiring to communicate confidential information to Russia.

The contempt conviction was registered in 1947 when Lunan refused to testify against Israel Halperin at his trial for espionage. Halperin later was acquitted.

Lunan's five-year term, with time off for good behavior, expired Jan. 20. His lawyer, G. A. Martin, contends that the contempt sentence was illegal because it was made consecutive to rather than concurrent with the longer term.

Today's adjournment was made at the request of the Ontario Attorney - General's Department, which is opposing the Habeas Corpus move.

WHY WE SAY by Bob Morgan, Pete Heffernan

. . . Pull the right sail

The expression, "know the ropes" is applied to knowing almost anything nowadays. It started in sailing, though, where a knowledge of the ropes was knowing how to adjust the sails.

Princess of Gratzen

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

She put down the picture hastily, but Roger's dark eye found it at once. "Forgive him, Tante Mimi!"

"Mind your business." She gave him a look to check him. "And why are you sneaking up the back stairs?"

"You told me to, over the phone—don't you remember? I'm the housekeeper's nephew now. What is all this anyway?"

"Is Rudolph, Ile's, the Baron Raoul de Morpin. The princess is his niece. He's been letting every one in this silly little country of his think he owns Fallibert and is worth a million. I didn't have the heart to tell these poor hundred children that he's only the butler. Roger, it would have been cruel to do so. Had you seen them when they first walked into Philliniest this evening—"

"I can imagine," said Roger slowly. He sprawled out in an easy chair, a tall, elegant figure in the uniform of a flight lieutenant. He had been ever since back home. "I'm glad you did it, Tante Mimi. It was like you. I'd never think of such a thing. I'd have made a mess of the situation. You and Mike are the ones who think of the fitting thing to do—I'm glad you've forgiven Mike—its about time you brought his handsome mug out of the attic can. He was always your favorite wasn't he?"

"That ungrateful, headstrong, irresponsible—"

Roger held up his hand. "He's you all over, that's why the two of you were always fighting. But underneath it all, Madam Fabre Lenigan, Mike was the apple of your eye and you know it. The harder you yelled at him, the louder you swore at him, the more you loved him."

The old lady scowled fiercely, then blew her nose and grabbed hastily for a cigaret. "You're too smart, you, Roger—always were too darned smart."

Roger grinned, shook his head. "I'll never be able to outsmart you Duchess. Now what about the royal guests? Is the housekeeper's nephew permitted to have a peep at them?"

"They are at dinner now. I take it you dined before you came here?"

"Indeed, yes. I flew up, you know—got a lift with young Trembley. He's on his way to Quebec. I'll go down on the bus tomorrow. Curiosity brought me here and I won't go away until it's satisfied."

"The Princess is not a puppy show," muttered madame. "I'll go down now and see that those children are having sufficient to eat and to watch that Rudolph does not start to walk around the table and wait on them. You stay here until I come back, my mad."

Roger stayed there, smoking quietly in the slow summer dusk watching the purple vista of the hills above the chateau luring the deep mellow green of trees and lawn. God but life was good! How good it was, he thought, he never would have realized had he not so often been near death, had he not seen so much of ruin and misery. These great hills, this vast green land, this blue sky—

"Where is heaven half so vast? Where blows a lovelier air? What are thy seas doing here o'er the sea?"

It was an old verse he had come upon in Michel's scrapbook. Michel—He stared at the picture, the dashing, laughing face of Michel, and in the twilight its expression seemed to alter, to become sorrowful, to take on a terrible. A queer dark, Mike, full of strange theories, stranger dreams, a lover of dawns and sunsets and beauty in any guise. Where was he now? What had he found in the maelstrom of hell? Had he gone out in a burst of flame, in a thunderbolt of glory? Had he turned his back on the whole thing and taken himself to a mountain top or green isle in the sea?

Perhaps one would never learn. Michel had always been an enigma, a man one could never know. Not even madame, who had the wisdom of all women, had really understood Michel; otherwise she would not have tried to force her will upon him; to make a tame pigeon of one who would range like the hawk.

In the evening stillness, Roger Fabre heard children singing. He smiled, pleased, got up from his chair and crossed to the window. He saw a tall girl whose hair was a glory in the sunset and two little blond children frisking about her as they walked with Rudolph across the lawn toward the beech trees.

Roger disobeyed madame's injunction, and went quickly down the back stairs and out into the garden. After all, it wasn't every day that one could see a live princess, ever, when they were a dime a dozen and no takers at that. He strolled along the bank of the little stream that wound through the park and flowed into a miniature lake at the foot of the hill.

The young monk was bathing in the lake when Roger came there. Tall, slender birches stood about its rim, white and straight and virginal, and in their leaves was a soft and steady rustle and the air was rich with the smell of clover and wile thyme and damp earth and in the sedgy shallows a frog croaked in a deep basso and he heard the winnowing wings of the wild ducks high overhead.

For a while he did not see her standing there, leaning against the trunk of a birch. She wore a white dress and it was not until she moved that he marked her presence. Her face was pale, the eyes large and dark in that crepuscular light, but there was no hiding the beauty of her hair, the slender grace of her as she walked along the path toward him.

"Good evening," he said, "I hope I do not intrude."

She smiled at him. "Intruders in that dress, monsieur, are welcome among most people in this world I know. Who are you, please? I am Meridel de Morpin."

"Roger Fabre. I—am Madame —the housekeeper's nephew."

"Oh, Madame Laurin. But she is a lovely old lady. I am so glad to meet you Monsieur Fabre."

"It is the first time I have ever talked to a real princess."

Meridel laughed and the night wind seemed to pick up the lovely sound and carry it away among the trees. "I am just Meridel now, I must forget the princess. It was a little place, Gratzen, but it was lovely. Lovely in an old way, with red-roofed houses and crooked lanes and old windmills and the castle of Gratzen high on its rock, its turrets seeming to be made of gold in the sunset."

"You will miss it your highness."

"I shall miss it. But this—this is so beautiful, this land of yours These mountains of Laurentia. It is God's great kindness that there was such a place for us in which to seek refuge. For myself I did not mind, I would have stayed at Gratzen—"

Something in her voice made him look at her sharply and he saw that her eyes were gazing far off, not at the night blooming hills of the crimson sky or the silver pool in which the moon bathed.

GOVT. APPROVES

Need Apparent

Prime Minister St. Laurent sponsored the resolution to the bill and said he believed the need for a new department was apparent. [redacted] required a separate department to direct current production of defence.

Mr. St. Laurent said:

"It seems to us that a point now has been reached where the authorities and arrangements that have been satisfactory so far are no longer felt to be adequate to handle the situation we are in today nor to deal with the problems apt to arise in the immediate future.

"I am sure that most members will agree that these greatly increased demands should not be superimposed on a civilian department already charged with responsibility in other fields."

Howard Green, (PC—Vancouver South) said the party would support the plan to establish a new department. Similar support came from Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York South) and Solon Low, Social Credit leader. The three, along with several other members, urged the dispersal of industries.

Mr. Noseworthy said people were wondering why it was again necessary to start "from scratch" with the construction of new plants and new military establishments when so much had been spent in the last war. He said War Assets Corporation had been selling buildings at a time when they were needed by the defence department.

Involves Serious Problems

He wanted to know whether the government planned to subsidize the expansion of private plants and to grant war industries special relief through accelerated depreciation.

Mr. Howe, on the question of decentralization of industry, said the government tried to do this, but the question involved serious problems. For example, to build a factory employing 5,000 people in a small town would mean providing homes for 5,000 families and making sure that the plant could continue to function in peacetime.

He had this to say about financial assistance to war industries:

"To date, we have had no provision for accelerated depreciation, nor have we made arrangements for capital investments to any very large extent. We did make arrangements for capital investments in the case of a jet engine plant, and perhaps in one or two other plants."

"But, frankly, we hope to do our job depending very largely upon existing industry."

PRINCESS PATS MEET "STIFF RESISTANCE'

Russia Ready To Negotiate Her Differences

Note to Britain Repeats Previous Soviet Charges

Moscow, Feb. 26. (AP)—Russia told Britain yesterday that she has less than half as many men under arms as the Western Big Three. She added that she was ready to negotiate her differences with Britain.

She made these statements in a note which repeated previous Soviet charges that the Attlee government "crudely trampled on the 1942 Anglo-Soviet alliance by joining the Atlantic coalition aimed directly against the U.S.S.R."

The note declared that the forces of British, France and the United States total more than 5,000,000 men and that Soviet forces are less than half that figure.

Observers here regarded as significant this indication that Russia could only about 2,500,000 men in her navy, air force and army. It is the nearest she has come in several years to offering any figures of her military strength.

It was also noted that the figure fell far below general reports of the size of the Soviet Army alone that have been published in the West.

The U.S. Senate Foreign Relations committee, Feb. 24 reiterated the Soviet Army at 4,000,000 men and said Russia's European satellites had another 1,000,000, as opposed to a total of 4,000,000 for all 12 Atlantic pact countries. Red China's army is generally placed at 3,000,000.

Red Forces Cited

Russia went on to say that she had, through systematic demobilizations since the war, cut her armed forces to where they stood in 1939. On the other hand, she said, Britain, the U.S. and France have "several times"—the number they had under arms in 1939.

The note concluded with the hint that if the proposed Big Four Foreign Ministers conference is held to discuss existing armament levels, as suggested by the West, Russia will present figures to maintain that the western powers, not she, are preparing for aggression.

The latest Soviet note was in reply to Britain's recommendation of Feb. 17 answering the Russian charge that Britain is violating the British-Soviet Alliance of 1942.

Repeating the charge Russia declared Britain "has fallen under the influence of the United States" and is being turned into another U.S. military base by Washington's financial "hand out".

Russia said she is ready to enter into negotiations "striving to use all opportunities to improve Soviet relations with great Britain," even though she lacks "full confidence" in Britain's sincerity.

Four Drowned As Car Slips Into Cameron L.

Nanaimo, B.C., Feb. 26 (CP) — A little girl—pleading, "please help me, do something"—was drowned yesterday as a motorist watched unable to give her aid.

She was one of four persons who died when an automobile skidded off an icy highway and slipped into the depths of Cameron Lake on Vancouver Island.

Her dad "just pressed against the year window as the car bobbed up and down.

Driving toward Nanaimo, Ernest E. Spence and Don. C. McDowell, both of Victoria, were close behind the car when it spun out of control.

Mr. Spence gave this account:

"Suddenly the car went into a spin on a curve. It hit—it went twice and ended up with the back wheels resting on the top of the bank.

"After about 20 seconds it slid slowly down the embankment—backwards.

"It was going at an agonizingly slow speed.

"The car floated out about 20 feet to where the water was about 60 feet deep.

"By this time Mr. Spence was at the water's edge. His companion ran down the road in search of help.

Mr. Spence added: "A little girl was looking out the rear window of the car. She was screaming 'please help me, do something!'

Moments later the car was under water.

Quarter Million Yanks in Korea, Bradley Claims

Washington, Feb. 26 — (AP) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley declared today that about 250,000 Americans, in all branches of the armed services, now are fighting in the Korean campaign.

The chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, testifying before the three service committees of Armed Services Committee, did not give a breakdown of figures for the Army, Marines and Navy-Air Force.

"Over in Korea," Bradley said, "there are approximately a quarter of a million Americans, who are fighting for this nation and our position in world affairs."

The committee is considering a compromise military manpower bill which would lower the draft age to 18½ years and set up machinery for universal military service as part of a long-range program.

Bradley said world conditions which caused the joint chiefs of staff to recommend a "partial mobilization" in December, "may persist for 15 or 20 years."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)—Sym-pathetic weather has prevailed over the southern half of Ontario on Sunday. In Toronto the mercury rose to 53 degrees during the afternoon to mark the mildest Feb. 25 ever recorded in the city. This broke the record of 49 degrees set 66 years ago in 1885.

In northern regions colder air held afternoon readings near the freezing point and many locals' lies reported snow.

A southward march of this polar air has been retarded by a disturbance over Iowa. As this storm centre moves northeastward today rain will move across Central Ontario into Quebec and on Tuesday the colder air will begin to move slowly southward again.

SEAWAY, POWER PROJECT FACES TOUGH SLEDDING

Hard Core of Opposition Persists on Committee

Washington, Feb. 26—(AP) Legislation to authorize the hotly-contested St. Lawrence seaway and power project, despite all-out administration support, faces sledding in the United States Congress.

The project is under consideration by a public works committee of the House of Representatives. The hearing, which started last week, will continue to at least March 21.

The committee thus far has heard from an imposing array of witnesses who favor the development. Today, these are second line cabinet members and other top administration officials — among them defence mobilizer Charles E. Wilson.

Then questioning to which they have been subjected it is apparent that a hard core of opposition to the development persists on the 25-member committee.

Chief among the committee opponents is representative Tom Pickett, (Dem. Tex.), who said he was not convinced by testimony that the development is needed for the defence of the United States and Canada.

Pickett has examined each witness in the main purpose, apparently is to bring out that this seaway is not essentially needed — as claimed by President Truman and other administration leaders—for the imperishable action of iron ore from Quebec and Labrador.

Pickett's inquiry leaves the impression that he disagrees wholly with the administration argument regarding ore importations.

Believes Reserves Adequate

He feels that domestic ore reserves, which Congress generally claim are nearing exhaustion, are adequate.

Pickett is supported by representative Harry McGregor (Rep. Ohio), who has also voiced doubts as to his opposition to the proposal.

Representative John Blatnik (Dem. Minn.) who is a booster of the project as Pickett and McGregor are against it, hopes it will win committee approval although he admits that it is "nip and tuck" all the way.

Blatnik, in an unofficial "none for publication" vein, is of none committee members are for the legislation others are against, and nine are "doubtful."

The bill, should it win committee approval, faces a stiff parliamentary hurdle before the House of Representatives rules Committee, which decides what legislation shall go to the house floor.

Could Battle Indefinitely

The rules committee, if a majority of its members are opposed, could battle up the measure indefinitely. Some observers say the committee may do exactly that because so many of its members are from districts which will be economically opposed to the seaway.

There is no forecasting what would develop should the proposal reach the house floor. The house, as well as the senate, has on many has been discussed, never has been called upon to act on the proposal.

Youngster Clings 18 Hours to Lower Edge of 100-Foot Cliff Before Rescue

Toronto, Feb. 26. (CP)—Seven-year-old Garry Dennison spent 18 hours clinging to the lower edge of a 100-foot cliff overlooking Lake Ontario at suburban Scarboro Saturday night and Sunday.

He told police he had been lured into a car Saturday by a stranger who made promises him on Easter bunny. He thought the man may have pushed him over the cliff.

Unable to make his way up the steep bluff, the youngster spent part of his time playing a solitary game of cowboys and Indians. He was sitting bent in hands, just above the water-line when he was spotted early Sunday by six youths out for a hike.

Police have launched an intensive search for the man.

Princess Pats Sitting Tight After Banging Hard Into Enemy Posts South of 38th

On the Central Front, Korea, Feb. 26. (CP)—The Princess Patricias, like other troops in this sector, sat tight Sunday after banging hard into enemy's main defences south of the 38th parallel.

(Boss reported in a cable filed Friday, and apparently delayed by censorship until yesterday that the Patricias had suffered their first casualties of the Korean campaign. He said the casualties, surprisingly light, were suffered in dug-in (Chinese positions.)

dug-in Chinese positions.)

Stutt's withdrawal thickened up the battalion's perimeter, with the company commanded by Major Vince Lilley of Hamilton, Ont., remaining in the most forward position.

United States Air Force Jets and Corsairs together with U.S. mortars and the battalion's own support weapons under command Lloyd Hill of Kentville, N.S., and Andy Foulis of Vancouver, pounded the hill.

Hill's mortars dusted 419 with white phosphorus and high explosives. The whole hill spouted smoke. As the Chinese left their dugouts they became targets for the First Kos in Week

They sat Sunday on a ridge 1 1-2 miles south of the hill they nearly captured Saturday, heating rations, doing their washing and recounting exploits of the last few days in full view of the enemy across the valley.

Sgt. Bern Hollgan of St. Catharines, Ont., who commanded the company briefly during the battle, said:

"When five yards of him he rains absolute hell on you; here he knows you strictly."

Stutt, indicating a craggy mountain with long strafed by corsairs and jets, said:

"Know what those Chinese are doing now? They're rubber-necking upwards, laughing—and with no gun they're killed."

Patrol Planned Down

He said the company reached the top of the hill at the summit by means of excellent fieldcraft combined with daring movement.

First to be pinned down was a patrol under Cpl. Don Markell, Sarnia, Ont., which actually reached the objective.

Stutt sent the remainder of the company east to a ridge that should have commanded the enemy positions—but the enemy was plunging fire from two higher points.

The company was unable to advance, Stutt said.

"Artillery was called down mortars, artillery and air rockets, the whole bloody business and we attacked. If we had been fighting Chinese, we'd have been always advancing today. Never in Italy or Germany were we under fire as intense as that. That was forcedible! It chopped off brush briar at the shin-bone level. Only fieldcraft carried us through."

Food There if Price Right, Eire Tells Hungry Britain

London, Feb. 26—(CP)—For the second time within a week Britain has been told bluntly that she can have abundant supplies of food to replenish her depleted larder by paying higher prices.

The latest challenge, sounded by Agriculture Minister James Dillon for the Republic of Ireland, came as parts of Britain and the United Kingdom endured a meatless weekend and faced prospects of still another cut in the present book-size meat ration.

At question-and-individual ration provides for about the equivalent of 12 cents worth of meat a week for shopkeepers and families now fund it impossible to supply all their regular customers.

Dillon, in a signed article published by the mass-circulation News of the World yesterday, said Britain's food-rationing plight could be remedied quickly through long-term agreements with the Irish Republic and payment for higher prices to the farmers and Saad costs-of production.

A similar proposition was cited by James Gardiner, Canada's Agriculture Minister, before his departure Saturday for home after four days of conferring with British ministers. Canada, he said could supply Britain with more meat, cheese and eggs if an assured market was guaranteed and if Britain paid the higher prices those Canadian producers were receiving from buyers.

Help Producers

Dillon maintained that farmers in Ireland and the United Kingdom could make the two islands self-supporting in food production over a long period of emergency, provided an iron-clad incentive to be produced.

The Irish farmers had given the British people a generous offer, they would not accept black market or famine prices for their produce.

"But they will not produce foodstuffs to sell at less than the cost of production, nor indeed, at any price that does not give them a fair return for their labor," Dillon added.

"We resolve I agree with our farmers 100 per cent and I will pay no party to any agreement with the British Ministry of Food on any other basis."

Tractor-Trailers Collide on Road

Hamilton, Feb. 26 (CP) — Two heavily-laden tractor-trailers collided on the Queen Elizabeth Way in a CNR subway near Freeman today, causing an estimated $25,000 damage and sending both drivers to hospital.

Thomas Campbell, Windsor, suffered burns in the fire which followed the collision and Saad crash through both trucks.

Driver of the other truck, Wallace Postill of London, Ont., escaped injury.

Besides halting the flow of traffic along the highway between Hamilton and Toronto, the intense flames heated the roads on the CNR overpass and halted train traffic until arrangements could be made to determine whether or not the rails were safe for travel.

PLANE CRASHES

Sharon, Ks., Feb. 26. (AP)—A large plane, identified as from Vance Air Force Base at Enid, Okla., crashed near this South Central Kansas town today. First fragmentary reports did not identify the type of craft or tell what happened to its crew.

U.S. ONLY ABLE TO GET SHORT LEASE ON BASE

Saudi Arabia Airfield Vital to Defence Chain

Cairo, Feb. 26. (AP)—A six-month extension on the lease for the vital Dhahran air base in Saudi Arabia is all the United States has been able to wangle out of Ibn Saud.

This big strategic field in the heart of the rich Persian Gulf oil area—and within easy striking distance of Russia's south flank—is the eastern anchor of a new chain of air bases the U.S. plans to throw up from Gibraltar to Iran.

The U.S. State Department men who negotiated the renewal agreement with the ancient feud leader. So would the air force, which now operates a way station at Dhahran for its transport planes.

But the Saudi Arabian government, which lives on oil royalties paid by U.S. companies, held out for the short term. That's why it can ask for more concessions when the next renewal comes up. The terms of the present renewal were not revealed.

The new agreement typifies the thorny position in which the western powers find itself in the Middle East—the gateway to the African continent with its storehouses of raw materials, including uranium.

That gateway hinges on the Suez Canal, the greatest bottleneck in world sea traffic.

Britain, the U.S. Secretary of State, recently confirmed U.S. negotiations for the right to use various military and air bases in North Africa and the Middle East.

This is the area the Kremlin has referred to as the soft underbelly of Russia. It is the second line backing up Greece, Turkey and Iran.

France already has promised five wartime airfields in Morocco. There are many other wartime field in North Africa which could be reactivated.

Besides Dhahran, the U.S. has only one base in this general area. That is the big Wheelus Field at Tripoli, sitting on the Mediterranean Sea land.

Britain has bases in Libia, Egypt, The Sudan, Malta, Cyprus, Aden and Iraq. Some of these could become available to the U.S. in time of emergency.

But outside of Malta, it most likely would create a delicate situation if the U.S. were to bring air units into the area on a regular groups unless actual war break out.

Strong Nationalist groups throughout this area have been demanding removal of all foreign influence.

Egypt, for example, has a treaty with Britain running for five more years permitting British forces to remain at the Suez Canal. The Egyptians have been trying to oust the bases between Gibraltar and Singapore.

Egypt has declared formally that the treaty is invalid and has threatened cancellation if the British forces don't clear out immediately.

Stops Blood Flow, Saves Man's Life

Barrie, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP)—Police credited a nursing sister from Camp Borden, Ont., with saving the life of Norman Ellis, Cressman, Ont., who suffered a severe neck gash in a collision here Saturday.

Lieut. Margaret Van Soyoc, a passenger in a car that was passing after the wreck, held the man's neck to stop the flow of blood until her first-aid kit was brought from the car.

Lieut. Van Soyoc and Pte. Ross D. Sehlin of Camp Borden alternately kept pressure on Ellis' neck while he was driven to hospital.

Previously police said she had the man on his way to hospital within 10 minutes after the crash.

FOUND STANDING NAKED

Hamilton, Feb. 26 (CP)—Police in nearby Dundas yesterday charged Louis Rivers, 40, of London, Ont., with vagrancy after he was found standing naked at a junction of the Queen Elizabeth Way.

A male-way traffic jam east and west was caused when car drivers stopped to gape at Rivers in the traffic circle of the highway.

Imprisoned for Murder in U.S., Man Invents Vital Gun Parts

New York, Feb. 26 (AP) — Most prisoners encourage a convict to develop a useful skill. But few would assist a prisoner in making one.

David Williams was an exception. As a convict on a prison farm near Caledonia, N.C., he made parts for rifles in his interest in guns, to invent new parts and test his weapons.

The result was the "short stroke piston", a vital part of the M-1 rifle used by U.S. troops.

While in prison, Williams also developed the floating-chamber principle used in the army's .22-calibre training machine-gun and the Garand sniper rifles and pistol.

Today, his prison career 20 years behind him, Williams at 50 is a highly-respected inventor of gun parts. He gets royalties from more than 60 patents.

Thirty years ago Williams turned to making "moonshine" whisky during prohibition to support his bride.

One of his stills was raided. Shots were fired and a deputy sheriff was killed. "Frankly", Williams says now, "he died by I do not know who killed the deputy sheriff."

He pleaded guilty to second-degree murder "rather than risk going to the electric chair," and in 1924 was sentenced to 20 years.

After a year, he began drawing plans for a machine gun he developed. He had had any training in mechanical drawing or engineering.

"My drawing board," he recalls, was my knees and my drawing paper was the back of a board."

Thus were born the floating-chamber principle and the .30-calibre sniper rifles and pistol.

After two years Williams asked to be allowed to make a gun model. To his surprise, Capt. H. T. Peoples, the prison overseer, said yes.

Estimated 2,000 Reds Barring Way In Chipyong Area

Commonwealth Forces Shoulder Heaviest Fighting

Tokyo, Feb. 26 (CP) — Canadian and other Commonwealth troops faced stiff resistance from an estimated 2,000 Chinese in the mountainous Chipyong area of Korea today while in another sector foot soldiers of the United States 7th. Division knifed ahead.

Reuters News Agency said the Commonwealth forces shouldered the heaviest fighting of the United Nations' counter-offensive and Chinese were resisting heavily.

The Commonwealth forces are operating on the central front between Allied-held Chipyong and the important communications junction of Hoengsong.

(At Washington, the navy announced that U.S. Corsair and Panther jets landed yesterday on a third island off the Korean east coast port of Wonsan. Two other islands previously had been occupied.

(The newest landing, following 12 days of continuous bombardment by warships and aviation was made without opposition from ground forces. Commonwealth shore batteries fired at the U.S. bombardment force without scoring any hits, the navy said.)

7th. Back in Line

The U. S. 7th. Division, identified in action for the first time since it withdrew from the Changjin reservoir area in December, beachhead last December, moved ahead to a point six miles north of Pangnim. It is operating on the right flank of the Eighth Army offensive in the central sector.

Reuters said the Commonwealth troops called for heavy artillery barrages and air support yesterday to blast the communists from the top of ridges which held up the Commonwealth advance. But when night fell, the communists were still there despite sustained pressure from the Commonwealth forces.

The American 2nd. Division, slogging north through the mud-bound mountains on the left flank of the 7th. reached a point 18 miles north of Chechon, its jumping off place when "operation killer" began last Wednesday.

The 2nd. and 7th. were spearheading the central front attack, advance along the mountain spines of central Korea.

Retreating Reds fought only rearguard actions. Nevertheless they lost an estimated 1,581 killed and wounded Sunday as the United Nations forces advanced as much as 3½ miles.

Called A Rout

The red pullback from a threatened United Nations trap was so much a rout that Maj.-Gen. Robert H. Almond, 10th Corps commander, called it "a virtual rout".

An estimated 2,000 Korean reds escaped as a giant Allied pincers bogged down in deep mud left by heavy rains and an early thaw. They continued to flee northward Monday—in groups of 100 to 1,000 — pounded by U.S. fighter-bombers.

Communist were also pressed by U.N. infantrymen, sometimes so far in advance of truck supplies they had to get food and ammunition for air drops or Korean peasants with pack harnesses.

But red buildups, truck convoys slipping down from the north at night, and new entrenchments indicated the communists were preparing to make a stand in the mountains ahead to halt the creeping advance of the 100,000 man U.N. army.

It is in this sector that the Canadian battalion is fighting alongside Australian and New Zealand infantrymen, face a force of about 2,000 Chinese. The reds are entrenched along a ridge about two miles north of Hoengsong on the 9th Corps front between Seoul and Hoengsong.

There was little action Sunday in the Canadian sector, where the Commonwealth brigade north and stiffened Chinese resistance has made it tough sledding for the Allies.

Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent with the Canadians, said in a dispatch today from the central front that the Canadians, supported by tanks and artillery, set tight Sunday after banging hard into the enemy's main defences.

The reds reinforced their defence line on the 9th Corps front and around battered Seoul, where two U.N. patrols were beaten back by heavy fire.

From the north, the heaviest traffic in days was spotted rolling southward under cover of darkness, bringing new reinforcements to the battle area.

One segment of the creeping advance by the 2nd. 7th. Allied force on the 60-mile central front was stopped cold by two counter-attacks by fanatical Communist Chinese put up the fight, to keep U.N. forces stalled on the vital central road west of Hoengsong. Hoengsong, 50 miles east of Seoul, is the north-section of the mired central front.

CONFRONTED WITH SIGN

Tokyo, Feb. 26 (Reuters) — British soldiers entering a Korean village yesterday after United Nations troops had fought it with rockets and fire bombs were confronted with a chalked sign on a smashable hut: "Trying To-night."

May Construct Central Factory For Five Districts

The advantages of constructing a central factory near Tweed to handle patrons' milk from five district cheese factories will be investigated by a committee of factory heads.

The five cheese companies interested in the project are Claire River, Elzevir, Roslin, Tweed and Victoria.

The five presidents and most of the directors of the cheese companies concerned attended the initial meeting at which considerable interest in the project was shown.

The president of each factory will hold a meeting to get their reaction to the plan. Many farmers in the district feel that cheese can be manufactured more economically at some central point. If the idea is carried through it will involve the outlay of a considerable amount of money for new plant and equipment.

Atom Scientist Labeled Red By London Sheet

London, Feb. 26 (AP) — The Daily Express charges today that Britain's missile-making scientist Bruno Pontecorvo, was "an active, fanatical communist through and through" before he served in the British-Canadian atom project.

He "deceived his fellow-scientists" completely, the Express says of the man who left Britain's Harwell atomic centre and at Chalk River, Ont., the Canadian atom project.

The Ministry of Supply, which has charge of Britain's atomic program, declined comment. Lord Salter, George Strauss, Minister of Supply, parliament and Pontecorvo had passed several security checks.

Pontecorvo, his wife and three sons were last seen in Helsinki, Finland, on Sept. 2, 1950, eaten ably walking on vacation trip to his native Italy.

The Express story today said threats by Soviet agents forced him to go to Russia, where he now is presumed to be.

If Pontecorvo was "an ardent communist while he worked at Canada's Chalk River atomic project he took extraordinary pains in hiding the fact, according to Canadian scientists who worked with him.

They recall Pontecorvo as a man who showed no outward interest in politics. He seemed, one of them said, completely wrapped up in his work and his family.

He left Canada a couple of years ago after working at Chalk River for several months. He was offered a permanent job in Canada but declined.

Food Important War Weapon Good Earth Conference Told

Food is a very importane weapon of war and Canada's food production potential can go a long way towards winning it, much needed Honda abroad, Brig. T. J. Rutherford, — Ottawa, Veterans' Land Act director, told the V.L.A. Operation Good Earth conference this morning at its opening session in the Hotel Quinte.

Brig. Rutherford was speaking to about 50 V.L.A. officials, gathered here from all over Eastern Ontario, for a week-long meeting during which the supervisors will discuss methods of helping the settled veterans achieve success on their farms and settle the 7,500 Veterans Settled

There are approximately 7,500 veterans settled in Eastern Ontario district, which stretches eastward from a line drawn from Oakville to Midland. About 5,000 are small holders — part-time farmers — and remainder full-time farmers. Public investment on behalf of these veterans is over $42 million.

Opening the conference, J. E. Goodwin Toronto, district supervisor of development and chairman, introduced R. M. Scott, B.S.A., John, N.B., Maritimes district superintendent, and R. W. Fawley, London district superintendent, district superintendent, who, along with the director and some other Ottawa officials, are guests at this meeting, the seventh of eight similar conferences covering the whole Dominion.

Both Mr. Scott and Mr. Fawley spoke briefly.

Outlines Development

Outlining the V.L.A. development program for this year which, he said, would be fundamentally one of agriculture and particularly grassland programs, Mr. Rutherford said that Canada is the best land into which to put money today.

"Grass farming is called the "new agriculture" in some parts of the United States where it is being used to build worn-out soils, and is even being used profitably on land still capable of producing crops, but not the best grain and cotton. It is mainly responsible for the tremendous productivity of European soils, and failure to use it has ruined many lands, both ancient and modern," regional supervisor.

The Ottawa director referred to the trend of rural young people to seek careers in the cities, carried to the point where the average age of Ontario farm operators is 50 years.

"We must reorganize our farms to make farm life attractive to the young people," he said.

He didn't believe that farming could operate on a 40-hour week basis, but felt that good organization of the farm business and mechanization could make farming a profitable and satisfying career.

Can Be Applied

The same principles that have given American such great industrial strength — specialization, standardization and the production line — can be applied to agriculture to some extent at least, he said. This is being realized in the United States but is being applied by wealthy men on large units, often as absentee landlords. He hoped that this trend would not become too pronounced in Canada as the family farm is the backbone of democracy.

Illustrating his remarks about specialization, Mr. Scott, N.B. farmer designed to fit long-term specialized farm programs", the director pointed out that, he compared with 1939, farm labor costs are now 250 percent as against about 80 percent increases for machinery, gas and oil. Beef cattle are up 200 percent, potatoes fat 100 percent and hogs 150 percent, he said.

Conference Unique

This conference is unique, as compared to other VLA conferences, in that the speakers almost entirely consist of local government officers themselves.

They are the local own officials are well qualified to discuss the problems of the small farmer with limited resources, and that such a discussion will be of practical value than the more theoretical discussions by provincial authorities who have spoken to us on numerous occasions before anyway," Mr. Goodchild said.

The program for the afternoon session, dealing with soil fertility, is designed to point out the officials of the Ottawa region under the direction of H. E. Henry, regional supervisor.

Fifty Women Workers Strike At Whitby Plant

Whitby, Feb. 26 (CP)—Fifty women workers went on strike today at the Natile Knitting Mill and twelve picket lines around the plant.

The Conciliation Board recommended an increase in the starting rate for females from 42 and a boost in piecework rates. The company agreed in part but refused to make the increases retroactive to last Nov. 5.

'Ready For Anything' Rocky Says of Troops

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)—Brig. John Rockingham, commander of the Canadian Army Special Force, said today his men are "ready for anything".

The Brigadier is here to confer with senior defence officials on the transfer of his force to the Far East. Brig. Rockingham paused briefly at Malton airport to change planes.

He told reporters his force, undergoing final training at Fort Lewis, Wash., is composed of intelligent fighters in first-class condition.

"They're learning new tricks every day," he said. "They'll hold their own against anybody."

Deputy Chief Will be Briton Says Attlee

London, Feb. 28 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee announced today he has been agreed that the Deputy Supreme Commander Atl Atlantic Pact naval forces in the Atlantic Ocean will be a Briton.

Accordingly, Attlee told the House of Commons, he is "entirely satisfied" with the nomination of United States Vice-Admiral William N. Pechteler to be Supreme Commander for the area.

Conservative Leader Winston Churchill asserted then that Britain, with its long and honorable navy tradition, had been "brushed out of the way".

Attlee said actual direction of Atlantic Pact forces in the east-north Atlantic—including the vital western approaches to the British Isles—will be in the hands of the commander-in-chief of Britain's home fleet.

He will command not only available British forces in the area, but also those of the United States and other North Atlantic treaty nations, Attlee said.

At the same time all such forces in the Western Atlantic will be commanded by an American.

Both of these regional commanders would take orders from Pechteler.

"All our experience in the last war," Attlee said, "proves that there is a need for a single command in the Atlantic which can allocate and re-allocate forces to meet the shifting threat as it develops." He added:

"Despite our great naval traditions the defence of the North Atlantic Ocean cannot possibly in future war be undertaken by this country alone."

He said the set-up as now recommended to the Atlantic Pact Deputies "will ensure that responsibility for the home defence of these islands, including British coastal waters, will remain firmly in British hands."

Attlee said the arrangement will apply in time of war.

"In peace, there is no question of our placing any of our naval or air forces in the Atlantic under the command of the proposed supreme commander," he said.

Missing Girl In California With Her Mother

Windsor, Feb. 28—(CP)—Forty-eight hours from the time she disappeared from her Windsor home another chapter ended in the strange saga of Sharron Lee Henshaw, 12, with her safe arrival in Los Angeles with her mother, Mrs. Robert Bayless of that city.

In an interview a short time after her return home, Mrs. Bayless announced her intention of obtaining legal custody of the girl through California courts. If successful she would end a five-year fight with her former husband, Max Henshaw of London, Ont., for possession of the girl.

Windsor and Detroit police tried unsuccessfully to locate the mother and daughter by checking rail, bus and air lines out of Detroit.

On Saturday, a consultation was held with assistant crown attorney E. A. Duchesne as to the possibility of preferring criminal charges in the matter. Present with Mr. Duchesne were Roy Bondy, Catholic Children's Aid, and William J. Henshaw, grandfather of the girl with whom she had been residing. No decision was reached immediately, although the matter is being given further study.

Immigration officials in Detroit said they are investigating to see if the girl is in the United States illegally.

14-Year-Old Boy Kills Parents With .22 Rifle

Oakland, Calif., Feb. 28. (AP) —A 14-year-old boy walked into a police station last night and, officers report, blurted:

"I killed my father and mother . . . I don't know why I did it . . . Do you know why?"

Donald Arceo, an ugly child, was booked on suspicion of murdering John Arceo, 37, and his wife, Dorothy, 31.

Police said the youth related: Sunday afternoon, Donald stole a .22 rifle from a friend.

Last night, as his parents watched television, he fired three times through a small opening in his bedroom door. One bullet instantly killed his father, another fatally injured his mother as she rose, screaming: "Donald! . . . Donald!"

He took his father's wallet and a wedding ring and fled in the family automobile. He talked with a priest, who advised that he surrender.

Motive? Donald had none: "I don't know why. It's crazy. . . . "My parents were very good to me. I love them very much."

Police Arrest Four Youths For Drinking

Kitchener, Feb. 28. (CP)—Police, continuing their drive against youthful drinkers, arrested four youths here Saturday night. The quartet has been charged with drinking while under 21 years of age.

They are William Smith, 19, Donald Bradd, 18, Donald Macauley, 18, Lawrence Bakin, 18, all of Kitchener.

Police said a 16-year-old girl decided to hold a party while her parents were away for the weekend and the four youths were arrested when the party was in progress.

It is understood police are contemplating charges against four girls and other charges against the youths. These may be laid later today.

Police called at the home and found a case of beer open on the living room floor. Police added that the group admitted having a "necking party" and dancing, with some of the boys having removed their shirts.

Police found two small children at the time and police added that a 13-year-old boy had been allowed in the room where the beer was being consumed. Police said this may lead to juvenile delinquency charges.

Police said another outcome of the raid was the laying of a charge against Walter Oldenburg of Kitchener, of keeping beer for sale. Two cases of beer and a case of port wine were seized at Oldenburg's home.

Parisians Take To Bicycles, Feet Due to Strike

Paris, Feb. 28 (AP)—Parisians took to their bicycles, motorbikes and feet by the thousands today as bus drivers and many subway operators began a 24-hour strike for more pay.

All buses were halted, but by mid-morning single trains were running on two cross-town subway lines. Seventeen other trains were running on shorter branches.

The latest one independent subway drivers' union refused to go along with the strike, ordered by both communist and non-communist unions.

It was hoped that up to 50 per cent of the trains would run later in the day.

To help ease the situation, the government mobilized scores of army trucks driven by soldiers to run on the bus lines.

Paris streets were jammed both commercial with automobiles and much in demand taxis. Many persons got out their bicycles and rode to work.

The unions are demanding the equivalent of $20 monthly and a increase for 34,000 subway and bus workers. Many now are paid from $57 to $80 a month.

Britain Agrees To Give up Island As Bombing Target

Bonn, Germany, Feb; 26 (Reuters)—Britain has agreed to give up the North Sea Island of Heigoland as a bombing target by 1952, it was announced here tonight.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, said he has told Britain he would co-operate in finding an alternative target.

The official announcement was made after a long conference between Adenauer and the British High Commissioner, Sir Ivone Kirkpatrick.

The decision followed months of protests by Germany against the use of the former Nazi naval base as a British-American bombing rangers.

Today two British officers and 14 west German policemen forcibly removed seven communists, part of a party of 20, who landed on the island Friday night.

No Liquor Permits For Banquets If Charge Made

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP) —Starting April 1, the Ontario Liquor Control Board won't issue liquor banquet permits to organizations planning to make a charge for admission.

This was announced today by Brig. J. G. (Jock) Sprague, board comptroller, amplifying an announcement last Friday in connection with the banquet permit regulations. The ban charging for drinks is the "only change, he said. Through a misunderstanding it was reported last Friday that banquet permits would be issued only to organizations or individuals serving full-course meals. In today's statement, Brig. Sprague said there is no requirement on meals.

It's Spring!
AT WOODLEY'S

SPRING OPENING WEEK — FEB. 26 to MAR. 3

You will hardly recognize Woodley's, when you visit them this Spring. A completely new and modern scheme of decoration has just been completed. The colors are bright and cheerful and very pleasing to the eye. We think you will like the changes that have been made and invite you to visit both the Fur and Millinery departments, during "Opening Week."

"Be Prettier — Wear A Hat From Woodley's"

Millinery Pretty, that's the theme stressed by Woodley's in their collection of Spring Hats for 1951. Cloches, Bonnets and Sailors, but with a new look, make up the hat news with trimmings stealing the show. The soft touch of velvet animates the Spring crop of straws. Feathers soar in the breeze from atop smart little numbers with only one purpose in life — to flatter the face. Some hats have grown determined to "go on the level", and they have mushroom brims. Chignon backs, already appearing in Paris, will hit Canada, come Spring. And the pancake is back but with double or triple layer brims. For some reason these have an Oriental air and seem destined for the woman who lets the Ingenue be an Ingenue and prefers to be sophisticated.. These trends come to the fore in Woodley's Millinery for Spring 1951.

"FOR SPRING 1951 — It's Not A Spring Wardrobe Without FURS"

Paris and New York fashions dictate the high-lighting of furs to glorify suits, dresses and topcoats. Furs add the final touch of elegance and good-grooming. And there is such a wide variety for Spring 1951 from which to choose. Jackets will be much in evidence, closely followed by rapes, capes, stoles and scarfs in 2-3-4-5 or more skin arrangements. There are furs for the budget-minded woman as well as for the one with a freer purse.. Budget and lay-away plans may be used by those wishing to do so.

Visit Woodley's During Spring Opening Week!

WINTER'S BURDEN LIGHTENED

Winter is not the bugbear and drawback it once was—that was when there was heavy snow generally and when people had not the incentive to move about in the cold season which they enjoy today as governments keep the main roads or highways open and municipalities clear the roadways and sidewalks by power-driven plows. For in this age transportation is essential and so the ways must be clear. As trains carry out their appointed schedules, there is a steady movement of people by train, by bus and by car.

It was not always so. For in not too distant a past there was more or less blockade for days after a storm. Today that is not the case. For the trains are ever moving and there is not a moment of time now when roads are not bearing the weight of travel and traffic.

No doubt the winters of old emphasized a sense of loneliness and of isolation in certain areas. That narrower interest has been lost and in its place is a countrywide or nationwide sense pervading everything people do.

Few if any moderns would desire to go back to all the conditions of winter which have been overcome still had their charm of course. But today we know in advance what weather we are going to have and what storms may be expected. Invention and knowledge have accomplished this change and the cries of men and women and children are forever looking for continued evidence of such signs of progress of invention, that lightens the burden and widens the outlook.

GIANT TELESCOPE AT FESTIVAL

A giant reflecting telescope — one of the largest in the world — is one of the outstanding exhibits in the Dome of Discovery, at London's South Bank Exhibition of the Festival of Britain this year. No such instrument has ever been on show at a public exhibition. The telescope, built by Cooke, Troughton and Simms, has been made for the Australian Commonwealth Observatory at Mount Stromlo, near Canberra. It is being loaned to the Festival authorities by courtesy of the Commonwealth Government of Australia.

The moving parts weigh about 40 tons, yet the instrument is so well balanced that the slightest push would be sufficient to move it. However, movement is mechanically controlled about two axes; the polar axis parallel to the axis of the earth to cancel out the effect of the earth's rotation — and the declination axis, which allows the tube to be moved in elevation.

With this new telescope it will be possible to photograph even the weakest stars.

PARTRIDGE IN WINTER

Reports have appeared in this newspaper about the prevalence of partridge within the town limits this winter. Flocks, sometimes numbering more than 30, have been seen in the northern and eastern limits. It has been a different winter for the birds and foraging for food has forced them to become so bold as to approach within a stone's throw of human habitation. Indeed we have seen them right in the backyard of one local resident.

We often wonder if many give thought to the lot of our feathered friends in winter. We know of one member of our staff who daily supplies crumbs for the birds. He's been doing it every winter for years. The office roof often has its quota of flock of birds throughout the day.

But the partridge, a fine game bird and usually a bird that is hard to approach, becomes bolder each year in its search for food.

We can't wonder that similar instances have been reported in other communities. We learned that winter is probably the greatest enemy that the partridge has, not the hunter. It is not altogether the cold but the scarcity of food, the lack of the shortage of grit and gravel, which taken into the bird's crop becomes its teeth. When the snow covers the ground it cannot find gravel, and failing in this search, the food it takes into its crop becomes almost indigestible and sometimes kills the bird by forming into a ball.

Given the food and some gravel, the partridge can survive a Canadian winter. It buries itself in the snow driving right from a tree into the snow. Sometimes the bird will tunnel several feet into the snow. The principal food in winter is birch buds and bark, which it stores in its crop in great quantities before burrowing into the snow.

For many years now the partridge, like the pheasant, grow and starling, have not found the food problem as difficult, for they are urban dwellers. But now, also the partridge is becoming an urban dweller . . . but only during the winter months. — Brockville Recorder and Times.

THE BACK THUMPER

Though marvellous is the human brain,
I'm puzzled now and then
And greatly bothered to explain . . .
The ways of certain men.
Though some with faults I will defend,
Except this I lack
Who tip-toes up behind a friend
And thumps him on the back.

The parlor comic, forty, fat,
Attention to command,
Who dons a woman's newest hat
With patience I can stand.

I think uniters of my tie
Are animals called
Jack;
But no kind word for him have I,
Who thumps me on the back.

Oh, there is much men do for fun,
That should by law be banned,
The thrower of the crusty bun,
As dad said: 'Should be canned."
I can forgive the joke-
grim
Who seats me on a tack,
But never will I pardon him
Who thumps me on the back.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IMAGINARY CORRESPONDENCE

How many times, after reading an inspiring sentiment, or looking upon a great work of art, I have hoped that I might sit right down and write a letter to the creator of hope and beauty, expressing my appreciation. And so I do—in my imagination!

Said Robert Louis Stevenson: "Though I write so little, I pass all my hours of leisure in a continual conversation and imaginary correspondence. I scarce take up a pen but I invent a sentence on the matter to yourself; it does not get written; but the journal is there, and for me the companionship."

Time and again have I talked and written to those who have most inspired me, told them of my joy and created happiness—in imaginary correspondence! How very many times I have wished and hoped that I might have been with Hudson as he sat listening and alone, meditating upon the return of the chiffchaff!

People who gain prominent note in the world are not necessarily great. All about you may be those who are truly great. You may not feel or have the inclination to talk or write to them, but you can carry on a correspondence with them—in your imagination! Thereby daily accumulating an endless group of silent friends, to cheer and ennoble you, as you wend your way through life.

Often have I thought to say that they would like to write to one who has helped and comforted them, but they are too "scared" to do so! Well, you can write to such—and I can assure anyone that those very people are the most appreciative and welcome commendation.

I like to read the letters of prominent people that have been published. People reveal themselves in most of their letters. Rarely do they imagine that any one else but the one to whom they are sent will ever read them, and so their heart does the writing, as well as their mind.

I once read of a boy who was sent to a private school, far from his home. Other boys received gifts from their fathers, but not this boy, and so deeply did he feel this lack in his life that he wrote imaginary letters from his father to himself!

or their souls—to the people who have drawn within themselves in self-pity or resentment and who have little use for their neighbors or their fellow men—as we begin to realize that in more ways than one people starve to death with money in their pockets.

Everything humanity needs for its growth and for the nutrition of its deepest need is right at hand, if we will but reach out and take it. But intellectual and spiritual hunger have atrophied in some people. Their sense of values has become so twisted that they have forgotten the rich opportunities of everyday life—the money in their pockets.

And so they starve, while the opportunity to live is still with them.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

HE STARVED TO DEATH

The story has recently come over the wires about a displaced person who died of starvation with money in his pocket.

It would be hard to explain this. Probably he did not realize that he was starving to death. Or it may have been that he was keeping his money for something else which he considered more necessary than food. But one day he toppled over and never came to again. And they found a considerable amount of money in his pocket.

When we apply all the circumstances related above to the poverty-stricken lives of people who have stopped feeding their minds them.

A LITTLE SANITY

A woman reader who has been following this column during the past week has made what may be an understatement. She writes in to compliment me on my "stand against drinking" and ends her letter on a rousing note: "Down with alcohol!"

This is a great understanding. I am not "against" drinking. I am not opposed to the use of alcohol. Quite the contrary, I enjoy a drink. I've enjoyed drinking in many parts of the world.

I like to sit in a English pub like the Windsor Castle at Notinghill Gate and sip a gin and lime. I've found it a rewarding experience to camp on a stool in a sidewalk cafe on the Champs Elysees and enjoy a Pernod or two while watching the passing parade. I've enjoyed drinking in the pleasant cocktail bars of eastern Canada, particularly at a cocktail retreat known as Mellany's Art Gallery in Toronto, where the whisky sours are made with a master touch.

Down with drinking, my dear lady!

Not when you can have a tall cold Canadian Pacific Canadian crab or lobster on Thousand Island dressing, with a bottle of Coke while listening to some Dixieland Jass in Wellesley Square, or a Coke and soda while the Weavers entertain in New York's Greenwich Village, or a tall, sparkling bottle of Sasterne with your meal, looking at the Medici masterpiment window of Chez Henri in the little city of Hull.

Down with the rum!—all this is beyond the borders of Bermuda, Cuba and all the civilized drinking, drinking for adults and not for boobs.

I am opposed to drinking when it becomes the desperate kind of drinking it is in this province under laws that make nobody happy but the boss of the province of Ontario, the cabinet of the provincial government, the crank temperance societies and the licensed drinking "clubs" at which anybody, short of having two heads, may become a member.

What's Wrong?

In the past week a survey of the city's night-time drinking, ably conducted by City Police Sergeant Hal Tennant and Patricia Hawkes, has brought enough evidence to convince the most neutral observer that a disgraceful situation has been allowed to develop without interference by the authorities.

Here are some general conclusions drawn from the survey:

1. Because of the sporadic, token raids of the city police they expect, nine out of ten citizens have a cynical disregard for the law. Of the 1,000 records of 10,000 people were seen drinking openly in hotels, restaurants in this city without interference from the police. This required no "spying," but simply a visit to any night spot.

2. There is an average of one 25-ounce bottle of liquor for each couple and in two-thirds of the actual cases observed these bottles are "killed" in one sitting. This means a man and woman will consume twelve-and-a-half ounces of liquor, or considerably more, can be safely handled by the average person.

3. A growing number of young people, including many in their teens, are "nursing" beer bottles. Young Vancouverites are learning to drink by the bottle rather than by the glass. (One wonders at the depth of frustration of the provincial governmental system that points with the gloomy job of teaching "temperance" in the schools.)

4. The atmosphere of the night spots becomes incredible for drunken as the evening progresses and many social pressures of inhibitions are given view nightly. It is impossible to enjoy entertainment or the whisky prices are made the emphasis on the business of "getting drunk." Reporters Miss Hawkes observed many cases of men, staggering drunk, leaving night spots and getting behind the wheels of automobiles.

5. Because of the large number of intoxicated persons there is no attempt by the management of any night spot to call in the police platoons except in cases of outright violence.

The Way Out

What's to do about all this? Well, it seems obvious. It has seemed obvious for years and years.

The final official leg is for Attorney-General Gordon S. Wismer to enforce the Liquor Control Act clearly section 50 which applies to drinking in a public place. The section reads: "Every person who is drunken in a public place, the burden of proof that he was not drunken lying with the onus on the Vancouver Police Commission. This is a matter for the A.G. in the final authority.

Under present law the A.G. may find out promptly that there is a strong body of public opinion in favor of the enforcing of this law.

The public does not want the "drunk in a public place" section on its night life. The public wants them run, as they are in cities under such laws, to the licensed places of entertainment rather than public.

The next move is to hold a plebiscite on the question and thus to give the false lie to the lot of the world where drinking has been put on a sensible basis and not encouraged as a vice.

There will be excessive drinking under any system, as the Attorney-General, in his curiously oblique way has pointed out. What will be never does point out for reasons of his own, is the obvious fact that in Belleville when citizens are compelled to buy and drink in bulk.

End of report. Tonight the Saturday Saturnalia goes again.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In one family you will often find a son who is the employer of hundreds of people, and another who is out out for nothing but an employee as long as he lives. People appear to be divided into two clear — and categories: the users and the used.

In thousands of cases, users and used are among the used for many years, possibly, before they get their opportunity to move up into the ranks of the users in their own right. These are the bosses, superintendents, foremen and agents.

But in millions of cases, the used would be entirely helpless without somebody to use them. And this is a fact that democratic generation hates to face. In fact, there is a powerful section of opinion that hotly denies it. There is a school of heavy if not deep thinkers who declare that the used should all get together and use the users.

Users is a loose one in a rough sort of definition. And it might be, it could be, that the users would not exist if not needed, by various means to bend their talents to using the rest of us without special reward. That is the hope and expectation of democracy.

But in the only existing demonstration of socialism in operation up into Russia, the ranks are there in a worse form than ever before. For there has been a big a compact party of politicians employing a savage police state to grind down all the privileging ganda machine as well as guns and bayonets are used and are more in the category of livestock than human beings.

Users have got to be kept in control, of course. History is merely a record of how we have and how we have not been controlled our users. The most important thing is to prevent our users from being politicians. So long as our users are disciplined, we generally have them more or less where we want them. But to get into the hands of a gang of promoters and politicians not otherwise employed would be disaster indeed.

SHALL IT BE MAJOR OR MINOR?

Another tragic instance of a fact I have tried to make the general public realize and the operations requisite, namely, that tonsillectomy is a major operation: newspaper report of the death of a high school boy Coniest winner five hours after removal of her tonsils. The operator opined, according to the news item, that death might have been caused—oh, well, it seems there is always some unfortunate incidental occurrence to account for such fatalities, some observer or hypothetical complication, rather than hemorrhage, shock, embolism or other familiar hazard of a major operation.

Twenty years ago "status thymico-lymphaticus," persistent and enlarged thymus gland was the favorite explanation for such fatalities, but that phobia has been dispelled by the findings of many investigators that enlarged thymus is common among infants and young children who die of internal or in every respect.

My motive for dwelling upon fatalities from tonsillectomy is not what some ever read—people would have you think, in fact, I don't give a tinkey, as they say in Dutchess, for the loud-mouthed butchers say about me and my blankety-blankest column as long as they do not depart too far from the truth. I harp on the tonsillectomy death rate because of course the medical profession has failed to present that question honestly to the public.

In the great majority of cases tonsillectomy is urged upon patients or the patients or guardians of patients as elective operation. In their zeal to prove that it is a minor operation most operators permit patients to go home as long as they do not depart too far from the hospital grounds.

To be sure, this procedure comes off without mishap in most instances. But that is not to justify the negligence.

In my one - hour - and - buggy days I operated on a patient with loose cartilage in the knee, in the patient's home, and even had a member of the family give the anesthetic. I got away with it, the patient had no more trouble from the knee, but I never again performed a fatal fool act. Doctors who sell tonsillectomy as a minor operation tempt fate every time they carry the thing through as a minor operation.

The hazards or dangers that attend tonsillectomy in every instance and the "complications" or sequels that occur in many instances are well known to all physicians and we need not enumerate them here.

The attempt to remove the entire tonsil in justifiable in exceptional cases—for instance when cancer, syphilis, tuberculosis or actinomycosis is apparently limited to the tonsil—but not in the treatment of focal infection nor for the prevention of such infection when the doctor believes there is a septic focus in one or both tonsils. Far safer treatment, and at least equally effective for infected tonsils, is diathermy, otherwise known as electric coagulation or electro-dessication.

On the record, which is a sorry one, the medical profession should abandon radical treatment of infected tonsils and cultivate better judgment and skill in the application of modern, conservative treatment instead.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Gold Jewelry Tarnishes

Why my gold ring and watch tarnish and leave dark stains on my fingers? (E. A.)

Answer—The best gold jewelry is 14 carat gold and best gold alloys contain silver, and silver comes in contact with a food constituent which is (as most animal and vegetable food materials do) the normal mucoid sweat or skin oil, which always contain sulfur. The tarnish or dark stain is easily removed with a little ammonia water or aromatic spirits of ammonia.

Drastic Purgative

Friend recommended half teaspoonful of Epsom salts sulfate in warm water every morning. What do you say to that? (Mrs. L. C. P.)

Answer—If friend recommends it for a horse I say Whoa! If for a human being I say Ugh!

Bedtime

What time should a child of 9 to 12 be put to bed? Should he abed by 8 o'clock, but he is allowed to stay up until 10:30 o'clock? (E. A.)

Answer—A child of 8 to 12 years requires not less than 10 hours of sleep in summer, not less than 11 hours in winter. Winter bedtime is 8:30 p.m., summer bedtime 9:30 p.m.

Diphtheria

Forty years ago many children were lost with membranous croup. Have you ever had one? Why? (L. F.)

Answer—I was formerly a common name for diphtheria.

Minister of Welfare Opens New Memorial Hospital

Equipment in New Hospital Of Latest Design, Manufacture

Trenton (Special)—"This is one of the most beautiful hospitals I have ever inspected," remarked a former nursing sister, who was one of the thousands who passed through the Trenton Memorial Hospital after the official opening here yesterday. Like all of the others, this nursing sister was markedly impressed by what she saw on her tour about the new half a million dollar institution.

The color scheme of the rooms seemed refreshing and relaxing to the average onlooker. The operating room equipment held the eye of those who had worked with similar apparatus before. The X-ray equipment on the first floor down to the up-to-date Lundry in the basement drew favorable comment from those who looked on.

And in each person's heart was a feeling for the generosity of the Rotary Club who donated the equipment for the operating room and the Women's Auxiliary of the Trenton Air Station who furnished the nursery.

Trenton's new hospital is considered one of the finest and most modern in Ontario. This is not the opinion of laymen but that of medical men who have visited hospitals hereabouts and in other provinces.

Floors of Terrazo

Hospital floors are of terrazo. Beams and most of the other supports are of steel, meaning that the building is as nearly fireproof as any building can be. There is very little wood in any part of the hospital.

As presently constituted, the building will provide accommodations for 75 patients. Another 25 can be admitted by utilizing other rooms now in use otherwise. The sunroom on the top floor is large enough to provide space for an extra seven or eight beds.

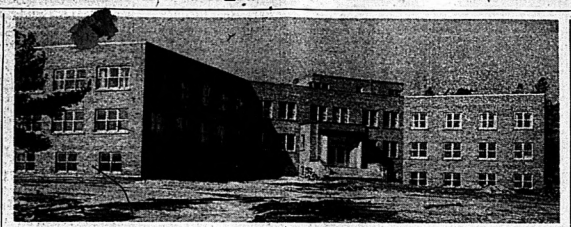
A special feature is the room to be set aside for indigent patients. It is one of the best the building offers. It looks out over the panoramic view of the Bay of Quinte and the northern shore of Prince Edward County.

One respect in which Trenton's hospital differs from most of those built in days gone by is that there are no large men's or women's wards. The largest number of beds in each ward is to be four.

Reduces Danger

Many, if not all, the water taps in the building are turned on and off by either a foot pedal or an elbow lever. This, it was explained, reduces the danger of infection.

In order that the operating room temperature may be kept normal at all times it is equipped with a heating system of its own. This heating system is electrical and can be put into operation at a moment's notice.



An eight-year dream on the part of public-spirited citizens of Trenton, the Trenton Memorial Hospital built as a monument to its war dead, was formally opened on Sunday. Honorable Wm. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, and other dignitaries, both provincial and federal, took part in the official opening as hundreds of residents of the town and district watched. Plans for the new hospital were started eight years ago with actual construction commencing after the war. The hospital containing 74 beds, cost $525,000 to build.

Like in other modern hospital operating rooms, the powerful light over the operating table is so arranged that the light can be pointed in any direction without casting shadows.

Wherever necessary, there are night lights to be used when ordinary lighting fixtures are turned off at night. These night lights mostly located near the floors shed enough illumination to enable nurses to see their way around yet not enough to disturb the patients.

The nursery has accommodation for 14 infants. There is room for two more in an isolation ward. In addition two cribs for prematurely born infants are to be installed.

Provided by Auxiliary

The equipment in the nursery was provided by the Women's Auxiliary of the Trenton R.C.A.F. Station at a cost of between $5,000 and $6,000, majority of which was raised by operation of the organization's 'Opportunity Shop' in Trenton. Amongst this equipment is a resuscitator, which will probably save many lives.

The hospital is equipped with the most modern type of apparatus available for doing the very highest grade of X-ray work comparable with that done even at the largest hospitals.

There are three distinct and separate X-ray machines for three different types of service.

The main X-ray department is capable of all types of fluoroscopy which means the examining of the patient under X-ray without taking pictures, and also all types of radiography, meaning the actual taking of X-ray pictures. This machine is of sufficient power to take a picture of a crying baby or even an unco-operative patient with speeds approaching one-fiftieth of a second, thereby arresting all movement.

In the event that it is unwise or impossible to convey the patient from the bed to the X-ray department, a mobile X-ray plant will be provided to X-ray the patient right in bed.

A third machine, supplied by the department of health, province of Ontario, is a so-called 'admission unit' which X-rays the entire hospital staff periodically and also every patient admitted to the hospital, in a constant search for tuberculosis. This service not only protects other patients but also protects the nurses and staff.

A total of 50 Bibles will be donated to the hospital by the Trenton Ministerial Association.

Equipping the operating room at the new half million dollar institution was the responsibility of the Trenton Rotary Club. The very latest in operating room equipment was provided. Shown checking the new oxygen equipment are Mrs. E. MacMillen, Reg. N., hospital obstetric superintendent and night supervisor, Mrs. E. Holsey, Reg. N. In the foreground is the new operating table, while overhead is the special operating room lamp which reduces shadows to a minimum.

Superintendent of the new Trenton hospital is MISS CORA DROPPO, Reg. N., who comes to Trenton from Cobourg, where she was superintendent of the Cobourg General Hospital. Miss Droppo comes from Chesterville, Ont.

First Cases Will Be Admitted On March 1st

Trenton (Special) —Superintendent Miss Cora Droppo has announced that first obstetrical cases will be admitted to Trenton's new Memorial Hospital on March 1, while general cases can be accepted by March 5.

In charge of the "baby department" will be Mrs. E. MacMillen who trained at the Belleville General Hospital. She was head nurse in the delivery room at Columbia Medical Centre, New York City, before coming to Trenton.

Others on the hospital staff include Ella Riddell, bookkeeper; Edna Shepherd, supervisor; Lola P. Spencer, operating room supervisor; Mrs. Doris McDowell, laboratory technician; Stephen Hawkins, chef; Mabel E. Lindsay, dietician; Anson Steenberg, engineer; Ruth Dempsey, night supervisor; Mrs. Elinor Rouse, night supervisor, and Mrs. Declma Gorman, night supervisor.

Three Women Representing All Branches of Armed Services Cut Ribbons to Open Institution

Trenton (Special)—For posterity's sake, the Trenton Memorial Hospital was officially opened Sunday afternoon by the Hon. William A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare for the Department of Welfare of Ontario. The ceremony took place on the steps at the stone pillared entrance to the now $525,000 institution.

Chairman of the Hospital Board, William H. Ireland, stood alongside the Welfare Minister and looked on thrown a sea of 4,000 human faces, there to witness the culmination of eight years of tireless effort on the part of Mr. Ireland, the Hospital Board and the citizens of the community and the whole surrounding countryside.

It was near this same site that another great man, the French explorer Champlain, stood on the top of Mount Pelion some 345 years ago as he stopped to plot a route which, later, would make Lake Ontario into one of his greatest adventures. Trenton was not heard or thought of then, but evidently the location with its command of height over this part of the Quinte area served as an observation post for a famous man who was recording history and contributing to the progress of a new civilization.

Great Deed in Records

Yesterday another great deed went down in the records of the town of Trenton. And the man who blazed the effort, Mr. William H. Ireland, enjoyed the satisfaction and accomplishment far more than any other single achievement of his full and eventful public and private life.

Emotion welled up in the hospital chairman's throat as he struggled for words to praise and thank the many people, who had donated time and effort so freely to realize a dream, that started to materialize when Actress Mayor Henry LaFleur turned the first sod in 1946. Mr. Ireland made special mention of two deceased members of the Hospital Board, Norman Bower and John C. Mahon. He offered his regrets to Mrs. Gordon Dunlop, former president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Trenton Air Station, unable to attend the opening. He thanked Dr. E. A. McCusker, C.B.E., speaking on behalf of the Hon. Paul Martin, Federal Minister of Health scheduled to be on the platform with the other dignitaries. Stress of other important business prevented the Health Minister from coming.

A Splendid Achievement

Dr. McCusker noted the fine achievement of the Hospital Board and the citizens who gave to the project by free subscription. He said the federal government was pleased to make substitute hospital grants in proportion to the provincial government and that the Trenton hospital was an example of what is taking place all over Canada today. He said 26,000 new beds would be available in 200 new institutions and hospitals across the country. He felt that the residents of the community would find rewards in having a modern hospital facilities at their front door.

In pointing out that the Trenton Memorial Hospital was conceived by the Trenton Lions Club and sponsored by them in the beginning he said that other service clubs and public spirited organizations were playing leading roles in similar projects throughout Canada.

Mayor Kenneth Couch said it was a fitting tribute for Trenton to introduce Dr. McCusker.

The officials and dignitaries stood on the landing of the steps leading into the entrance. Three pieces of silk ribbon in traditional red, white and blue colors each symbolizing one of the three armed services, separated the crowd from the speakers' platform.

Cutting of the ribbons was an impressive ceremony all by itself.

A Community Effort

Hon. William A. Goodfellow in his address said that people did not want to lose sight of the fact that the Trenton Hospital was a community effort. He paid tribute to the people behind the people who made the project possible.

The Minister talked about the necessity of a hospital for a community that was growing as fast as the town of Trenton. He said that the opening of the hospital marked another step forward in a great country that was growing into its own without anything under the canopy of heaven to stop it. He said it was the duty of the fortunate to share with the less fortunate. He stated that the residents of Murray and Northumberland counties must consider the Trenton Hospital belong to them equally as much as it did to townspeople of Trenton.

Soon after 3 p.m. the Welfare Minister for Ontario declared the hospital officially opened.

War mothers Mrs. Murray Dix on representing the Air Force, Mrs. Sid Cottrell the Navy, and Mrs. Charles Silverthorne the Army, snipped the three ribbons simultaneously allowing the onlookers to enter the hospital for the first time. Hon. William Goodfellow walked down the steps with the mothers of the war dead who performed the ceremony.

Warm Sun Beats Down

A warm February sun beat down from a clear blue sky while the formality progressed. It seemed that Providence had played a hand in a setting that was both appropriate and deserving to such a fitting cause.

Monsignor D. A. Cullinane invoked the divine blessing on the completion of the 75-roomed health centre. He blessed the building, the medical and nursing staff and all those who will assist in relieving pain and misfortune to the sick.

Two of the living members of the Board of Directors were not able to attend. Mr. C. M. Newton is in the south on holidays and Mr. George Hardy of Toronto is confined to his bed. Mr. S. O. Graham, the secretary-treasurer of the board read a letter from Mr. Hardy. The ailing director sent his best wishes declaring that the hospital would remain as a monument to those who paid the supreme sacrifice in both World Wars.

The late William Bain, former Chief Constable of the Trenton Police Department, was termed another great supporter willing at all times to lend a helping hand.

Soon Filled

As the crowds of people swarmed into the new hospital hallways and corridors soon filled to capacity.

In the main lobby a plaque was unveiled to the service men who died in World War I, World War II, The Rev. R. C. MacLeod, St. St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church solemnized the unveiling with prayer, while Legion President Allan Vanderwater officiated. Rev. A. S. McConnell of St. George's Anglican Church offered the Benediction address.

Men, women and children from all walks of life inspected the hospital accommodations and equipment.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Complexions of youthful fruits.

Beautificians say that their cash-customers do not go deeply enough into the study of their facial needs. They buy cosmetics indiscriminately, often selecting creams because of the perfume. They pick out powders that cover, in pretty boxes, not paying enough attention to the color of the contents. Many have a particularly haphazard way of deciding on rouge and lipstick.

Today there is a state of excitement about the beautifying loot they lugged home. Tomorrow they may be indifferent, forget to commune with the precious toiletries for which they have spent their money. They are always making polychromic resolutions, always forgetting them. Bad girls! The feminine countenance is the record of the years; if the complexion is neglected, the record may show a few years that aren't there.

The skin cannot take care of itself; it has enemies. Spring sunlight plays it and changes its character, in time giving it coarse, leathery appearance. Harsh winds rumple the delicate texture and cause dryness unless creams are applied lavishly. Atmospheric dust takes a toll, just as it injures delicate fabrics. Loss of sleep, malnutrition and lack of fresh air and exercise will rob it of coloring.

Perfection depends upon firmness of the tissues and underlying muscles, the normal functioning of the sebaceous glands that are nature's oiling system. Without these glands the cutaneous surfaces would be arid, with a flaking surface, and make-up would not help a bit.

In the normal, healthy and youthful skin there is abundant provision for the formation of adipose tissue. If these fatty paddings disappear—which may happen through illness, advancing years or too-stringent reducing projects—the cutaneous covering falls into fine lines. The best insurance against such a devastating condition is the free use of nourishing creams, together with light friction and the application of cold water once a day.

Be consistent in your beautifying work. Complexion care must be a daily habit, if it is to be effective. Creamy cosmetics give smoothness to the skin. Massage gives exercise to the muscles. Let cold water show you what it will do. Use it every morning to bring color and freshness. It hustles up the circulatory streams upon which every little cell lives and breathes.

Also, cold weather makes the flesh firm—serves as a tonic. The best rule is: a soapy face, washing at night, a cold rinsing upon arising.

NEW WONDER ELECTRONIC EAR HIDES DEAFNESS

CHICAGO, ILL. (Special)—A fabulous new electronic ear which miraculously conceals deafness was revealed by as eminent Chicago acoustic specialist.

In an exclusive interview with the Electronic Hearing Association he disclosed that through the miracle of modern electronics it is now possible for the deaf to hear without any bearing to recapture their loss without a hidden shirking to either ear.

In a remarkable demonstration he showed how his tiny revolutionary electronic discovery has rendered old style hearing aids obsolete.

Pointing out that his invention gives new hope to those who have heretofore refused to wear a hearing aid with a conspicuous ear button or head-band, he said that "this electronic ear transmits even whispers with startling clarity."

To acquaint the hard of hearing readers of this paper with this new wonder discovery which hides deafness, full details will be sent in a plain wrapper without obligation to anyone who requests it. Address: Electronic Research Director, 1934 Nelson Building, 1450 W. 19th St., Chicago 8, Ill. A penny postcard will do.

MARIO ... in his distinctive features

about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

When a Hindu wants a cooling beverage he drinks pepper water—water boiled with hot peppers and garlic.

The closest approximation to pepper water in this country is tabasco sauce, a seasoning made from red hot peppers. Although the name tabasco refers to a small river in Mexico where hot peppers are grown, all tabasco sauce is produced in Louisiana.

One or two dashes of tabasco in a sauce or soup will provide enough of a tingle to keep any appetite from drowning.

Hamburgers or meat patties are delicious when marinated in a mild barbecue sauce, spiked with tabasco. The marinating liquid can be heated and spooned over the patties just before serving. Avoid fatty meat which only melts during broiling and causes the patties to be greasy. The seasonings may be left in the sauce or strained out, before spooning the sauce on the cooked meat.

Barbecued Meat Patties
Serves 6...

1-2 lb ground beef
1-2 lb. ground veal
Salt—pepper
2 tablespoons catsup
1 medium size onion chopped fine
1-2 cup oil
1 cup vinegar
2 sprigs of parsley
6 dashes tabasco sauce
1 teaspoon sugar
Paprika

Order lean meat coarsely ground. Mix the meat with 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper and 2 tablespoons water. Shape into 6 round patties about 1-2 inch thick. Place in a deep bowl.

Mix the catsup, onion, oil, vinegar, parsley, tabasco sauce and sugar.

Pour the marinade over the meat. Let the patties remain in the marinade 8 to 8 hours or overnight. When ready to cook, remove meat from the marinade and drain well.

Preheat the broiler ten minutes. Sprinkle patties with paprika.

Broil until brown on each side. Heat marinating liquid and spoon over patties just before serving. Serve on toast.

GOOD MANNERS

BY MRS. BEECKMAN

Grandmother who brought up grandson should be invited to be in reception-line.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. We need your help in solving our problem. My grandson is to be married in several weeks, and there has been considerable differences of opinion regarding the receiving-line. This young man and his mother are on very good terms, love each other dearly. But I, his mother's mother, have raised this boy since he was two years old, have been like a mother to him as well as a grandmother, and he is being married from my home, considering all these circumstances, where do you think I should stand in the receiving-line? I feel that I should stand next to the boy's mother. Secondly, I would like to ask if it is proper for the bride's mother to plan the whole affair herself. I should think that the two mothers should plan certain things together.

2. My daughter has a grandmother. Where should her place be in the line?

1, I agree with you entirely and most enthusiastically. I think you should be invited to stand next to your grandson's mother in the receiving-line. Certainly you have earned this honor and distinction on this important occasion, by your wonderful and abiding devotion to and care of your grandson. Here in the receiving-line will be, 1- think, bride's mother, the hostess, and then perhaps the bride's father, although very often the bride's father prefers to mingle with the guests. Next, might be the bridegroom's mother, and then you, the grandmother; next, the groom, with his bride at his right; then the maid of honor, on the right of the bride; and last the bridesmaids.

It is customary, and certainly the gracious thing to do, for the mothers to consult together and make certain plans that affect both families; such as this placing of the receiving-line. But even if this is not being done, I think that your daughter, the bridegroom's mother, should

"hint" to his bride's mother that she would like to know what she has made is this important bow to the bridegroom's mother who gave him such devotion and care. Really you belong in that receiving-line just as much as the groom-and-bride, the young man's mother and father. And incidentally the bridegroom should be told, if he doesn't already know, that he should send a corsage not only to his bride's mother and to his own mother, but also to you!)

2. I see no special reason why your daughter's grandmother should be included in the receiving-line.

Food at today's afternoon wedding receptions very simple.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My daughter is planning to have an informal wedding—certainly to be the ceremony, and on a Sunday afternoon, at four o'clock. She is going to wear a suit. Would it be correct for both mothers and also her sister to wear suits?

2. The reception, to which we will invite about thirty guests, will be either at a club or in our home. What refreshments should we serve?

R. W.

1. Yes.

2. At today's late-afternoon wedding receptions . . . whether the reception is formal or informal, large or small . . . the menu usually served is extremely simple. There should always be two items: (a) the wedding cake, to be cut first by bride and groom, and then to be served to the guests; and (b) a cold drink, the traditional champagne or a non-alcoholic punch, with which to drink the toasts to the bride and groom. Then there may be coffee and tea; small, simple sandwiches, perhaps made of different kinds of bread; little cakes and cookies, in addition to the wedding cake. Sometimes ice cream or water ice is served, but this is not necessary.

Ombre Chiffon Evening Gown

BY PRUNELLA WOOD

SKILFULLY gradiated tones of grey, from darkest to deep taupe, color this ombre chiffon, which is made into an evening gown of the true dinner type. More and more this kind of formal dress is typed for the hostess, for her who is dining in the home of another hostess. The short dinner dress or suit goes out more to restaurants and the theatre, the very elegant long costume gets the play at the charity balls and private parties.

This model's bodice is finely pleated and has broad shoulder straps. The skirt has a slightly cowled front top; the skirt falls slim and close from the belt to spring out very full and long at the hem.

STRONGER PROTEST SENT

London, Feb. 24—(AP)—Britain has sent a second and stronger protest to communist China over the imprisonment of a British consul from Urumchi (Tihwa), in Sinkiang province of Western China, the foreign office said last night. China has not replied to the first protest.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

Is a person who loves always jealous?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For almost two years I have been going steady with a boy I care for very much. He says he loves me just as much and that no one could ever take my place in his heart. But he is very, very jealous. He says he trusts me, but that he can't trust the boys I can't even talk to other boys without his getting mad, and even when I go out with my girl friends, he accuses me of going to meet other boys. He admits his jealousy, but says he can't help it, as he wants me all for himself.

Do you think there is a way for him to overcome his jealous streak? Do you think being so jealous as he is, that he can really care for me? Is love jealousy?

M. L.

Dear M.L.:

It is probably true that most people feel a slight touch of jealousy now and then when the person with whom they are deeply in love shows what they think is too much interest in someone else. But normal people are sensible enough to realize that the person who really loves and trusts, and jealousy is a lack of trust. Extreme jealousy is a clear sign of emotional immaturity, something to watch out for in courting days.

To answer your specific questions, it's perfectly possible that this young man does care for you but if he is so extremely jealous, his kind of affection has elements in it which would endanger a happy marriage. Love certainly is not jealousy, as I have already pointed out. As for whether or not he can get over his jealousy, it all depends on how much he wants to do so, and whether he is willing to make the effort to understand the true nature of jealousy and so rid himself of it.

If you have standards, live up to them

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 and pretty popular with fellows. I went out with one boy about two weeks before we decided to go steady. But I have heard a lot of unpleasant things about him, and when I asked him about them, he told me they were not true. However, I heard differently, so I broke up with him.

Now I am very sorry that we broke up. I really liked him and I want him back. How would I go about this without letting him

Pope Pius Has Established Many Records During His Twelve Years of Pontificate

Rome, Feb. 26—(AP)—Pope Pius XII, who March 2 celebrates his 19th birthday and the 12th anniversary of his pontificate as the "Pope of Peace," has established many records.

But the one for which he may be most remembered for years hence is this:

He has met more people than any pontiff thus far in the nearly 2,000 years of the Roman Catholic Church.

Pope Pius has met millions—rulers and masses—in private and special audiences and in the greatest mass audiences ever held by a pontiff.

Nearly all the 4,000,000 holy-year pilgrims who came to Rome last year were received in general, special or private audiences. Several times St. Peter's Basilica, the world's biggest church, was unable to hold the throngs that the pope, carried on his portable throne, passed through the square to bless them.

During August and September at his Castel Gandolfo summer residence, an impromptu audience developed into a regular five-day weekly event.

Sometimes the pontiff appeared three times daily on the little Castel Gandolfo balcony, and it was here that his uncommon touch with the common man was most humanly shown.

"Excuse me," he said one day, "if I made you wait a little."

During the holy year, it is estimated, that the pontiff gave about 1,500 hours to more than 6,000 audiences of all kinds and spoke to them on subjects that ranged from philosophy to tobacco.

War Clouds Shadowed World

The holy year brought to a focus all the problems of a pontificate that has been one of the most arduous in the church's history.

The day when it began, March 3, 1939, war clouds shadowed the world. When war came the pope turned his attention to alleviating the suffering of its victims. He organized relief and information service for prisoners of war.

Meanwhile, the fight grew between the church and materialistic communism. The end of the war, leaving 50,000,000 Roman Catholics under communist influence, emphasized it.

In his many speeches to representatives of governments and groups from all walks of life, the pontiff urged social reforms as a necessary means of turning aside the threat of communism.

The holy year, meanwhile, progressed to its most important ceremony: the announcement Nov. 1 of the dogma of the assumption into heaven, body and soul, of the Virgin Mary.

It was the first time that a dogma was proclaimed in St. Peter's Square, and the first in nearly 100 years proclaimed by a pontiff.

Russia Rings Japan With Army Of 500,000 Men

Tokyo, Feb. 26 (AP)—Informed sources said today that Russia has ringed Japan with perhaps a 500,000-man army and a 2,000-plane air force and, by drawing the Chinese reds into the Korean campaign, has served notice that the Soviet Union will "stop at nothing to achieve world conquest".

They said these factors, rather than any recent new Soviet military alignment, underlie the speeded American efforts to assure Japan's defence after a peace treaty is concluded.

Besides the two U.S. National Guard divisions whose assignment here next month has been announced, other American security forces will be sent here if the situation warrants, these sources, who cannot be identified, said.

The Russians began to outflank Japan when they acquired the Kurile islands and southern Sakhalin in the Yalta agreement.

From the islands, the Russians continually can dangle the threat of an open or surreptitious invasion of Japan proper.

The viewpoint here is that Soviet power has been built up in the Orient, not fundamentally for a war of nerves, but as part of over-all plans for world conquest.

So the effort to put strength into the defence of Japan is being made with grim reality.

13 KILLED BY FLOODS

Ten or more persons died in a heavy flood at the coastal village of Arecife, while five miles east of Arrecife, two infants were killed by a landslide which crashed through their house.

Gallantry Awards To Two Frankford Boys to be Made

Frankford — Two Frankford boys, Maynard Johnston, age 17, and Earl Rogers, age 16 will shortly receive gallantry awards for risking their lives in saving a girl from the Trent River last week. The girl, Carol Sine, age 15, was among a group of teenagers who were wading below the dam across the Trent river at Frankford. A concrete apron extends some distance below the dam at the base of each spillway. A man wading across the apron in shallow water, Carol became caught in the current, and was carried away into a whirlpool below the dam. As she struggled in the water, she called for help, and Maynard Johnston jumped from the dam, into the whirlpool in an attempt to save her. He reached the girl, and held her head above water for some time, attempting at the same time, to get out of the vortex. However, the task proved too much for him and he was forced to let go of Carol, and try to save his own life.

Semi-Conscious

Apparently his efforts had been sufficient to bring her closer to the outside of the whirlpool, for Earl Rogers was able to reach her shortly afterwards and bring her out of the water. Earl ran along the jagged rocks below the dam, cutting his bare feet as he did, and came up below the whirlpool to reach Carol. She was semi-conscious, and slightly hysterical, but the boys were able to bring her around all right.

Earl Rogers was in danger of being pulled into the current himself, but did not hesitate to go to the girl's aid. Maynard Johnston was in grave danger of losing his own life, and the fact that he was able to hold Carol above water for some time undoubtedly saved her life. Although Earl Rogers was successful in actually rescuing her, she would quite probably been gone had it not been for this fact.

Today, Earl Rogers, a member of the First Frankford Boy Scout Troop received a letter from Mr. Jackson Dodds, Deputy Chief Scout for Canada, notifying him that for his gallantry, he is to be awarded the Silver Cross, a Boy Scout award for gallantry, where considerable danger is involved.

Arrangements are being made whereby Scout Earl Rogers will receive his award personally from the Chief Scout of Canada, possibly at Government House, in Ottawa.

Lions Cub to Honor

Unfortunately, Maynard Johnston is not a Scout. However, the Frankford Lions Club, sponsor of the Frankford Boy Scouts is making preparations for a special night at which Maynard will be honored in a similar manner.

They are indeed a pair of very brave lads, and because of their acts of gallantry, Carol Sine, an attractive young citizen of the village is alive and in good health today.

The Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion held their weekly card party Tuesday evening, with a good turnout. Euchre winners were Jessie Reid and George Harris. Lethbage winner was H. Howard. N. Nelson won the lone hand prize, and Pat Hall the consolation prize.

A group of ladies of the village gathered at the home of Mrs. George Montgomery, Tuesday evening for a euchre party. Following a most enjoyable evening of cards, bountiful refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Montgomery.

A number of Frankford folk attended the concert in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, featuring the Leslie Bell singers, Friday evening.

His wife told police that her husband had had premonitions that unidentified enemies were "out to get him."

EXTEND DEADLINE

Paris, Feb. 26 (AP) —Bowing at least temporarily to a West German protest, French delegates to the Schuman coal-steel pool conference will extend their deadline for an agreement, it was learned, during the weekend. French delegation officials formally denied a report by reliable sources Friday that Jean Monnet, French chairman of the six-country conference, is to order delegates to initial the treaty draft within 48 hours or abandon their effort to merge West Europe's steel and coal resources.

Rockets Lose First Semi-Final Playoff Game to Oshawa Bees At Arena by 4-0 Shutout

Belleville Rockets were put behind the eight ball here on Saturday night, when they dropped a 4-0 decision to the Oshawa Bees in the first game of the semi-final playoff series at the Memorial Arena. The second game of the best three-of-five will be played in Oshawa tonight with the third game back in Belleville on Wednesday night. The Rockets will definitely have to win that game tonight or be forced to take three in a row, which is a mighty tall order against a team the calibre of the Oshawa club.

The wires were full credit for their win and the score about represents the play. From the opening faceoff, the Oshawa crew checked like fiends, backchecked with every line, they had a solid defence and a goalie that on occasions was just "out of this world." On the other hand the Rockets apparently lacked the drive as a matter of course, played ragged in spots, had mental lapses in their cementing zone and only came up to their best effort in the late stages of the game when then it was too late and too little. Vic Rose, who is mentoring the Oshawa club, has his team playing a passing type of hockey, every man in position and backchecking on every rush. They are bound to be dangerous when it's 50 with the rubber when it is in their zone and can score goals, when the opportunity presents itself.

Had Little Drive

The Rockets had little drive, especially in the first period when they were in their own zone practically all of the canto. When they did have the puck in advance, they lost too much time in getting into position to start their plays, thereby giving the other squad time to get in play to meet the oncoming rush. Their passing plays were not clicking due to the close checking of the opposition by all night they were outskated in the loose ice. There was plenty of drive to their shots but they were not picking the spots and Pallister outgeneraled the goaltender time and again. It was hard to take when they were not capitalizing chances thrown away by not using a little finesse when in close. In all fairness they were outplucked on several occasions.

Oshawa showed a good game in goal and the three that beat him and the team in the first frame were well beaten although in the last five minutes Belleville should have at least scored once and possibly an even count going to the good room but accurate shooting cost them the chance. Trumble and Green worked hard but got on to their accustomed wave worked out of position by neat stickhandling by the wily Lorx, Mantle and Trumble held their end up. Mason, Desjardins, Strahan, Murphy and Soulis appeared the best on the forward line. The game was handled by two referees and which proved successful on a couple of occasions. Penalties were given by the side referee, that could not possibly have been seen by the other, watching the play in his zone. These penalties all came when the play had left a certain zone.

No Fisk Tea Affair

Although the game was fairly clean played it was a "pink tea" affair for 15 penalties were handed out with Belleville drawing seven. The Oshawa club drew eight, which included two ten minute misconducts, one when the players talked too much to the men in white, Hillman and Cherecoski were the recipients and were generally the ones who were stirring up trouble all night. A real donnybrook could have occurred at anytime as the players were on razor edge all night and ready to brawl at the least opportunity but the referees never did let the game get out of hand. They were always the masters.

Wilson, Eicher, Lawrence and Brabin were the scorers for the winners with Degray skicking in with two assists with Lawrence and Wilson having one each. The Rockets blew some beautiful chances late in the first frame and also in the last period. The second period was scoreless with play about even. The Rockets can do better and if they play the calibre of hockey they are capable of playing they could tie the series in Oshawa tonight. There were 1,401 paying customers on hand to see the pastime.

Belleville: Goal, Tripp; defence, Green and Trumble; centre, Mason; wings, Strahan and Dorn; Alta, Brown, Gilmour, Mantle, Thrland, Murphy, Desjardins, Houle, Carey.

St. Mikes Miss An Opportunity To Narrow G

(By The Canadian Press)

A problem of upper-school mathematics students at St. Michael's College this week is to advise the school's hockey team of its chances of an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff berth.

Eight of the teams in the 10-team group qualify for post-season play. The collegians are in ninth place, eight points behind Stratford Kroehlers. Both clubs have six games left to play, one against each other.

The Irish missed an opportunity to narrow the gap when they blew a two-goal lead at Guelph Saturday night and had to settle for an even split in their two weekend games while the Kroehlers were idle.

It took a two goal effort by Lou Jankowski, the league's scoring leader, but the Generals managed to edge the Irish by a score for a 4-3 victory. The Irish bounced back for a 6-2 victory over Waterloo's last-place Hurricanes Sunday.

The league-leading Barrie Flyers took an uneasy weekend off and watched the opposition creep closer. Windsor Spitfires crept within two points by knocking off Galt Black Hawks 3-1. And Toronto Dukes defeated a double victory to narrow the gap from the top to four points.

The Dukes received their scoring averages with a 6-2 triumph at Waterloo Saturday and 9-1 count against Oshawa at home the following day.

In the dying schedule of the OHA's major group Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs added four more points to their lead by edging the tallend Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 5-4. The Dutchmen are playing out the string, having been ousted from the playoff picture.

Blair Counts Two

Dusty Blair counted two goals for the Monarchs, Tom Fowler, Johnny Ubriaco and Ken Watson also finding the mark. Morris Levesque, Jim Fernfuse, Mickey Roth and Dinny Flanagan scored for the losers.

Windsor's victory over Galt saw most of the scoring action confined to two minutes of the first period, when Eddie Joss fired Windsor into the lead and Erwin Grosse added the other two. Ken Wharram had sunk the Black Hawks earlier in the frame.

Glen Hall's goaltending and Galt's lack of finish around the nets cost the Hawks the victory, although Jim Pappin's superlatives that kept the visitors in difficulties.

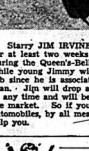
Oshawa's high-scoring Jankowski-Alex Delvecchio-Herbie Delvecchio unit apparently left its scoring punch in Oshawa. The trio clicked for all four goals in sinking Bill Sklikey, Delgordy and Delvecchio each adding one to Jankowski's pair. Murray Costello with two and Bob Sabourin were the Toronto marksmen.

But against Marlboros Sunday, Delgordy's lone tally was insignificant as Ron Lumley fired a pair for the winners and Parker MacDonald, Ron Stewart, Don Peart, Eric Nesterenko, Danny Poland and Chuck Lumsden also found the mark.

Poland, Nesterenko, and John Lumley each fired a pair as the Dukes subdued Waterloo Saturday, while Ross Kelly and Gord Warner connected for the Hurricanes. The third-period picked up a total of 76 minutes in penalties in their two weekend games.

Murray Costello collected two goals for the second time in two days Sunday as St. Mike's trimmed Waterloo. Jack Hatchford added two and Bill Lee and Art Clune got one apiece to complete the winner's total. Charlie MacDonald scored twice for Waterloo.

Starry JIM IRVINE, of the Redmen, will be out of the game for at least two weeks due to a strained knee cartilage sustained during the Queen's-Belleville senior game the other night. Meanwhile young Jimmy will be able to concentrate on his car-selling job since he is associated with the Bonn Motor Sales as a salesman. - Jip will drop an Austen into your lap, backyard or garage at any time and will be dickied to get your business, if you are in the market. So if you have any ideas about buying one of these automobiles, by all means get in touch with Jimmy. He'll gladly help you.



CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Oshawa Bees were a hungry hockey club on Saturday night at the Memorial Arena and looked a lot different than between winning and losing. The Rockets did not appear to be hungry, in fact they were outplayed in the first frame, held their own in the second and had a slight edge in the third but the damage had been done. The Oshawa crew skated hard all night, never gave their check a chance to get loose and if he did he was steered into a nest at the blueline from which he had no escape. Pallister, in goal, was a Houdini in the way that he kicked out, and blocked drives from every direction. The Rockets, too, helped him some by not getting in front of him and some of the drives that Pallister did not see until they hit his pads.

* * *

The Rockets have a better game in their system than the one turned in on Saturday night. They play for better hockey because, goodness knows, they have had the coaching and they have the ability as a unit. Some of the boys out there did not appear as if they were taking any interest in the proceedings. Their fight, so apparent in early games was not in evidence. Probably they took the Oshawa Club too lightly and now realize that when teams reach the playoffs they must have something. It is hoped and believed by the corner that the boys will settle into Oshawa tonight and display the brand of hockey that has carried them into the playoff series. They should realize that the team can win this group should go a long way on the playdown trail and the Rockets have the ability to win this group if they will only give it a little try.

DOING A SWELL JOB—

There are two things we like about the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. One is the fine work it is doing with Oshawa Generals and the second is the appointment of Bill Ecker in which it enforces its rules and regulations, and by adhering to these, teaches those under its jurisdiction the rights and wrongs of the game.

The O.M.H.A. is doing a grand job and it is a matter for record that referees like Reverend Jack Coffey, President Herb Parker, "Otto" Bolton and others, including Sam Curry of Tweed, are not given their proper dues insofar as publicity is concerned.

* * *

Metropolitan sports scribes seem in print of the accomplishments of the Conny Smythes, the Jack Adams, the Dick Irvins, Hap Days and Patricks and others of the same ilk, but seldom do they edge in a word or two about the boys who are providing the feed-boxes of the upper brackets. Provincial dailies sports editors cry to high heaven (even as we) about the lack of support for amateur athletics. Occasionally they get in a word or two about these cockerels of hockey but fall far short of the rightful dues of the O.M.H.A.

* * *

The OMHA, while it is doing an all-out job for its ice-lane proteges all over the province, sees to it that the boys, their coaches and managers play the game as it should be played. First-hand evidence of that came to light on Friday when the association clamped down heavily on erring players who took Ross Kelly and Gord Warner to task for a needless game in which over twenty penalties were handed out and the game was more of a backyard brawl than a hockey game.

* * *

The OMHA did not hesitate. It investigated every angle of the affair and suspended one player, meanwhile handing out the stern warning that a repetition would bring suspension of coaches and officials concerned, for the finish for the season. Secretary Christie ruled firmly and fairly and his judgment produced results. To the credit of the managers concerned it must be said that every recommendation of the official ruling and agreed to abide by not only it, but the OMHA book of words. The result was a clean, clearly-played hockey game which went into overtime and with but six minor penalties being handed out by a neutral referee.

* * *

The OMHA officials have issued repeated warnings regarding rough play and they are to be commended on their prompt and efficient handling of a situation in this district which might have developed into a juvenile war.

* * *

Coach Jim Ethier of the Belleville Juveniles, was tickled to death with the performance of his squad on Saturday against the Kingston Vics, when they tied in overtime and won the first playdowns round by a score of 7-6. Youthful Master Lally was the hero of the piece for Ethier as the winning marker with fifteen seconds to go in the overtime period. Said Ethier: "You would not have recognized the teams on Saturday. They played a clean, fast hockey and concentrated on the puck and victory rather than the man. I am sorry the Kingston game was suspended, but it could not be helped. Just one of those things. I was proud of the way in which the Belleville team conducted itself and the Kingston lads too. It was a good game and I think the better team won."

* * *

Stan Hagerman's fighting bantams won their way into the second round, possibly against Oshawa or Peterborough, on Saturday when the defeated the Kingston Young Rangers 11-5 at the Memorial Arena. They won the Saturday game 6-0, Fred Hagerman, Johnny Hull and Ab Wright again paced the attack, but the team as a whole played outstanding hockey and deserved their victory. Yesterday's Belleville Midgets went down to a 4-2 defeat at the hands of the Young Rangers of Kingston, and were eliminated by a 12-6 score on the round.

Syracuse Offers $100,000 For Bison Franchise

(By The Canadian Press)

Syracuse Nationals of the National Basketball Association said Saturday night they have offered the Buffalo Hockey Club $100,000 for its American Hockey League franchise and the players.

Leo F. Ferris, executive vice-president of the Nats, made the bid Friday to Art Chapman, Bison general manager, said Daniel Biasucie, Nats president. Biasone said his group intended to shift the franchise to Syracuse, which dropped out of the A.H.L. several years ago.

In Buffalo, Chapman scoffed at the offer as "silly", he said the Bisons represent an investment of about $700,000.

Officials of the Saskatchewan Roughriders Football Club Sunday night announced that Harry (Black Jack) Smith, former University of Southern California lineman and for two years coach of that university's freshman team, will coach Roughriders this season.

The officials said also that Glen Dobbs of Tulsa, Okla., who started with the Los Angeles Dons, will be the quarterback and backfield coach in the club's western football division.

Smith will replace Fred Grant, who resigned last summer after Saskatchewan finished third in the four-team league.

At Chicago, Willie Mosconi of Havertown, Pa., won his second straight world pocket billiards championship Sunday, defeating Canadian champion George Chenier of Toronto 150-45 in 11 innings.

It was Mosconi's fifth straight triumph against no defeats in the three-day tournament. Chenier's record is 2-3. Mosconi had a high run of 44 to Chenier's 30.

C. V. Whitney's six-year-old Mount Marcy earned in an easy six-length victory in the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap at the Fair Grounds Saturday.

T. G. Benson's Lotowhite, the favorite, was second, and T. P. Morgan's Thwarted, third.

Ridden by jockey Ken Church, Mount Marcy returned $6, $3, and $3.20.

A mighty effort in the final few yards of the stretch swept Sunglow to victory in the $50,000-added Widener Handicap at Hialeah Saturday and earned the Brookmeade Stable the richest purse in Florida racing history.

The chestnut colt's final surge carried him past the favored Porter Rings to a 1¼-length triumph over a field of 16 handicap stars and won $54,100 for Brookmeade, last year's top money winning stable.

The purse brought the four-year-old Sunglow's total winnings to $134,350.

The favored Rough 'N' Tumble thundered in to win the $100,000 Santa Anita derby Saturday and signal a threat for coming laurels in the three-year-old division.

The handsome bay colt subdued 10 rivals in the running of the event before a crowd of 41,-300 and collected $81,500 net for his owner, Mrs. Frances Genter of Minneapolis.

Mrs. Genter had already told trainer Melvin Calvert to get ready for a trip to Kentucky and the derby, win or lose. A son of Free For All out of Rough 'N' Ready, the colt now had won $120,480.

Weekend Games in National Hockey Loop Leave Standings Same, Leafs Gain on Wings

The 1950-51 National Hockey League schedule is rapidly drawing to a close and the scramble for top place and for playoff spots continues unabated as weekend games go by, with little change.

Toronto and Detroit are battling it out for first place and the Leafs gained ground on the league-leading Wings during the weekend dumping Boston 6-2 Saturday. The Wings scooped a Sunday night game to the Rangers by a similar score.

Meanwhile, the scramble for the fourth and last playoff spot goes on.

Boston shaded the last-place Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 Sunday and now hold a one-point margin over the fourth-place Rangers. Montreal Canadiens, battling for a playoff spot, dumped the Rangers at Montreal by a 6-2 count Saturday and now have 50 points, two less than the Rangers and three down on the Bruins.

Chicago, with but 36 points to show for the 56 games played to date, are hopelessly bogged in the league cellar.

At New York Sunday, the Rangers had built up a 5-0 lead over a packed house before the Wings scored twice in the third period.

Little Buddy O'Connor paced the onslaught by scoring two goals. Eddie Kullman started the New York scoring parade, early in the first period and added O'Connor brought the count to 3-0 before the period ended. Bruise Gamble scored the other.

In the middle session, Reg Bleicher got the Wings' first marker, the score to 4-0 while Pat Egan put the Rangers five up early in the third.

Vic Stasiuk broke the ice for Detroit late in the second period with his second goal. Ted Lindsay sank Detroit's second marker near the end.

At Chicago, the Bruins had to come from behind to earn their victory.

A pair of goals by Bill Mosienko gave the Chicago team a 2-1 lead at the end of the second period after Pierson had counted for Boston in the opening period. Quackenbush scored in the third period.

In Saturday night's game, the Canadiens broke into one of their rare victory columns to down the victory over New York. Maurice Richard added to his scoring laurels while Calder cup winner Bert Olmstead in his season total to 36, starring him on his way to reaching the 100 a goal after 35. He also got two assists.

Other Canadiens scoring were Bert Olmstead with two and Elmer Lach, Dickie Moore and Tom with one apiece. Ranger goals were scored by Allan Stanley and Nick Mickoski.

In the Toronto-Boston Saturday night game the score was the same. Bill Barilko led the Leafs with two goals while Cal Gardner, Harry Watson, Ted Kloss and Flem Mackell got the others. Lorne Ferguson and Ed Sandford scored for the Bruins.

Round-Robin Playoff Series Is Announced

Toronto, Feb. 26. (CP)—Round-Robin playoffs among the three top clubs in the major series of the Ontario Hockey Association will start March 3, it was announced Saturday. Each team will play each of the others twice and the two top teams then will clash in a best-of-seven playoff for the major series title.

Final arrangements for the playoffs were made Saturday at a meeting of the major series council, the two Toronto clubs —Marlboros and St. Michael's Monarchs—and Hamilton Tigers have clinched the playoff positions.

The Council also announced that the three-game suspension of George Hanigan of St. Mike's for unsportsmanlike conduct toward an official during a game with Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen terminated Saturday.

Phil Hughes, St. Mike's goalie who was involved in an argument with Kitchener fans during the same game, has apologized to officials of the Kitchener Club and further action in this case had been dropped, the Council said.

Bob Richardson New Canadian Ski Champion

Mont Tremblant, Que., Feb. 26 (CP) — Twenty-three year old Bob Richardson of Montreal's Ursula Ski Club is the new Canadian combined downhill and slalom champion, but it took an upset performance in the slalom event to turn the trick.

A brilliant run down the treacherous Flying mile in less than two minutes clinched the slalom championship for Richardson. That, combined with a third place in the downhill Friday, left him Saturday, meant enough points for the combined title.

Richardson, member of the Montreal Penguin Ski Club captured the two-way senior combined, Carolyn Kruger of Montreal took the junior women's combined title and Peter Kirby of Joyite, Que., took honors in the junior's men combined.

The gruelling two-day meet was held in this winter sports centre in the heart of the Laurentian mountains north of Montreal.

All four victors now are serious contenders for places on Canada's 1952 Olympic ski team to be selected on results of six meets this winter. The Tremblant was one of the six.

Jack (Porky) Griffin of McGill placed second for combined points in the men's events while third place went to John Clifford of Ottawa who was fifth in the slalom and the downhill.

Richardson's effort on the heat in his two runs down the slalom course to make up points lost in the opening day's downhill race. He made his first run in 1:32 and the second in 0:58.4 seconds.

NETS ST POINTS

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP) — Jack Gray, playing his last home intercollegiate game Saturday, netted 27 points and led the Toronto Blues to a 73-33 basketball win over McGill Redmen.

The seven-jetter ran played a sound defensive and offensive game till he was put out with five fouls early in the last quarter. Until that happened, he appeared headed for a new intercollegiate individual scoring.

Boston Braves In Training Camp Hit by Flu

Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 26—(AP) —A siege of the flu spread today through the ranks of the Boston Braves, laying low nine ball players, a coach and club doctor.

Manager Billy Southworth, who yesterday was forced to call off the workout despite a brilliantly-shrill day, said he planned to hold a drill today. In the meantime he was keeping his fingers crossed hoping the epidemic spreads no further.

The players bedded by the flu germ included first baseman Earl Torgeson, catchers Walker Cooper, Del Crandall and Walter Linden, and pitchers Norman Roy, Jim Wilson, Bob Chipman, Harry McPherson and Gene Conley. Also laid low are coach Jimmy Brown and trainer Dr. Charles Lacks. None is in serious condition.

The incapacity of three catchers leaves only youthful Paul Burris and Ed St. Claire to handle the work behind the plate.

"I called off the workout yesterday," say Southworth, "because I was afraid we might lose more. The boys are tired and muscle-weary. In such a condition they might got have enough resistance to fight off the germ should it spread further. I figured a rest would add to their resistance."

This is the Florida training camp hit by the germ this spring. Several members of the New York Giants, including Monte Irvin and Wes Westrum, were stricken by virus in their training camp, for members of the Brooklyn Dodgers,

Juveniles, Bantams Win 1st Round, Midgets Eliminated By Kingston

The Belleville Juveniles and Bantams of the B.M.A. came through with first-round Ontario Minor Hockey Association victories in Kingston on Saturday with the juveniles tying the Kingston Vics 1-1 in an overtime battle to win the round 7-6 and the bantams defeating Young Rangers 4-0 to grab the round by an 11-5 count. The Midgets were outplayed by the Kingston Vics kids and bowed out 6-2 and the round by a 12-6 score.

Juveniles Play Thriller

The juvenile game was a thriller all the way through with none of the rough play which marked the teams' first clash being in evidence. A neutral official, Referee Bowen was appointed by OMHA officials to handle the game and he had little trouble dealing out only six minor penalties. The boys forget their shoulder clips and played clean hard hockey with the issue in doubt right up to the seconds of the game.

No Score in Two

There was no score in the first and second periods although both goals had narrow escapes. Overwhalle of Kingston drew the only penalties in the first heat with Bitchell getting the only penalty of the second.

With but seconds to go in the third period, Senior scored the only goal of official time to give Kingston a one-goal lead and tie the round at seven all. Feny and Allen drew penalties and the game ended in confusion.

Tom Lally proved the hero of the game with 20 seconds to go when he scored from Goyer's pass. Batt and Allen drew minor penalties.

The Belleville juveniles will likely meet the winner of the Oshawa-Peterborough playdowns in the second round.

Belleville—Scoring: 8 Stan Hagerman's hard-fighting bantam crew paced by the ace work of Fred Hagerman, Johnny Hull and Ab Wright scored a one-sided win over the Kingston Young Rangers Bantite with Wright, Bruce Black and Hull scoring singles for the winners. The Belleville kids played hard clean hockey against their half-pint foemen and the result was another clean sweep for the visitors having an edge all through.

Midgets Lose

In the Midget game Kingston outscored the Belleville team 2-1 in the first period with goals from Wilding and Drinks with Lynch assisted by Baker getting the Belleville tally.

Wilding and Armiel scored goals in the second session to give the homesters a 4-1 lead and Bowey came through with the only goal of the third period scoring from Bovey's pass to make the count 4-2. Eight penalties were handed out by the officials in the midget tilt.

Firemen-Police Hockey Plans Are Completed

Arrangements have been completed for the Firemen-Police Department benefit hockey game for the March of Dimes, being played in Memorial Arena tomorrow night.

Both teams are reported to be ready to do their best for a good cause and some top-flight entertainment has been arranged for between period intervals.

The Belleville Municipal Band and Kinsmen Boys' Band will be on hand. During the first-second period interval members of the Quinte Skating Club will give exhibitions of figure skating while the second-third period gap will see the famous Police-Firemen Charlot race. This is itself is worth the price of admission.

Mayor R. T. Potter will be official head and the whistle will be faced by Sharon Rushlow, a crippled little girl. Inspector D. McConnell of the O.P.P., Chief Walter Prebert and Chief Gerald Vance of the Fire Department are also to be on hand. The game gets under way at 8:30.

McCORMACK SENT DOWN

Toronto, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Johnny McCormack, centreman with Toronto Maple Leafs, will return to Pittsburgh Hornets to shake and play himself into shape, Leaf officials announced last night.

McCormack, sent down to the Leaf's farm club shortly after his marriage a few weeks ago, suffered a shoulder separation Feb. 14th in the night he was scheduled to rejoin the Leafs. He has been unable to play since returning to Leafs.

Leaf officials said McCormack would have "a better chance to work himself back into shape" at Pittsburgh.

South has a Horse Sense count of eight tricks; six high cards (aces, kings, queens at one apiece) and two short cards in diamonds. With less than nine, a player should open with a bid of one.

Some youth players would insist on opening this with two clubs! No arguing against this. If you prove they are wrong, it does not convince them. They end up by saying they like to take that chance.

Why is it wrong to open this hand with two instead of one club? It is possible to lose a heart and four black suit tricks. Without help from partner it has a slim chance of making a game. It is tough enough with one less loser, which is gamble enough.

That deal came up in a duplicate tournament. Not all tables bid, and played it the same way. The sagacious worth peering at.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 26—(AP) — Mmm; Don't mention the word "un-cooperative" to Gordon MacRae.

The hurrel-chested crooner had that handle hung on him last December when the Hollywood Women's Press Club nominated him as one of the most un-co-operative actors (Rodney Dangerfield usually won the dubious honor) MacRae has been trying to live down the stigma ever since.

"I never did find out why I got nominated," he told me between scenes of "On Moonlight Bay." "Some of the women in the club could give me one example of how I had been un-co-operative. I suppose one of them got mad because I didn't show up for a benefit or something and voted for me. But you would think they'd make their choices on a majority basis.

"A lot of them wrote me that they were sorry about it all. I went to their Christmas party, played Santa Claus and put on a half-hour show, so I guess they're happy now."

Children in the Act

MacRae went on to tell about some of the things he does for press requests. It gave some insight into what an actor has to go through, for the publicity mill. Even his children are brought into the act.

"I've never turned down picture requests," he said, "but it isn't always easy to do them when you've got three young kids. The magazines always want the kids included in the pictures and you've had to figure out little ways and school periods."

While attempting to be co-operative, MacRae was not without criticism of the Hollywood Press, particularly the gossips.

"They won't leave people alone," he observed. "I've had dozens of friends who are having trouble with their marriage right now. They might have their share to work out their differences, but the gossip columnists won't give them a chance to."

Sports Roundup

(By JOHN CHANDLER)
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Feb. 26—(AP)—This year's Kentucky Derby, says impresario Bill Corum, promises to be one of the wildest on record, all because no standout three-year-old has emerged on the winter racing circuit.

The president of Churchill Downs is happy about the whole business.

"I'm glad, personally, that we have no 'Citation' or 'Your Host' this year to scare away the others from the big race," he said.

The list of nominees for the $100,000-added turf classic won't be announced for two weeks, but they include horses from every section of the country.

Usually by this time or the very start of the three-year-olds racing at Santa Anita, Hialeah, and Fair Grounds, a couple have been tabbed as definite derby threats.

No Big Names

This year however the big names among the 1950 juvenile crop have taken to the southern vacation. They are wintering there, but not racing.

Battlefield, George D. Widener's two-year-old champion, went to Florida and has been living the life of Riley all winter. The same for Joseph Colandro's Pennsylvania Galloper, Uncle Millie. Greentree stable's Big Stretch, another colt high in esteem for the derby, has been wintering in South Carolina, along with several King Ranch hopefuls, including Black Douglas, Maningo, and Gay Count. Another top number is Mrs. Sarah Chait's powerful colt, Lord Putnam.

Like Middleground, winner of the 1950 derby for King Ranch, and Hill Prince, three-year-old champ last year, these top horses probably will see action until April when the horses return to the north.

Few Exhibitions

Some of the candidates will show their wares in the few experimental handicaps and the Wood Memorial at Jamaica, others will tackle the Chesapeake Stakes at Laurel or the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland.

Possibly several of the horses won't get a chance at each other until along about 2:30 p.m. May 5 at Churchill Downs as the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home" drift over a jammed throng of 100,000 spectators.

That, says Corum, will be just fine—not only for prospects of a great race, but from the box-office standpoint.

Convicted as Spy, Hopes to Escape Extra Jail Term

Sentenced to five years in jail in 1946 for conspiring to communicate confidential information to Russia, David Gordon Lunan may be in court again to apply for a reversal of the additional sentence of one year on charges of contempt of court. One of the most sensational of the trials in the spy ring court proceedings, Lunan's case at the time nearly had the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King on the witness stand. Lunan's counsel will apply for his discharge on the grounds that it is illegal for a judge to sentence a man on a contempt charge with the sentence to run at the expiration of another prison term. — Central Press Canadian.

FRANKFORD

Combines End Schedule With 6-4 Defeat of Flyers

Frankford — The Frankford-Batawa Combines finished the schedule on a winning note as they dropped the R.C.A.F. Flyers 6-4 in a very fast game Friday night in the local arena. The Flyers took a 1-0 lead in the first period, but the Combines flashed back to make it 4-2 in the second period. Cosgrove scored the winning goal late in the third period.

AT THE CAPITOL — Look who's at the door. It's "The Fuller Brush Girl," Lucille Ball plays the title role of the Columbia comedy at the Capitol Theatre with Eddie Albert co-starred. On the same program South Pacific thrills, love and adventure! "On the Isle of Samoa" starring Jon Hall. Both hits are first showings.

The Flyers pulled their netminder and put on an extra forward in an effort to pull the game out, but the strategy backfired, as Rankin stole the puck on a Flyers' power play and deposited it in the open net.

The Frankford Bowling League swung into action again Thursday night, and a couple of startling upsets were registered. The Aces knocked the Hornets out of first place, by taking five points, while the Monarchs blanked the Lucky Strikes, thus gaining the league lead. The Royals went wild, and took seven from the Screwballs. The Alley Cats took four from the Sharpshooters in the other contest.

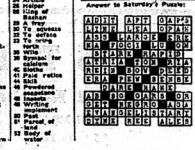
Answer to Saturday's Puzzle:



Policeman's Suspicions

Milwaukee, Feb. 24 — (AP) — Patrolman Richard Duszynski was suspicious when he noticed a thread of light coming from a canvas - covered office window

He peered inside and saw two men, an acetylene torch and a safe.

Seven cars of police, with drawn guns, descended on the scene.

Two startled workmen looked up from the pipe they'd been cutting with the torch.

"Been doing a little remodeling," they explained.

OTTAWA ENDORSES FREE-WHEAT-TO-INDIA PLAN

Canadian farmers may save the lives of thousands of famine-stricken Indians according to an announcement from Ottawa. The government has decided to answer pleas of the Indian government for assistance and will make an outright gift of an unspecified amount of wheat that will be sent in addition to the 11,000,000 bushels ordered by India in trade agreements. — Central Press Canadian.

ICEBERG DETECTIVES PLOT QUARRY'S CAREER

International ice patrol in the North Atlantic is about ready to begin the task of tracking down the icy giants lurking in North Atlantic waters. The picturesque, but monstrous shipping menace dwarfs the 213-foot seagoing tug Achsnet, one of the U.S. coast guard vessels making surface observations. When a berg such as this is sighted its location and movement are checked and warnings broadcast to ship navigators. No unsuspecting ship will suddenly find itself bearing down upon the icy giant shown. — Central Press Canadian.

DEPORT COMMUNIST

Brussels, Belgium, Feb. 24 — (Reuters) — Police Friday served an expulsion order for "security" reasons on Henry Turrell, French secretary-general of the communist-led Federation of Mineworkers. They gave him 24 hours to leave the country.

CLOSE SHAVE

When the engine on a U.S. Air Force C-54 went wild over the muskeg of northern Alberta, it hurled its propeller into the side of the plane. The three six-foot blades gouged out a huge hole, put the hydraulic system out of commission and chewed up a cargo of food being flown to Alaska. Without instruments and only three engines running, Capt. P. M. Woods of Louisiana nursed the craft 100 miles back to Edmonton where he brought it down safely without brakes or landing flaps. — (CP from National Defence.)

Ottawa Skier Killed, Crashes Into Tree

(By The Canadian Press)

A young Ottawa skier died in hospital Saturday after crashing head-long into a tree during a ski tournament. He was one of nine persons who died violent deaths in eastern Canada during the weekend.

Paul Allen, 21-year-old university or Ottawa student, suffered a fractured skull when he crashed into a tree while competing in a downhill race. It was the first skiing fatality in eastern Canada this season and the first time a skier died of injuries suffered in competition in the Ottawa district.

Eight of the nine deaths were reported from Ontario, with the ninth resulting from a level-crossing accident in Quebec. No fatalities were reported from the Maritimes.

Traffic accidents accounted for four of the eight Ontario fatalities. A Toronto baby was strangled by his carriage harness, a Hamilton man was asphyxiated by coal-gas fumes, an Ingersoll man died after being struck on the head by a baseball bat.

At Ingersoll, 62-year-old William Wells died in hospital Saturday after being struck on the head. Police, who said the blow was struck during an argument over noise made by a neighbor's children, arrested Charles Metcalf, 27, on a manslaughter charge.

Three Killed by Cars

Three persons were killed when struck by cars while walking along roads. They were Ronald George McDonald, 71, of Northfield Station, near Cornwall; Josef Staluch, 34, Ottawa district farmhand; and George Emmons, 65, of Stoney Creek, Ont.

Kenneth Carville, 22, of Toronto was killed when an automobile in which he was riding plunged off a road in North Toronto and struck a tree.

At Hamilton, a 78-year-old bachelor, Albert Chanter, was asphyxiated Saturday by coal-gas fumes from a faulty heater in his kitchen, and in Toronto 61-months old Harold Bernstein was strangled Sunday when he became entangled in a harness designed to hold him in his carriage.

Killed in Quebec was Lionel Tremblay, 24-year-old truck driver whose vehicle collided with a Canadian National Railways passenger train at Dorion.

Bisons, Barons Sitting Pretty On Top Rungs

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo and Cleveland are sitting pretty atop their respective sections in the waning American Hockey League schedule.

Buffalo, leaders of the eastern division, downed the second-place Hershey squad 6-3 to show a 10-point advantage. Cleveland, top team in the western section, suffered a 6-4 defeat at the hands of the second-place Indianapolis team but still sports a healthy 20-point advantage.

The Bisons whipped the Bears before 6,776 in Memorial Stadium.

Grant (Knobby) Warwick turned the hat trick for the Bisons. Gordon Pennell, Don Ashbee and Sid McNabney were the other Buffalo scorers.

Norm Corcoran, Frank Marshey and Jack McIntyre tallied for Hershey.

At Providence the Reds played a 2-2 overtime tie with Cincinnati Mohawks before 4,317 fans.

Two minutes before the finish, the Reds took out goalie Harvey Bennett to attack with six forwards and the strategy paid off when Jack Stoddard scored on the face-off. Pete Kaputa scored the other Providence goal in the second period.

Mohawks' scorers were Paul Masnick and Fern Perrault.

Enio Selitsri, Steve Kraftcheck, Larry Wilson, Joe Carveth, Fred Glover and Johnny Wilson scored one each for the Caps while Joe Lund, Ric Huller, Freddy Thurler and Wally Hergesheimer were Cleveland's marksmen.

In Saturday's games, Hershey downed Buffalo 6-3, Cincinnati shaded Springfield 4-3, Cleveland downed Indianapolis 7-6 and Pittsburgh swamped St. Louis 7-2.

FACES MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Ingersoll, Feb. 26 (CP)—Facing a manslaughter charge arising out of the death Saturday morning of 62-year-old William Wells, Charles J. Metcalfe, 27 was remanded to Woodstock Jail Saturday to await preliminary hearing. It is alleged Wells died from a blow on his head Friday night by a baseball bat in the hands of the accused who occupied an adjoining apartment.

An autopsy on the body was performed Sunday by Dr. J. L. Penston of Stratford.

Wells is survived by his widow, a son Harold Hayes, Toronto, and a sister, Elizabeth Wells, Cobourg.

Hotel Will Be Rebuilt

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP)—Charles Davis, owner of the Frontenac Hotel whose second and third floors were gutted in a four-hour blaze Friday night and early Saturday said Sunday rebuilding will start this week.

Neither owner Davis nor manager S. J. Kingsley could give any estimate on damage to the structure which had an assessed value of $62,000. But inspection Sunday showed the entire third floor and roof as well as parts of the second floor would require rebuilding. Water damage to the rest of the structure appeared to be heavy.

More than three feet of water was pumped out of the basement of the building Saturday.

Mission Work in Korea Keeps Churches Alive

By CYNTHIA LOWEY

Dr. John Thompson Peters, representing the Interdenominational National Council of Churches of Christ, recently surveyed Korea, relief needs and returned heartened and inspired by the church work in progress among millions of homeless.

"The women among the missionaries' families were returned to Japan at the beginning of trouble," Dr. Peters said, "but most of the men stayed—except those who were too old or in poor health. We found these men leaders of large groups of nationals. They gathered their people together, moved them in groups south when necessary, distributed supplies and acted as liaison between the Koreans and the military establishment.

"The people themselves are continuing to gather for worship —out of doors when necessary. We were distressed to see the destruction of property— missions churches, schools and hospitals— but we were immeasurably impressed by the faith and spirit of these Christians in a time of peril and serious physician need."

Throughout the period of red domination north of the 38th parallel the communists worked systematically to discourage and stamp out Christian religious activity.

Christianity Lives

"The communists killed off the Christian leaders—most of them nationals," Dr. Peters said. "In Pyongyang for instance, we know that 60 percent of the pastors were killed — 35 Presbyterian pastors, 13 Methodist pastors and six Roman Catholics."

Various methods were used in the drive to eliminate Christianity. School children, for instance, were kept in their day schools all Christmas eve and night to prevent their attending religious exercises. A pledge of allegiance to the communist government was required. Those who refused to sign were "liquidated," Dr. Peters said.

"In Pyongyang where a theological seminary flourished, communists put red teachers on the staff with the regular teachers," he continued.

"There were 600 students at the seminary last May. When they sought to have them sign the oath of allegiance, 480 of the students walked into the hills and became guerrilla fighters. The Christianity of these people is a strong, living force."

Special Appeal

During the Lenten season, 22 denominational groups of the Protestant Church, under the banner of the United Appeal for Christian Service, will collect, at church services, special funds to carry on relief work among refugees. No goal has been set, but it is hoped the campaign will bring in close to $10,000,000 — most of which will go to helping Korean refugees.

Dr. Peters said that there were between four and five million refugees— many of them North Koreans who managed to escape south of the parallel during the month or so of the successful allied drive.

"Most of the relief work among the refugees is undertaken by the military, under United Nations direction," Dr. Peters explained.

"At the outset of the war, our missionaries were distributing supplies—cotton, blankets, food, medical supplies — from our stockpiles in Korea and in Japan as we contribute to the United Nations supplies. But one of the big needs for the Korean refugees is money. There were good crops in Korea this year, and they were able to harvest much of it. There is food in South Korea if there is money to buy it."

Princess of Gratzen

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

"You left someone there whom you cannot easily forget."

"I do not know if it is that." She did not seem to be thinking of him. She was frowning. "I do not know what it is, but there was something—the beginning of something."

"Perhaps I understand," said Roger.

"I do not think so." She smiled then, a brief, swift smile that lighted all the dusk like a firefly's lamp. "Ah, how could you? I do not myself understand it."

But she was thinking, as she walked back with Roger to where they heard the children's voices, of the winding streets of Gratzen of the Inn of Cog d'or, of an August day so much like this had been, of a tall youth with a rucksack on his back, who had come to a face with her as he walked out of the tavern. They had both stopped. She could still recall that moment, relive every second of it. His eyes were blue in his thin brown face and his youth so white when he smiled. "Are you real?" he said. "Is this place real?"

It was a fair day in Gratzen and ——what madness had possessed her!. She had gone to the fair with him and together they had laughed at the puppet shows and ridden on the carrousel and eaten buns and drunk milk and walked up the steep road to the castle in the moonlight. And there in the courtyard he had taken her hand in his and said, "I knew this would be the end of the story. It's Cinderella in reverse, isn't it? The clock strikes twelve and the little maid becomes the golden princess and the peasant boy goes back down the dusty road. It is so, is it not?"

"It is so, but—"

"And there is no 'but.'" He kissed the little brown fingers that he held in his. "There is only good-by."

She was remembering all that now as she walked through the moon-shadowed garden with Roger. Fabre in this strange silent land, so vast, so awful in its immensity, far away from her own little country. She was seeing the tall youth with the rucksack on his back and the stout stick in his hand go swinging down the hill road from the castle, Michel. It was the only name he had given her—Michel.

"It is so long since I went shopping," said madame, "that those who waited on me, if not supporting tombstones, are being supported by pensions; so I shall take Meridel and the little ones to Montreal and see that they buy the things they need. Right now they are like scarecrows."

"But madame—"

The old lady ignored Rudolph. It was understood that he was to come to her once each day for orders and places of operation. Madame did all the talking and Rudolph, for all the attention paid his few timid suggestions, might just as well have talked to the stone statues in the park.

"What Meridel learns the truth I am afraid she will despise me. I am only an imposter, a fraud and presently the German came out. We could see his face now as he walked toward us."

"He passed so near to me that I could almost touch him," said Pol Martin. "He was young like you, Monsieur Roger. We hated him then and when we crept to a cottage window after he had gone and looked in and saw our Bonhomme Fricot lying dead on the floor—"

"Then—run—run quickly—for they were coming over. this home, a bomb set fire to the cottage, and men were parachuting down. All that night we ran when it was safe to do so. Then we met an old peasant with his cart and he started us on the road to Paris and there Meridel found us. It was God who helped her to find us and bring us here."

"Yes," said Roger softly and his eyes were steady on Rudolph's. "It was indeed God who helped."

"And He will take care of Bonhomme Fricot up in Heaven," said Rodhe, "And punish the one who killed him. Bonhomme Fricot was bent and his beard was long. He would harm no one."

"It is murder to kill like that," said Pol Martin. "There is blood on the smile on this one old after—"

"It is done with now. Finished, Rudolph!" said Roger.

Madame requests that you be ready within the hour—you, too, M. Roger—you are going to Montreal."

"The princess, too?" Roger sat eagerly.

But naturally, during the pleasant ride to the city, made Roger sit in front with the chauffeur of the ancient car. Her bright black eyes glittered impishly. "Later —a princess may wish to ride up the Mount in a barouche, and perhaps you'd like to go with her.

"Ay tell me it is lovely up there —a marvelous vista and the stars very close to one."

"Would you like that, Meridel?" Roger asked. "It is really very beautiful."

"But yes. I should love that, indeed, I have not been on a real mountain since I left Gratzen. I shall look forward to it."

And so, in the warm langorous evening they drove up the mountain and Roger told held of Malaneuve, of the golden history of the great city whose countless lights glittered in the dusk. "You will be happy, Meridel—here among us. It is a friendly land, a friendly people. It is not an easy country, no place for the lotus eaters but, if you love it, you will find that it is kind to you."

"That I have found already, Roger. It has been more than kind to me. I have found more of comfort and luxury than I ever had in Gratzen." She smiled, her teeth gleaming whitely. "There we were poor, though we lived in a castle, and often ate bread pudding from gold plate and the royal car was one of the earliest models made in France."

A mercy madame didn't see it, mused Roger; she have wanted it for herself. He grinned, recalling the face of the new chauffeur as he steered along St. Catherine Street amid the applause of the multitude.

"Uncle Rudi must be a very ...ithy man," said Meridel.

"Eh? Oh—why, yes, of course. ...d never need to worry about ...oney any more. It's a pity you ...ere had to—"

"I'm not so sure, I thought that when I came to Canada, I should find some work to do, get a job for myself and be useful in the world."

"I—" Roger's lips were dry. "Id like—"

But they were at the top of the Mount now and the barouche had stopped and the obsequious coach man was assisting a very much-made-of mademoiselle alight. For a long while they stood looking down in silence at the city, at the blue lake and the star-spangled sky over the Adirondacks.

"It is lovely," she said, "so lovely, so serene. Nothing will ever come to shatter the peace o.. those skies?"

"Not in our time my dear. None of us have yet learned to thank God sufficiently for that. I am so glad you are here, Meridel, safe and cared for and happy. You are happy now, aren't you?"

"Happier than I ever dared hope in those days—"

"—I should like to make you happier still, if I may hope—"

She smiled at him, looked up at the broad shoulders that bulked above her, at his face, dark and lean-jawed, and so wise for one so young. Strange, swift world. They had met only last night and now he spoke to her of love. She could see his strong hands as they read it in the rough tones of his voice. But her heart was not yet receptive to love and she wondered if I would ever be again—and then at the moment of the night in Gratzen, so much like this, when she and the other youth, so young and glad and gay of heart, had climbed the mountain road to the castle.

But it was not in her to hurt him or discourage him. After all, he had risked his life to get Meridel and he would ride again. She had her hand on his arm and felt a tremor there and his strong fingers covered hers, small and cool and slender.

"You make my heart glad, Roger, But you do! What you would say always sweet to hear, but I—It is too soon for me. It seems of small importance—our own loves and hates, when hatred has become a side of the sea and love a vanished army."

"It is one of the things we can cling to—it seems to me. Cling to tenderly. But I'll be perhaps too soon, Meridel. After a little while —if there is left even a little love—"

"Do not think that way. There will be years and years. Your lifetime and mine."

"And so many to talk to you of love—as many others."

"There could be only one to whom I'd listen. I know that. I feel that my heart can be unlocked by only one key."

"I hope I have it. I have never before met anyone like you, any girl who made me feel as you have done. And the princess part has little to do with it."

"I am glad of that. You would have found me the same if I'd been a scullery maid!"

"Yes, by name."

She thought of Michel, who had been sad because she had changed from a peasant girl to a princess. As if it mattered, as if that should discourage him and drive him away as his family feared! As it had been different then, even though the old castle was already tottering on its rocky buttresses and the winds of change were rustling around its eaves.

They drove down the mountain and somehow he was not unhappy, though he had thought he was, say the things that were clamoring to be uttered. They wandered about the city, into places where Roger had never been before. Doors and windows were open the night was sultry, the air charged with the threat of thunder. From a little basement restaurant the music of a violin and a piano came tillingly up to them and Meridel's fingers closed hard on his wrist as she stopped. "Listen, Roger! Listen, like one lost in a dark wood who hears the winding of a golden horn.

"It is a song of Gratzen," she said. "It is a song of my people! Come—come quickly, please!"

Roger, sharing her eagerness, followed her down the steps into the little taproom. It reeked to be three-quarters filled by the huge man in a white apron who came forward to meet them, a wide smile on his ruddy face. He stopped suddenly and his little shoe-button eyes all but popped from their cushions of fat. "Gracious Lady Highness! It is you! ...ee here—here!" And, by some miracle, he bowed low until they saw only the shiny bald pate fringed by long white locks.

The boy and girl left plate and fiddle and came to stand behind him and bend low in an Old-World courtesy.

"My friends!" Meridel's voice was gentle, her eyes shone. She stretched out her hands to them and they kissed the white fingers reverently. "Jules Goujon—Jules of the Cog d'Or, and little Jean and little Magda." She looked fondly on the old man and his grandchildren. Their mother was dead, they father would be fifty if life were kind to him yet. "It is so good—so good to find you here, my friends, my own people."

"It is like seeing heaven, Highness. You will sit, yes, please, and this gallant gentleman—he is my inn."

Roger, too, received a royal welcome. The little blonde Magda, the pale dark Emil played for them, Meridel leading. Jules brought them his best Chamberlin and hovered around them, strutting in his native tongue, ...eaking in English when Meridel addressed him.

"Good—it is good, this Canada" he said. "Here we can hope to build our happiness once again. You, Princess, are well here?"

"Well, indeed, Jules—and Pol Martin and little Rosine. We live at a grand chateau, Phillbert, which belongs to Uncle Rudi, who is a very great man here and very rich. You will remember the Inn Rudi, my friend?"

"Well I remember him, Highness," said Jules, thinking only of the long, unsettled score chalked behind the bar of ...r inn in that far-off land. "It is ...ll he would be doing, the baron. ...m happy that the world has used him well. Tell him he is always welcome at my inn, which I call too, the Cog d'or in memory of old times."

"Old times—do you recall, my good friend, the time I came to your tavern—a fair day—with the tall, red-headed one, and we had dinned together—roast goose it was—"

Subway Crowds Trapped for Time Underground

New York, Feb. 24 — (AP) — Thousands of subway riders, jammed sardine-like into rush hour trains, were trapped underground — some only briefly — by a power failure last night on the Flushing line. There was no panic. Three hundred passengers in one stalled train waited an hour, then walked a quarter of a mile through lined up trains to get out. A few minutes after they had labored to freedom, the current was restored.

Once upon a time, there was a writes like "Bound to Rise" and "Strive and Succeed" were very popular indeed. Almost all Alger's stories told of a poor boy who saved a rich man from serious injury or worse.

And, always, the poor boy became rich himself . . .

Today, we are not at all sure this is the best way to get rich. Rich men are few. And most of them seem quite competent at keeping from under the feet of runaway horses or automobiles.

However, all of us confidently feel we are "Bound to Rise." Our desire is to "Strive and Succeed." And we feel one of the best ways to do this is by opening a Savings Account with The Dominion Bank. U.S. REGIMENT CRACKS MAIN RED DEFENCES

Missing Clementis Of Czechoslovakia Now Under Arrest

Former Communist Minister Accused of Spying For West

London Mayor, Police Chief Meet, Disagree

Prague, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Vlado Clementis (Czechoslovakia's, former foreign minister who has been missing since Jan. 27, today was officially reported under arrest as a spy for the west.

Six other communist party leaders were charged with defections and expelled either from party or government office. At least four of them apparently are under arrest.

Their misdeeds were revealed in the official report of the Czech communist party central committee Feb. 21 which was released today. The report said Clementis had been arrested and thrown out of the communist party and the National Assembly.

Those accused with Clementis were;

Gustav Husak, chairman of the provincial cabinet of Slovakia, and Laco Novomesky, Slovak education commissioner, both arrested as accomplices of Clementis.

Otto Sling, ousted party political secretary in the Brno region, and Mrs. Marie Svermova, former deputy secretary-general of the party and widow of communist resistance hero Jan Sverma. Sling is now also charged as Anglo-American Intelligence. Mrs. Svermova as his accomplice. Their arrest had been reported previously.

Karol Smidke, former chairman of the Slovak provincial parliament, termed "pathologically ambitious" and accused of cutting himself off from the people.

Armed Forces Minister deputy chairman of a Slovakia regional party committee, was realized for "dictator-like methods of work and for supporting inimical elements among the staff."

The announcement outlined these charges against Clementis:

PAY RECORD IN WAGES

Detroit, Feb. 27.—(AP)—General Motors paid a record $1,809,218,043 last year in wages and salaries. This compared with $1,-490,490,430 in 1949. Average hourly rate prior to distribution of its 1950 annual report, the corporation said it was due largely to a greater number of employees on G.M.'s payrolls working steadily and to such substantial amounts of overtime.

Snow-Blind Hunter Tells of 300-Mile Trek in Search For Lost Trapper

Beaver Pass, B. C., —(CP)— Swirling snows have erased the footprints of a lone man on a futile 200-mile struggle through the vast no-man's land of the Swift River Watershed.

But none of us will ever forget our odyssey. It started as a mission of mercy and ended up in a battle for our own lives.

All of us, five men in search of a missing trapper, say we are lucky to be alive.

One member of our party was buried under an avalanche. We dug him out with our bare hands.

Another fell through the ice on lake, while the temperature was 60 below zero. We hauled over cracking ice to rescue him.

The story starts Feb. 19 at the nearby village of Windjam, about 270 miles northeast of Vancouver. We left to search for trapper James Skokan, who didn't make his scheduled grub trip. No one had seen him for more than two months.

(Skokan came to British Columbia from Esterhazy, Sask.)

We loaded up with provisions and metal supplies. The five of us started out—J. Brayn, mercahant and prospector; E. Holmes, game warden; A. Jessop, R.C.M.P. constable; and an Indian trapper.

We headed around Wingdam Mountain, bound for Skokan's nearest line camp, about 30 miles to the north. It was an eight-hour trudge. We found the cabin deserted.

This ended hopes of early success. It meant a thorough search of the whole area. We started on Wednesday morning we struck at the heart of the wilderness, where snow reached a depth of 15 feet and mountain winds howled constantly.

That day constable Jessop was buried under an avalanche while we threaded through a narrow canyon. He was unharmed but it took two hours to dig him free.

Until the fourth day it was drudgery, then we became lost in a blizzard. Our compass was out of order. The wind covered our tracks as fast as we made them. Retreat was impossible.

We sighted wolverine tracks as the storm abated. By some blind instinct we followed them. They led us to a deserted cabin.

There, we regained our bearings and the next day we started out. It was then we crossed the lake. Holmes, leading the group, fell through the "rotten" ice. By that time rescues were routine. "We carried him to shore and built a huge bonfire to dry his clothes.

We then gave up hope of finding Skokan and made for home. We stumbled on another of his line camps where we found his sleeping bag and some clothing. A thorough search of the area proved fruitless.

We reached home Saturday and constable Jessop made his official report:

"James Skokan, trapper, lost, presumed dead."

CABINET WANTS INDUSTRY MORE WIDELY SPREAD

St. Laurent Says Govt. Aiming to That End

Ottawa, Feb. 27—(CP)— The Canadian government believes it would be "healthier" if more industry were more widely spread through all parts of the country.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons yesterday that the government explores every angle by which a greater dispersal of industry can be brought about. But he indicated that because big government believes in private enterprise it does not attempt to tell a company where to build plants or where to conduct business.

"We think it would be healthier for the country if there was the teeming activity in the maritime provinces that would follow such developments," he said. "We do endeavor to do away with things, for instance as Maritime freight subsidies. We think it would be better for the country if that could be brought about, and we do give attention to it. We do endeavor to use such influence as we have to that end."

Mr. St. Laurent spoke on a resolution sponsored by Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South). It urged the government to consider a program for the decentralization of industry.

Life of 1950 Markers Extended To March 20th

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Highways Minister Doucette today announced a further extension to midnight March 20 to market the life of 1950 automobile permits and drivers' licences.

The announcement came one day before the previous deadline of midnight tomorrow, and while motorists were forming long lines at issuing offices to get their licences plates.

Mr. Doucette said the extension was granted to relieve the strain on the staff, which is short-handed due to outbreaks of colds and influenza. He said it was also practically impossible for the staff to complete the job to handle the last-minute rush.

Five Children Burned to Death At Sullivan, Que.

Parents and Three Other Children Escape From Home

Val d'Or, Que., Feb. 27 (CP) —Five children were burned to death early today when fire destroyed their parents' home at nearby Sullivan. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. William LeJeune, and three other children escaped.

The dead are: Willie LeJeune, 15; Robert, 12; Richard, 11; Gloria, 7; and Maria Martha, 6.

The children who escaped are Pearl, 11, twin sister of Richard; Diane, 10; and Ludger, 8.

The first word of the fire came when the three surviving children ran screaming down the main street of Sullivan, a small community in this northwestern Quebec mining district.

Three Trucks Car Involved In Accident

Kingston, Feb. 27 — (CP) — One person was injured early today in a highway mishap involving three trucks and an automobile on Highway No. 2 at nearby Cataraqui.

The accident happened when the rear dual wheels of a trailer truck broke, sending the trailer into the front of an auto moving in the opposite direction. The auto skidded into a parked truck while the transport continued on, hitting a third truck and other moving truck before stopping.

Edward Snowden of Kingston, driver of the car, was taken to hospital with face lacerations and a knee injury. The other drivers were not injured.

The transport was on an overnight run from Toronto.

KILLED BY CAR

Hamilton, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Seventy-three-year-old Henry Slavin was killed by a car at Main and Walnut streets early today. He was the fifth major traffic casualty in Hamilton this year.

Seven Injured As Floor of Bureau Collapses

Welland, Feb. 27 (CP)—Seven persons were injured here today when the floor of the local Auto Licence Bureau collapsed, catapulting 14 persons into a grease pit below.

The office was a small lean-to, attached to a local garage and had been used by the Auto Licence issuer, Samuel Tennant, several years ago.

About 14 persons had crowded into the small office to escape inclement weather.

Mr. Tennant said that ordinarily the applicants for auto licences formed a line outside the building.

Most seriously injured were Mrs. Robert Chaffey, Crowland, who suffered a bruised shoulder and Mrs. Joseph Rozmik, Welland, who sustained a gash in her leg. They were treated at the nearby office of Dr. W. W. Snelling. Five other persons received minor cuts and bruises.

Among those who fell into the pit were a mother and her baby. Both escaped injury. All victims of the accident, spilled out of other applicants were covered with grease stains.

HAD CLOSE CALL

Toronto, Feb. 27—(CP)—Leslie Saunders, member of Toronto's four-man board of control, had a close call with death in Toronto's National Railways passenger train swept past the car bumper after crossing gates were prematurely raised at an east-end level-crossing.

"The first car just made it by the skin of the teeth," said one motorist. Then the car driven by Controller Saunders. "A truck coming close behind just managed to stop in time as the train swept between them."

Hastings County, N. Ontario Leaders in Iron Ore Production

Legislature Members Told

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Northern Ontario iron ore development at Steep Rock and Michipicoten, together with the new high-grade iron ore production in Central Ontario's Hastings County, will give the province leadership in iron production, the legislature was told yesterday.

Mines Minister Gemmell, in a report to the House during the Throne Speech debate, predicted Ontario will be producing 10,000,000 tons of iron ore a year "within a short time".

Expanding production of all metals, now at the rate of more than $350,000,000 a year, would soon double the cumulative total of $6,000,000,000 for the first half of the century, the minister said.

Mr. Gemmell, member for Sudbury, dropped his optimism only when dealing with the gold mining industry, saying that between fixed prices and rising costs.

"I foresee no boom days in the near future will bring good news from the standpoint of the price of the gold mining industry."

The legislature today continues the Throne Speech debate, which is expected to end Friday with votes on two opposition amendments to the reply to the speech from the throne—a C.C.F. motion of non-confidence and a Liberal motion of non-confidence.

Yesterday the House was told by Premier Frost that he will bring down his budget for the coming year a week from today — March 6.

The legislature also heard Agnes Macphail (C.C.F.-York East) criticize the province's normal schools, and heard appeals from both sides of the House for additional steel production.

Ninth By Premier

Next week's budget will be the ninth by Mr. Frost, who has been premier of Ontario since his party came into power in 1943. Details of the budget are closely guarded. Mr. Frost has yet to announce a deficit, however.

Surplus in the fiscal year ending last March 31 was $1,004,000—not including bonus grants of $3,000,000 to hospitals. The previous year the surplus totalled more than $20,000,000. The budget a year ago forecast a $168,030 surplus and next week will show how the province will stand to the mark.

Premier Frost has declared himself opposed to entering the field of sales taxation, but his revenues are expected to be bolstered by increasing amounts from succession duties, income-producing fields—motor licences and gasoline taxes, liquor profits and corporation taxes. It remains to be seen how large a slice rising costs will take from these.

Miss Macphail, herself a teacher before entering a long parliamentary career, criticized the province's normal schools in Toronto and the Toronto Normal School in particular.

She declared that the Toronto school, converted from an old public school, was "a disgrace to the Province of Ontario and unworthy of the teaching profession". Other normal schools were bad, but it was the worst.

BELLEVILLE GETS HYDRO REBATE OF $27,061

Due to Increased, Unexpected Revenue

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP) — The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario today rebate of approximately $3,342,903 to municipalities as a result of increased and unexpected revenue in the last year, Commission Chairman T. H. Saunders announced today.

Speaking to a joint meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association and the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities, Mr. Saunders said that although increased demand brought many problems for hydro it also brought much unexpected revenue.

A substantial portion of this money would be paid to municipalities — with the exception of the town of Kingston and one area in the Thunder Bay district—to assist in rehabilitation and other needed work. He discussed applications for rate reductions.

Belleville will be: Port Arthur $34,471, Barrie $13,196, Owen Sound $26,090, Belleville $27,061, Bowmanville $13,058, Brampton $14,678, Brighton $2,926, East York Township $37,769, Galt $32,-—, Kingston $60,470, Kitchener $82,262, Lindsay $18,741, Niagara Falls $37,496, Ottawa $57,317, Oshawa $83,013, St. Catharines $70,237.

Increase Not Needed

Mr. Saunders repeated an earlier announcement that it would not be necessary to institute a five-per-cent increase in rates which had been scheduled for last Jan. 1.

He spoke of the program of converting power in the central and western areas of the province from 25 to 60-cycle frequency, saying: "The Commission has completed the foundation construction of certain facilities from Niagara to Sudbury and power available to the various local systems this year."

Because of the great growth in the power load in the last year it was necessary to meet the load growth on the 25-cycle system as low as possible to avoid costs in later abandonment. The work was encouraging municipal systems to undertake the change to frequency conversion through local customers.

Equipment of 100,000 customers had been altered for 60-cycle power and the frequency conversion program began 16 months ago. Cost to the end of 1950 was $30,944,000 and covered 86,083 customers.

Power Demands

Mr. Saunders said that in 1950 hydro met the power demands of a rearmament program "the like of

Fear Cutting Wide Swath in Red Party Strength in Soviet Empire

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The fear that sweeps through the corridors of the iron curtain is to call-ing a wide swath in communist party strength in the Soviet empire. A weapon fashioned by Moscow itself now is being used on the most potent forces the west has in fighting the Kremlin.

Along with the announcement in communist - ruled Czechoslovakia that Vlado Clementis has been arrested with other top party leaders comes the news that the Czech government has lopped 170,000 persons from their rolls.

The operation is indicative of the drastic power-cleaning now in project countries. During the last year or so—by the communists' own figures—at least 500,000 communists have felt the sting of Moscow's lash, wielded in fear. The figure may be much higher—1,000,000 or more. None can say for certain.

Only yesterday, communist Hungary admitted it has lopped 190,000 from the party rolls and demoted another 150,000 to the status of candidates—persons not yet considered worthy of being full party members. The reasons usually were found to be "in the service of the enemy."

Rumania by the last count, and this was six months ago, had knocked 192,000 from the party rolls. Bulgaria—these figures were in. Pravda several months ago—has cut its party membership by as much as high — possibly 200,000 or more, and little Albania is always a question.

These figures are mostly out of date now, because the purge is continuing one. The parties are being reduced to the hard core.

What is the hard core? The communist parties in the satellite countries are in a dilemma today. Their constant references to the presence of "Titoist spies," "imperialist provocateurs" and "American agents" in their party ranks bespeak a mounting fear.

5 Counter-Attacks Also Repulsed In Same Sector

Commander Says Riflemen Taking 'Terrific Toll'

Tokyo, Feb. 27 (CP) —An American regiment cracked the main Korean communist defences on the east-central battlefront today after infantry men in the same sector smashed fifteen fierce red counter-attacks.

The reds were being chased 1 1-2 miles deeper into the wilderness.

"We have broken their main line of resistance," said Colonel William R. Quinn, commander of the U.S. 7th Division regiment that broke through the reds on the east-west highway from Pangnim to Wonju.

Quinn told AP correspondent Tom Stone that his riflemen and artillerymen were taking a "terrific toll" of the enemy. "Our casualties have been amazingly light," he added.

All along the central front United Nations forces are advancing steadily but cautiously.

The five Korean red counter-attacks were launched back by the the U.S. 2nd Division on the left flank of the 7th Division in pre-dawn darkness some 15 miles southeast of Hoengsong. The fighting, on a howling wind, lasted more than three hours.

Field dispatches reported it as one of the sharpest actions in the week-old renewal of the United Nations drive to kill, maim or capture Chinese and Korean reds south of parallel 38.

The counter-attacks launched by the U.S. 1st Marine Division — apparently has thwarted or delayed a Chinese counter-offensive by four to six armies.

Canadians With Americans

Canadians, as well as units of seven other countries, were reported serving with the Americans along the allied line. It stretches from Inchon on the Yellow Sea on the west coast to the east-central front town of Hoengsong, a strategic distance of 100 miles. Pangnim is 40 air miles from the east coast.

Reuters news agency reported that bombing and strafing jet-fighters of the Royal Canadian Air Force have destroyed communist railroad bridges in the north.

In Chipyong-ni, a rugged hilly region, artillery failed to move communist troops who had been in little valleys and machine run fire repeated attempts by Communists with trucks to take their positions, the Reuters dispatch from Eighth Army

Prince Mdivani Arrives Home

Los Angeles, Feb. 27 (AP) — Prince David Mdivani, the last of the fabulous "Marrying Mdivani" brothers, drove home yesterday. He had been reported missing since Friday.

Police, who had broadcast an all-points bulletin for the missing prince, said the matter is out of their hands.

Mdivani, 48, indicated he had been away on a short trip.

"I guess I should have told my wife I was not coming home over the weekend," he said. "It is most unfortunate."

His wife, Mrs. Virginia Sinclair Mdivani, adopted daughter of oil-magnate Harry Sinclair, said her husband, a Georgian prince, left their home on a business trip and hadn't been seen since, until yesterday.

headquarters said,

A U.S. army spokesman said 100,000 Chinese had been shifted into defence positions there and added that it would require several weeks for the reds to regroup for any drive against the allies.

Planned Withdrawal

AP correspondent Nate Polowetsky reported "all evidence" along the central front continued to point to a planned withdrawal" behind stubborn rearguard action.

The disclosure that the 1st Marine Division is during the drive in the mid-section of the central front was the first report of that type of action since fighting withdrawal from the Changjin Reservoir in December.

In Tuesday's action, they seized commanding hills south and southeast of rubbled Hoengsong. The town has become a no man's land with communists on the hills to the north.

Earlier field dispatches said a Marine patrol entered the eastern outskirts of Hoengsong.

A Canadian infantry team slipped through the fire-blackened town under covering artillery and tank fire to help Australian Ammul Creek on the south side.

Field correspondent Stan Swinton, with the Marines, reported that blowing the bridge was regarded as a further evidence of Chinese determination to hold firm before Hoengsbon.

A South Korean force clashed with two Chinese companies before it took a little valley north of song, on the Mariner left flank.

Low clouds and poor visibility limited Allied air force operations Tuesday to 113 sorties, with close support of ground forces concentrated on the east-central sector.

But four waves of B-29 superfortis rained 130 tons of fire bombs on the barracks in North Korea 35 miles north of Pyongyang, the red capital. The bombers met light anti-aircraft fire.

Do Not be in Hurry To Answer Phone

Ladies, don't be in a hurry to answer the telephone—especially if you are outside hanging out the weekly wash.

Look what happened a West Hill lady yesterday.

She was pinning up the wash when the phone tinkled. She ran to the door, stopped and placed the washbasket on the stoop.

Returning from the call she accidentally stepped in the basket, crashed to the ground and fractured a bone in a foot. She also burst a small blood vessel.

P.S. When she answered the call she discovered it was a "wrong number."

Mohawk Trapper Attends 3-Day Govt. Conference

Fifteen trappers, eight Indians and seven whites, some of whom had never ridden in or seen an elevator, a streetcar or a taxi cab have returned to their traplines in various parts of the province after attending a 3-day Toronto conference with officials of the Ont. Department of Lands and Forests.

Among the Indians was Anos Brant, a Mohawk of the Tyendinaga Band of the Six Nations, of Deseronto. He is a descendant of the historically famous Chief Joseph Brant, who aided the British during the American Revolutionary War.

Another was Angus Miles, a young Cree Indian who journeyed all the way from Fort Severn on the shores of Hudson's Bay to attend the meeting. He has flown over 500 miles snowbound wilderness and then embarked on his first train ride of 1100 miles, from Pickle Lookout to Toronto.

As he knew little English, Miles had his contribution to the conference written down on paper in the strange syllables of the Cree tongue. Fellow members of his race interpreted for him.

Harold R. Scott, Minister, Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, presented each trapper with a hunting knife, suitably inscribed, in memento of the occasion, following the completion of the conference on February 18.

TORONTO STOCKS

Activity was quite slow, however, and like the drop of last week there was no big rush to sell. Volume for the first three hours of 947,000 shares was about 22,000 shares more than yesterday.

Industrials declined from fractions to more than $1. Steels led the way with a wide list of issues lower and papers utilities, agriculture, liquors, refining oils, base textiles and golds were shown a majority of losses in the groupings. Construction, foods and manufacturing companies were fairly mixed.

Noranda paced base metals downward with a $2.75 drop to 280. Consolidated Smelters $1, Waite Amulet and Quemont 3-8, International Nickel 1-3 and Falconbridge and United Keno Hill 38.

Senior golds dipped fractions and junior producers showed a goide list of penny losers.

Forage Crops Discussed By Delegates

Belleville, Feb. 27 — How to make two or more blades of grass grow where one grew before was the subject of this morning's discussions at the Veterans' Land Act conference in session here at the Hotel Quinte.

The discussion on forage crops this morning was led by the officials of the Kingston region, under the direction of regional supervisor A. H. Macaulay, and tied in with the talks on soils given yesterday afternoon by the Ottawa regional officials.

Working in pairs, the Kingston settlement officers dealt with pasture mixtures, supplementary and emergency pastures, grass in farm rotations, and the cost of producing protein and other digestible nutrients in hay, silage and pasture.

The cheapest and most efficient method of harvesting forage crops is the cow's own four-inch cuttingbar, said R. H. L. Wilson, Campbellford, A. R. Wilson, Peterborough added that it is the most profitable source of feed for the dairy farmer, supplying about one-third of his needs at one-seventh or less of the cost for other feeds.

Maintain Soil Fertility

Speaking on supplementary and emergency pastures, the Peterborough official said that the best idea is to eliminate the need for special July-August pastures by selecting grass mixtures and thus maintaining soil fertility. However, if they are necessary, oats, oats and peas, oats and sudan grass, oats and sweet clover and other annuals were suitable.

"Fall rye can be used to extend the pasture season at both ends and ploughed down in time for a corn crop," Mr. Wilson said. He advised an application or nitrogen at the same time to hasten the decomposition of the turned-under rye.

No one seed mixture is suitable for all soil, moisture and climatic conditions, Mr. Creasman, Napanee, said, and the farmer can't afford to waste high-priced seed on soils to which it isn't suited. "The wise farmer," he said, "will purchase his seed early, inoculate the legumes and seed it on a well-prepared seed bed not too deep.

The main speaker at the afternoon session yesterday was W. B. George, Division of Chemistry, Soils and Fertilizers, Kemptville Agricultural School. His subject was the maintaining of adequate soil fertility with crop rotations. His theme was built around an eleven-year experiment carried out on a twelve-acre field on the farm of Dr. L. H. Newman, former Dominion Cerealist, at Merrickville, Ont.

Maximum Profit Obtained

A five year rotation — corn, oats, hay, hay and pasture — was followed on this field and the maximum profit was obtained from the plot that received an annual application of 250 pounds of fertilizer per acre, despite the heavier yields obtained on the plot which received, as a test, half a ton annually.

Through the courtesy of E. F. Dowy, Blenheim, Ont., a motion picture, Life For The Land, was shown illustrating the Graham-Hoeme plough, which isn't like the conventional plough at all but resembles the old-fashioned stiff-toothed cultivator.

Other speakers during the afternoon were settlement officers W. D. Bradley, Kingston, who discussed drainage, and S. J. McLeod, Martintown, whose subject was soil fertility with a balanced grass, clover and hay program.

This afternoon, under the direction of J. J. Lundy, Toronto regional supervisor, the settlement officers from the Toronto and Northern Ontario regions discussed hay, its feed value, suitable mixture, harvesting machinery and cost per ton of digestible nutrients.

Four-Man Traffic Patrol For School Children Will Be Handled by Police Com.

Trenton — (Special) — Mayor Kenneth Couch instructed town clerk O. W. Larry to notify the Trenton Police Commission advising that Council was in accordance with a four-man traffic patrol for the safety of Public School children.

He emphasized, however, that the responsibility of the patrol be turned over completely to the Commission.

Council made this decision at a regular monthly meeting in the town offices last night.

Earlier council favored having charge of the patrol but it was felt that demands on the patrol in another year would warrant expansion of the force and load the council down with extra work.

Five men covered the town department for the patrol jobs. They include Robert Brigham, James Lucier, W. Waterhouse, Howard Glover and Smith Green. It was understood that present clerk Bill Smith would substitute in the event one of the regular men was unable to perform his daily duty.

Only $1.25 Day Offered

Majority of the members of council felt that $1.25 per day offered traffic guards was the reason more applications were not received. Only two men are over 60.

Council decided to spend $65 for a half page advertisement in the MacLean Hunter Business Review.

Councillor Norman Banfield reminded council of the previous Trenton Community Centre to be sponsored by the local Kinsmen Club. Permission to be granted to appoint two council members to the committee meeting now being set up. Mayor Couch announced he was discussing it with the Kinsmen's proposal. He suggested Councillors Banfield and Allister Cook attend the next planning board. Mr. Couch suggested that the Club acquire the same amount of money before going ahead with the building. Councillor Bantfield pointed out that the Kinsmens Club had put their sights on $170,000 for the construction of the civic centre.

Sporting Facilities

Present plans for the centre include roller skating, curling, ice hockey and other sporting facilities. Seating capacity has been set at 2,000 with accommodation for another 1,500 standing.

Council discussed installing an additional phone in the fireball. Now it is felt the one line into the hall is not adequate. Town clerk Larry is investigating the matter.

Mayor Couch again complained about town workmen shirking on the job. He reported seeing municipal trucks half loaded with brush on the way to the town dump. He figured extra trips were creating an unnecessary waste of gasoline. He brought his complaint to the attention of town engineer Rex Davey who was asked about the town foreman's efficiency. Mr. Davey blamed low pay to the foreman encouraged ineffectiveness. He said a good man should be paid $3600 a year. If you expect the work done you've got to pay the price, he pointed out.

No Objection

Council had no objection to an appropriation of $3600 for continuance of Recreation Commission activities. However, Chairman of Finance Ryan O.K.d the allotment stating he would not favor exceeding the appropriation. When the Commission asked Council for a similar amount last year it was understood that they would stand on their own feet thereafter. It was mentioned that Director Jack Dean was paid $2800 salary and had $300 car expenses and another amount not specified, and $200 for incidental expenditures.

Scrap Dealer Jack Zigman will be surprised that he will be protected against metal dealers from the Kingston area who are not licensed. Council commended Mr. Zigman on the splendid job he had done cleaning up the Division and Front street eye sore. Mr. Zigman wrote a letter to council asking for assistance.

Operate Mobile Canteen

Reg. J. Martin, ex-serviceman was granted permission to operate a mobile canteen about Trenton subject to sanitary inspection. Councillor Sutherland objected citing complaints he had heard about City of Belleville canteens. Mayor Couch insisted that council should not stand in the way of a man trying to make an honest living.

Councillor Banfield was appointed to interview School Nurse Haslam regarding O.H.E. Dr. McQuade's recommendation that dental inspection be introduced in public schools. Councillor Banfield suggested advantages of putting florine in the water to check tooth decay be investigated.

Instructions were issued to advertise for a dog catcher who would supply his own pound.

Asked To Get Estimates

Clerk Larry was asked to get estimates on new lighting installations for the Trenton Arena and the town hall.

Council moved that both the M.O.H. and police chief be complimented on their annual reports.

Engineer Rex Davey informed council that 30 new stop signs intended for Trenton intersections this year would cost the town $1400. Councillor Ryan figured the price was cheap. Mayor Couch asked the town engineer to be sure to include in his budget cost of erecting a stop sign that has been sitting in a barrel on the corner of Wragge and Dufferin streets since the street was widened last year. "Engineers does not look business-like," said the mayor commenting on the sign in the barrel.

Lt.-Gen. W. E. Kepner said in an interview that "we are no pushovers and anyone who thinks he can walk in and take Alaska is in for a rude awakening."

Past Presidents' And Founders' Night Observed

"It was founder's and past-presidents' night at the local Kinsmen Club Monday evening, when Belleville Kinsmen, along with over 9,000 other club members across Canada, paid tribute to Hal Rogers, founder of their service club organization.

The Kinsmen Club was founded 31 years ago in the city of Hamilton and has since grown until there are now a total of 328 clubs with a membership expected to reach nearly 10,000 by year's end.

Past presidents of the Belleville club had charge of last night's meeting, which saw Harry McLean, national director, as guest speaker for the evening. Past president Cleo Codling presided over the meeting, while several of the past presidents, including Bill McIntosh, the local club's first president, Bill Hurst and Geoff Marshall were called upon briefly.

Moment's Silence

A moment's silence in remembrance of the late B. C. "Barney" Sisler, charter member of the first Kinsmen Club, was observed. Mr. Sisler who for several years was bank manager here, died in a new York hospital on Western Ontario.

Steering of the minds of youth in the right direction was stated by Mr. McLean to be one of the future responsibilities for Kinsmen Clubs across Canada. "Many youths today were being schooled in communism," he said.

"Democracy may not be the best system, but it is the best that we know," Mr. McLean said. "Let us turn our dreams into action and apply the principles of youth in the right direction."

A former Kinsmen, Phil Hudgens, officiated at the piano playing several selections for the enjoyment of members. Other entertainment included violin solos by Bill McIntosh, a vocal solo by Ernie Coleborne and numbers by a quartette from the Kinsmen Boys' Band.

Make-up the quartet were Dave Branscombe, Don Lockyer, Reid Cook and Reginald Baldwin. Dave Branscombe later favored with a well received cornet solo. Band leader Al Cooper was a guest at the meeting and expressed his appreciation of what the club had done for the band members. He turned over to club president Ken Garbutt a cheque for $25 this being the prize money received by the band for winning their respective class.

The speaker was introduced by Norm Garbutt with thanks being expressed by Orlliff Lloyd. Ray Lennox was pianist with Ernie Colebourne as fine collecting

Red Cross One-Night Canvass Of Residential Parts of City To Take Place on March 15

"Operation Red Cross" will get under way in the city on the night of March 15th.

Starting at 7.30 that evening a small "army" of approximately 400 canvassers, 100 men and 300 ladies, will conduct a canvass for the Red Cross Campaign, that is hoped will complete the city quota of $9,000. The district quota is set at $13,000.

Minimum of Effort

The operation, it is hoped will be completed with a minimum of effort. The city has been zoned and the canvassers will be allotted their areas. No canvasser will be called upon to make more than twenty calls.

Advance canvasses such as special names and certain business places will have been made by that date. No canvass will be made of employees at industrial plants unless it is desired.

The city has given its permission for Red Cross Campaign officials to conduct the one-night drive. Headquarters will be located in schools and certain residences. Fire trucks will travel through the city and sound trucks will advise residents of the date and object of the drive.

Public Advised

The drive will start from local headquarters at 211 Pinnacle Street (Telephone 1956-M) and the general public will be advised of the progress made over Radio Station CJBQ.

Campaign Chairman Judge J. C. Anderson said today that buttons and cards will be given donors and attempts made to get the names of advance contributors in an attempt to avoid overlapping.

Canvassers are urgently needed and those desirous of assisting are asked to contact Red Cross headquarters or Mrs. Herbert McCabe campaign co-chairman. Canvassers will be required to work two nights only, one for instructional purposes and a subsequent night for the drive itself. Canvassers will start as a team and end that way.

Remember the date, March 15th.

He said the hydro commission must anticipate an over-all increase in power requirements by nearly 50 per cent, or 379,879 kilowatts, or 338,846 horsepower. Oshawa Allowed To Annex Large Tract of Land

Toronto, Feb. 27 —(CP)—A bill which will expand the city of Oshawa to more than four times its present size was approved today by the legislature's private bills committee.

T. K. Creighton representing the city said the bill will permit annexation of the entire south end of east Whitby township.

Since 1939 the area includes much farm land, the bill provides that the count of residents can exempt farm lands from special tax rates for local improvements.

Mr. Creighton said there was no opposition to the annexation which, he said will increase Oshawa's area to 14 square miles and add a population of more than 7,000.

THE DISMISSAL AMENDMENT

The proposed amendment to the Ontario Police Act will rob municipalities of one of their powers, but it may be all for the good. The amendment will remove the cause or clauses which permit the dismissal of police officers at the "pleasure" of the board of police commissioners.

Thus, order-in-council treatment will be given to police commissions ordering suspensions or dismissals of officers. The full effect of the legislation will be that any discrimination that might pop up within police department will not be allowed to get to the dismissal stage.

The attorney-general, Mr. Dana Porter, has refused to comment on the legislation. He was asked whether or not the new move was prompted by the inquiry into the dismissal of detective Allan Rush of London, but declined comment. There is no doubt, however, in the minds of the reading public, that the amendment was the child of the London affair.

Actually, it makes no difference. The mere fact that such an amendment was needed should have been enough to bring it long ago. London need have no qualms about its situation. The problem was bound to come to a head some time, somewhere.

No one disputes the fact that it is not right that a man in police uniform should be subject to the whims of any senior officer. Police officials operate for the protection of the public. They, too, should have some protection, both externali and internal.

A RECORD MARRED BY THREAT

There are two ways to elect governing bodies. One, the most desirable, is the way we do it in this country. A man can run for office. If he gets votes, he votes as he pleases. His franchise is built on a choice, and because his life does not directly depend on his presence at the polls, he may be a laggard.

The other way is not as desirable, but produces a higher percentage of votes. In recent Russian elections, 99.98 per cent of the eligible voters went to the polls to protect themselves. Of that total, 99.76 per cent voted for the self-appointed candidates.

There are three interesting facets of the results. First, 99.98 per cent is a remarkable record, and one which could only be obtained by persecution and threat. It is a figure that you will never equal in Canada because natural lethargy and disinterest always take their tolls in democratic elections.

Secondly, the 99.76 per cent of the voters who went to the polls cast their ballots for the Communist regime. Such a result in Canada, where there are at least two major political parties, and more than that number of major-minor parties, would be an excuse for a recount. If any one party had that much of a majority, the country would indeed be in a bad state.

The figure we are most interested in, however, is that .24 per cent which went against the Communist line. Quite possibly it is one of their lives, those people have chosen to go against the rule. Their small contribution raises one question in the Western mind. Does democracy, or even a spark of the free life, still live in the Soviet Union? Perhaps.

BRITAIN'S FOOD SHORTAGE

Hungry Britons, with a meat ration amounting to only 12 cents per week, must be watching their government with more than passing interest. Twice within the past ten days, they have been told, first by Canada, and then by Ireland, that they need not go hungry. All that is needed, they have been advised, is to compete with world prices, and the world will beat a path to their doors with food. James Gardiner, Canadian minister of agriculture, made one point, and now Mr. Dillon, acting in the same capacity for Ireland, has done the same thing. It is indeed a tragedy that Britain must be faced with the shortage, but she has been through worse trials.

A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE

A little knowledge is a wonderful thing, particularly when the knowledge is of the right type. Recently, a man was injured in an automobile accident near Barrie. He was in danger of bleeding to death until a nursing sister came along. She set matters right with an army private to keep pressure on the man's neck until expert medical aid could be obtained. Afterwards, the nursing sister was credited with saving the injured man's life. Ignorance of first aid might have resulted in death, but knowledge of the right kind saved a life.

MONEY

Money's friendly when you feed it.
Buy a horse, and it will feed it.
It puts gas into your car.
When you take it to the grocer
He will smile and say:
"Hello, sir!"
Maybe give you a cigar.
Oh, there is no doubt about it.
No one wants to do without it.

Money's just a handy gadget
Of all things, from gem to thimble,
And our daily meat and bread.
It is pills when you are aching.
It's the frock a mother's making
For some little curly head
And this truth must be conceded
By us all, through life it's needed.

But to worship it is madness.
Money cannot comfort sadness
Or an ounce of courage buy.
Skill and willingness to do things
Can be listed here as two things
That no merchant can supply.
And a nature brave and sunny
Can grow rich, with little money.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

Feb. 27th., 1921.

Tax collection discounts are being given consideration by the city council. Many years ago there was a system in vogue here whereby prepayment was allowed at a discount. Now such system may be devised to deal with early payments of instalments, allowing the tax payers a discount which is about the equivalent to the saving at the bank which the city would bring the city in the way of interest on money.

The city engineer has been instructed by the city council to prepare an accurate plan, in blue print or plan of the city showing all property owned by the city and also showing all lots on the water front from the Government dock to the easterly limits of the city and to show by whom they are owned.

A. T. Austin, manager of the local waterworks system, will attend the waterworks convention to be held in Windsor, Ontario on March 10th., 11th.

The Belleville hockey team played the Toronto Varsity team in that city and the result was a tie, the final score being 3 to 3. Handicapped by a surface of artificial ice, new to them but to which they are accustomed and up against a team which was considered to win in its own town, our boys held the Varsity team to a tie and thus won the round by four goals. Daw, Shelden and Gunner Arnott scored one each for Belleville; Weir scored a goal, but it was counted off side. At the beginning of the last half the score was 3 to 1 in favor of Varsity and it was in that period that Belleville tied the score. Now the Belleville boys are out to defeat Collingwood. The following composed the Belleville team: goal, Boland; right defence, Gregory; left defence, Green; centre, Arnott; right wing, Whelen; left wing, Weir; spare, Hagerman and Swayne. Tom Munro handled the game in his usual satisfactory manner.

YOUTH COUNTS

In a vague sort of way we all understand the importance of childhood. We realize that human beings are usually either made or broken the first decade of their lives. By the time a person arrives at voting age, he has hardly entered upon a career, a way of life which will persist as long as he lives.

Lord Shaftesbury, almost a hundred years ago, observed that nearly all criminals date the inception of crime between the ages of 8 and 16 years. We know today that one of the principal phenomena of the present crime situation is the continuing decrease in the age of criminals. Some years ago the average age of criminals was in the late twenties; now the prisons are full of people hardly old enough to be called adults. The lives of these men, and in many cases women also, were destroyed before they had a chance to live them.

Modern civilization is avid to give their child every privilege possible, yet many do not realize that the establishment of moral standards in the lives of children and the induction of these children into lives of religious faith is more important than all the education, recreation, and financial advantages they can ever have.

Youth counts—and it counts for so much that we may well be horrified by the responsibilities resting upon us.

Mackenzie's Column:

Anti-Communist Feeling Strong In Czechoslovakia

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Opposition to Russian domination is increasing among the satellites.

Red purges, natural corollary to rebellion, also are increasing. These reprisals are, in effect, Moscow's back-handed admission that she is encountering trouble.

Notable among the countries in which anti-communist feeling runs strong is Czechoslovakia. Born out of the First World War, this sturdy republic has been intensely proud of its independence. It therefore isn't surprising to find many of her citizens taking a page from Tito's fearless book of protest against surrendering the sovereignty of this state to Moscow.

Solid Held

The revolt against red rule in Czechoslovakia seems to have a solid hold, because President Gottwald has gone to the extreme of announcing publicly that the communist party has discovered a five-year-old plot to swing the country into the camp of the western European democracies. He added grimly:

"Czechoslovakia will not be a second Yugoslavia. . . . We believe in the party, comrade. . . . We know every one of these vagabonds is caught. Every one is caught and deserved punishment."

Gottwald charged that this plot was engineered by Vladimir Clementis, former foreign minister. It was announced last night in Prague that Clementis is under arrest in Czechoslovakia on charges of spying for the west.

It's a safe bet that Moscow will go all out to purge Czechoslovakia of dissidents, since that sturdy country is a key element in the heart of central Europe. Having already lost Yugoslavia, Moscow is strongbuilt—Russia can't afford to let Czechoslovakia slip away.

So we may expect that the purge in Czechoslovakia will be severe. And it may be effective—ostensibly—for the time being. However, the spirit of independence can't be killed in a nation like Czechoslovakia. The fight against totalitarian rule will continue until it succeeds.

BIG HURRY

Slogan for the jet-propelled age: "Live today and Listen tomorrow."

New Approach

I wish to commend to all political columnists, editorial writers and cartoonists a article in the current issue of the British automobile journal, "The Motor."

Recently "The Motor" despatched two of its experts to Belgium to inspect the Russian-made Moskvitch, a small car now being shipped aboard by the U.S.S.R. for sale in the open market. (The Moskvitch is originally a German model, now built near Moscow with equipment taken over from Germany as war reparations).

"The Motor's" experts inspected and drove the car, a four-cylinder job that looks a little like the Hillman, and returned to London to make their report.

Here are some excerpts selected at random from their article:

"It is not strikingly modern in appearance, but with its recessed headlamps and its flat windscreen it is at least as up-to-date as many other cars which continues to set the standard numbers. . . .

"We were pleasantly surprised by the wealth of details of the Moskvitch saloons we examined. . . .

"With the three-speed gear-box, accelerator pedal, flat-top load platform which is very low, load was adequate, but not exciting on the partially run-in car we drove. The unsprung weight of the axles, which preferred double-declutch technique being nowadays universal, is rather high. . . .

"It seems to be interested in automobiles to realize that here is something quite unique. . . .

"The Motor's" reporters are writing about a Russian product without prejudice, and themselves the luxury of a sneer or a biller aside about the state of the world or the cold aggression."

What a joy it is to read something about Russia that is scrupulously factual, restrained in language and opinion, without malice, without prejudice. I only wish I could get rid of the Walter Winchells, Drew Pearsons and Westbrook Pegler's and let the precise journalists of "The Motor" take over, we might acquire some flighting chance for peace. A Decolorue

As a kind of footnote to the subject or racial bigotry, under discussion, I commend to you some acrons an interesting piece of writing by Dr. W. M. Krogman, of the University of Chicago's Department of Anthropology.

Dr. Krogman calls this "A Decalogue of Race" and I recommend it to all members of "exclusive" golf clubs and country clubs:

1—Thou shalt not bow down before the false god of racial superiority.

2—Thou shalt not boast that only thy race is 'pure'.

3—Thou shalt not preach that whole races are at different levels of physical development.

4—Thou shalt not attach importance to color of skin or other racial traits.

5—Thou shalt not establish racial groups as fixed and unchangeable.

6—Thou shalt not, to the detriment of thy neighbor, assert that cultural achievements are based on racial traits.

7—Thou shalt not hold that there are racial personality traits that are inborn or inherited.

8—Thou shalt not, because a man is of a different religion or nationality, say that he belongs to a different race.

10—Thou shalt faithfully and sincerely act on the foregoing admonitions and then, indeed, thou will love thy neighbor as thyself.

Long View

I went back into the library files recently to look up some of the history of liquor and prohibition in this province. The old publication called The While Horse Bulletin, put out by the whisky people who pay me to write it, says that little book have a quaint, slightly alcoholic charm and there's one in every club and bar.

I really enjoyed enjoy:

"A man I know not too bad a fellow—at least until you become believer—is now living somewhere on the west coast of Scotland.

"In his quiet of utter loneliness was around him; no sound save the sough of a gentle breeze through the heather. The sun was reddening in the west which told him that before he left the hillside to his cottage in which he was staying night would be far upon him. Then, as he looked up, he sighted the lone figure of a shepherd not whose well in the conversation he had had with the only soul he had seen upon the hills . . . a shepherd.

"Shepherds were always given to solitude, and this one had lifted his little joke.

"They were looking out to sea; there was scarce a sign or the horizon; the old dog stared in that direction also.

"The shepherd was a bit taken aback: 'At night?' he queried.

"'Aye at night, mon; ye can see the stars then."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE NEXT THING

In the reading of a book the most exciting part is what follows on each page, what happens. What's coming next? Suspense is the thing that makes us read a book through to the end. It always keeps us wanting what we want to know about.

When I become interested in a film version of suitable character, I want to know the steps in the making of it. Suspense. If there is a biography I want to read it, and I always like the autobiography of this tell, telling of each step that made that life notable.

To note the unfolding of a mind, or of talents that one has inherited, or of traits inclined, is always fascinating. To read of an Edison, for example, from newsboy and telegrapher to his worldwide fame as inventor—his entire life is one of steps and next things performed, that is what inspires me. No one ever gets anywhere by standing still and dreaming about what to do next. It's doing the thing, then the next thing.

Life is a succession from one thing to another, that interests all mankind.

It's the next thing to do that keeps us alive and active. Nothing is so dramatic as the development of a new personality. There is something like this in the development of a literary work of art. Suspense. The reader of a writer that thrills us we want to read his next thing to note the next step in progress. We want to measure his growth.

Even the golfer putter around on one thing too long whereas if they would go on to the next thing they might surprise themselves, as has many another, and gone on to a new personality. The next thing has often changed one's entire career. Bring up with the next thing and doing it in better fashion than the last thing, is one of the secrets of a growing and enriched life. Thereby incentive and interest are kept enthusiastically alive and creative.

A step at a time, or even an inch, means progress. The next thing may take you ahead a mile or more to your dreamed of destination.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Ezio Pinza singing "Some Enchanted Evening" killed that charming song for everybody else. Whatever else sings it, male or female, attempting it, you feel sorry for them. Or you feel sorry for Pinza and turn off the radio.

The same thing has happened in music and the theatre over and over again. For example, Shakespeare acted so he acted by Gerrick or Mrs. Siddons that for years it was impossible to attempt Shakespeare until the memory of such great actors had died away in public memory.

Certain songs "belonged" to Jenny Lind or Patti, and practically disappeared from the concert stage for a generation.

Artists can thus be almost too great for their performing arts are concerned. But in all other arts we are eternally indebted to men possessing a talent like that of Pinza with that one song. It was an artist, long ago, who gave us the shape of almost everything we use, bowls, tables, knives, windows, books and even boats. We might suppose that the shape and style of all these things came to us by some pro-

IMMUNITY AGAINST THE C-R-I

T B is actually an abbreviation for tubercle bacilli—years ago doctors sometimes used the abbreviation when they wanted to mention to one another, in the patient's presence, that bacteriological examination has revealed the germs of tuberculosis in the sputum. After the significance of the abbreviation became generally known it was adopted as a slang term for tuberculosis, especially by people who find tuberculosis hard to pronounce.

C-R-I (pronounced kree) is a coined word for the cumbersome title Common Respiratory Infections. C-R-I is an honest word for whatever you may come down with—in the early stages neither you nor the doctor, if you consult a doctor, can tell just what it may prove to be—"influenza" diphtheria infantile paralysis? influenza? pneumonia? scarlet fever? whooping cough? Diphtheria? infantile paralysis? influenza? pneumonia? scarlet fever? whooping cough? Only when picks the dirt off from old shoes and finds that if he or she has been have-worms, but worm medicine did no good. (Mrs. J. Smith).

Answer—A good many healthy children have the same odd experience. They gumdrop, plaster, wood etc. It is known as "pica." It has no particular significance. It usually ceases as the child grows older. Your daughter is healthy, don't worry about it. Right, she just eats her peck of dirt a little earlier than most of us.

HASTINGS

Labor Minister Daley said that steel shortages delaying the proposed new office of the Workmen's Compensation Board mean that improvements in payments of compensation would have to be delayed until next Jan. 7.

Amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act, under consideration by the legislature, would increase the benefits about 20 per cent. Present office facilities had stymied the board.

Urges Rehabilitation

C. E. Millard (CCF — York West) asked the government to urge that Ottawa find additional steel-making capacity in the province. He suggested rehabilitation of a steel rolling mill at London and a blast furnace near Windsor.

Mr. Millard, national director of the United Steel Workers of America (C. C. L.-C. I. O.), also suggested a return to the use of iron and steel, rather than scrap metal drives, as in wartime, to make steel which could be used for non-structural purposes.

The legislature, in committee of the whole, reported out the government's bill to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act. It will reduce the waiting period for payments from five to seven days, increase the maximum annual wage for compensation from $3,000 to $4,000 and increase death benefits.

Miss Macphail referred to the report of the Hope Royal commission on education, which cost $200,000 and was tabled in the legislature at the beginning of the session.

"If the $200,000 spent on the Hope report were spent on a normal school, at least we'd have the schools for that," As it is, we've got a 15-pound book."

The veteran C. C. F. member said the enrolment of the Toronto normal school, originally 125, had grown to 600 students to teachers. Only half could use the auditorium at one time. Gymnasium groups had to change clothing in one hall, one highly-qualified professor had to set up his desk in another hall because of the space hortage.

Overcrowding Chief Problem

Miss Macphail also urged that the province's Minister of Education hold only the one cabinet post. "Ontario has been cursed with part-time ministers of education," she said.

(Outside the legislature, R. A. Johnston, principal of Toronto Normal School, said overcrowding was the school's chief problem but added that he hoped a new school would be built within a few years to remedy the situation.)

The highways minister, in his address, said little could be done about the problem of gold mines until an international agreement could be reached on a world price. This was "not much consolation, however, to communities like, Kirkland Lake, Timmins, Red Lake and Geraldton."

Gold, and the search for it, had always led, he said, development of other mineral deposits, Mr. Gemmell said, "Too many of our communities in the north are entirely dependent upon the successful operation of our gold mines for their existence."

However, diversity of output, such as the new asbestos mine at Matheson, would strengthen the economy of gold-mining areas. Mr. Gemmell envisioned a Northern Ontario with "10 Sudburies".

Some industries connected with mining had not located in the northland because of economic reasons, he said. "But if I can do anything to get industry to the north; I'll make sure it gets there."

Money For New Roads

Construction of roads into little developed mining areas had always been a large factor in bringing about settlement and mining expansion, the minister said. He intimated that an announcement might be made soon on allocation of money for new access roads in the north.

An airborne survey with magnetometer in Hastings County, north of Belleville, had shown existence of a low-grade magnetic ore body, and United States companies had confirmed the find with drillings.

"There is more than a possibility that eastern Ontario will become an important producer of iron ore in the not-too-distant future," Mr. Gemmell said. The early fall plans for construction of an ore mill might be announced.

Major expansion was also planned in the high-grade iron ore field at Steep Rock, west of Fort William, and in the Michipicoten area along the northern shore of Lake Superior north-west of Sault Ste. Marie.

"I can say that the province of Ontario in the field of iron ore production holds the trump cards," the minister said. It could ship by water to any point along the Great Lakes in Canada or the United States.

"I have no doubt that within a very reasonable period of time a larger potential production of pig iron and steel facilities will be established at strategic points to treat the raw material that we can produce in ever-growing quantities."

HOW ATOM-POWERED PLANES MAY LOOK

Atom-powered aircraft, with theoretical ability to fly indefinitely without refueling and at a speed limited only by the airframe, are shown in artist sketches. One U.S. industrial laboratory has been commissioned to design an atomic engine for such planes. Radical departures include (1) a crew's compartment (arrow) on wing tip, and (3) remote control guns resting on wing. The crew is none of the piston-engined bomber (2) is relatively close to the power plant, but the crew compartment in the tail (4) is as far as possible from the radioactive power source. These concepts come from interviews with scientists working on atom-powered aircraft plans. — Central Press Canadian.

Two Weeks Before Casualty Lists Will be Published

Ottawa, Feb. 27 (CP) —It will probably be two weeks before lists of casualties suffered by the Canadian troops fighting in Korea are made public, a defence headquarters spokesman said Monday.

The spokesman said the lists must first be cleared through Canada's defence mission in Tokyo and cabled to defence headquarters. Once headquarters receives the lists and notifies the next of kin, the lists can be made public.

However, he added, this will probably involve a time lag of about two weeks.

In a dispatch from the central front in Korea Monday, Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer, reported the casualties first suffered by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry have been light, Boss reported the casualties were mainly due to cheap Chinese grenades rather than small-arms fire and most of the men injured will be back in action soon.

Senior Master Supreme Court Leaving Office

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP) —Gordon D. Conant Monday submitted his resignation as senior master of the Ontario Supreme Court to Attorney-General Porter. He said he plans to resume private law practice in Oshawa.

Mr. Conant, Ontario's Attorney-General for five years under Premier Mitchell Hepburn and premier for seven months following Mr. Hepburn's resignation in 1943, retired from politics in 1943 because of ill health. He suggested to Mr. Porter that his resignation be effective March 31.

The senior master of the Supreme Court deals with civil litigation and has almost all the privileges of a judge except final disposition of cases.

ization of industry so as to make possible a more-balanced economy and fair protection in the event of war.

While he was in sympathy with the decentralization objective, Mr. St. Laurent rejected the resolution on the grounds that it condemned the government for its past policies.

Has Tremendous Powers

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the government has "tremendous powers" to suggest to industry where it should locate. He said it should try to disperse production so as to employ manpower available in various parts of the country.

Today, members will discuss a resolution to a bill that will revise the Indian Act and give Canada's original citizens more say in the handling of their own affairs. A similar bill was introduced last year but was withdrawn to give Indians an opportunity to study the proposed changes and make recommendations.

Mr. Gillis' resolution was one of several debated during a day devoted largely to proposals by private members. The resolutions touched on such things as federal union of Atlantic Pact Powers, deductions of union dues for income tax purposes and changes to the Bank Act.

Supports Principal

External Affairs Minister Pearson said the Canadian government supported the principle of a federal union of the free world. But the government believes that any effort to bring about a federation of the free countries at this time would lead to confusion, misunderstanding and possibly, disunity. Federation was something that would have to develop gradually.

He spoke on a resolution of Allistair Stewart (CCF-Winnipeg North) urging the government to support a convention to discuss the possibility of federal union of Atlantic Pact countries. Mr. Stewart withdrew the resolution after Mr. Pearson said he hoped the matter would not be put to a vote in case there might be misinterpretation of any division of opinion.

Members voted 84 to 56 against a resolution of Dougald McLean (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) urging that union dues and similar fees be allowed as deductions for income-tax purposes. Mr. Knowles said the deductions should cover all fees necessary to earning the taxpayer's livelihood.

Debate was interrupted on a resolution of R. E. Anderson (L-Northwest) aimed at giving financial protection to farmers delivering produce to plants for processing. Legislation would provide that, in the event of a failure of a processing plant, farmers had delivered crops to it, farmers would be placed among preferred creditors.

Lengthy Debate

In the debate on the decentralization of industry, Mr. St. Laurent said he believes the Quebec government is to be congratulated in getting United States capital interested in the development of the resources in Ungava and Labrador.

He said Mr. Gillis had complained that as a result of the development United States steel makers are moving their plants to the Atlantic coast.

"Well, possibly steel makers here, if they will have courage to do what others have done in developing industries in Canada, will move Canadian steel plants to the Atlantic coast," said Mr. St. Laurent. "It is being done by private enterprise in the United States; and I trust there will be sufficient enterprise among the people of Canada to do likewise."

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, said something should be done to see that more of Canada's resources are processed in this country. It was possible Canada would see the iron-ore resources of Labrador moving down past Canadian steel mills in the maritimes to be processed in United States.

Mr. Gillis said a long-term decentralization program should start now. It should begin with war plants, which in peace would be converted to production of civilian goods.

With exploration of steel production for defence in prospect, he said, the logical place to expand production was in Nova Scotia. It was "ridiculous" to haul raw steel from Sydney, N. S., to central Canada to be processed and then hauled back to Nova Scotia to be shipped overseas as guns or vehicles.

John Dickey (L—Halifax) said he could not support the resolution which likely will be debated again next week. He said it inferred nothing had been done, but much had been accomplished through co-operation of the federal and maritime governments and industrial organizations.

A name to endure Manitoba

Wapos pounding on its shore sounded to the Cree Indians like a maiden beating a drum. From their belief that a manito . . . s spirit . . . dwelt there, the Indians called the lake Manitoba . . . later to become the enduring name of the former Red River Colony.

A spirit, too, has guided Manitoba since the early days of the fur traders . . . the spirit of progress. Canoes paved sturdy York boat were once the only means of transport. Today Winnipeg is the key centre of two great transcontinental railroads, over which are carried the grain of the prairies and the products of the land. In the same spirit of progress, Manitoba is rapidly developing her own expanding industries.

From small beginnings Manitoba has grown steadily to become one of Canada's leading provinces, but prosperous though she is, Manitoba is also preparing for her future . . . and the future of Canada.

THE FUTURE BELONGS TO THOSE WHO PREPARE FOR IT

In this vast country of ours, transportation is a matter of vital importance. Prudential policyholders can take pride in the development of the nation's transportation facilities. WEDDINGS

DONALDSON-HINCHLIFFE

On Saturday, February 10th, at the Stone Church parsonage, Wallbridge, at 2.30 p.m. a pretty wedding was solemnized by the Reverend Wesley Hinchliffe, when June Vivian, daughter of Mr. Barton Hinchliffe and the late Mrs. Hinchliffe, of Wallbridge, became the bride of Albert Alvin Donaldson, son of Mrs. Barton Hinchliffe and the late Charles H. Donaldson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in a navy blue street length dress, fashioned with sweetheart neckline with pearl clips. She wore navy accessories and pearls, with corsage of red talisman roses.

Miss Shirley Donaldson, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant, wearing a wine street length dress with black accessories and pearls with corsage of talisman roses.

The reception was held at the Orange Hall, Wallbridge, where the guests were received by Mrs. Hinchliffe, wearing navy blue sheer over navy and white polka dots, with navy and black accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. Later, the guests assembled at the bride's home to view the wedding presents. The home was beautifully decorated with pink and white snapdragons, sweet peas and ferns.

Following the wedding trip to Toronto, for which the bride chose a wine topcoat with blue accessories, the young couple will reside at R.R. No. 2, Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Glen Miller, Belleville; Thurlow and Hoards'o, Ontario.

Clergyman, Former Bancroft Boy, Achieves Miracle in 13 Months

By J. W. C. HUTTON

This is the story of Rev. John Spllenaar, a former Bancroft boy, who by faith and hard work has achieved a modern miracle in the past 13 months.

This is the story of a former Norte Dausings resident, a young Pentecostal clergyman, now stationed in Hearst, Ontario, who started from there the day before Christmas 1949, with only $30 in his pocket, and by January, 1951, completed a pilot's course in Chicago, a pilot's course in Toronto, a course at the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, and bought and paid for an aeroplane and a hangar.

This is the story we heard from the Rev. John Spllenaar, of Hearst, Ontario, who flew from his residence to visit his sister, Mrs. L. Gasbel of Bancroft, and her family.

"My father, Rev. Benjamin J. Spllenaar, moved with his family to Bancroft about 1930. Here my father, the local Pentecostal clergyman, built the first Pentecostal church a few years later. I lived in Bancroft as a boy and a young man.

"In 1936 conditions in Bancroft, as in most of Ontario, were exceedingly tough. We were barely existing. With a friend of my own age I decided to leave the village and go north. Where we were going we did not know but we decided to locate and organize a Pentecostal congregation in some community where there was not a church of our faith.

"We had only a couple of dollars in our pockets when we started out on foot. From Bancroft we walked and hitchhiked to Barry's Bay, Mattawa and then to North Bay. As we went along we preached the gospel in homes, schools and small halls.

Establishes Church

"In November, 1936, we went to Kirkland Lake and learned that there was not a church of any faith in the area. We met some kind people who invited us to stay there, so we decided to establish a Pentecostal church.

"So that I could support myself and buy a good car that would be necessary in my work, I obtained a job as a hard-rock miner at Wright Hargreaves mine. I worked on the lower levels of the mine during the daytime and held services during the evenings and on Sundays.

"After getting the new church under way in Kirkland Lake I moved to Matachewan, back of Elk Lake, where a gold mine and refinery man in the Matachewan Consolidated gold mine and held services during my off hours.

"In 1939 I quit mining to become a full-time minister, making my headquarters in Kirkland Lake and covering a wide territory in north-eastern Ontario and Quebec. From Kirkland I went as far afield as Rouyn, Val d'Or, Malartic, Senneterre and the other gold camps that dot the section of central Quebec.

"By 1948 my wife and I moved to Hearst, 135 miles west of Cochrane on the C.N.R. Here I saw that in order to reach the people who lived in places without regular church services I would have to have an aeroplane, although I had never been in a plane in my life.

Enrolls in Flying School

"With $30 to my name I enrolled in a Chicago flying school, from the local bank I obtained a permit to take $400 in United States funds and $25 in Canadian funds across the international border. I knew that I would be able to raise money, for I had plenty of faith in myself and my work.

"Leaving Hearst with my $30, I started towards the American border on December 24, 1949. Every night I held services in different places along the way. When I reached the border I had my $400 American, $25 Canadian and was able to send my wife a money order for $30.

"The course and my living expenses in Chicago were going to cost me approximately $1,000. While there I attended the Moody Bible Institute, and also took flying lessons. Every night I held services where I told people of my present work and of the future work that I would be able to accomplish in northern Ontario when I would be able to have and operate my own plane. They helped me and I was able to pay completely for my tuition. I graduated.

"Canadian regulations for flying are much more strict than American. Thus in order to fly in Canada I also had to take an additional course in Toronto. This cost $500, contributed by kind people from many churches in Toronto and district.

"When I arrived back in Hearst as a qualified pilot, in July, 1950, our small church had $400 in the local bank. The aeroplane that I desired, a Piper Cub, was priced at $3,200 in U.S. funds f.o.b. Lockhaven, Pennsylvania. For northern flying conditions I also required additional gas tanks, skis and some other equipment. In August received word that it was ready when I paid for it in cash.

Knew Money Would Come

"Once again I left Hearst and knew that the money would be forthcoming by the time that I reached the American border. When I told my story to the Pentecostal congregation of the Stone Church on Davenport Road, Toronto, they provided me with sufficient funds to pay for the plane. The generous contributions from other churches and individuals enabled me to purchase also survival kits and a flying suit.

"When I flew back to Toronto there was only $2,000 still owing, of which $1200 to pay. Once more the Stone Church came to my aid and provided the necessary money.

"I now had extra money so that I had a hangar built on Johnston's Lake north of Hearst. This was the base of my new operations.

"The whole project cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. Fully without hard work is not sufficient. I had plenty of faith and applied it up with hard work. So, I succeeded.

"I am now able to travel to distant places that before were practically inaccessible. We are able to fly to the Pentecostal lumbering camps and hold services for the lumbermen, many of whom are Finns, Lithuanians, Ukrainians, Slavs and French-Canadians. Before most of these people were not able to attend divine services of any religious denomination.

Flies to Indians and Eskimos

"As the crow flies, I can go to Moosonee or Moose Factory in an hour and 20 minutes flying time. I am able to hold services for both Indians and Eskimos who live along the shores of James and Hudson Bays, hundreds of miles from any established church.

"Recently I flew along the east shore of Hudson Bay as far north as Fort George, Great Whale River, Richmond Gulf and Port Harrison. There I held services for the local Eskimos and Indians."

This concludes the story of Rev. John Spllenaar, the keen-eyed young clergyman who made a flying visit to Bancroft to visit his sister, and preach for one day in the village church where his father was the pastor when young John left for the north in 1936.

Although he had few minutes to spare in his busy schedule, he found the necessary time to relate this inspirational story to both the congregation of Bancroft Pentecostal Church and the senior pupils of Bancroft Public School.

SCOTT'S W.M.S.

Sidney—The February meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Carl Sine on Thursday last, Mrs. Copeland presided. The theme of meeting "His Blest Presence." The leader read passages of scripture, from the Psalms Isaiah and Matthew. The members read the 23rd Psalm in unison. An offering of $2.25 was taken and dedicated.

In the business session it was arranged for Mrs. Farmer to buy material to finish up a quilt and Mrs. Morley Sine to finish it and have it ready for quilting at March meeting at her home.

"Silence"

Mrs. Scott read one of Kagawa's poems "Silence" showing faith in God's presence. Mrs. C. Frost read from the Dominion Board Resolutions 1950, "liquor tests and liquor advertising."

Mrs. Scott read a clipping saying that the United Church has sent and is sending supplies to Korea.

Mrs. Alton Sine read Mrs. Hickerson's review of the Japanese book "The Seven Stars" by Matsumoto.

Mrs. K. Faul gave chapter 2 of Study Book. When the doors had opened to Japan for peoples from the west, finally the people themselves reached out for what the west had to offer; the science, navy, education, medicine, and law sent representatives to the west to acquire information, but these overlooked the contributions of family and brought back only a knowledge of the material aspects of western civilization.

Japan was not a democracy, the emperor being the central figure. She defeated China in 1895 and Russia in 1901 which deformed sh alliance with Great Britain. In World War 1 she became one of first rank powers of the world. In Second World War she was defeated and empire destroyed.

Shintoism

Mrs. Sine gave third chapter of Study Book. The native form of Japanese religion was called Shinto. They believed all objects, animate or inanimate to be possess'd of spirits. Buddhism came from China in 552. It soon declined because it was too far removed from the masses. When Christianity came to Japan these Christians took part, politics and were always on wrong side and in 1587 wholesale crucifixions at Nagasaki. In 1637 all Christians killed or banished. In 250 years these were allowed back.

Mrs. Copeland closed the meeting.

GOOD MANNERS

BY MRS. BEECHMAN

Today's manners memo.

Some people wonder if they are "supposed" to say "thank you" for this or that courtesy, kindness or consideration. Some people wonder if they are "expected" to say "thank you" for any courtesy or hospitality. Some people wonder at just what times they should say "thank you" and these foolish and useless "wonderings" should be forever dispersed. Just open your heart joyously to appreciation and then open your lips to say the thank-you that is (or should be) in your thoughts and in your heart. There's the "thank you" to be said . . . What are you waiting for?

Direct question on intervening invitation-form

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Is there any form of invitation for tea or cocktails or similar party, that can be written on the inside page of my informal note or any other kind of card, which asks very directly for a reply, but without using the "R.s.v.p."

Doris M.

Yes. An excellent invitation-form that does just this is increasing in popularity, and deservedly so. It is this straightforward question:

Will you come for cocktails on Saturday, March 3rd . . . at six o'clock

David and Betty Martin

3-Pleasant Road

Notes: (1) The direct question seems to achieve the wished-for reply. (2) It is the tendency today to name a definite hour for a tea-afternoon or early-evening party: "at six o'clock say, for a cocktail party; or "at five o'clock" (or "four-thirty" for tea; or "six-thirty" for Sunday buffet supper, (3) The form I have quoted may be handwritten on the inside page of Informals, or on a fairly large plain white card, or on semi-note paper, or on engraved or semi-printed cards may be bought with the lines to be filled in:

Will you come for .....

on ..... o'clock

Prayerbooks for bride's attendants

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am planning to carry a prayerbook at my wedding next month. Is it proper for me to have my maid of honor and bridesmaids also carry prayerbooks? If you say yes, would I have orchids on their prayerbooks too?

UrsulaM.

Yes, it is proper for your maid of honor and bridesmaids to carry prayerbooks, too, covered with white satin (usually). And an each of their prayerbooks you might have an orchid, if you wish, of a light shade.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Like spareribs or chicken wings, breast of lamb must be held to the mouth with the hand and gnawed clean with the teeth. There is usually less meat than bone and considerable fat, but the sweet, incomparable flavour outweighs all the disadvantages.

About 1-3 to 3-4 pound should be allowed per portion. The meat is first simmered in water and then broiled and basted with chili sauce until the fat is crisp and browned.

A good accompaniment is rice pilaf that is, cooked rice to which has been added onions, mushrooms, tomatoes or any desired seasoning vegetable.

Grilled Breast of Lamb.
4 Servings

3 lbs. breast of lamb
Salt
1 medium size onion
1 carrot
1 stalk celery

1 bay leaf
Paprika
1-3 cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Have the Butcher crack the lamb in half and cut into eight pieces of uniform size. Wipe with a damp cloth.

Put the lamb in water to cover. Add 2 teaspoons salt. Bring water to a boil. Remove scum. Add the onion, carrot, celery and bay leaf. Reduce the flame so that liquid simmers.

Cook about 1 1-2 hours or until lamb is tender. Remove lamb from broth. Save broth to use as soup stock.

When lamb has cooled slightly, sprinkle with paprika and salt. Combine chili sauce, brown sugar, vinegar and parsley in a bowl. Spread sauce over lamb.

Broil lamb slowly until well browned on both sides. Use a slow flame. Spoon remaining sauce over lamb just before serving.

Fresh spare ribs may be sub stituted for lamb if desired.

Walk slowly on while they start their brief (I hope!) conversation. Don't "hang back" awkwardly, as if you were waiting for an introduction. If the third person is invited to join you and your friend, or if there is any reason for an introduction, they can overtake you and the introduction is made. But in the meantime you won't give the impression that you "expected" the introduction.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

Some suggestions for girls with boy friends overseas

This page is for all you girls who have friends overseas. It is for you who write letters to these boys who are so far away and without any but the very best contact with home and the people they love back there.

I have just read two letters from boys who are "somewhere in Korea". Each one of these boys is worrying about the girl he left behind.

"Before I went overseas, the first one writes, "my girl told me that she would wait for me. She said she was in love with me and I told her I was in love with her too.

Of With the Old

"Now she has sent me a 'Dear John' letter, which all servicemen dread. She has told me that she was going steady with another guy, and then she stopped writing, so I did the same. I never have gotten over it. I still love her as much as I did when I first met her. The letters I get from home say I should forget her because there are other girls in the world, but it isn't that easy. In her I found everything a fellow could ever hope for. We have the same things in common. Do you think I should forget her as the letters from home say, or write to her and try to regain her first love?"

The other letter that I have in front of me says:

"Last July I became engaged to a girl with whom I had been going steady for 13 months. In August, I was sent to Korea, and we have been writing to each other ever since.

"In one of my letters one day I just asked this girl a simple question,—if she knew a guy named Rene. When she answered my letter, she told me she wasn't married to me and to say none of my business and she started an argument in the letter that hurt my feelings very much. At the end she said 'So we are through.'

"I really love her with all my heart, so much that I just can't forget her. But there doesn't seem to be anything I can do about it. We had planned to get married in September last year, but at that time I was fighting in Korea, as we are now. The thing is worrying me so much it is on my mind all the time, and I would appreciate it if you could help me bring this girl back to my life."

Now I understand quite well that it isn't always easy to keep feeling exactly the same about someone who is far away, while other boys are close at hand. I understand, too, that in times like these girls often make premature decisions of a difficult moment which they later find themselves unable to keep.

Understanding Needed

I am not urging that in such cases you girls pretend in your letters that you don't love the same, and build up illusions in your friends' minds that will be dashed to pieces when they return home and find that out of the kindness of their hearts you have been kidding them along. I do urge, however, that you try to use a little understanding and tact in the things you write to these boys, and that you particularly try to put yourself in their place and think what letters from home mean to them in the terrific circumstances under which they are living. Don't fly off the handle if the boys say something you don't like, as the girl in the second letter did. And if you must write a "Dear John" letter, try to do it in such a way as to make it clear that you are still his friend, and keep on writing to him. Such friendly letters that will be a link with home for him.

Also try, above all, not to give him false hopes in the days before he is called away.

Life is pretty tough for these boys in Korea. Don't make it tougher by giving them unhappy things to think about.

Fashion Flashes

DESTINED for a long run is the softly tailored suit of crisp silk, plain or printed, with taffeta and tie silk cloth. One such suit is a neat white, beige and green tie print gurah has petal-like overlays at the hip to give the stiffened rounded look. Other jacket details include short, cuffed sleeves and long, notchless revers.

THE BIG MAJORITY of spring straws tend to the small, neat shape. Black velvet makes the facing of a little off-the-face cloche of natural, rough straw. Black velvet ribbon bows and bright red berries are spotted over the deep crown of the hat.

HOLDING OVER from autumn and winter is the all-over pleated sheath dress. Navy triple sheer is used for a neat number, very finely pleated from high neckline to hem. Above-elbow sleeves are also pleated, and there is a white taffeta neckband and matching cuffs.

EVERYWHERE at sunshine winter resorts fine cotton is king. A handsome sheath dress is of sheer cotton in a black ivy and green wide-bow print. It has a matching stole, finely pleated that can be looped through the belt to form an asymmetric skirt ruffle.

ON THE LEVEL is the favorite line of the small spring hats now on display. A typically smart design is a "chignon" pillbox in fine straw weave, the pointed sides emphasized with tiny fruit clusters. Sheer veil is fastened at either side of the crown with velvet hat pins to match the veil vet crown band.

DID YOU EVER see so many smart and pretty rayon suits as are now coming into the stores? Navy blue for a nice topper suit the boxy jacket with sacot an lining of dark red and white polka dotted taffeta. The jacket, that can be worn as separate topper, has a high, pointed collar and pointed, pearl but toned pocket flaps.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Get your beauty sleep

The important thing about sleep is to get enough of it. The medical profession places the amount of time at eight hours as the average need. Getting into good sleeping habits is considered just as important. That means that one should have a regular hour for crawling in between the sheets, a regular time for arising.

Young girls of high school and college age will probably fancy that all that is necessary to do. Late hours, especially on Friday and Saturday nights, are the rule. If a girl can't have dates on both these nights and arrive home at two or three o'clock, she is firm in the conviction that her social life is a failure, that she is sitting on the sidelines.

Parents deplore the late hours kept by their children, worrying not only about their health, but the chance of motor accidents. So mama and papa lose out on slumber, too. It is a speedy age, and it seems as if nothing can be done about it!

If this column catches the eye of girls in their teens and early twenties, your reporter hopes that they will bear with her. They needn't think they are made of wire and fiddle strings. Youth can wear out and suffer fatigue and nerve strain. This state is reflected in the complexion, the eyes, and the figure.

During its waking hours the human body accumulates poisonous waste products that lower its vitality. Only during sleep can these products be eliminated more rapidly than they are produced. Only during sleep are energy motors recharged. You can argue with your parents when the protest against late hours, but you can't argue without Mother Nature. She always has the last chance to make necessary repairs.

You should wake up without benefit of an alarm clock.

The body needs more sleep in winter than in summer, because its gets less sunshine, fresh air and exercise. You should wake up in the morning without benefit of the alarm clock and leap up eager for the day's activities. How about that? If you awaken tired and weary, you are in no condition to attend classes or to think of chasing out to parties. You are in an understandard state of health.

You may chest your body of its natural zest for a while without noticeable effect, but if you do it for a prolonged period your skin will become sallow or grey, your eyes will lack sparkle and there will be no ginger in your heels.

Oshawa Bees Well on Way To Final Round in Junior 'B' Group Downing Rockets 4-2

By JACK BROWN

Still showing only flashes of their mid-season fire and drive, the Belleville Rockets slipped down another rung on the playoff ladder last night, losing to the vastly-improved Oshawa Bees, 4-2. The Rocket loss was their second straight in their three-of-five series with the Motor City crew, and puts the locals on the edge of the elimination cliff.

Lacking a full team, the Rocks were handicapped from the first whistle, but with the type of hockey they showed on the night, it's doubtful if they would have made it even with a normal bench. They lost Harry Brown before they left Belleville, with a back injury; Duke Boreen couldn't make the trip; Bill Turland fell heavily to the ice half way through the first period, and couldn't come back; and Jack Murphy had knee trouble.

Faced with the loss of two forwards, Roy Meadwell was forced to juggle his front lines all night long, and after Turkland got hurt, alternated Gilmour, Green and Maville on defence.

Oshawa showed the opportunist streak that has stood them in good stead most of the year, and had a 3-0 lead on the scale before Houle struck in the third period. Then Dez Brabin got another, and the Rocks their last with only 22 seconds left in the game. Bees' Alex Ecker got the other.

The Rockets held the Bees off until 11:48 of the first period, and even showed them up a few times in the first minutes of the game. Once, when Turland went off for hooking, they choked off the Oshawa power play thrown at them by the Motor City top line of Eicher, Chircoski and Lawrence. Then, got the Oshawa goal that carried from Brabin, on a high flip backhand after Tripp had made two nice saves.

With that one under their belts, the Bees got tough, and the bodies flew. They seemed to gain confidence from the counter, and disorganized the Rockets time and again. Then, only 32 seconds after the second period started, Fred Chircosky put them two up with a long shot. The period was distinguished mostly by shinny.

The Bees' third goal came from Jack Marshall's stick, on a pass from Gord Death, Ella Roy, hard-shot caught the bottom corner, and then the going really got rough, with tempers getting hot. Eicher Sets up Lawrence

In the third, the Rockets showed that they weren't completely out of the game. Don Houle stole the puck from Jim Johnson at the Oshawa blue line, dipp-doodled his way in on Pat Hister, and beat the Bee goalie cleanly with a chest-high shot. The Bees stormed back with rush after rush, and finally paid off, when Eicher set up Lawrence.

The Rockets' second marker, came at 19:38 of the last period, when they were putting on belated hockey pressure. Jack Strahan, who was working hard all night, took a pass from Pat Gilmour, and the puck went through a scramble to trickle past Pelletier. It was pretty much the type of break that the locals hadn't been getting all night, and was indication of what they might have done.

Best for the Rockets were Strahan, Ross Mason, who was playing his best game of the season, and Houle, who almost had another goal when he laid the puck right on the line for Strahan, and Pat and Pat Gilmour. Tops for Oshawa were goalie Lawrence, Eicher, Johnson, Edwards, Wilson, Degray, Brabin, Death, Ecker, O'Connor.

Belleville: Goal, Tripp; defence, Trumbley, Green; centre, Houle; wings, Murphy, Strahan; alts., Mason, Carey, Desjardins. Gilmour, Maville, Turland, Pat Barrett.

Referees: Jim Cromble, Andy Bellemer, both of Toronto.

The Summary:

1st period

Oshawa, Degray (Brabin) 11.33
Penalties: Town, Turland, Chircoski.

2nd period

Oshawa, Eicher .52
Oshawa, Marshall (Death) 17.43
Penalties: Hillman, Houle, Maville, Brabin.

3rd period

Belleville, Houle 8.05
Oshawa, Lawrence (Eicher) 12.39
Belleville, Strahan (Gilmour) 19.38
Penalties: Marshall, Chircoski.

Detroit Wings Three Points up On Maple Leafs

Montreal, Feb. 27 (CP)—Every team won a game in the National Hockey League last week except the league-leading Detroit Red Wings. But that didn't make a bit of difference to the Wings, who got two points on ties to stay three up on Toronto Maple Leafs. The Wings have 80 points from 34 wins, 12 losses and 12 ties while Leafs, who won one and tied one last week, have 32 wins 13 losses and 13 ties for 77 points.

Boston Bruins broke their third-place tie with New York Rangers by a win, loss and tie, and one more tie than Rangers, who played only three games. Bruins now have 53 points, one up on Rangers.

League statistics released today show Montreal two points behind Rangers and Chicago mired in fifth position, but 20 points. They won one and lost one last week, as did Canadiens.

Detroit's Gordie Howe still is leading the individual scoring race with 69 points, garnered on 30 goals and 39 assists. But Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal has jumped back to second slot he held so long earlier in the year.

Richard in three goals and two assists for the week brought him up from fourth place to 61 points, two behind Detroit's Sid Abel. Teammate Doug Harvey has 53 points but Richard's goals are tops in that department.

None of the netminders increased their shutout totals, Detroit's Terry Sawchuk remaining in front with four. Toronto's Turk Broda and Al Rollins still have the best combined average, 2.03.

Toronto's Gus Mortson and Eddie Leafs still head the list of penalty-minute leaders with 130 minutes and Toronto with 711.

New Gadget Boon to Golfers, Seven in One

New York, Feb. 27 (AP) — Imagine playing golf and toting the clubs around in your pocket-book.

You can do it with the gadget Matty Matthews is showing around town. It's a novel seven-clubs-in-one idea.

This is a streamlined golf set designed to fit away with caddies and bulky caddy wagons. Actually you can carry most of it in your shirt pocket. The full set weighs three pounds.

The set is composed of one shaft and four club heads which screw in securely, make seven different implements, a driver, brassie, putter, chipper, and one, four, six and seven irons.

You can carry one club in your hand and all the rest—club heads and shaft—in a case into a neat packet about the size of an average ladies' purse.

You drive off and then—click —you've got a four iron for the fairway to the green. Click, you chip up. Click, you putt the ball home. All with the same club.

"It's been a handy tool and proving very popular in Florida and Cuba," Matthews said. Matthews, a former newspaper man turned drum-beater for the manufacturers.

The maker is Sam H. Taran of Miami, who bought the rights from the inventor, John Jay Jokosky. Jokosky, a University of Kansas engineering professor came up with the T-lock, or so it's now called. One club with a go-to blades.

The pros haven't accepted it yet and neither has the U.S. golf association, which has a rule against removable heads.

Matthews said expert golfers, even pros, find the streamlined equipment costs them no more than six strokes over round on first try. "Most of them said they could get accustomed to the set and play just as well as with a full bag," he added.

It has an added time-saving device for the temperamental duffer. When he lobs one into the lake, it's not necessary to break up a whole set of clubs. One wheels across the knee and he's out of business.

BATTLE OF THE BLUES—

Culhane's Cut-ups and Driscoll's Demons of the Fire and Police Department hockey squads have ordered their rosters in shape and all ready to do battle in the annual March of Dimes jousting in Memorial Arena tonight.

* * *

Much has been said about the ice-lane abilities of these two brass-and-blue teams and tonight should tell the story. We understand both teams are highly confident of victory and there is a possibility of unorthodoxy, it hungwyna, methods. In any event, rivalry is keen and feeling flaming high not only between the players but supporters as well.

* * *

Just how the limbs of the law will stack up in a hockey sense against the hose-and-ladder bearers will be proven tonight—it should be a good game and there will be lots of fireworks, humorous, that is, fun and fury.

* * *

Mayor R. D. Potter, we are informed, will open the festilities and Miss Sharon Rushlow will face the puck. Chief of Police Walter Probert, Inspector McDougal, O.P.P. and Fire Chief Gerald Vance will grace the occasion with their uniformed presence while the Belleville Municipal and Kinsmen's Boys' Band will give out with some jolly old martial and other airs.

* * *

Tween-period activities will be in the form of fancy figure skating by stars of the Quinte Skating Club and the annual "Chariot Race" staged between members of the Fire and Police departments. It should be a gala night of entertainment, and remember, that quarter you pay, will go a long way towards bringing a crippled child her share of happiness.

GRATTUDE?

In another column of this newspaper appears a letter written by Fred Eight, manager of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Club. He takes exception to the story which appeared in this paper following the Kingston-Belleville juvenile game last Thursday night.

* * *

Satirically he congratulates the writer on "having the courage to publish some of the truth about the game. He suggests that we be "removed from an office we now hold", and which we did not know we held until the Eight letter was submitted. As being "morality" officer, of the team, as Eight terms us, we, to the moment, did not know such an office existed in the juvenile organization nor in any other hockey set-up.

* * *

As far as Mr. Eigle's juveniles, or any other hockey team, which is sponsored by city organizations, or those from outside the city limits, could not devote as much time as he would have liked, did a man's-size job with the team.

* * *

We, along with the sports division of the radio here, have given Belleville hockey teams, as well as other sports organizations, plenty of free publicity. Whether this some other provincial dailies, we have devoted a lot of time, space and work to the furtherance of local squads in all phases of athletics. But when a team, no matter what it is, tries to be the sponsor, manager or coach, is deserving of criticism, they're going to get it, constructive or otherwise. Mission completed.

* * *

ATTENTION! BANTAMS, JUVENILES—

On Thursday night you are scheduled to play against the Peterborough Bantams and Juveniles in Peterborough in the second round of the OMHA playdowns. Members of both Bantam and Juvenile squads are expected to report to Memorial Arena at 4.30 sharp Thursday afternoon. The bus will leave at approximately that time, so fellas, be on hand and ready to go. Best of luck to you!

SUMMER THRILLS—

Auto race fans in Belleville and district will possibly enjoy a new and different type of sport this year, that of auto racing through a trip made to Toronto by Richard Burrowes, owner of Speedway Park (10 miles east of Belleville) where he attended the annual convention of the Ontario Auto Racing Club and the Big Car Racing Association of West New York. The 1951 season is expected to be featured with a series of stock car racing meets but the highlight of the season will be the Dominion Day meet which Burrowes was fortunate in securing the big car (half milers) for. To the best of our knowledge this type of auto racing has never before been provided for the Belleville district enthusiasts. The big cars, or half milers, are auto racing machines similar to the ones run at Indianapolis Speedway except they are known as stock cars. Burrowes has signed up drivers from coast to coast, from Vancouver, B.C., to Sydney, N.S., from Sudbury, Ont., to Gaspe, Que., and from Kenora, Ont., to Gardenia, Ont. The entrants are from Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Windsor, Hamilton, Sudbury, Kenora, Sydney, Gaspe, Gardenia, Ont., and Saskatoon, Sask. Dominion Day big car meet will not only come from Toronto and district but as far distant as Sarnia, Syracuse, N.Y., Oneonta, N.Y., and Haggersville, Penn.

Softball Assoc. To Hold Meeting At Brantford

Hamilton, Feb. 27—(CP)—The Canadian Softball Association will hold its second annual meeting in Brantford Saturday, March 24, it was announced here Monday night by F. Feaver, secretary of the O.A.S.A.

Delegates from the Quebec Provincial Softball Association, two Senior A leagues from Montreal, Provincial Women's Softball Association and the O.A.S.A. will attend.

Representatives from Manitoba and Alberta also are expected. It is expected that B.C. and Saskatchewan may send delegates but, if not they will be represented by Ken York, president of Western Canada Softball Association from Winnipeg.

The meeting will decide the site of this year's Canadian Softball championships. People's Credit Jewellers of Toronto are present titleholders.

Eagles Defeat Redmen 16-11 In 'Basketball' Group Finish

Peterborough, Feb. 27 — The local Eagles downed Belleville Redmen 16-11 here Monday night to wind up their O.H.A. Senior B schedule before a small crowd of fans. These teams are slated to meet now in the semi-finals as Eagles finished third spot in the standings, behind the Peters and Nylons, while Belleville ended in fourth position.

Wide Open

The tilt was a fast, wide-open one with emphasis on all the attack in every chukker. Eagles had a 6-5 margin in the first period and out scored the visitors 5-2 to carry an 11-7 edge into the third, but they were only able to outscore Belleville 5-4 in the final heat. Goalie Cook received a bad hurt from a deflected puck off Milner's stick in the third and had to retire, Vern Goyer finishing up in the Quinte net. Andy Milne later wrenched his leg in a fall into the boards and had to retire. Belleville drew three of the five penalties in clean play.

Bill Cowley counted four goals for the winners, as Rochetta and Greenlaw had three each, Milne getting two, and singles going to Stewart, Lalonde, Hill and Moher. Milne piled on three, Rochetta, Hill and Burns two each and Coombs, Greenlaw, Mortimer, Lalonde, Stewart and Montgomery one apiece. For the losers, Mulvihill shone with a five goal effort, Goyer getting two as one each were notched by McDonald, Moher and Day. Four assists went to Wardaugh, four, Belleville got goals by Goyer, McDonald and Moher, as Jones, Schmidt and Mulvihill each helped once.

Not Even a Band

The Eagles started it off like a parade, sinking four without a return in the first seven minutes of play. Belleville got going as ice legs then and started to battle back and made a fight right down to the finish.

Basketball on Ice

At times it resembled a basketball game with long flips up ahead and quick shots on the cage, each side dominating for a time and then pushed back on the defensive. Ross Nicholls made a lot of nice saves despite the score, and so did the Quinte twins-goaltand.

The Belleville regular goalie, Irvine, is still out with an injury, Cook getting permission to replace him. Dootch Vitarelli of the Eagles was also side-lined in this game with an injury. The same squads are due to open their playoffs on Friday.

The Teams—

Belleville: Goal, Cook; defence Schmidt and Bastedo; centre, Wardaugh; wings, Green and Mulvihill; alternates, Goyer, Jones, Moher, Day, Free, McDonald, Schmidt and Stewart.

Eagles: Goal, Nicholls; defence Lalonde and Munroe; centre Rochetta; wings, Crowley and Coombs; alternates, Hill, Greenlaw, Stewart, Milnes, D. Mortimer, Burns and Montgomery.

Referee, L. Heffering; linesman, F. Nigh.

MONTGOMERY MAIDS WIN

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Toronto Montgomery Maids Monday night piled up a 10-point lead in the opening game of the Ontario Ladies' Basketball Association senior semi-finals by defeating Hamilton Orioles 45-32.

Second game of the two-game, total-point series will be played here Wednesday.

Sharp-shooting Dot Smerdon paced the Maids with a 16-point effort. Rosemary McGill added another 10-point for the winners.

Mary Ramsay sparked the Hamilton attack with 15 points, while Hazel Reed and Betty Williams were the chief Orioles' playmakers.

Ninth Player Arrested in Bribe Scandal

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—District Attorney Frank S. Hogan last night announced the arrest of another former Long Island University basketball player to be listed in the growing basketball bribe scandal.

Hogan identified him as Nathan (Natie) Miller, 23, of Brooklyn, who was graduated from L.I.U. in 1948.

Besides the nine basketball players and former players, two others have been arrested within the last nine days charged with giving or taking bribes to fix collegiate basketball games played in Madison Square Garden.

Four of the other eight players or former players are from L.I.U. They are accused of accepting bribes to fix games during the last two seasons.

Assistant District Attorney Meredith Goldman said Miller will be charged with violation of a section of the penal code involving the bribery of amateur athletes.

Demarco Obtains Nine-Point Lead In Scoring Race

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—Adolf Demarco of Buffalo, Bisons picked up another point to his lead by giving him 82 points for a nine-point scoring lead in the American hockey league race.

The veteran centre, who has 32 goals and 61 assists, has had a 16 scoring parade through most of the season.

Teammate Grant Warwick is second, with 64 points, while Freddie Glover of Indianapolis continues to lead in goals scored, adding five for 41. Demarco's 61 assists give him the play-making lead.

Harry Dick is tops in penalties with 166 minutes. Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh still leads the goaltenders with an average of 2.33 on 141 goals in 60 games. He has the most shutouts, six.

Fulham Soccer Club of England To Visit Canada

Walter Keller, Dominion Football Association secretary, announced Monday that Fulham, famous English soccer club, will sail for Canada May 15 on the Empress of Scotland.

Other teams planning to tour this country if arrangements can be made are: Glasgow Celtic, Third Lanark, the Uruguayan world cup eleven, the Swedish champions Alk and the Hungarian Honved group of Hungarian expatriates playing together in Rome, Italy.

Fulham Football Club is scheduled to play two matches against other touring teams. The games will likely be played in Vancouver, Toronto or Montreal.

Art Hurst, fight winger and defenceman, Nick Metz, centre, Eastern Doutchmen will join the Ontario Hockey Association Major Toronto Marlboros next week, Eastern Conference officials said Monday.

Hurst is being taken up by Marlies as a replacement for centre Bobby Emmerd, signed to a Western Hockey League contract with Toronto Maple Leafs a few days ago.

At Detroit, heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles showed plenty of power Monday as he boxed five rounds in a workout for his title fight with Joe Walcott here March 7.

Walcott is due to start training here today.

The American-owned Big Dipper has been installed the favorite for the Grand Annual Steeplechase at the English Derby—two of Britain's three most famous races.

Mrs. Josephine Brice's big chestnut rated the best two-year-old on most odds for Royal Light Stakes at British tracks last season.

Bookmakers currently will not bet more than 100 to 6 against him winning the two thousand guinea scheduled for Newmarket May 2. For the Derby to be run at Epsom Downs May 30 the odds against Big Dipper were 100 to 8 against ahead of Frenchman Marcel Boussac's Nyangal.

Former heavyweight champion of Canada boxed with International Boxing Club officials at Chicago Monday, but all concerned kept mum on any proposed championship Ezzard Charles-Louis title rematch April 11 at Chicago Stadium.

Louis had just returned from his San Francisco triumph over Andy Walker, the fourth straight win by the Brown Bomber in his comeback campaign.

Louis said he had talked Monday by long distance telephone with I.B.C. president Jim Norris at Miami, Fla., but just to say "hello".

The winner of the 15-round Charlie Fusari - Johnny Bratton battle at the Chicago Stadium March 14 will be recognized as welterweight champion of the world by the National Boxing Association, with certain reservations.

The N.B.A.'s title sanction was made jointly by the group's president, Arch Hindman, at its Hagerstown, Md., home, and Tony Saddy, chairman of the N.B.A. championship rating committee, in a personal appearance before the Illinois State Athletic Commission.

In certifying the Fusari-Bratton scrap as a showdown for the welter crown vacated by new middleweight king Sugar Ray Robinson, the N.B.A. specified that the winner must defend the title against Cuba's Kid Gavilan, probably in New York with 45 days.

At Salt Lake City, Red Layne, 183, Lewiston, Utah, stopped Bill Peterson, 212, of Chicago, in the third round of a four-to-be slugfest Monday night. Referee Ken Shuken stopped the fight at 2:13 into the third round and awarded Layne a technical knockout.

Pontiacs, Tamworth Will Battle For H. and A. Title

Bancroft — Bancroft Pontiacs and Tamworth expect to start the playdowns for the championship of the Hastings-Addington hockey league and the Tweed News cup on either Monday or Wednesday in Bancroft. Sunday temperatures are causing worry among team officials and if this way the spring freshets flowed on the streets of Bancroft on Sunday it will be a case of doubling the first cold night.

The North Hastings Hockey League, Coe Hill, Maynooth and Bancroft are having a tough time to finish a schedule and start their playoffs for the McGhee trophy. Coe Hill took in so honeycombed that only a week of cold weather could bring it back and as the Maynooth rink did not materialize this year games will have to be played in Bancroft. Somebody will have to make some fast decisions and cut some games in order to get this league finished in the orthodox fashion.

Also in a spot is the North Hastings Minor Hockey League. On Saturday night Coe Hill banners invaded Apsley by the back road to win 3 on 2 on ice that was politely described as "terrific". Apsley officials were so bad that they had to return home via Bancroft and Highway 28. Now Coe Hill and Apsley are tied for first place, and depending on getting some free time in Bancroft arena to settle the issue. According to a local league ruling, third place Bancroft will play the second place team for the right to meet the first team. Hockey fans will have to listen to the weather reports to carry on from here.

CONTINUE BATTLE

St. Paul, Feb. 27 (AP) —Cal Stearns and Ike Hildebrand of Kansas City continue their neck and neck battle for scoring honors in the United States Hockey League, figures showed today.

Stearns, for the second week, tops the standing with 79 points on 34 goals and 45 assists. Hildebrand, as was the case last week, is one point away from him on 37 goals and 41 assists.

Len Halidoran of Tulsa, in third place, has 77 assists, more than any other player in the circuit.

Hildebrand's 37 goals are the most credited to any player.

CANADIAN SPORTS PARADE

TURK BRODA'S impromptu announcement last week that this might possibly be his last season in the NHL has lent a nostalgic note to this year's hockey season. It seems a very long time since this old Turk took over the net from George Hainsworth in 1936. Fifteen years of goaltending has had its effect on Broda—for he is now the best 'chips on every shoulder' guy in the game. His career will go down in the records as the success story of a failure.

'Turkey Egg'

Never good enough on defence to play either forward or defence, Turk Broda found himself relegated to nets one fine day on 5th very first hockey team at the David Livingstone Public School in Brandon, Manitoba. He was a plump kid then and earned. With his freckled face, the nickname "Turkey-Egg" adorned his entrance into sport. Consistently shortened to "Turk", the name stuck to the Toronto goalie that he has to this day.

Lacking the polished finesse of a Vezina or a Durnan, Turk Broda has nevertheless displayed unparalelled showmanship throughout his career, from Junior to star in the League. Through his constant, underdog efforts he attained the heights of goaltending performance. The Pagliacci of Hockey—we'll be sorry to see him retire.

'Flyweight' Hewitt

Almost thirty years ago, a certain 103-pound flyweight hockey star was the scourge of these parts on the Ontario Circuit. Though Foster Hewitt is famed today as the "Voice of Hockey", few perhaps remember that he was the undisputed Intercollegiate Champion in 1921-22. Unable to increase his weight above his maximum of 103-pounds, the pugnacious Foster Hewitt took on all comers up to 190-pounders—and flattened them one by one! Throughout his boxing career he was never knocked down and never lost a fight.

Starting at the old Model School in Toronto, Hewitt carried his leather fists to Upper Canada College and thence to the University of Toronto. Pitted against fighters from O.A.C. and R.M.C. he left a trail of victories behind him. He triumphed (for his College) against the battlers of West Point and Annapolis and in 1922, had visions of competing in the Olympic Games of 1924.

Then he fought a battle at Varsity against a student named Shaefer of McGill University. In the first round of the three-round bout Hewitt was floored by the bruising Shaefer. In the second round he came back and in the third he knocked Shaefer out. The McGill man staggered, he lurched under Foster's right shoulder and came up suddenly, ripping the arm ligaments. Hewitt, his arm broken, finished and won the fight—but his boxing career was finished at the Olympics were gone forever. From then, Foster Hewitt has emerged as one of the best known of Canada's hockey world. St ages are the working of life.

'Slugger' Sinclair

Speaking of fists—we should get a titanic boxing battle between Foster Hewitt (when he attended Upper Canada) and the 1917 pride and joy of Riverdale Collegiate, Gordon Sinclair. The early fight between the two broadcasters (to be) undoubtedly represented Sinclair's first 'injury' journey as a travelling reporter. He certainly used his bone for news of coming events, that night.

Stepping into a flurry of leather lefts and rights from Hewitt, Gord Sinclair found himself in trouble. He fought back, but found it hard to stand against the determined onslaught of Hewitt. With the encouraging roars of the Riverdale collegians following his every fail, Sinclair delivered a number of blows but he couldn't stem the tide.

Late in the second round Hewitt caught Sinclair with a left hook sending him loose-footed to the canvas. Always the opportunist, Sinclair must have remembered that blow (we think) for in later life he even titled his well-known books "Footloose . . . etc."

To further the coincidence, Gordon Sinclair to this day, does his best writing flat on his back on canvas. He feels at home in a hammock.

Letter to the Sports Editor

The Editor
Ontario Intelligencer
Belleville, Ontario

Dear Sir:

Re: Sports Column article of Feb. 4, 1951.

First I would like to congratulate your sports editor Mr. George Carver for having the courage to publish some of the truth about the Juvenile Hockey game of Thursday between Kingston and Belleville.

It must have hurt Mr. Carver gravely to have to publish such an article when in the absence of the manager of the Juvenile team through illness Mr. Carver is the superior officer of morality in charge of said team. It is a big order for one man to be coach, manager and also morality officer at one and the same time.

Mr. Carver was appointed to this office and accepted it with great enthusiasm. As manager of this team and confined to the house up to this date it really hurts to see the man you left in charge have to write such an article of what a poor job he has, "or has not done".

If what he has written was really all the truth I would request his removal from the office he now holds, the man to help Jim Ethier and myself to train those boys in clean sport. However, all the truth has not been published and will be brought out later.

The Belleville Hockey Association is a very sorry spirit when what happened and has taken drastic steps to try and stop a recurrence of this kind. One of the wonderful facts about such an occurrence is the fact that the Belleville Hockey Association was rounded to combat such acts as this. If these boys have these ideas in the back of their minds hockey will bring it to the surface and in this way we can teach them what is wrong it is.

It is in the heat of battle or business that the real man or boy is brought to the surface and it is wrong how ashamed he will be and how much harder he will strive to do better in the future. Can anyone estimate the good this will do some of these boys that are guilty of losing their temper and being the cause of such bad publicity for the youth of Belleville also the reflection upon the men who have given of their time and energy and the city council for giving them the free time on the ice every Thursday night this winter. Well enough of that sort of thing.

These boys are a grand bunch and it is a great privilege to be associated with them and try and teach them not to do the same thing you and I did at their age. We know it is wrong now at our age but did we at their age? Did we have such a fine Hockey Association training us? I know that I did not. Well, rest assured the Belleville Hockey Association will do everything within its power to train boys to play, work and live clean, moral and Christian lives. We love these kids, and if there is any such articles about them we will fight to uphold them.

Yours for clean sport
Fred Kidd,
Manager Juvenile A team.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON, The Kibitzer

The importance of many bridge players manifests itself in the handling of a long suit. This could be the result of ignorance. They may be unfamiliar with the correct employment of Juniper.

An unusually high jump, as from one to five, is a short-suit trial or game-try to pass. If used at all, it denotes two high cards in a hand containing a very long suit without tops.

With two high cards in the hand, a normal takeout in the side forces for one round. With two aces and enough tricks, a one-jump forces to game. Either gives responder another chance to bid.

Therefore, an unusually high jump takeout is inexcusable with a hand containing two queens or better. Even if the remaining cards are small, especially, with a handful like the one shown here:

♠ 7 5 2
♥ 8 6 2
♦ K Q J 8 4 3 2
♣ None

South opened with a bid of one club when north had this hand stocked with diamonds. Lacking two ace tricks it is not a recommendation. Counting two high cards in the minors, north had nine.

The correct response with this hand is simply one diamond. A takeout so anemic that it is, therefore, it forces partner to bid at least once more. The diamonds may then be rebid.

This hand seems worthless in everything except diamonds. So what? No reason is this to stop all trading right then and there. Especially with assurance that it can be shown later.

Enough to get curious about showing such suit length when the bidding may close. This fear does not exist if a simple takeout is made. The simple takeout is forcing for one round.

Such a hand is not anxious to show its length at the beginning of the bidding. It is eager to exchange information. The opener may have plenty of stuff to talk about. Maybe enough to determine that a slam is in your palm. Take it easy.

HOT IN PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A Pittsburgh heat record for Feb. 28 was topped in Pittsburg yesterday as the mercury reached 68 degrees. The weather bureau said the previous record of 67 stood since 1878.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The return of the moustache to popularity was predicted today by makeup king Max Factor, Jr.

"The moustache is bound to increase in public esteem," observed Factor, "because it can't get any lower. Take a look at some of the film stars who have worn them off—Tyrone Power, Robert Taylor, Errol Flynn.

"Movie stars lead the fashions but they also follow. And when the public says it doesn't like moustaches, they are shaved off."

But Factor, an expert on makeup as well as female beauty, feels a reaction setting in. He attributes this to United States' mobilization. Remember the War

"Remember the moustache crop in 1943 and 1944?" he cited. "Men got away from their mothers and wives and sweethearts, and fulfilled long-held desires to grow moustaches. But nearly all of the men were forced by the women to shave them off on the return from the war."

"Soldiers in today's army will have even more motive for growing them. Most of them are boys in their teens or early 20s. Like all boys, they want to look older."

Moustaches need an artistic care and touch-up as a garden hedge, Factor said. For those with symbolisms of growing one (a moustache, not a hedge), he offered these words of advice:

"Don't try to grow a Ronald Colman moustache on an Oliver Hardy face. In fact, don't grow a moustache on an Oliver Hardy face. It would only do what it does for Hardy—get laughs.

"The Ronald Colman moustache, clipped but not too military, offers the best model for the average face.

Weather Affects Cranky Wife

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 27.—(AP)—A Dallas man has been split under a $50,000 peace bond not to strike his wife anymore with a sledge hammer.

The man explained in court yesterday that "my wife is cranky when the weather is bad. So when the weather looked threatening I hit her with a sledge hammer."

The next time you hit her," the judge warned, "you'll either pay $50,000 or lay it out in jail."

ONE WAY TO COLLECT.

Brunswick, Me., Feb. 27.—(AP)—A good way to collect back taxes is to ring doorbells and ask for them, says town manager John S. Desmond. He told Brunswick Rotarians yesterday that he collected $2,100 in such a campaign, making 250 visits to taxpayers' homes.

Solly Cantor Favored to Beat Armand Savoie

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Solly Canter of Toronto is expected to go into the ring here tonight a slight favorite over Montreal's hard - punching lightweight Armand Savoie.

Pre-fight speculation has Canter the boxer 5-5 against Savoie, noted for his punching ability.

Matchmaker Deacon Allen looks for a crowd of between 6,000 and 7,000.

Savoie was called in to sub for Alan McFater, Toronto favorite, when the latter fell beneath the onslaught of the flu epidemic last week.

Canter, who was the eighth ranking lightweight in the world a year ago, is felt to edge Savoie who holds an impressive record of 25 knockouts in 25 bouts.

Matchmaker Allen reports a "very good advance sale."

AT THE CAPITOL — Lucille Ball is starred in the title role of "The Fuller Brush Girl," Columbia Pictures' comedy at the Capitol Theatre. Eddie Albert is co-starred. On the supporting program is a Columbia cartoon, "Punch-Drunk Mr. Sloane," with Hugh Herbert and Shemp Howard. Both hits are first showings Wednesday evening. Theatre rented to Women's Hospital Auxiliary for Spring Fashion Show.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Two-year-old Jimmy Howard was found yesterday in ankle-deep swamp water wandering alone for 20 hours in the snake-and-alligator-infested Florida Everglades. The tiny tot was apparently unharmed and well. He was found by one of a 125-man searching party.

LOTS OF RAIN

London, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Britain has had more rain since New Year's Day—a total of 7.55 inches —than in any other January and February since 1879. That's when the weather bureau started keeping such records. Previously the wettest January and February came in 1915 with 7.52 inches.

500 DIE OF SMALLPOX

Calcutta, Feb. 27.—(Reuters)—Calcutta health authorities said yesterday that 500 people died here of smallpox last week—highest weekly death toll claimed by the disease this century. In the previous week 462 deaths were reported. Nearly 4,000 people have died since the epidemic began in December.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York Feb. 27 (AP)—Hal Newhouser has been telling Detroit friends that he will quit baseball if he can't prove during the 1951 season that he can win consistently for the Tigers. . . Hal's idea of consistent winning is 20 games this season, and if he can't make that he has a $30,000-a-year job waiting in a Detroit industrial plant. . .no 25-percent cut after a bad season, either. . .Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, Notre Dame's chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics, says the Irish won't be the first to jump on football television bandwagon. . . but if other big teams decide to bypass the N.C.A.A. "moratorium," Notre Dame will follow them. . . Spring has arrived item: The Harvard crew plans its first workout of the season on the Charles River today. That's almost a record for an early start, but the 1941 crew, which didn't get outdoors until March 25, had an undefeated season.

Two Pep-Offs

During the recent West Virginia-Pittsburgh basketball game at Morgantown, W. Va., a photographer's flash bulb exploded with a pop that was noticed by everyone but referee Red Mihalik. . . A moment later Red reached that end of the court, discovered fragments of glass and stopped the game, . .rushing to the Pitt bench he inquired in a booming voice: "Is anyone on the floor wearing glasses." . . Doc Carlson, the Pitt coach who has few, if any, good words for officials, snapped right back: "No, but there are a couple of blind men out there who ought to be."

One-Minute Sports Page

Two of Italy's best stake horses Solero and Tabarlle, have reached Florida's Gulfstream Park. Ought to provide some jobs for jockey Joe Culmone, who can talk to them in their own language. . .

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, February 28

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Today's stars again stress caution, wise judgment in important transactions, legal matters, etc. But Mars' aspect favors military pursuit, necessary strenuous activities.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Some precautions obtain for you today for most of us. Not all suspicions dey, but good work can be done in familiar or urgent matters. Check stock, determine needed improvements.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Take sufficient time to plan day's program efficient, thus expedite matters generally. Don't dally with unessentials; many tasks await your attention. Be extra careful in new projects.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Much depends now upon your position, its demands, how familiar you are with details, how hard you will have to work, etc. Not all influencing but some good ones.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—It will take pluck and initiative to nail the difficult tasks through to desired completion but you can do it if you really try. Be patient. It will take you; be observer, too.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Some restricting tendencies but don't let them stymie your ambition or will to win. Moreover, favor provocative day for study, teaching, research, analyzing intricate matters.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Not advice to Taurus. You can keep up with daily tasks if you don't try to overdo, fret or worry if things are slow at times. Some days are for rechecking, planning.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Your planet Mars only one today really favorably aspected. You are fortunate in that your especial interests are honored. Good day for armed forces, in charity work highly sponsored. Be tactful in home, all matters.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Energetic action in everyday duties, in necessary undertakings pertaining to government, the armed forces, in charity work highly sponsored. Be tactful in home, all matters.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—You should be able to benefit in your work, in interests of national concern; you may not be wholly satisfied in private matters. Look out for self-conferred thoughts.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Unusual weird against switching often from one thing to another. Be certain sound purpose, good cause are in interests you back. Steadiness stressed; some conditions, tasks are trying.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Follow your conscience, permit your intuition to help guide your thoughts, actions. Be right, determined in purpose, don't be tempted to drop out of anything because it is hard, tiresome.

YOU BORN TODAY should be fond of learning, the arts; enjoy good study, often meditate deeply. Many noted physicians, surgeons, chemists, other scientists and writers were born in this Zodiacal sector. Any tendency to drift from your purpose in life's work should be firmly controlled. Always associate with those of high ideals, good principles and keep your spiritual education at pace with temporal ambitions. Prayer, humility are great comforters and aids in everyday living.

Beware!

This EPIDEMIC of Grippy Colds

Coughs

MUST BE FOUGHT FROM THE FIRST SNEEZE—AND HERE IS AN EFFECTIVE WAY TO DO IT

During the present epidemic of fast-spreading, grippy colds, don't let a cough, sneeze, ache or shiver go unchecked. At the very first sign take Buckley's Cinnamated Capsules and Buckley's Mixture. This double treatment acts fast; Buckley's Mixture eases the cough almost instantly and helps correct the cause. Buckley's Cinnamated Capsules give you the benefit of not ONE but FOUR pain-relieving, cold-dispelling ingredients. The first ingredient relieves aches, pains and feverishness FAST. The second prolongs that relief. The third gives you the lift you need. The fourth—Oil of Cinnamon—is grand for grippe and similar maladies. Be prepared. Get these two dependable Buckley remedies NOW. If feverishness persists call your doctor.

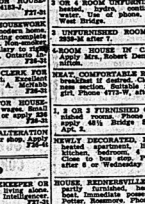
FALLS 100 FEET, STAYS 18 HOURS ON BLUFF LEDGE



Garry Dennison, age seven, stayed 18 hours on a muddy ledge of Scarboro Bluffs after he had fallen 100 feet down the cliff in the storm weather saved him from certain death. He was found by some passing boys after he had exhausted himself by crying for help and had fallen asleep. Here, some time after his experience, he munches a sandwich and tells how he played a military game of cowboys and Indians in the darkness to keep himself warm. — Central Press Canadian.

Pig iron, with all its impurities, as it comes from the smelting furnace is called pig iron. The name was applied because it was first cast in trenches and workmen noticed that it resembled a litter of pigs the way it flowed in bumps.

Princess of Gratzen

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

"Yes, you—that one." Roger, walking with Madame, saw how the little eyes go black. "You were very shy, Highness. You have not a head red-headed one since?"

Neither believed nor since. Fuller, but I'll always remember that night. He walked up the hill to the villa with her afterwards.

"Sometimes it is well to forget, Highness," said the old man. "Sorry. "One has to forget so many things now. You will let me make for you, perhaps, some of the little dishes of home."

"Ah, you are kind, Jules. But not now, thank you. We have already dined. We shall hear one more time and then we must go."

"And you will come again, please? It is yours, my little place while I live. It has been an honor and a delight to see your face again. It has been like this home to us all." Merridel laid her hand on Jules' shoulder. "It is always home, when we do our rare visits to Sweden. Be sure I shall come again and often; and I shall bring the little ones with me, so that you and Magda and Emil. It is so good to have the children here. I love to pretend Uncle Toad to bring many of them to his grand chateau. Is it not true, Roger, it would be a great thing for him to shelter the children from the terrible atrocities of many lands!"

"Too large," said Roger, "for a great idea. There's room for a hundred at Philibert, and I'm sure Madame Mimi could easily handle them all."

"Then I shall speak of it the moment we return, Jules—as revolt—and you, Magda, and you Emil." She gave Jules her hand and kissed the little ones. And she and Roger went out in the rainy street, out of the old lost world into the new. Part all the way back to the hotel they were very quiet, thinking, he knew, of home, of things loved and lost, of vanished friends and little of scathed dreams—and of the red-headed one—

On the trip back to St. Didier, Meridel confided to madame her hopes of having Uncle Budi throw open the doors of Philibert to some of the little refugees.

"Do you not think, Madame Laurin, that there is such abundance in which to be shared with those who have nothing— no, no, no friends, no possessions, no hope even? Ah, what would I and these little children have done if there were it for his kind notes! I could work, yes—I want so much to work, but those hours is no need for that I should like to give my time, my best efforts to helping those who have been made outcasts by the storm and who have here no place as a shelter from it. You will help me please, to persuade Uncle Budi?"

"Indeed I will, child," said Madame, already making lightning calculations as to the maximum number of children she could accommodate. "I'll talk to the baron. I promise you, my dear, you'll have no trouble with him. He is the most generous of men."

Meridel and Madame Fabre-Lanigan, Rudolph and Gabriel Follet sat in metal chairs, salmon pink and white on the terrace in front of Chateau Philibert that afternoon, while Rudolph, Gabriel's husband, outlined to the lawyer the grand plan they had worked out to turn the estate a sanctuary, a friendly shelter for the little friendless ones.

Gabriel Follet, sipping some of the lamented M. Gosset's excellent cognac, listened attentively. He looked like Mephisto's twin brother.

"You have the kindest, most generous heart in the world!" Lo spoke to madam, though his black eyes were intent on Rudolph's face, "one of the noblest gestures that has been made, one which all Canada, all America, will applaud and applaud."

"It will cost a great deal." Rudolph looked dubiously at madame. "In these times—"

"Pouf!" Gabriel Follet grinned into his brandy glass. "What is money in a time like this? Only a lot of silly green paper and dirty metal. Now, if will permit, I shall go back to the city and set the wheels in motion."

He bent over Meridel's hand, over madame's; he bowed low to the baron, and walked briskly over the lawn to his long black limousine. As he left a battered station wagon entered the grounds. It was driven by Flight Lieutenant Roger and contained a huge mountain of a man with a walrus mustache and a little boy and girl.

"Why, it is M. Roger!" said Meridel, "and Jules Goujon and his little grandchildren, Emil and Magda! These are the people from Gratzen, Madame Laurin. Oh, welcome them, Uncle Budi—welcome them!"

"Yes, yes!" said Madame, "welcome them, Uncle Budi, now, old Goujon had lost seen as a slim black-haired young fellow, buoyant and eager for such fun as life could offer, stepped forward and held out his hand to the lame.

"Highness," Jules bowed, "This day is a proud one for me, for my grandchildren. You are all so kind——so kind. Lieutenant Fabre is so good."

"Yes," said madame, "and good to himself."

Roger looked injured. "It was such a grand day," he said, "and I have not much more time—I must be back tonight—I wanted so much to see you, Tante Mimi, and to hear how the plans for the children are progressing. I met M. Follet going down the drive. He stopped to give me so much of the devil that I took to see if his exhaust is not splitting out the bottom. And you, Monsieur le Baron?"

"All goes well monsieur."

"I am so glad." Roger smiled at Meridel. "It makes you happy little children."

"I shall have much to do. I shall like it."

"I could show you about the park," suggested Roger, "if the baron will allow me so much of the devil that I look

CANADIAN TROOPS CAPTURE TWO KEY HILLS

Accuse Luciano As Vice Overlord In U.S. Crime Ring

Say $20 Billion Yearly Handled by Underworld

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP) — Senate Crime Committee investigators today pictured Charles (Lucky) Luciano, deported New York vice overlord, as the brains of a vast and secret underworld government.

Luciano, now in Italy, settles disputes between two of the country's three crime syndicates the Senators added.

In a preliminary report the committee said the United States is menaced by highly-organized criminals financing a "large" part of their gambling. They operate in many places with the connivance and protection of law enforcement officials at all levels of government.

The committee estimated "conservatively" that $20,000,000,000 changes hands every year in illegal gambling. It added that billions of dollars of this are paid out as protection money in various forms.

From the thousands of pages of testimony it took from some 600 witnesses, the committee said the conclusion is inescapable that there is a second government within the government — the government by the underworld."

"This secret government of criminals is a serious menace which could, if not curbed, become the basis for a subversive movement which could wreck the very foundations of this country."

The report was signed by Senators headed by Senator Estes Kefauver, (Dem., Tenn.) said it has little doubt about the existence of "at least two major crime syndicates."

Meet in Chicago

One of these, it said, has its ties with Meyer Lansky, Phil Kastel and Joe Adonis.

Adonis is a big-time gambler with headquarters in the New York-Miami area. Costello is described in the report as the outstanding underworld leader in the New York city area.

"If there can be said to be one head who sits as an arbiter of any disputes between the two, it is Costello," (Lucky) Luciano."

Although Luciano now is in Italy, he maintains associations with both groups through his former racketeer associations."

The committee told the Senate the most shocking revelation" of the hearings is "the complete lack to date "is the extent of official corruption in connection with the trafficking and promoting organized crime."

Evidence of this has been found at all levels of government — federal, state and local."

The committee also said there is no doubt that Governors Warren of Florida and Forrest Smith of Missouri were aided in their election campaigns by contributions from "known gamblers."

Vigorous storm over eastern Ontario moving towards the Great Lakes area will bring moderating temperatures and rain to southern Ontario and snow to northern regions.

Police Escort Plant Workers Through Lines

Whitby, Feb. 28 (CP) — Escorting by police of Whitby Knitting Mills employees through picket lines of Local 1905, United Textile Workers of Union, Tuesday was labelled "outright gestapo tactics" by union organizers Sid Emmerson and Jim Whitehead.

The union called a strike Monday when the company refused to grant a conciliation board's recommendation that a closed shop provision be granted. The company granted a pay boost of eight cents an hour to make the starting rate 75 cents an hour. The union is demanding 78 cents an hour, the prevailing rate in Toronto mills.

Constables allowed a dozen employees to enter the plant past the union's picket line, on orders from police chief Roy Love. They also ordered the removal of a picket tent from civic property across from the plant.

Seven Honorary Members Have Votes Taken Away

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)— The seven honorary—members on the executive of the Architectural and Electrical Association no longer will have a vote, the O.M.E.A. decided yesterday.

Honorary members include Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario. The resolution, moved by Commissioner Bert Merson of Toronto hydro, said that in principle such votes could conceivably upset the majority opinion expressed by the Association as a whole. The executive has a total of 18 members.

Mr. Merson said that the Association had been formed for the protection of municipal utilities. This purpose could be defeated by allowing members of the executive who were not on municipal commissions to vote.

ACCIDENTS INCREASE

London, Feb. 28—(Reuters)— Road accidents killed or injured more than 200,000 people in Britain last year—highest total for any year since the war. The Ministry of Transport announced that the total was 12,000 more than those of 239 over the previous year and seriously injured 48,652, an increase of 5,243.

U.S. Suffers 49,000 Casualties In Korea, Other Countries 2,800

United Nations, N.Y., Feb. 28 (AP)—Figures available today show that 10 countries fighting beside Americans and South Korean troops have suffered 2,813 casualties. This is about one-twelfth of the approximately 35,322 men they have sent to the Korean war.

The United States has suffered 49,191 casualties. Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, said this country has sent to Korea over 250,000 ground troops in Korea.

Three other countries with men in Korea—Belgium, Luxembourg and Thailand—had no casualty figures.

Turkey, whose 5,000 - man brigade has won international renown for its daring, had the highest total—948 casualties — but France suffered the worst in percentage. A third of the 1,122-man French contingent—374 men—are casualties.

Australia: 1,000 men serving; 48 killed, 209 wounded, six missing, 2 prisoners of war. Total 265. These figures are as of Feb. 18.

Canada: No official figures available. Canadian troops went into action only last Wednesday. Unofficial reports say three dead and three wounded of the 2,600-man force.

Union. UN did not specify whether the Canadian casualties were among the Dominion's land forces in Korea or its naval squadron. In addition to the 1,000-odd men of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Korea, Canada has three destroyers with crews totalling

GOVERNMENT BILL PROVIDES NEW INDIAN CHARTER

Almost Identical With One Proposed Last Year

Ottawa, Feb. 28 (CP) — A government bill aimed at providing new charter for the 135,000 de- ... nts of Canada's original Indian settlers was introduced yesterday in the Commons.

The bill was almost identical with one proposed at the spring session of 1950 and then withdrawn to permit Indian bands and others to study the suggested changes. In the words of citizenship minister Harris, the bill contained "improvements" in some sections, but little new from the last version.

He indicated that some amendments may be made before the legislation finally passes parliament. He will meet today with 18 representatives of Indian bands and organizations from all parts of Canada to discuss the legislation. The private talks may continue until the end of the week.

It will mark the first time that a minister of the Crown has pow-wowed with representatives of Indians in Canada's history to affect them. The existing Indian Act has not been revised since the 1880s.

The revision proposed by the 134-clause bill, given first reading by the Commons, is the result of several years of work. A parliamentary committee studied Indian affairs in 1946, 1947 and 1948 and many recommendations are contained in the legislation.

The new act would grant Indians greater control over their own affairs, Mr. Harris told the Commons. It would provide "more public authority" for giving Indians self-government in their band affairs.

It would empower the federal ... rnment to give band councils annually specific sums of funds though the government would retain control because it provides the money.

Victim of Fatal Disease Which Knows No Cure

A middle-aged man with an incurable illness has been bedridden at Cornwall, Ont., for many years. Doctors have given up hope of saving his life, but Alfred Frampton, seen with daughter Sylvia, hasn't, because he is hoping for a miracle to happen. At 53, Mr. Frampton is one of hundreds in Canada suffering from muscular dystrophy, a peculiar ailment that has baffled scientists for decades. In advanced stages, a person suffering from this disease lacks sufficient strength to even brush his teeth. Yet despite this gloomy outlook, Mr. Frampton is optimistic that some day, he feels sure, a doctor will devise a cure for the malady which threatens his life. Central Press Canadian.

Federal Handling of Civil Defence Not Satisfactory To Members of Legislature

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)—Leaders of the three major political parties in Ontario legislature are not satisfied with federal government handling of civil defence.

Views of the party chieftains were expressed yesterday during an impromptu debate which grew out of a report by provincial secretary Welsh on last Friday's federal - provincial conference in Ottawa on civil defence.

Premier Frost said his government is "mystified" about Ottawa's civil defence policy. "Surely we have the right to ask for a clarification of the federal government's position," he said.

E. B. Jolliffe, C. C. F. leader, said the proposals Mr. Welsh told about would result in a "half-baked program."

Farquhar Oliver, liberal house leader, said all parties in the legislature would back the government in asking for clarification of the federal policy. "Maybe the federal government feels that vast expenditures aren't necessary," he said. "If that is so, then they should tell us."

Mr. Welsh said the federal government had agreed to provide extra, fire equipment at cost, stock-pile necessary medical supplies and pay the cost of billeting evacuated persons in an air raid.

However, Mr. Welsh said, Ottawa had given no assistance on compensation for injuries of civil defence trainees, took no responsibility for stock-piling food; buying training equipment and heavy rescue equipment or contributing to salaries of full-time provincial and municipal defence personnel.

United Church Condemns Govt. Building

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Rev. Arthur Organ of Hamilton, presiding at the annual meeting of the United Church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service, today described as "scandalous" the federal government's construction of a postal and customs building in Hamilton while families are unable to obtain good housing.

The board passed a resolution urging the federal government to stop the building of a training centre for postal officials at Peterborough.

It also called for a halt to all present construction of taverns, cocktail bars and every other type of liquor outlet.

Banning of dog racing and floodlighted harness racing in Canada was called for by another resolution. The board will ask Justice Minister Garson to amend legislation so that on-track bookie gambling at harness horse racing tracts of more than two days will be illegal. It will also urge attorneys-general in the provinces to reduce "drastically" the number of days of racing.

Biggest Air Base In Italy to be Taken by U.S.

Rome, Feb. 28 (AP) — The United States probably will take over the biggest air base in Italy and one of the strongest naval bases in Italian waters as part of the Atlantic pact co-ordination of defences, it was learned today.

Both American and Italian military sources declined to give the specific locations, but it is presumed here the air base will be at Foggia, near the heel of the Italian Boot, and the naval base at the little fortress island of Maddalena off the northern tip of Sardinia.

Foggia, biggest air base in Italy, was built by the United States Army Air Forces and Italy and used throughout the Italian campaign.

The air base is believed capable of handling B-36 "atomic"bombers.

Suspend Chief In Welland For 'Neglect'

Welland, Feb. 28 (CP) — S. S. Nicholes, counsel for Police Chief Thomas Gee, said today he was advised that the chief "will have to meet charges involving neglect of duty."

He made the statement after attending a brief session of the Welland police commission. Mayor Dave Thomas of Welland announced yesterday that the chief had been under suspension since Monday.

Magistrate George Street, another member of the commission, said the commission had turned over to city solicitor Allan L. ... rooks a report, submitted by Ontario Provincial Police last ... turday to prepare charges.

Mr. MacInnes said no particulars were furnished to him today.

CANADA EXPECTED TO ASSUME ROLE IN N. ATLANTIC

Over-All Control Comes Under One Man

Ottawa, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Canada is expected to assume operational naval control over a large area of the North Atlantic in any new war.

But Ottawa has agreed that over-all control of the North Atlantic, including the Canadian area and Canadian ships, should come under one man, American Admiral W. M. Fechteler.

This is a new concept wedded to the larger Atlantic Pact concept that defence of the whole North Atlantic area — land and sea — is one job. It has caused turmoil and friction in London, spearheaded by Winston Churchill's charges against the Labor government of failing to uphold the "Britannia rules the waves" tradition.

There has been no similar disturbance here, although Ottawa has been watching the London developments with interest, because Canada's position is not unlike that of Britain. But there have been no charges or blistering, at least in naval circles, that even remotely approach those in the national sovereignty it is wise to have defence of the Atlantic under a single man.

It was comes, Russia's concentration on submarines, more numerous and deadly than Hitler's U-boats, is bound to make the North Atlantic once more a battleground than in the last war. For that reason, Canada now is building a 100-ship anti-sub navy.

Applies to Dominion

The core of the London dispute appears to be that the new system would give Admiral Fechteler the power, at least in theory, to take British ships away from defence of the British Isles and place them elsewhere for strategic reasons. The same situation applies to Canada.

The global war shaping up now after prolonged but not final discussions among the top naval powers, is that a Canadian admiral at Halifax directed the anti-submarine defence of Iceland for some years. The boundaries for any new defence area will be drawn by the leaders but a roughly-similar area of responsibility is now unlikely.

The difference is this: Then there was no equivalent of Admiral Fechteler, a 52-year-old man who could conceivably order part of Canada's fleet away from Canada's general area because he thought ships should be elsewhere. That is unthinkable.

This time the Atlantic is expected to be split into two major areas, British and American. Canada would undertake fighting control of part of the U.S. area either under Admiral Fechteler himself or some U.S. admiral subordinate.

Legendary Gold Mine, Hoodoo for 60 Years May Have Claimed 30th Victim

Vancouver, Feb. 28 — (CP) — A legendary gold mine, reputedly the cause of 29 deaths in the last 50 years, may have claimed its 30th victim.

Police yesterday began a search for Alfred Gaspard, a 60-year-old prospector who has not been seen since he set out seven months ago to find Slumach's lost Creek mine in the mountain upper reaches of Pitt River, 45 miles north of Vancouver.

The mine is said to have been found originally by an Indian named Slumach, who appeared in New Westminster in 1858 flush with a fortune in gold. He made several trips to the mine, returning each time with another load of gold.

Slumach died on the gallows at New Westminster in 1892 after confessing to the murder of eight Indians whom he killed after he took a woman to the mine with him each trip, and killed each of them to keep its location secret.

Twenty men are said to have vanished into the mountain wilderness in search of Slumach's mine. None returned. One American is said to have died shortly after returning to the U.S. in a state of hardship and disaster and a packload of Slumach's gold.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police began an aerial search for Gaspard on Monday, but bad weather turned them back. An R.C.M.P. constable and a half-breed guide began a ground search yesterday.

Gaspard was flown into the headwaters of Pitt Lake last July. Two weeks later, a plane dropped him 400 pounds of food — enough to last a bush-wise prospector about five months.

For three days prospectors walked him work his way into the rugged country. Then he disappeared.

Within Striking Distance of Main Red Supply Route

Americans Command 8-Mile Stretch of Vital Junction

Tokyo, Feb. 28 (CP) —Canadian troops took two key hills on Korea's west-central front today bringing Commonwealth soldiers within striking distance of the main Chinese supply route.

The hills taken by the Canadians were important enemy points in the Chinese communist defence system. They flanked Hill 614 which was captured in bitter fighting by Australian troops yesterday.

A front-line dispatch by John Collins of Reuters news agency said:

"As a result of Je Australian-Canadian advance, the Commonwealth brigade today held a commanding ridge line within striking distance of the main Chinese lateral supply route in the western central sector — a vital tunnel of the communists' main east-west supply highway on the central Korean front after smashing red defences around Pangnim.

The American command an eight mile stretch of road from Pangnim to Hoengsong, a vital junction ten miles to the west.

On the western front a U.S. ... ired probed into the rubbled former Korean capital of Seoul, but deliberately withdrew Wednesday night.

By nightfall, only minor patrol action was reported all along the front. In the middle of the central front, U.S. 1st Marine Division patrols explored the flanks of Chinese forces north, east and west of Hoengsong, but reported no contact with the reds.

Fight Stiff Action

Canadian, British and New Zealand units fought a stiff action Tuesday north of Chipyong, between Seoul and Hoengsong. The allied units captured a hill but reds had defended for a week. The action took place on slippery hills in the Jutgu - Yangpyong sector. New Zealand artillery helped drive off the Chinese, estimated the eighty Imnita, City Hall correspondent with the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, said the Canadians "maintained a lively exchange of fire" with "deeply-entrenched" reds. Boss described the action as a "continuation of the two-day battle by the Patricias to take high ground above Sozu stubbornly defended by the reds."

The high ground taken by the Commonwealth troops is in a triangle formed by Yongduri, Chipyong and Hoengsong. It is in hills area that the Commonwealth fifth brigade, including the Patricias, Tuesday fought off an enemy force estimated at 2,000.

Wrestlers Use Ring Tactics To Down Intruder

New York, Feb. 28 — (AP) — The big man with the big black beard seemed to like having his head stroked by the admiring young lady at the bar.

But the little man next to them didn't seem to like it. The lady, he said, was his wife.

There were some pushing back and forth by the little man and the big bearded man. It wasn't clear who pushed first.

Then a strapping beer-truck driver, John Rapp, stepped in. His wrist was grabbed, he sailed over a shuffleboard, and landed on the floor — with a broken arm.

The bearded man disappeared.

Police, on a complaint from Rapp, located him later. He was booked as Albert Alexius, and released in $1,000 bail on a felonious assault charge.

In the wrestling ring he is usually billed as Ivan (The Mad Torturer) Gorky.

Women Rescued, Save Invalid in Two-Alarm Fire

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP) — Five persons were rescued today and occupants of 49 apartment suites fled when a two-alarm fire swept through the Vaughan Gardens Apartments in suburban York township. Out flames and fire ...ured.

Screaming, hysterical women fled through the smoke-filled corridors after the fire broke out in the basement through the four-storey building on Vaughan Road, just northwest of the city limits. City firemen responded to a township appeal.

Two women were carried down ladders and a semi-invalid was carried out by firemen. Charles Fielding of the township fire department was burned about the face by a back flash from the flames.

At 2.20 p.m. EST the blaze was under control.

Residents said six-year-old Laird Neville aroused many to danger April by running through the hallways shouting "fire!" Fire Chief Ernie Woods of York township said all residents escaped safely.

An hour after the blaze was reported, flames were sweeping through the two ground floors of the building and destroyed the rear windows.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined. Firemen donned gas masks to search the building for any residents still inside and as a precaution against dense smoke which baffled their efforts to find the source of the blaze.

Y.P.U. Groups Of District Meet at Trenton

Trenton Fifteen Young People's groups from South Hastings gathered in Trenton last weekend to hold their sixth annual "Fellowship Sunday" in King Street United Church. More than 75 young people attended morning, afternoon and evening sessions. Theme for the day was "The Call of Christ".

Guest speaker at the afternoon session was Gordon Nodwell, now studying for his ministry. Mr. Nodwell told the young people that if the call of Christ is to be heard, they must seek it. After it is heard, a long period of struggle, studying and prayer must follow so that adjustment to the purposes of Christ can be made.

In the morning, the group attended service at King Street United Church, and heard Rev. G. J. Mitchell preach on their theme. The afternoon worship service was conducted by the Bethany Y.P.U. Dick Mantell led the service, assisted by Patricia Walker and Bruce McPherson and Marilyn Eagleton, accompanied by Garnet Sills, sang "The Lord's Prayer".

Discussion groups during the day were led by Maude Baxter, Wilhelmina Huffman, Gaynor Mantell and Douglas Dowse, with the forums dealing with missions, culture, citizenship and administration.

The evening fellowship banquet was provided by the W.M.S. of King Street Church, and A. R. Kendall opened the evening worship service with an organ recital. Assisting Mr. Miniely in the morning were Felicity Bennett and Ethel Gardiner, and in the evening Eloise Sine and Don Williams. A communion service brought the day to an end.

60 New Members Added to Ranks Canadian Legion

Between 50 and 60 new members were added to the local branch No. 99 of the Canadian Legion at colorful initiation ceremonies conducted Tuesday evening at the Civic Centre.

Officials of the Provincial Command, including Lt. Col. G. M. Fitzgerald of Orangeville, provincial president, with Pat Biggs, provincial secretary and district officers were on hand to officially initiate the new members into Legion. Approximately 100 applications for membership had been received, but due to illness, many of the candidates were not present.

The opening ritual ceremony was in charge of L. G. Madden, president of the local Legion Branch, who also welcomed the visitors and guests. The color party carrying the King's Colors and Colors of the Legion was piped in by Jamie Clarke. The color party was in charge of Army Cadet Garth Scott and Earl Vandervoort carrying the colors.

Nine Districts

Provincial officers, including Col. Fitzgerald and Pat Biggs, with District Commander Frank Threadgold of Whitby and Clifford Lacey, District Service Officer, Kingston, were introduced by Everett Liddle, Deputy District Commander of Belleville. Mr. Liddle noted the Canadian Legion now had 60,000 members in 532 branches. There were nine districts in the province.

Following the initiation ceremony Col. Fitzgerald addressed the meeting on the work of the Legion, which he said, and Frank Threadgold, also spoke briefly.

Thanks to the visiting presidents were expressed by Jack Vanover, past president; Max Mattherwy expressed appreciation to the provincial secretary, while Ed Smith, Deputy Zone Commander expressed thanks to Mr. Threadgold.

Chairman Speaks Briefly

Henry Becker, past president of the Legion and chairman of the membership committee, has been greatly responsible for the success of the membership drive in Belleville. Mr. Becker spoke briefly to the meeting.

One of the features of the evening's program was the presentation of the past president's badge to Miss Matthews, who headed the local branch of the Legion in 1949-50. The presentation was by Col. Fitzgerald, provincial president.

The Y.M.C.A. Boys' Choir under the leadership of Hallet Bent, program director, was heard in a number of vocal selections during the evening, while Ethel Smith, well known local vocalist, accompanied by Dean Whales, favored with solos. Phil Huddleston presided at the piano.

Following the initiation ceremonies the evening's program was closed with a social get-together.

Recently-Developed Loose Barn Extensively Dealt With at Parley

Dairy profits are the difference between the selling price of dairy products and their cost of production, Veterans' Land Act settlement officer Art Owen, Barrie, Ont., said today speaking on grass silage as the answer in Canada to profitable milk production.

Mr. Owen, well-known Ontario livestock authority, was speaking at the V.L.A. Operation Good Earth conference now in its third day here at the Hotel Quinte.

Both yesterday afternoon and this morning were devoted almost exclusively to discussion of various aspects of forage crops, with some talks on related machinery and suitable farm buildings.

The recently-developed loose barn-milking parlor combination was dealt with quite extensively by the first speaker this morning, settlement officer W. F. Thomson, Brampton, Ont., who spoke of several farmers in his area who have changed old-type barns to the new system without heavy expenditure of buildings.

Supply Plans

"The Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph will supply any farmer with a questionnaire and subsequently a plan of renovation, free of charge," he said.

Following Mr. Thomson's address, the chairman for the morning session, R. B. Donaldson, Newmarket regional supervisor, asked J. E. Goodchild, district supervisor of development, Toronto, to outline briefly the dairy barn set-up on Louis Bromfield's famed Malabar Farm, which a few V.L.A. officials visited last year.

"Mr. Bromfield has only recently had barns similar to those modified barns which are in thousands of Ontario barns. He has also gone to be repeated by almost any Ontario farmer at relatively little cost," Mr. Goodchild said.

Corn Nutritious Food

Settlement officers W. G. Tomkins, Uxbridge, and Ernie Bailey, Lindsay, spoke for and about corn as a highly-productive, nutritious crop when ensiled, and also as an emergency crop, when other forage crops fail.

"Corn is often condemned as conducive to a fire hazard when properly grown on the contour, it can be an important factor in controlling soil erosion," Mr. Tomkins said. "It will provide more feed per acre, and more food value than any other roughage crop and should be fitted into the regular rotation where soil and topography are suitable."

The last speaker this morning, R. P. Zimmer, Huntsville, spoke on treach silos, their construction methods of filling and removing the silage, comparing them, from a cost and storage value viewpoint, with the more conventional tower silos.

Against Heavy Feeding

Both Mr. Owen with the assistance of settlement officer V. J. and settlement officer V. J. O'Malley, Richmond Hill, were against heavy cattle for peak production to obtain maximum profit. "The cow with a big milk may cost more than it is worth," Mr. Owen said, "besides endangering the health of the cow and shortening her life."

Mr. O'Malley quoted recently-released results of a feeding experiment at Rutgers University, New Jersey, stating that high-quality hay and silage, plus about one pound of grain for each pound of milk produced, was the most profitable under normal conditions.

Harvesting Costs

Quoting hay harvesting costs, settlement officer A. H. Caskey, Toronto, said that the quantity of hay to be harvested should determine the type of machinery to be used, and consequently the cost of harvesting. With only 30 tons hand-loading is the most economical, working out to about $4.00 per ton, whereas more than 100 tons are necessary before this figure can be reached with modern balers and forage harvesters.

District superintendent H. L. Armstrong, Toronto, unable to attend the annual conference for his district until this morning, spoke briefly after the session opened. Visitors today include J. D. Bellis, Quebec district development supervisor, Montreal, and Thomas Dickison, manager of Dawes Dairy Farm, who will be the main speaker at the session this afternoon.

Freedom Enjoyed Not to be Taken Lightly Says Kiwanis Club Speaker

Mel Osborne, lieutenant-governor for division six of Kiwanis, told local Kiwanians Tuesday that the freedom they enjoy today is not to be taken lightly, and that they must help to educate the people of Canada so that democracy will be appreciated for what it is.

Mr. Osborne said that it was felt after World War II that we were entering into a "lasting peace," but that with the present international situation, "we might think we have stepped back to the days of Austria and Czechoslovakia." He emphasized that the duties of Kiwanis members have now progressed from the aid-to-youth stage to the wider field.

Must Broaden Service

"We must broaden our service," he said, "to serve in a national sense." Mr. Osborne continued that communism was one of the gravest dangers ever to face the world, and that "the most pressing problem today is the inroads that communism has made."

Much of the danger of communism stems from its affinity for the dark, according to Mr. Osborne. "We must bring communism out into the light, where we can see what it truly is," he said, — "a cancer in our midst." He says that one accomplished is to educate the public, to help them recognize communism when they see it. "We must remember," he said, "that the freedom we now enjoy has been purchased, and we must pay a price for it."

Can Settle Differences

One of the best examples ever to illustrate how nations could function in harmony exists in the United States, he said, and the United States, "There is harmony, because these two nations can settle our differences over a conference table."

Mr. Osborne urged the Kiwanians to help uphold the United Nations in the hope that a period of freedom and free nations in the world. "There are ever-increasing international peace", he said, "it must be achieved through some international agency such as United Nations". He stated that although the United Nations had suffered setbacks it still provided the only method for world harmony, and as such should be built up by the minds of the people, not torn down.

Visiting Kiwanians were also present and were expressed in one word—freedom", the speaker continued. He referred to the Magna Carta as one of the first steps in freedom's history, and traced it highly up to the four freedoms as set down in the Atlantic Charter in 1940, when Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt met in the Atlantic ocean to agree on what the rights of free people were.

Freedoms Challenged

"Today our freedoms are being challenged by communism", Mr. Osborne said. "Russia is bent on world conquest by the methods which would take us back to the Middle Ages." He said that the way to keep communism down was to ensure that the younger generation knew what the barbarians had fought for, and that it was worth fighting for again.

"You and I have the power and right to make Canada what we want it to be," he said, "free, independent, fearless, forthright and kind." He said that these were the qualities in the country given to us by our forefathers, and that they must be continued.

"The challenge of communism is everywhere in the world today," the lieutenant-governor concluded, "and as Kiwanians, it is our responsibility to give leadership during 1951 and meet this challenge."

Mr. Osborne was introduced by Bill Slade and thanked by Mark Vanzer.

Dairy Herd Improvement And Cost Milk Production Discussed by Hastings Units

What the Ontario Dairy Herd Improvement Association has done for the average farmer in the long to weed out non-productive cows and to set up cost of production records, was told to members of two Hastings county units of the Association at their annual meeting held Tuesday at Campbellford.

Speakers at the meeting included Clifford Morrow, head of the dairy herd improvement branch, and Fred Hayward, of the farm economics branch of the O.A.C. at Guelph.

Mr. Morrow outlined what the Association had accomplished since its inception back in 1949, while Mr. Hayward went over one year cost of production records for the two Hastings county units compiled from information made available by its members. Both Re-elected

The Thurlow - Tyendinaga unit and the Sidney - Rawdon unit have been in operation since May 1st, 1949. Lloyd Bonter, Belleville, is president of the Thurlow unit, while Harry Phillip is head of the Sidney unit. Both men were re-elected. Maximum for each unit is 26 herds.

Mr. Morrow noted there were 44 local associations in the province from Glengarry county on the east to Middlesex on the west. Policy was also to seek to increase the number of associations until service was given in those already established.

He noted that reports for 22 associations had been sent out, these covering 522 herds of cattle. The average production per cow shown was 9,000 pounds with an average of 282 pounds of butterfat. He expressed the opinion that herds on which reports had been sent out were "better than average herds."

Average Test 2.6 P.C.

Herd averages per cow in the reports sent out ranged from a low of 5,735 pounds per cow with 138 pounds of butterfat, to a high of 12,053 with 406 pounds of fat. Average tests ranged at low as 2.6 percent butter fat.

In some instances reports indicated that farmers were attempting to keep too many cows with result that only maintenance rations were being fed. It was the efficiency of feeding over the maintenance ration which determined the profit or loss.

Many low producing herds were low testers, the answer to this being the use of a sire whose dam has a high butterfat record.

Artificial insemination allowed opportunity of knowing the record of sires with result that herds could be built up. Farmers in this area were fortunate that the insemination unit had sires with good records.

"The day is past in agriculture when farmers can be slap-happy about production costs," stated Mr. Morrow, "it is now much more than just a way of life—it is a hard business proposition."

Production Costs High

In going over costs of production figures for the two local units, Mr. Hayward pointed out that although the price received for milk made a big difference in net returns, he suggested that cost of producing the milk possibly had an even greater bearing.

Labor and feed costs made up about four-fifths of the cost of production and the speaker urged that strict attention be given to these two factors. For some reason production costs for farmers supplying the fluid milk market seemed to be a bit higher than for cheese milk but it was suggested the feeding of additional suggested feeding of additional with this.

Farmers Fortunate

Quality of roughage fed also had a big bearing in production costs with farmers in this area being particularly fortunate that they grew practically all their own roughage, raised their own young cattle and grew roughly two-thirds of their own concentrates.

Cost of production figures based only on one year's operation were unreliable and apt to vary considerably from those of another year depending on conditions and other factors, it was stated.

For a yearly fee of $12 farmer members of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association have a tester come to their farm once per month to weigh milk. From this they get individual records for the month's production and from information given receive figure charts relating to cost of production.

WITHIN STRIKING

The major objective of the powerful American punch on the east - west sector of the central front was to kill reds, the goal since the limited offensive began Jan. 25.

Vital to Communists

But the real estate won by the 7th was vital to the communists. The Pangnip-Hoengsong road is part of the highway which cuts across the Korean peninsula from Kangnung on the east coast to Seoul, rubbled old republic capital near the west coast.

Maj. Gen. Claude B. Ferenbaugh, commander of 7th division, said the main defences of the North Korean 3rd Corps had been broken. He said the corps' losses "must be pretty close to half of them."

But the pursuing infantrymen were faced with a tough job in running down the Korean red remnants. A divisional regimental commander said the region is uncharted. Its mountains are none of the craggiest in Korea.

To the west, the Chinese and Korean reds were preparing for a stiff battle. From Hoengsong to the outskirts of red-held Seoul they were busy throwing up defences.

U.S. 1st Cavalrymen and the U.S. 24th Division met stiffening resistance on the British right flank. Grenade-tossing Chinese drove a 24th patrol from a high hill northeast of Yangpyong.

Marines Storm Ashore

On the Yellow Sea coast northwest of Seoul, South Korean Marines stormed ashore near Onglin, within five miles of the 38th parallel. They reported killing a red brigade commander and 20 other officers and capturing equipment and documents before returning to their ships.

The commando-type raid was made Sunday, but was not disclosed until Wednesday by South Korean sources.

Off the east coast, a small South Korean landing force captured another island near Wonsan, a red-held port 90 miles north of parallel 38.

Other communist supply lines and rail centres were hit by planes of the Far East air force. Okinawa based B-29s rained 160 tons of bombs Wednesday on Hamhung and Chongjin, east coast cities north of Wonsan.

Chinese prisoners captured in various sectors of the front, intelligence sources said today, have reported plans for a major offensive next month by the 31 divisions of the red Chinese third field army—300,000 men—backed by 1,000 hitherto-concealed planes.

THE TRENTON HOSPITAL

Residents of Trenton and the surrounding district can be justly proud of their new hospital. Needed for years in the bustling town, the hospital will now serve an area formerly without immediate hospital care.

In an emergency, accommodation for 25 more patients can be provided, and no more than four people are slated to occupy any one room. Operating and X-ray equipment are of the best, and the rest of the medical requirements equal that of much larger and more costly institutions.

Cooperation was the keynote of the eight-year campaign to provide the district with adequate services, and it was only through hard work, more especially perseverance, that the building was erected. Now, with all that behind them, Trentonians can look forward to the service their hospital can offer. No longer, except in perhaps the direst emergencies, will it be necessary to send the sorely tinsel long-time or ten miles to the Belleville General Hospital.

Hon. William A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare for Ontario, had it right on Sunday when he said that a community growing as fast as Trenton is had need for a hospital. That the building was needed, not any was that the acquisition of the hospital is a sign of coming maturity.

Trenton, as a town, is maturing fast, and under skilled hands, can become a leading community on Lake Ontario. The hospital alone will place it among the leaders, and the area surrounding her will benefit greatly from her prominence. Equally, the contributions of the adjacent areas will help Trenton, and with cooperation within and without the town, further progress be taken.

The $525,000 hospital may be the first concrete step of the future. For that much, all the Trentonians who had a hand in the institution are to be congratulated.

CARE SAVES DISASTER

Legendary heralds of spring, the robin, the crow, the caterpillar and the pussy-willow have been reported as being in the district during the past few days. Added to these was the announcement of the opening of fishing dates, and amount of "traps" for the 1931 season.

To a winter-weary city dweller, and to rural residents as well, these signs denote the passing of snow-packed roads and highways; ice-shackled rivers, creeks and lakes; the tenants of apartments and houses and other diverse winter "standard equipment."

They bring with them visions of fishing trips along foam-whipped streams, placid lakes and flowing rivers. Of week-end weekends spent at the cottage, cabin and holiday resort. Of motors speeding along ribboned highways to the vacation lands of the north and other holiday spots of the province and Dominion.

Even now fishermen are beginning to thrill with the thoughts of getting out the gear and tackle, kicking the debris of a winter-worn city from their heels and hieing themselves to their favorite haunts. April 30 will see a general exodus of local and district Isaak Waltons to the streams of the "fish country."

The thrill increases when the day comes to load up the car and start the trip north along the highways, and finally down the roads through the woods to the jumping-off point.

But spring has its hazards, too. And one of the greatest of these is bush and forest fires. The Department of Lands and Forests estimates a lot of, timber, wildlife and cottage sites, not to mention young growth and topsoil, perhaps the greatest loss of all. In the Bay of Quinte district last summer, smokers had the unhappy distinction of causing nearly half the fires that occurred — 26 out of 54.

The sad part is that all these fires could have been avoided by a few simple precautions. A smoke offers much to the man who enjoys it, but it is just plain dynamite in the woods when precautions are forgotten. Dry wood will ignite at 700 degrees and an unextinguished cigarette butt generates up to 1200 degrees, says a Department of Lands and Forests official. He added a few safety rules:

Use the car ash tray. Never throw matches, cigarettes or unextinguished cigar butts out a car window or from an aircraft.

In the woods, sit down for your smoke in a safe place. Don't smoke while walking or working and when you're finished, grind out the butt or pipe ashes on a rock or damp soil, before you leave.

Break your match in two, to be sure it's out, but better yet use a lighter.

NOW AND THE FUTURE

The book of the future that soon will be read,
Today, still unopened, is in somebody's head.

The song they'll be singing a

Is the dream of some writer of lyrics today.

The future is now in the minds of the few
Who are patiently plotting and learning to do

What the satisfied wise still believe can't be done.
And already the fruits of discovery's begun.

All things men will fashion,

That will better the future,

NO PLACE FOR SELF-PITY

How many of us need the sound "come-upance obtained by a group of 400 adolescent students of a Canadian clergyman recently. The warning that the boys will receive hard knocks if they keep taking themselves over-seriously. When things don't go right, it is unfair to blame the world, the other fellow every time, and don't feel sorry for yourself. It is unmanly to indulgence, and a sign of immaturity.

Dr. Edward Strecker, of Philadelphia, and other thoughtful psychiatrists are convinced that much of the self who will read or listen to "grow up" emotionally. Better-balanced parents are their first line of defense against a common foe, we shall be well advised not to jump to the conclusion that he's leaning toward goal, for our future is in the maturing hands and heads of our children. Many parents are childish, how they can expect their impressionable youngsters to develop into sensible, well-adjusted adults.

The feeling sorry for oneself, the "poor me" attitude, then, is an inward devil of the immature spirit; a devil we must drive out. Our enemies in Moscow are counting on our love of comfort, our fear of pain, to soften our character for the kill. If we should be forced to give up some of our physical comforts, to substitute guns for butter, let there be no demoralizing self-pity among us.

True, the Yugoslav chief is a dissenter against the Bolshevist tenet that world domination rests in Moscow. He is a nationalist and no supporter of the Communist monopoly of his country to Russia.

But don't forget that Tito remains a communist (though not a Bolshevist) and he maintains a dictatorship, all the same. Ideologically there is nothing in common between Tito'ism and democracy.

Saving Grace

There remains one saving grace in the situation. While there is no possible chance for democracy and democracy living side by side in amity, there is hope apparent among the Yugoslavs that autocracy shouldn't get along. This is true because the Cardinal tenet of Bolshevism is world domination by Moscow, whereas the Tito brand of communism, while a dictatorship, doesn't profess to aim at global rule.

No questions to be seen whether a dynamic figure like Tito might get grandiose ideas as Stalinism

Mackenzie's Column:

Satellite Revolt Against Moscow Still Growing

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

As the satellite revolt against Moscow's domination grows under the banner of "Titoism," one notes a tendency among the democracies to write off Marshal Tito as the father of this nationalism upheaval.

That tendency is natural, on the basis that we don't like Titoism the more, but that we like Stalinshevism the less. Moreover, most folk have a sneaking admiration for—a Jack-the-giant-killer such as Tito, who dares so mightily against vast odds.

Still, while the democracies welcome Tito's aid in the conflict against a common foe, we shall be well advised not to jump to the conclusion that he's leaning toward democracy.

Titoism is not democracy. It is nationalism, and any deviation would tend towards the Bolshevism which he has disowned.

make man's existence on earth more comfortable and convenient. He misses, on the other hand, that he is the cause of frightful havoc and destruction, as we have seen illustrated in the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The spiritual blueprint calls for a return on the part of the masses in all nations to the rational and spiritual principles of the infinite perfection and omnipotence. If man is to save himself.

Man is now blinded himself by his material accomplishments that he has overlooked God himself and has forgotten God from Whom all good things proceed. He has taken new pride and has let him on to his destruction even as it had been in the days of Noah and in the beginning of this realistic universe.

Multiply the evil men and women in the world today and you have the answer why the world is not at peace and the atomic bomb hangs as a sword of Damocles over the head of a frenzied thinking along Christian ideals would prevent the frightful bombs pose the question—do the masses have to learn how to live before they learn how to die? A constructive thinking?

Sincerely yours, Gallagher,

IDENTIFIED AS BRITISH

Talpei, Formosa, Feb. 28—(AP) —The Chinese Nationalist air force went on an alert today when an unidentified plane from the sea was sighted 20 miles off Formosa's east coast. But before the vessel was identified as British.

The identification was made by British authorities after a brief inquiry to the Royal Navy at Hong Kong. The ship was not molested.

A defence ministry spokesman said the carrier was believed to be British but the alert would be continued until its identity was established.

CONCURS IN SUGGESTION

Dear Sir:

I read recently in your "Letter to the Editor" the suggestion made by a ratepayer that your city honor the memory of George Taylor Richardson by a street after him and his co-pilot. I heartily commend this gentleman.

George was not only known in his home town but everywhere in Canada. He was a star at racing and his sensational flying.

I would further take the liberty of suggesting that when the mother of the year is picked for Remembrance Day (November 11th) that another the mother of George. Two sons lost out of four serving and there is quite a contribution for any mother to make.

THE ROAD TO PEACE?

Dear Sir: Fears and doubts beset devil the world. Atheism seeks to conquer all nations. Man is eternally striving to forge a powerful weapon with which to conquer the forces of tyranny, little realizing that within him the greatest weapon of all times, a weapon more devastating than the atomic bomb, is the ancient "prayer".

NOW THEY SEE IT AND NOW THEY DON'T

Fourteen years ago the best publicity specialist for the best advertised "clinic" magisterially asserted that a physician with a very large practice among people of the better class in this country sees in the course of a year only a few cases in which there is any evidence of nutritional deficiency. Since that oracular view was published to the four corners of numerous minor racketeers in the medical profession have echoed the master's opinion on the one hand while they on the other and their gullible customers vitamin "shots" for whatever the customers have had or were willing to spend.

The "vitamin fad" has occasioned some absurd reactions. For instance a good many physicians arbitrarily assume that Americans and Canadian enjoy the highest scale of living in the world and therefore no one who follows a "well balanced" diet can be in any nutritional deficiency disease. Just what "well balanced" means, these "authorities" do not explain. A "well balanced diet" is comparable in this respect to "common cold"—any d. f. knows what a "common cold" is.

Four or five years ago, however these eminent medical authorities changed their editorial policy and were recognized in America, among all classes of people, and approved of the proposal that all white flour should be restored or "enriched" with several vitamins and minerals—some of the elements of nature's fruits which in the milling and refining process.

As another staff member of the best advertised "clinic" reported, about 6 years ago, as the result of the food habits of various samples of the population showed that 97% of the diet of many Americans was deficient in thiamin, riboflavin and niacin complex). In fact the average diet to even well-to do Americans was found to be worse than that, is the diet which we pretend is the best in the world, is inadequate to maintain good nutrition. (W. H. Sebrell).

Answer—Niacin and nicotinic acid are one and the same. The latter is a modified name. It would be better that you tell your doctor the symptoms. This is a health column.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IN ART

There is a breath of genius that touches every work of art where the artist has known in his heart the joy of the conception of what he had in mind to picture. The mastery-touch has disappeared under a cloud of detail. Simplicity is as important in art as in literature.

Having for many years modestly collected a number of the superior quality of first sizes. There is a discovery in artist's touch—a revelation. If the etching is carried further it is the mastery-touch of the first rare identity of beauty and power. Only the great ones know when to stop.

My most prized etching is one by Frank, the great French painter and etcher. It is his oblong etching of his beautiful Son. It is simplicity itself. The little farm house is in the distance, with the discarded cart and hat of the boy are a few feet from where the father and returned son are locked in each other's arms. That is all. Drama, pathos, beauty and power are in this simply etched masterpiece. The story is all there. In the same plate the artist tried to create something beautiful in the sky. In that he had great plate he had done enough.

Favorite of all painters, for me is Jean Francois Millet. I am sure he never painted a poor one. Some say he did his best picture. I just to look upon his "Head of a Girl," "Girl with a Pearl Necklace," "Woman Churning," with Water Jug," or "Christ in the House of Nazareth," "Martha," to look upon a group of the greatest things ever painted. Portraits of many masters of the first art may be seen in their original state at the Museum of Art in Washington and in the Metropolitan Museum of 'Art in New York. They are a priceless heritage to all mankind.

Most of the so-called "Modern" art is cold as it may many others. There is neither beauty nor expanded truth in it. I first ain't Much of it is reckless, meaningless stuff of Artistic nihilism as it always beautiful when truthful. That is the only kind of art worth embracing.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Signing up for war service and mercial boom. It has been getting into training are two different things. The marine register are period of opportunity and activity that has involved the young men in factories and in the land. The schools and colleges have been combing out especially the technical and commercial high schools. Overnight, as it seemed to the non-combat generation followed the last war, all the fruits of the first generation might be expected stand up for its country, it seemed.

In the past two wars, we have had to plan ahead, and some extent an idle generation—the one after the 1918 depression years of the thirty something age—and the working forces that both provided.

What we have available in this critical hour is a general tuned to action. There has been no plan for this, so the process of selection—the next feature of defence—is already being screened from the first-class material easier for the sergeants and generals.

Senator Davies Leaves For Wales To Fill Office

Saint John, N.B., Feb. 28 (CP) —On the eve of his departure for Montgomeryshire, North Wales, where he will serve as high sheriff for a one-year term, Senator W. Rupert Davies, of Kingston, in an interview yesterday night left a two-fold message for Canadians.

He urged them to continue their individual and collective contributions to world peace, and also answered criticisms aimed at the Canadian Senate.

Senator Davies, who with Mrs. Davies will sail today aboard the liner Empress of France, said he felt the attitude of parliament "is that Canada must do her part in the international situation . . . and it is most encouraging to see the unanimity of thought on the matter of Canada not only doing her part but also paying her full share in all respects."

Now was the time for Canadians to work toward preventing a Third World War, "if we want to live the free way of Canadian life, then we must be prepared pay for this great privilege."

Referring to criticism of the Senate, "some of which has been stirred up within the Senate itself," Senator Davies said that the Senate "is doing, and has been doing, an excellent job for Canada."

During his term as high sheriff, the Senator's duties will include administration of justice in Montgomeryshire. He was born at Welshpool, Montgomeryshire, and has maintained an estate there since 1933.

Murder Charge Laid After Man's Death

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Feb. 28 (CP) —Anthony Maki, 60, was charged with murder late Tuesday in the razor-slashing death of James Cox, 68, at the Algoma district Old People's home in suburban Tarentorus township.

Maki was taken to hospital with cuts about the head and face. At first his condition was described as critical but doctors said later that he will probably live.

Cox died in his room at the Davey Home for the Aged a few minutes after he staggered from the dining room holding his hands to his bleeding throat. To the other residents he gasped:

"Get the police."

Little Benny's Note Book

I woke up in the dark from a bad dream without quite remembering what it was about, and I thawt, Goah, what's that?

Meaning a kind of a dim shape over the door looking like somebody that just came in the room, and I thawt, Heck, I hope it's not a bergler.

Being a fierce thawt, and I thawt, He Aw, I bet I only imagine it, I'm going to yell at it to see what happens.

And I yelled, Hay you, get out of here.

Which just then the thing looked as if it was starting to move, but I quick thawt, I'm going to yell louder just to prove it's only my imagination.

Which I did, yelling, What's you doing in here, you big bunch of nothing?

Making me feel braver but not all the way safe, so I yelled even louder, yelling, I'll give you one more chance to get out before I shoot.

Which just then somebody came in and the light, being pop, and the thing near the door was my dressing gown when I hung it to keep it off of the floor, and pop said, Somebody seems to be a bit frightened.

Meaning me, and I said, Was I making a lot of noise, pop?

Just enough, pop said, and I said, Hay pop, will you do me a favor? Will you take my dressing gown off of the door nob and hang it over a chair to make it look neater? I said.

Woe gods, look who's suddenly getting neat at 3 o'clock in the morning, pop said. Okay, anything to oblige a fiend, he said.

And he went and did it and turned the lite out, saying, Now sleep tite.

Which I did, not waking up again till it was time for me to shake me for the 2nd time.

A funeral director's assistant, sent to a house to pick up the body," is reported to have detected a faint heart beat.

Manager Helps To Cut Down Loot Taken by Bandits

Pickering, Ont., Feb. 28 (CP) —The Bank Manager's concern over his new suit Tuesday helped to cut down the loot of two men who held up his bank.

The gunmen escaped with $2,900 from the Canadian Bank of Commerce here after forcing two customers and six bank employees to lie on the floor.

But the manager, Nell R. Shortreed, whose bank was robbed of $14,000 four years ago, told police he pleaded with the thugs that lying on the floor would dirty his new suit and was allowed to kneel. When ordered to open the bank vault, he had spent so much time dusting off his knees that the bandits grew nervous and fled.

Woman Threatens To Make Scene Says Defendant

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)— Harvey Beecroft, 35-year-old Toronto architect, said Tuesday that Mrs. Margaret Avery threatened to enter his father's church in Wrexham, Ont., on a Sunday morning and make a "great scene" about their relationship.

The testimony was presented before an assize court jury hearing Mrs. Avery's breach of promise suit against Beecroft.

Testifying in his own defence, Beecroft said Mrs. Avery wanted to hold him and the only way she thought she could do this was by threatening to hurt his parents.

"It was just threat after threat", he said.

Earlier the 31-year-old English divorcee had sworn that she accepted Beecroft's fraternity pin "in lieu of an engagement ring" while they were playing bridge in Chicago. This was denied by Beecroft.

Mrs. Honeychurch Addresses Bridge

t. Church W.A.

The Women's Association of ridge Street United Church held r regular monthly meeting in the ladies' parlors last Friday evening.

Mrs. H. Wray presided in the sence of the president, Mrs. J. Fox. Following the reading of minutes and other matters of siness Mrs. Wray turned the eeting over to Mrs. C. Clapp nd Mrs. H. Denyes, and their ssion.

The worship service was taken by Mrs. Clapp, the theme being "Humility." She pointed out that mankind has a grim task ahead and needs divine guidance. Some of the signposts he should follow are: Unity, lastly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with his God. The world needs to walk in the way of "Brotherhood."

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. Honeychurch, was introduced by Mrs. Denyes. She spoke on the second verse of the 121st Psalm as the keynote for an inspiring address.

David thought about the Lord as a rock, a fortress and a deliverer, because of his own personal experience. It is needful for every child we have a sure, firm faith. If we build our house on sand it shifts and sways as the storms beat down upon it and finally it falls apart. But if we build upon a rock we have a home safe from attack and can weather the storms.

"In the quietness and stillness of God's great wilderness David built his faith in his Lord. Man has discovered that a burden carried alone can be very heavy indeed, but when carried by two, it is much lighter.

Mrs. Rollins thanked Mrs. Honeychurch for her very fine message. Mrs. Morley Davidson sang "Let Not Your Heart be Troubled," in her selection was much appreciated.

After meeting closed a social half hour followed.

Pine Grove Women's Institute met for their February meeting at Mrs. H. Coulter's home. The president, Mrs. F. Campbell conducted the meeting.

The new provincial president's letter was read and it was decided to purchase copies of the Women's Institute motto which are now available, and also several copies of the brochure containing information and publication about the Women's Institutes of Ontario.

Plans were made for a pot-luck supper to be held on March 16th at Marsh Hill school after which the men of the community would provide the program.

Roberts Lore

Mrs. R. Vanderwater, Historical Research convener, then took charge of the program. Mrs. A. Finkle read a paper "Postage, Stamp Hobby Uncovers Historic Lore" Mrs. R. Vanderwater followed this with an informative address on the early History of Belleville and the First Three Southern Township." Sometimes history and geography are very closely related subjects. One finds this condition very evident in Hastings county and it greatly explains why this part of the country was one of the first to be occupied by pioneer ancestors.

Situated on the north of Moira River, the Bay of Quinte was an important waterway both for the Indians and the early European explorers.

When Champlain made his unsuccessful expeditions against the Iroquois in New York State he touched the mouth of the Moira River, and on his return he journied to the region of the Moira and of Napanee.

It is thought that the name, "Quinte" is derived from the French name of one of their villages i. e. "Kenty". It is marked on French maps in 1670.

Early Cemetery

One of the burying grounds for the Mississauga Indians, who had settlements scattered along the bay near the Moira River, was lot 4, con. 2 Thurlow township, now part of Belleville.

There are no gravestones to mark British traders because of lack of fur trading.

In the years 1784 to 1816 Loyalist settlers whose real estate in the States had been confiscated came to Canada. They were chiefly English, Irish, Scotch and Dutch.

In 1784 four officers settled where the city of Belleville now stands. One of these, Capt. George Singleton has some claim to being the founder of Belleville. In 1786 there was a great drought followed by a very cold winter. Singleton extended credit to so many unfortunate people that he ruined his business. He died in 1789.

In 1797 a mill was built on Meyers' Creek of the Moira River. This was the only mill between Napanee and York, now Toronto.

During the war of 1812 great numbers of troops moved through Meyers' Creek. It is said that General Brock slept in the old stone house on the shore of the Bay of Quinte, now developed into Lanzhorn Inn.

Provide For Family

All farms of that date had to produce for a family, clothes, shoes, harness, tools, furniture and food. Travelling clergymen held their services in the open or in private homes. For weddings people had to go to Meyers' Creek to the Justice of Peace, the women riding behind the men on horseback. Bees, prayer meetings, and militia "doings" furnished social relaxation.

This is just a very small glimpse into the settlement of the wonderful township of Sidney and time has changed. Instead of surveying concessions a survey of the whole Moira River watershed was made in the summer of 1950. This comprised the survey of soils, present land use, study and types of farms, milk production, soil conditions, and all kinds of classification of soils. A very wonderful and interesting report came out in 1950. It is well worth studying."

In conclusion, Mrs. Vanderwater said "It will be wonderfully interesting to live 50 or 100 years from now. But perhaps just perhaps—one of us, who may live to the year 2000—and there are several at this meeting who should, will say wistfully "I believe the years around 1950 were the brightest gem in Britain's crown. Mrs. Bruyns spent several years in India while her father was employed there. She displayed various pieces of fine lace and brass work for all to see.

Under standing committees Mrs. Jeffrey reported on agriculture and Canadian industries, mentioning the pure bred stock given to the Red River settlement. Mrs. C. Fisher reported on current events, "increase in cost of living."

Co-op Hospitalization

Under new business, it was decided to donate $15 to be used as prizes at the fair for high school boys and girls shops work and sewing. Co-op hospitalization was discussed at some length but final decision was laid over until such time as the leaflets, telling of its terms, are available for all to see and study. Fifty F.W.I.O. brochures are to be purchased to be used for publicity.

The motto "Come Let us Be Merry" was given by Mrs. K. Fisher, in a reading on "remembrances" in which it was stated that people are given memories that they might have roses in December. Mrs. W. Provost accompanied by Mrs. J. Sager, at the piano, sang a beautiful solo "Savior Can Solve Every Problem."

The W.I. song books are now available and anyone wishing to purchase a copy should contact the secretary as soon as possible.

Mrs. R. Hall, Mrs. C. Fisher, Mrs. W. F. Bateman, Mrs. H. Coulter, Mrs. F. Bateman and Mrs. C. Jeffrey served refreshments after all enjoyed a social half hour.

The next meeting will be held on March 8th, at the home of Mrs. Mitchell Randle.

Says Communities Need Women's Help

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP) —Ontario women serving in public capacities were guests of honor last night at a dinner sponsored by five international women's service clubs.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, only woman member of the House of Commons and one of the guests of honor told the gathering that Canadian communities need the energy of women with a purpose.

"They need us in every phase of community and home life to train our children and to preserve a heritage," said Mrs. Fairclough. Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Hamilton west.

Despite the increasing number of welfare tasks being taken over by the various levels of government, and by service clubs, women can play an important part by giving a personal touch to such work, she said.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY in the RELIEF OF PAIN

Science never accepts without question.

To science, even what is good exists only to be improved.
Now—after many years' careful research—science presents an important step forward in the relief of common pain.
It is called DISPRIN.

DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

Science steps forward with

DISPRIN

DISPRIN is now available at your Druggist. Bottles of 26 tablets or Handy Pocket Folders of 8.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

Dear Lovelorn: Sir—Grr, wunder if you'd give me some friendship advice.

Someone in which there is wide areas of age between the man and woman, are always fixed for trouble.

Sometimes, it is quite true, they work out very well indeed. But more often than not, the factors which attract them at first, are against the best interests of the very people involved.

Here's a letter from a young man of 19, who tells me that he is in love with a woman of 28.

She is single and lives with her mother. She is attractive, and I know she is much as I love her, and we see each other constantly. We know nothing could ever come of it, but we are each other and my business we want to be together.

What I want to know is, if such a relationship is right. We often talk about this, and wonder what people think of it. We tell each other. Yet the only thing that seems wrong is the disapproval of others.

Sir, I see this particular situation, what probably has happened is the old story of a young man in search of affection and even pathetic understanding he has never received from his mother, and a woman who is looking for love upon a man, has never found it in one of her own age, and so finds satisfaction in being adored by someone younger who can be her son.

If these two understand very well the factors that have brought about what they call their "love" for each other, and if they can understand that they should not let this thing take first place in their lives, how I can see no harm in their enjoying each other's company at reasonable intervals. I do see harm in it if they become so enthralled with each other that they thenselves away from normal life, and take no part in the activities united to their respective ages. By doing so, they shut themselves out of chances to find happiness and satisfaction as other people find it.

The 19-year-old should be spending the greater part of his time with boys and girls in their late teens and early twenties. He should take part in the activities and members of those age groups enjoy and form many happy friendships. If he does this, he is practically certain to find some girl some day that he'll want to marry, and with whom he will have the kind of life any normal young man wants. Apparently he is now getting so much satisfaction out of this one friendship that he is not interested in playing-ing for such a life. He should be, however, and unless he starts doing so, he may run into trouble later on.

On the side, this woman of 28 should also be finding satisfying activities in her own age group. If she has no job, she should either find one, or else take up some voluntary occupation that will capture her interest. Since she apparently likes and gets on well with young people, she might become active in an organization like the Girl Scouts, who are always in great need of leaders. In these days there are so infinite number of things from which she can choose. The Red Cross, the hospitals, welfare organizations of every kind are crying for workers. She should look over the possibilities in her community, ally herself with some one of them, and thereby will find and get her greatest satisfaction out of being of service at a time when it is urgently needed. The more she enlarges her life, the wider her circle of acquaintances, the more likely she is to some day meet a man suited to her age and temperament.

I hope both of these people will carefully consider all of this, and decide to revamp their relationship in such a way as to eliminate by being them the real satisfaction everyone wants.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Forehead should be mile-curved.

For a number of years the hair-do rule has been "Brush your tresses away from your face". Foreheads have been naked and unashamed. Then the short cut came bounding along and all was beholdit! It came hand in hand with bangs.

Bangs are dandy, no doubt about it. They are youthful, yet have no age limit. If grandma has a pretty, snow-white valance over her forehead that's all right. She knows what she is doing. She is pulling a curtain over the little furrows that old mascle Time has placed upon her forehead.

The time may come when women will not have to work themselves sick trying to erase wrinkles, because they won't have them. They will insure themselves against the evidence of birthdate by cultivating a broad knowledge of health and hygiene. The worrier will be looked upon as a "poor weak woman", which she is. But the experienced worrier can make her face look like a national road map.

Lines on the forehead are natural. The eyebrow-lifter etches those little railroad tracks that trek crosswise from temple to temple. Frown lines are the penalty one pays for being impatient, easily irritated, intolerant. Squinting is a silly habit that puts creases around each eye, a more polite, please, girls. A little more tranquility of soul

Tight hats cause forehead furrows. They also restrict the free circulation of the blood stream, will have a bad effect upon the hair. Don't endure tight hat bands. They are a mistake. They rat make your head ache. It is the way of women to make curse rather than cause. The forehead dent is caused by such a good-looks liability, but one that is easily avoided. Why is it necessary to lift the eyebrows? To express surprise? You have the power of speech, haven't you? Use it. Say with your whole face! It doesn't make sense.

If you are keen on listing the little railroad tracks heretofore referred to, get busy with the manicure. Every night of your life. Here is the massage movement that will blot them out:

Place the fingertips of both hands together in the center of your well-creamed forehead. While one group of fingers goes up, the other group sweeps downward, and both groups travel back and forth across the forehead. Easy as pie.

GOOD MANNERS

BY MRS. BECKSMAN

No place cards are put at places at bridge luncheons.

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

Is my face red! My husband and I have always considered ourselves quite good and, well, at our dinners have been, we think, entertaining formal, sometimes informal. Our dinners are usually eaten, and I have always used plate while place cards. And . . . I have always just taken it for granted that I placed a card at my husband's place, and a card at my own place. Yesterday, during a very casual conversation among several friends at our Country Club, one of the women, very disturbed and very solemn, happened to mention, apropos of a remark about place cards that I don't exactly recall, that "of course" there were no place cards at the places of the hostess and host. It certainly wasn't "of course" to me, Mrs. Beckman! Can you tell me? Please, tell me if I have been wrong all these years and if there is a rule, please explain it to me.

R. R.

Yes, there is rule . . . that there are no place cards at the places of the hostess and host. The idea is that the hostess knows where her place at table is, and the host knows where his place is—whereas the guests have to look for the cards to locate their places. But you worry about your "past life with place cards" . . . what you did don't hurt anyone, and so it is unimportant. And it will be fun (and reassuring, too) to look for this place-card-rule in the future!

Wording for "you are cordially invited" form of invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the exact wording of the invitations my husband and I would like to send to a cocktail party followed by a buffet supper, in our home on a Sunday afternoon soon? I would like to write these invitations on the inside pages either of a correct note or specially-designed cocktail invitations, design stamped across double-sheet paper. We are to give this party in honor of my college roommate who will be visiting us. If you approve, I would like to use the form "You are invited", as I think this is a friendly form between the formal and the note-form. Do you approve of this form of wording

M. C.

Yes, this invitation-in-the-second-person is a friendly form of invitation, and as you say, a happy medium between a formal invitation and the note form of invitation. Although not as popular as the note-form of invitation, it is entirely proper, and it has the advantage of listing the details so that everything is "skip-to-my-lou-me". And the "R.s.v.p." can be used. Here is a form that will include all the information that you wish to include:

Success of Education Rests As Much on Home as School

Speaker Tells Rotary Club

The success of education rests almost as much on home and parental interest, as on schools and colleges, Mr. A. Warlow, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, said here Monday.

Mr. Warlow was the guest speaker for "Farmers Day" of the Rotary Club. A large number of district farmers were guests of the students at the luncheon held in the Hotel Quinte.

Many parents feel that education is a job for the school entirely, Mr. Warlow pointed out, adding that if the ultimate in this was to be realized the parents would suffer in the long run.

Declaring that many students drop school because of lack of interest, he went on to say that 80 percent of students, who win scholarships have had some concrete form of assistance in the home provided by their parents.

"The average family," the speaker said, "spends $100 a year for liquor, an amount that would furnish a set of modern schoolbooks to assist young people in school."

TV Deterrent

Terming television a deterrent to education, Mr. Warlow said that a survey in the United States revealed that school students spend four hours weekly at their studies and 30 hours watching T.V.

"Something must be done by parents to see that a student's entire time is not being monopolized by television. Let us have entertainment, by all means, but have school work supplemented by home interest.

He urged the need of increased moral responsibility on the part of parents and students in government. "Unless interest is not taken along this line by students, the country will suffer," he said.

Cultivate Reading

He suggested the cultivation of reading leading newspapers in the home which state the views of political parties and which would serve towards establishing "open-mindedness" so sustained, is very valuable to education.

Mr. Warlow felt that every student should not go to college. Many men have gifts for business who have no gifts for learning. The purpose of college education is lost on many, he said, unless, he smiled, one goes in for the professions. Fundamentally a college education teaches the student how to live rather than how to make a living.

The speaker outlined the aims and objects of the Ontario Agricultural College and the way in assisting farmers and farmers' children. He pointed out the many advantages of the course which the college has for its students.

Suggests Writing

He suggested that farmers write the college with regard to advice to any problem they may have. The college maintains a staff of specialists who if they do not have the information, will procure it for them.

With the present world situation developments, the speaker said that education was in a race with catastrophe. He urged that all take an active home interest in what the schools are doing and what can be done in the home. Together education can outweigh catastrophe.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Stan Barber with club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Fred Wilson. Rotarian George Campbell occupied the chair in the absence of President Ken Griffiths.

Muroc, Calif., Feb. 28 —(AP)— Night flashes high in the sky over this area were disclosed today to have been photo-flash bombs of as much as 1,000,000,000 candlepower, Spokesmen at Edwards Air Force base here said the illuminating bombs could be seen as far as 300 miles away under ideal conditions. They are dropped in multiple series at altitudes ranging up to 20,000 feet.

GOVERNMENT BILL

Extend Franchise

Provision is made for extending the franchise to Indians, either individually or in bands, if they voluntarily apply to the Minister of Citizenship for enfranchisement. An enfranchised Indian will automatically lose his rights as an Indian. He will not be entitled to live on the reserve, to exemptions from taxation, or to benefits enjoyed by Indians under long-standing treaties.

There would be some relaxation in the stiff regulations against Indians drinking liquor. The new act would permit the sale of intoxicants to Indians for consumption in a public place. However, this section would not be proclaimed until it was requested by the government of a particular province.

Provision would be made for federal-provincial agreements to deal with the education of Indian children in association with other children.

A section important to western Indians would authorize the Minister of Citizenship to permit Indians to dispose of grain and live stock holdings without supervision by the department. Under existing legislation Indians may not dispose of holdings without the consent of the department.

A private member's bill that would vary the dates for celebrating Victoria Day and Dominion Day advanced one more stage in the house.

Under the bill, sponsored by J. L. MacDougall (L — Vancouver-Burrard), Victoria Day and Dominion Day would always be celebrated on Mondays rather than on whatever dates May 24 and July 1 happen to fall.

The bill was reported out of committee and now awaits third and final reading in the Commons. If it is adopted by the Commons it will go to the Senate for consideration.

Members gave approval in principle to an incorporation bill for Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., after hearing that the company plans to transport natural gas from Alberta to Montreal by an all-Canadian route.

John Decore (L—Yegreville), sponsoring second reading of the Trans-Canada bill, said the proposed line would cost $250,000,000 and would have 3,200 miles of main line and 900 miles of spur and connecting lines.

Decline To Act

It would touch at Swift Current, Moose Jaw and Regina, in Saskatchewan; Brandon, Souris, Portage La Prairie and Winnipeg in Manitoba; Kenora, Sudbury, Fort William, Port Arthur, Toronto, London, Galt, Kitchener, Port Colborne, Brockville, Prescott, Cornwall, Smith Falls and Ottawa in Ontario, with a line from Ottawa to Hull, Que.

Mr. Decore emphasized that no gas could be carried now, pointing to a recent ruling of the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board that none is to be released outside Alberta until the province's proven reserves are larger.

The house declined to act on a private member's bill aimed at outlawing the communist party.

Members showed no disposition to debate the bill after its passage had been urged by Wilfred Lacroix (L — Quebec-Montmorency), and the government obtained an adjournment of the debate to let Justice Minister Garson explain its attitude later.

PROMOTIONS MADE

Montreal, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Promotion of R. G. Johnston to assistant vice-president of operation, Canadian National Railways system, with particular duties relating to organization and special matters, was announced here today.

Mr. Johnston was formerly assistant vice-president of personnel. He is succeeded by W. M. Armstrong who since 1941 has been general manager of Canadian National Telegraphs.

FEDERAL

Won't Pay Subsidies

The federal government was keeping certain radio wave lengths open for civil defence purposes but had decided on their first use. It had worked out no plan for converting trucks and buses to ambulances and would not pay subsidies for building air raid shelters.

Premier Frost said the replies to 17 questions from Ontario indicated that civil defence "is not serious enough for the federal government to do any substantial spending."

Mr. Cecile said his department is against the exploitation of wildlife and fish resources.

"We do not now merchandise our fish and wildlife resources as tourist attractions," Mr. Cecile said. "We do not advertise that a visitor can come to Ontario and take his limit of fish or game."

Mr. Cecile also urged that store schedules should be arranged so that stores would not be closed during the tourist season. Closed stores during the week lost the province millions of dollars in trade and goodwill.

Ontario could expect a normally-good tourist year this year, the minister said. The industry would suffer from any outbreak of war but he had a "strong feeling of optimism" by the north country.

Mr. Cox charged that government forestry policies are leading to "timber suicide."

Continuation Curse Claim

The Liberal administration of Mitchell F. Hepburn, he said, had allowed export of pulpwood after 1926 because of wide unemployment in northern Ontario. Continuation of this export under present circumstances was "a curse".

He denied that the Progressive Conservative government had effectively limited pulpwood exports. It still allowed export of cement - manufactured pulpwood which merely reduced the wood's bulk for easier shipping.

"Since 1943, or shortly after this government took over office, there has been exported from Crown lands in Ontario 3,427,734 cords of unmanufactured pulpwood, or almost double the amount in any other similar period in Canada's history," he said.

"If the quantity of wood could be processed in Canada, it would supply paper mill capable of maintaining approximately 1,000 persons for at least 76-years."

Agreement between the province and outside companies, Mr. Cox charged, indicated "actual collusion, political corruption of utter stupidity."

Others Opposed

Other provinces were opposed to exploiting our forest materials, he said. Ontario exported five or six times more manufactured pulpwood than all other provinces combined.

Mr. Thomas criticized the government's housing policies, and said that no houses had yet been built under last year's housing legislation.

Canada's high infant mortality rate could be traced to overcrowded homes. He stated that since equalized assessment would take years to be completed, the provincial and federal governments would assume the cost of education.

Mr. Brown urged periodic re-examination of all car drivers to reduce fatal accidents on the highways. Under the present system, he said, drivers could get automatic renewal of licences as long as they had not broken highway laws.

He urged a province-wide system of training in fishery similar to a course being given in Kitchener high schools.

Mr. Brown also called for changes in school curriculum to emphasize basic education. Too many students could not spell and did not have a working knowledge of English grammar. The province also needed a program of recruiting and training teachers, coupled with higher salaries for teachers.

Mr. Parry said encouragement of grass seed production would pay dividends in conservation by building soil and preventing erosion. There was a shortage of grass seed at present, he said.

The farm products marketing Act should be amended, he said, but he urged care in making changes and co-operation with farmers. The present act was valuable, however, and served a good purpose.

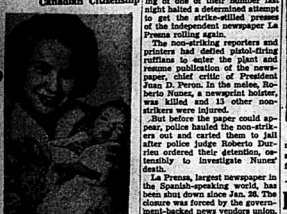
Arrest of 550 Non-strikers After Riot Slaying Halts Attempt to Start Presses

Fled Communist China To Give New Son Canadian Citizenship



Mrs. Paul Mari is seen proudly holding her two-week-old son Paul Jr., born in Winnipeg. Mrs. Mari and her husband left their home in communist China to come to Canada so that the baby could be born in a free country. — Central Press Canadian.

Buenos Aires, Feb. 28—(AP)—Jailing of 550 non-striking newspaper workers after the riot slaying of one of their number last night halted a determined attempt to get the strike-stilled presses of the independent newspaper La Prensa rolling again.

The non-striking reporters and printers had defied pistol-firing ruffians to enter the plant and resume publication of the newspaper, chief critic of President Juan D. Peron. In the melee, Roberto Hunes, a newsprint handler, was killed and 13 other non-strikers were injured.

But before the paper could appear, police hauled the non-strikers out and carted them to jail after police judge Roberto Durrieu ordered their detention, ostensibly to investigate Hunes' death.

La Prensa, largest newspaper in the Spanish-speaking world, has been shut down since Jan. 26. The closure was forced by the government-backed news vendors union, which boycotted the paper, and by a sympathy strike of the government - supported printers' union.

Among those arrested were two American employees of Time and Life magazine — correspondent Frank Shea and photographer Leonard MacComb. They had been taking pictures of the street fighting and in the newspaper plant. Police officials said they were being held for questioning. Correspondent Ordered to Leave

Before the arrival of the United States consul-general to inquire into Shea's arrest, AP correspondent Robert Allen was ordered to leave the president headquarters and technical men.

A spokesman for the newspaper termed the events leading to the mass arrests a "reign of terror" for La Prensa, which has had many hassles with the government authorities in its 83 years of existence.

Some 1,300 employees, angered by the prolonged dispute which made them unwillingly idle for 34 days, had notified Peron in a telegram that they intended to return to work yesterday. They asked for police protection. The government has ignored similar previous requests.

As the non-strikers started to leave the plant last night, a single shot—apparently a blank—from a knot of idlers set off the 45-minute riot around the printing plant, only 10 blocks from Peron's executive offices. Police were conspicuously absent from the scene.

A spokesman for the paper said "more than enough" workers got into the plant to get out the paper, had they not been arrested.

Witness Says Hands of Accused Dripped Blood

Sudbury, Feb. 28—(CP)—A Supreme Court jury was told Tuesday that the hands of Adelard (Eddie) Latour, 50, dripped with blood when he came upstairs from a basement apartment where the body of 23-year-old Mrs. Cecile Rainville was found a few minutes later.

The testimony was given by Mrs. K. Nechay, owner of the house in which Mrs. Rainville was stabbed. She testified at Latour's trial, the second in a year on a charge of murdering the young woman, his cousin by marriage.

Mrs. Nechay said she was preparing breakfast upstairs for her son the day of the slaying, Sept. 12, 1949, when she heard someone go down to the basement. She said she recognized the person as Latour from the manner of walking.

There was a wild commotion in the basement apartment, she said, but the door was locked and she couldn't get in and find out what happened.

Mrs. Nechay said that a short time later Latour came upstairs with blood on his shirt and hands. She said the blood dripped from Latour's hands along the stairs and hallway as he left the house.

Latour was arrested after he walked into a city police station and reported that he had been involved in a fight with a displaced person. He had a deep laceration on his right hand.

Tried on the same charge a year ago, Latour was convicted and Mr. Justice D. F. J. Kelly sentenced him to be hanged. He spent 225 days in death cell here before the Ontario Supreme Court quashed the verdict and ordered a new trial on the grounds that Mr. Justice Kelly had misdirected the jury.

The trial, which opened Tuesday before Mr. Justice A. M. Lebel heard 10 witnesses. It will continue today.

Airplane Prop Blades Squeezed Out of Hot Steel

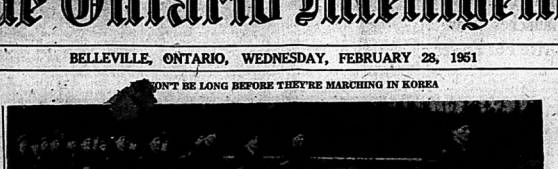
This process, new in the airplane industry, is announced by the Curtiss - Wright Corporation's Propeller Division of Caldwell, N.J.

The new blades are hollow and are all one single piece of steel, which gives them many advantages, the announcement says. They are stronger than prefigous blades. They open a new existence in the industrial process of extrusion, which is the scientific name for the tube-squeezing.

The announcement says the savings in materials—steel, chrome, nickel, molybdenum and other things — are spectacular. That tedious hours of handwork are reduced to minutes. That there are savings in polishing, floor space, tools and manpower.

The squeeze is done by a 5,500-ton press, the biggest flat for forcing white-hot but still-hard steel through a series of openings. The start is with a steel billet—a round column twice the thickness of a man's leg, and with a little hole down its centre.

The first steps produce a beautiful, tall almost-slender steel vase, smaller at the base than at the top. Running down each side of this vase is a fin—called an ear —ornamental in this stage, but when the vase is pressed to Taipropellor shape the fins form the edges.



This troop, commanded by Lieut. Aj Doucet of Bathurst, N.B., represents one of the many reasons why Canadian soldiers training at Fort Lewis, Wash., for service in Korea, have drawn admiration from U.S. officers and men. However, soon their training days will be over, for they are being shipped to Korea in the very near future as additional strength for U.N. and to serve alongside Princess Pats, now in thick of fight against Chinese communists. — Central Press Canadian.

Britain to Have First Census In 20 Years

London, Feb. 28 — (AP) — Overcrowded Britain, recently termed "probably the most vulnerable target in the world" in an atomic war, will have its first nose count in 20 years, starting April 8.

Defence housing and emigration men will have a special interest in the total, which unofficial estimates indicate may top 51,000,000.

Also watching will be Commonwealth authorities — especially in Australia and Canada—who long have had a welcome mat out for British skilled labor and technical men.

Sixty - thousand enumerators will take the census, first official count since 1931. By chance, the Republic of Ireland will take its own the same day, so figures for the entire British Isles — including the Channel Islands and remote Scottish islets — will be on hand simultaneously.

The figure for England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland is an unofficial estimate two years ago was 50,519,000, despite the 317,000 migration to the Dominions and Colonies.

Those figures showed that England and Wales — manufacturing and coal-mining heart of British industrial life — average 750 persons to the square mile. France had 194 and the United States only 43.

Britain's population has been expanding steadily since the first census in 1801. That count, which was in all Ireland, was 16,345,646. The 1931 count listed 46,790,485. The Republic of Ireland then called the Irish Free State, wasn't included.

The 1951 census will cost British taxpayers about £1,125,000 ($3,150,000) but officials think it's worth it.

They want some light on, for instance:

How many Britons still speak no English. The 1931 enumerators found that 6,700 spoke only Gaelic.

How many have piped water, fixed bathtubs, and "other arrangements?"

Preacher Returns Savings Bond To Brewery Co.

Peterborough, Feb. 28 — (CP) —Sam Wood, a Presbyterian lay preacher at nearby Buckhorn, said today he had returned a $100 savings bond award from a brewing company (Dow's) for rescuing eight-year-old Billie Pearson from drowning last Dec. 15.

"I thanked them for it by letter," said Mr. Wood, "But returned the money since it was against my Christian principles."

Recounting the rescue, Mr. Wood said he was driving along the bridge over an inlet between Little and Big Buckhorn Lakes when he met four boys coming from school. They split up to let him past and Billie disappeared over the edge of the bridge.

Mr. Wood stopped and saw the youngster floating among ice cakes, apparently buoyed up by his heavy winter clothing. The lay preacher jumped in, guided the boy to a sunken pier where they waited for help. They were in the water a long time when Mr. Wood saw a rope coming down.

"I couldn't have done it by myself," he said. "It was the hand of God guiding me."

Professor Says Canada to Face Protection of Individual Freedom

Ottawa, Feb. 28 — (CP) —should go in organizing their lives, "we do appear to want them to go a long way in providing social security."

Dr. J. A. Corry, professor of political science at Queens University, said Tuesday that Canada will face in the second half of the 20th century the task of protecting individual freedom against the growing powers of the central governing authority.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the National Liberal Federation, he traced the development of Canada during the last 50 years — from a predominantly-agricultural economy in 1900 to a predominantly-urban industrial power today — and said the country's new status calls inevitably for more of government controls, services and expenditures.

"I reserve judgment on the question of whether it calls for all the government activities we have undertaken," he said, "but it does call for a very wide range of positive government action."

Dr. Corry addressed a luncheon gathering of the three-day annual meeting of the federation, which determines Liberal party policy. Nearly 300 delegates from the 10 provinces are attending.

He said the discretionary powers exercised "by our government nowadays in time of peace are wide enough to cause concern." The practical certainty of cold war, if not actual shooting war, meant an increase in those powers.

This gave rise to a need for vigilance because "the wider the powers of government are over a long period, the more government attracts men who like to exercise that range of power."

"While we may feel quite secure in the hands of our rulers today, we have no such assurance for the future. So, it is vitally important to look to the safeguards of individual freedom."

Govt. Expects Doleful Report On Chicken Run

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 28—(CP)—Parliament soon expects a doleful report admitting that there isn't much to crow about in Britain's £1,000,000 chicken run in West Africa.

If political forecasts are correct, the government will acknowledge that the two-year-old plan to produce 20,000,000 eggs and 1,000,000 pounds of dressed poultry on a selected site in Gambia has so far yielding only about 20,000 eggs and 4,330 chickens.

Conservative critics, already clucking like angry hens, say the Gambia plan will have to be drastically changed or abandoned altogether. Government sources reply that any such decisions must await the report of an investigating committee which returned from Africa last weekend.

The chicken plan is under the colonial development corporation. Sources sympathetic with its aims stress that the Gambia project is just one of 50-odd development plans sponsored by the corporation at a cost of more than £30,000,000. Some of the other schemes are said to be progressing much more favorably.

"As usual, it's only the failures that attract any attention," a corporation spokesman said.

If Gambia proves to be as big a flop as predicted, the timing will be unfortunate. British planners are still stunned by the failure of their plan to grow peanuts in Africa. This cost about £36,000,000, produced scarcely any peanuts.

New French Government Crisis Believed Imminent With Pleven's Resignation Likely

Paris, Feb. 28—(AP)—Communist and Catholic parliamentary maneuvers brought widespread predictions today that Premier Rene Pleven's cabinet would fall before the end of the week in a crisis over the proposed new electoral law.

Pleven's coalition government resigned last night after a slight and superficial vote-of-confidence victory in the National Assembly on a procedural point relating to the election debate. President Vincent Auriol refused the withdrawals and at his urging the premier agreed to try again to bridge intra-cabinet differences.

Ahead of the government is first an assembly vote today on an independent deputy's compromise plan for elections by a single ballot. The cabinet proposes run-off elections in departments where no slate of candidate gets a majority.

The single-ballot compromise appeared doomed by communist floor leader Jacques Duclos' announcement last night that — reversing the party's previous stand —his forces would vote against it.

The cabinet has announced that if the compromise is defeated, it will ask for a vote of confidence on its run-off proposal. That would be put the government's fate in the hands of the Catholic Mouvement Republicain Populaire, a member of the cabinet coalition but so far a unyielding opponent of the two-election scheme.

M.R.P.'s unlikely support is virtually essential for Pleven to win a decisive majority—311—of the assembly's total membership. The Catholic group, which controls about 150 votes, abstained from the voting yesterday, with a resultant tally of only 243 to 216 in the government's favor.

Moral Defeat

The vote was on a government motion to debate the election law change. Though legally the majority sufficed to keep the cabinet in office, Pleven and most deputies regarded the result as a moral defeat for the premier's forces.

One purpose of writing a new election law is to reduce the strength of the communists, now the largest single party group in parliament, when a new assembly is elected in November.

The Catholics, centrists all want to clip the reds, but the desire of each to safeguard its own strength is paramount has created in vio-lent disagreement on how to do it.

The present law is based largely on proportional representation, a system which benefits both the communists and the M.R.P. The Catholics and the reds have joined in an unofficial alliance against any proposal deviating from proportional representation, a major feature of the cabinet's proposal for slates of candidates and run-off elections.

Communists Fear Death Would Cause Unrest

Vienna, Feb. 28 (Reuters) — Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, former primate of Hungary, is ill in prison but is being kept alive because communist officials fear his death would cause serious unrest in Hungary, the newspaper News Wiener Tageszeitung reported today.

The newspaper quoted two men from the Hungarian state attorney-general's office who escaped from Budapest. The men claimed to have brought with them the first authentic documentary evidence about the cardinal and his trial.

They said they have the impression that Cardinal Mindszenty, as a result of his various treatments, is not only suffering from nervous troubles but is no longer fully in possession of his mental faculties.

The cardinal was sentenced to life imprisonment for alleged treason by the Hungarian communist government in February, 1949.

British Press Still Grumbles Over Proposed Appointment Of U.S. Admiral For Pact Navy

London, Feb. 27 (AP)—Despite explanations from Prime Minister Attlee, Britain's press still grumbled today over the proposed appointment of an American Admiral to command the combined North Atlantic navy.

Attlee told the House of Commons yesterday that, though American Admiral William M. Fechteler was nominated for supreme command in the North Atlantic, a Briton would be his deputy commander in eastern Atlantic waters.

Considering that "logic and strategy have dictated this arrangement," the Liberal News Chronicle said a "British psychological reaction against it" now must be met.

The Independent Times termed Fechteler's appointment "this staggering kind of fatalotriness." It called for a "working partnership, not a mass of blueprints."

From the Conservative side, the Daily Telegraph said the United States would provide the largest naval forces but British sailors would contribute "unrivalled experience of naval operations in the Atlantic."

"Where the practical pros and cons are so evenly balanced there still remains, in national pride, one great imponderable to decide the scales decisively," the Telegraph said.

The Conservative Daily Mail complained that the British people were hearing of such "vastly important" Atlantic pact decisions "almost by accident." They should be "better informed and better treated, too."

The Pro-Labor Daily Herald remanded that judgment be preserved until the naval set-up could be viewed as a whole. "Instead," the paper added, "effort is made to work up the greatest degree of emotion. Wild and nonsensical assertions are made about giving away the British fleet and surrending control in areas vital to our life."

Meanwhile the Navy League, self-appointed watchdog of British sea power and led by many retired British admirals, said the new plans are "wholly undesirable" and profoundly disturbing to Britain and the Empire.

"From time immemorial British admiralty has exercised supreme naval command for Britain and the Empire, disposing of ships and squadrons all over the world as the occasion demanded, the League said.

It added that Attlee's statement seemed to indicate that under the new plan the supreme commander could override the admiralty and the U. S. navy department in that he could transfer or presumably withhold naval forces that might be urgently required elsewhere should a point of attack switch to other areas.

Governor Dewey Launches New Drive For Power

Albany, N.Y., (AP) —Governor Dewey's administration launched a new drive today to obtain federal approval for New York State to develop hydro-electric power in the St. Lawrence River and at Niagara Falls.

The campaign was touched off by Dewey in a special message to the state legislature in which he:

1. Proposed that the state power authority's jurisdiction, limited now to the St. Lawrence, be expanded to promote public development of power at Niagara Falls.

2. Disclosed that the authority had drafted a bill for introduction in Congress to authorize New York to develop the St. Lawrence power project jointly with Ontario in the event Congress again blocks the combined seaway and power project.

3. Recommended "certain technical amendments (to state law) to make crystal clear the always intended right of the power authority to accept licenses from the Federal Power Commission (and) to apportion part of the power to other states."

Dewey also appealed for support of St. Lawrence power development by both parties in the state.

The bill seeking Congressional permission for the New York-Ontario power project would, in effect, by-pass the Federal Power Commission.

The commission recently rejected New York's application for a licence to develop St. Lawrence power jointly with Ontario.

Century Idea Appears

Dewey said that the late President Roosevelt, Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem., Lib., N.Y.) and President Truman had agreed that the power project should be "paid for, owned and operated by the state of New York."

But, Dewey added, it "has been disquieting to find a contrary idea persistently cropping up within the national administration."

The governor said that because of the Federal Power Commission's action, the "question of New York's power is again deeply entangled before the Congress with the controversial question of the St. Lawrence seaway."

"With our Ontario-New York plan, we had tried to separate these issues and at least get ahead with the power.

"But now again, New York's power is being held in ransom for the seaway."

A year ago, the State Power Authority proposed an $800,000,000 program for state development of hydro-electric power in the St. Lawrence and Niagara rivers.

The authority recommended Ontario-New York development of the power phase of the St. Lawrence project at a cost of about $451,600,000 and public "redevelopment" of power facilities at Niagara Falls at a cost ranging from $308,700,000 to $350,300,000.

The authority said the total cost to the state for both projects would be more than $500,000,000 dollars. Ontario and New York would share the cost of the St. Lawrence development equally.

18 Selected As Guinea Pigs In Experiment

San Pedro, Calif., Feb. 28 —(AP)— Eighteen persons, who doctors say are doomed to die, were selected today as volunteer guinea pigs in a research experiment which may produce a cure for the fatal disease, muscular dystrophy.

The research is being conducted by the B'Nai B'Rith's Leo N. Levi Memorial Hospital at Hot Springs, Ark.

J. A. Robinson, chairman of the budget and finance department of the B'Nai B'Rith, National Jewish Welfare Organization, said the volunteers were chosen from among 200 applications from all over the country.

Their plight is the same as that of New York's four Godfrey brothers and the six Baird brothers of Philadelphia.

The muscles slowly waste away. The body becomes flabby. The victim eventually is crippled. With his resistance lowered, he becomes easy prey for other diseases.

Robinson said hundreds of letters began pouring into his office after publication of stories about the Godfreys and the Bairds.

"They all wanted help," Robinson related, "and the job of selection was a tough one."

Robinson outlined the research program this way:

Doctors know that diseases such as muscular dystrophy and multiple sclerosis are caused by nutritional deficiencies. Blood chemistry shows what those deficiencies are. The problem is to produce in the laboratory a substance which will replace what the body lacks.

"We think we have it," Robinson said.

The formula already has been patented, he added, and plans are in the works to have it produced commercially. He said a description will be published in medical journals April 1.

The formula is completely under the control of B'Nai B'Rith, the hospital, Robinson said, is non-profit.

Bruins Have Better Chance To Make Playoffs With Eight Of 12 Games to Play at Home

Now if only the National Hockey League schedule could be juggled a bit. That's the way Boston Bruins must be thinking these days, the dying ones of the regular season.

The reason for all this mental gyration can be seen with a good look at the schedule of remaining games. Bruins have 12 more to play. So have New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens. The Bruins have eight of those games at home and only four on the road, while Canadiens have only six at the Forum and Rangers seven at Madison Square Garden.

But just the same Bruins can't be happy about it all. A closer look at the schedule shows that the Bruins play four of their 12 games against Toronto Maple Leafs and two against Detroit Red Wings. They've beaten Leafs once this season and Detroit only twice.

Rangers have 3 left against Detroit and 3 against Toronto and 2 left at home. Canadiens have three against Wings and two against Leafs with three of them on home ice.

So when Bruins play host to Detroit tonight, the odds are that they won't find it a cinch to get a firm hold on third place by beating Wings. With only a point separating them from Rangers, that's not good, particularly when you consider that Rangers meet the hungry but hopeless Chicago Black Hawks following tonight.

Of course, the picture isn't much better for Canadiens, at least in the immediate future. They make another try at Toronto the same night Rangers meet Boston, with their only advantage likely to be the fact that they're playing at home.

Canadiens aren't really counting on getting many points in their five remaining games with Detroit and Toronto. Looking over his schedule coach Dick Irvin did a little speculating out loud.

"If we can grab eight points in those six games against Boston and Rangers, we'll make it," he said. He figured 62 points will be needed for the fourth and last playoff spot. He saw Hrudey taking third with 65 and Canadiens fourth.

Irvin wasn't the only one doing some speculating of that sort. Ranger Frank Boucher was doing some of his own not so long ago. He figured Boston with 63 in third place, just like Dick Irvin, and 62 points for fourth place, too.

But the fourth-place team comes out Rangers, any way you look at it, Boucher said.

Armand Savoie Wins by T.K.O. Over Solly Cantor

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP) — A second round of Montreal's technical knockout over Cantor Tuesday night left Cantor's six-stitch nose cut prevented the Toronto lightweight from appearing for the ninth round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

Cantor, who will be out of action for six weeks, claimed the cut was caused when he collided with Savoie's head in the eighth round. Savoie was ahead on points at the time and appeared headed for certain victory against the fancy boxing but light punching of Cantor.

Savoie weighed 134 1-4; Cantor 132.

Savoie said he inflicted the damage with a left-hand jab as Cantor walked in on him. Cantor also hurt a finger on his left hand in the opening round. He said it handicapped him thereafter.

Savoie and his trainer, Pete Audette, said they intend to claim the vacant Canadian lightweight championship as a result of last night's victory.

A crowd of about 6,500 saw Savoie take an early lead with a two-fisted attack. He opened a cut over Cantor's eye in the first round.

Results of preliminary bouts of boxing card here last night:

Norm Pagnotta, 134, Montreal, was declared winner when Bryan Kelly, 134, Niagara Falls, Ont., was disqualified at 2:39 of the ...rth round of a scheduled six-rounder for low blows.

Jack Wallace, 180 3-4, Brantford, won by TKO over Arnold Leger, 182, Chatham, in the third round of a scheduled six-round bout. Fieger suffered a cut.

Tommy Corrick, 124, Toronto, scored a six-round decision over Jack Males, 125, Toronto.

Trenton Horse Divides Honors At Dufferin

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP) — Tony Todd, owned by A. De Fosse of Trenton, Ont., and Byrondale, owned by Wells and Hess of Morrisburg, Ont., evenly divided the fifth and featured race Tuesday at Dufferin Park. Each won a first and placed second in the other. Hugh Davis and Percy Robillard were the respective drivers.

Byrondale was under restraint in the early part of the first heat. Approaching the 3-4 pole Robillard eased the bay gelding to the outside and rounding the lower and final bend, moved closer to the leaders. In the home stretch drive, he was soundly shaken up gradually closed ground on the pace-setter Tony Todd and won in a driving finish.

In the second heat, Tony Todd was bustled to the front at once. He was expected rated by Davis while still on the rail. Entering the stretch, he was sent to the extreme outside and in the drive was vigorously handled to hold Byrondale safe at the close. The latter was placed in close attendance of the pace throughout, came with a terrific drive between horses in the home stretch to finish second.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THIS IS IT...

Tonight the Rocket Juniors face the crucial test. It will be do or die for the Stars, afternoon in their third semi-finals playoff clash with the speedy Oshawa Boss. Tonight with a more or less crippled team they stand with their backs to the wall in a desperate attempt to wrest a victory which will stave off for the moment at least elimination.

* * *

The Oshawa Boss have proven themselves a "chips-down" team thus far in the series. They have speed and power to burn and are opportunists of the first water. Dressing along lightsome fourth slot during the somewhat wacky schedule, the Boss have been a flash of playoff power that bids well to take them to the finals, at least of the group. That is unless the Rockets come up with something like a tremendous effort tonight. The Cook-lans have defeated the Boss before, and we believe they can do it again. But they'll have to go all out, and call on every trick in their warbags if they are to emerge with a victory.

* * *

Recent injuries to Harry Brown, Bill Turland and Jack Murphy have not eased the job of Coach Mervyn Dinnon. Disruption of a line on any hockey team tends to affect the remainder, and a coach has to rely on last-minute decisions in an effort to re-organize his attacking divisions. "It ain't funny, McGee."

So tonight's the night. Hockey fandom should turn out en masse to give the Rockets full support in a last-ditch stand.

* * *

DOUBLE FIGURES—

They tell us Marse Purdue, the Kawartha scribe nearly had writer's cramp besides using a couple of adding machines in that "basketball" hockey game between the Redmen and Eagles Monday night. The boys of both squads were goal-ravenous and they had a field time packing the rubber behind the respective goalies, including Vern Goyer who substituted for Gordie Cook after he was accidentally struck by a flying puck in the first period. He was well over a dozen sutures. Seems as though it's open season on Belleville goalies this year. First Lefort, then Irvine and now Cook.

* * *

However, Coach Waller Bent said today that Irvine will be able to take his place in the nets against Eagles in Peterborough on Friday. It will be the first of the home-of-five semi-finals series. And by the way the Petes and Nylons start their hostilities in Peterborough tonight with the second game set for Kingston on Friday.

* * *

LETS GO—

And there's news for hockey fans who would like to make the Peterborough safari on Friday. A special bus will be at the arena at 6:30 for the accommodation of those desirous of making the trip. The fee is two bucks return and the first 35 passengers will be given preference. But, please notify Bill Cook's Cigar Store beforehand if you are going, as officials want to know how many will be making the trip. The Redmen can do with some support up around Peterborough way because they feel they can grab that all-important first game from the Eagles right up there in their own nest.

* * *

WEATHER NON-COOPERATIVE—

The recent mild weather has been playing havoc with natural ice hockey arenas, so much in fact that many games have had to be postponed with little outlook for "catching up" with schedules.

* * *

The situation is province-wide and has become so acute that the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, Toronto today issued instructions to all natural ice teams still in the running to make arrangements to play remaining games on artificial ice. This will mean a shut-down running two weeks behind schedule, sudden death games in neutral artificial ice arenas are being ordered where necessary.

* * *

MINORS AT PETERBOROUGH—

Thursday night the Belleville juvenile and bantam teams go to Peterborough where they meet the minor teams of that city in the second of the OMHA playdowns. The second games of the goals-to-count series has not been dated as yet, but likely the teams will be back here on Saturday afternoon. Kingston midgets meet the Petes midgets also on Thursday night.

* * *

The McGillis Eagles, Peterborough bantam representatives eliminated the Oshawa kids by a 6-3 round score winning the first game 4-1 and tying the second 2-2.

* * *

The Petes Oddfellows, coached by Johnny Godfrey carry the juvenile banner and are expected to be a fast clever squad. They ousted the Oshawa team 15-4 in the two game round. Here's what the Petes scribe said about them. "The Oddfellows have good, weight, and a smooth working system of teamwork that is hard to compete against effectively. They show good coaching and refused to be sucked into the corners or left flatfooted by fast-breaking play."

* * *

Howeyar, for all the ballyhoo, the Belleville youngsters are confident they can take the measure of the Littlock opposition often sweeping aside the Kingston teams.

Bantam and juvenile players are requested to report to Memorial Arena tomorrow afternoon at 4.30 to get ready for departure to Peterborough.

KINGSTON TAKES LEAD

Renfrew, Feb. 28—(CP)—Kingston Tuesday night took the lead in basketball play for "B" honors in the Eastern Ontario Secondary Schools Association with a 65-46 victory over Renfrew Collegiate.

Kingston started strongly in the first game of the two-game total-point series but Renfrew came back to earn a 14-14 tie at the end of the first quarter. The halftime count was 26-24 but Kingston forged further ahead in the third quarter for a 43-34 lead.

United States Gets First Title At Track Meet

(By The Canadian Press)

At Buenos Aires, Brooklyn's Curtis Stone won a gruelling 10,000-metre race Tuesday to give the United States its first championship at opening of the Pan-American Games. The Penn State athlete uncorked a last-ditch kick to beat out Argentina's hardy Ricardo Brako by five yards.

Shortly afterwards, Virgil Dean Severns gave the U.S. its second championship in high-jumping six feet, 4 3-4 inches.

Stone's time was 31 minutes, 8.9 seconds compared with 31.06.4 for the big Argentine laborer.

The other track championship decided during the day went to Argentina's Senora Ingeborg Mellis Pretzs, who threw the discus 126 feet 5 3-4 inches.

Outfielder Stan Musial, highest salaried player in the National League, was signed without leave Tuesday at the St. Louis Cardinal camp.

But manager Marty Marion took no action against the star.

Marion promptly forgave Musial after the outfielder explained he thought training was to start March 5.

"He always has been a good team man," Marion said.

Brooklyn Dodgers Tuesday signed baseball's longest-term television contract and became the first major league club to enter into a working agreement with a club outside the United States and Canada.

President Walter F. O'Malley announced the television contract with the Schaefer Brewing Company and also included the radio broadcast of all Dodger games at home and away.

"With options, the contract will run for seven years and is for a much more substantial sum than our previous three-year contract" said O'Malley.

Vice-president Fresco Thompson said that on his recent trip to Venezuela he agreed to furnish the Caracas club with a manager and nine players every fall.

Clem Crowe, former Baltimore Colts' coach, is expected to formaly sign a contract today with Ottawa Rough Riders football club to coach the Big Four entry for the 1951 season.

Crowe arrived here Tuesday from Buffalo, N.Y., where he farms. He is going back to his farm Thursday and did not indicate when he'll return to take over the job of getting Riders ready for next fall's campaign.

Jersey Joe Walcott, one-time dock walloper, checked in at Detroit Tuesday, his heart again set on the elusive glory—and gold—of the world's heavyweight boxing crown.

The apparently-ageless Negro ... came out of obscurity in 1947 to challenge then champion Joe Louis, fighting Ezzard Charles, current titleholder, here March 7.

He already has dropped one 1. round decision to Charles on June 22, 1949.

"I'm in far better shape for Charles this time," he said.

A Devon, Switzerland, team defeated the touring Bates Manufacturing Company hockey team from Lewiston, Me., 10-7 Tuesday night. Bates will represent the U.S. in the Paris "world" amateur championships next month.

Rollins Best Net Guardian In National

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)—Al Rollins, six-foot-two goaltender with the Chicago National Hockey League champions, was named the closest competitor to Turk Broda in the Toronto Maple Leafs. Now he's threatening to walk off with the goaltending prize and the league's rookie award as well.

Rollins has been the busiest netminder in the league than the lanky rookie from Vanguard, Sask.

In 70 games, including one from which he had to withdraw after being hit over the eye with the puck—he has won 18 and lost four. He's allowed 97 goals for an average of just a goal a game.

The Vezina Trophy goes to the goalie who plays the most games for the team with the lowest goals-against total over the 70-game schedule. So far Rollins and Broda have allowed 116 goals in 70 games. The closest competitor is Detroit's rookie Terry Sawchuk, who has been beaten 125 times in 58 games.

Rollins hasn't pushed Broda out to the sidelines yet. Leaf plans are to leave the rookie in until he's beaten—or looks bad. Then the Turk, if he is fit, will probably his last season, may get the call again.

Technique Changes Boost Canada's Chances in Skiing

Montreal, Feb. 28—(CP)—Two revolutions in the technique of Canadian racing skiers have boosted Canada's chances of placing better at the 1952 Olympic games than she did four years ago.

Canadian skiers have come a long way since the days when they dragged ski poles, and even a garden hoe, to slow them down on the dangerous Laurentian hills. But skiers and officials of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association agree that there are two major reasons for this improvement.

The first game in 1948 when Emile Allais, for three years world ski champion and a member of the French ski team, visited Canada. Allais left Canadians gasping with exhibitions of speed and racing skill. He knocked minutes off records Canadians thought couldn't be bettered by more than a few seconds.

One of his secrets was to keep the skis parallel a much as possible, smoothing forward and using the body above the waist to shift his weight at turns. This method threw overboard the old snowplow turn that slowed downhill and slalom skiers and lost many precious seconds in a race.

Hec Sutherland of Montreal, Canadian downhill champion and 1948 Olympic team member, summed up Allais' contribution this way:

"He made us forget the stem turn for the parallel technique; and he showed us thingsthat that almost reversed book he had on ski. Cable harnesses were out for racers and replaced by leather thongs."

The year following Allais' visit the French ski team contributed the revolution in Canadian racing technique.

Jack (Porky) Griffin, a stubby McGill University student and No. 5 Canadian downhill and slalom skier, said the French ski team used several racing tricks that are being adopted here.

One is keeping the weight on the outside ski, which means to ski the whole race almost entirely on one foot, shifting from left to right to make turns at the slalom flags.

They poled and literally skated out of turns, working all the time. It meant terrific speed between the flags of a slalom course that we hadn't been getting before."

Gorman Kennedy, chairman of the Laurentian zone of the C.A.S.A., said that with these improvements there is no reason why Canada can't be near the top in slalom racing. At the 1948 Olympic, Canadians never placed better than 15th in any race.

"In downhill, it's different. We haven't long enough slopes in eastern Canada, and the west, with the possible exception of Banff, Alta., hasn't the facilities and the large volume of skiers to turn out really top notch downhill racers.

"Our cross-country racers have made terrific progress but were still years behind the Scandinavians, Jumpers? They can be made, and we're trying, but we're still 10 years behind the Norwegians.

"But just the same, our boys have that intangible asset—youth—and we can still make a good showing, given proper training and funds, particularly in slalom racing."

Ken Laufman New Scoring Leader of Juniors

(By The Canadian Press)

Gordie Hillstead's Port Hope Laufman grabbed top scoring honors in the O.H.A. Junior A race as the Flatters whipped Trenton 9-3 in Mitchell's Majors 8-3 in one of three games played.

Elsewhere, Toronto Marlboros beat Galt Black Hawks and St. Catharines Teepees defeated Stratford Kroehlers by the same score.

The Guelph landslide came after Irish goalie Ed Chadwick was fielled by a stray stick in the second period when the score stood at 3-1. A trainer hadvertently fed Chadwick smelling salts, necessitating his removal from the game. Biltmores then poured four goals into the Toronto nets, both teams adding a goal in the third frame.

Centre Laufman got a goal and an assist to make his total number of scoring points 104, one up on Oshawa Generals' Lou Jankowski. Andy Bathgate with two goals and Bob Murray, Eddie Kulik, Ron Murphy, Don Keith, and Herb Dickenson adding single tallies to keep the Flatters in third place just behind Toronto Marlboros. Bob Schepansky and Bill Lev's counters failed to save St. Mike's from slipping a little deeper into the cellar-space rut.

In Galt Eric Nesterenko rapped in three to lead Marlies, Chuck Lumsden and Parker McDonald getting the other two. Hawks' Pete Conacher, Ken Wharram and Walt Gardner answered, but Galt goalie Jack Gamsby's poor protection from his defencemen.

Skip Teal and Bibber O'Hearn with doubles paced Teepees in their 5-4 win over Jerry Toppazzini getting the fifth. Chick Chalmers, Gord Myles and Bob Bailey replied for Jack Kemp.

Wednesday in O.H.A. major engagements Brantford Waterloo Dutchmen tangle with Hamilton Tigers and Toronto St. Michael's meet Toronto Marlboros. In the junior loop Oshawa Generals face Waterloo Hurricanes, Windsor Spitfires engage Currie Flyers, Teepees mix with Kroehlers again and Peterborough Marlboros and St. Michael's clash.

Spending Spree In Intercounty Comes to End

Galt, Ont., Feb. 28—(CP)—The Intercounty baseball league's spending spree of the last couple of seasons has come home to roost. At least one club won't go to the battle this year and three others may retire also to lick their financial wounds.

Right now, with four of last year's eight teams are sure to go into action in 1951—Brantford, Kitchener, London and Waterloo.

Stratford Nationals, one of the league's oldest teams, have given up the ghost definitely. An effort to raise $8,500 to carry on failed.

Guelph, saddled with a $2,000 deficit, has been unable to peddle its franchise. Last year, the Guelph team paid former big league pitcher Judd Wood a month as playing manager.

The St. Thomas team is reported to be $15,000 in the red. At Galt, restaurant owner Gus Murray has had his interest in the club for $8,000 after a dazzling display of showmanship over two seasons that gave out cans of corn syrup and roses in an effort to lure the women fans into the park. Murray is said to have an interest in the Guelph club now.

Waterloo Tigers, Intercounty and Ontario champions last year, folded up in July if they find themselves in the hole. They lost $4,000 last year despite the two championships.

Kitchener is sitting out with an $8,000 deficit. Owners of the Brantford franchise are reported to be trying to peddle it. London has embarked on an economy campaign—no high-priced American imports—in an effort to get back on the financial gravy train.

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP) — The protest lodged by Dunnville Mudcats of the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate 'A' League against Simcoe was upheld at a meeting of the OHA executive here last night.

CALUMETS ONE GAME UP.

Cornwall, Feb. 28 (CP) —Calumets, who showed their heels to the rest of the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League most of the season, continued their winning ways Tuesday night, defeating Pembroke Lumber Kings 4-3 in the opening game of a best-of-seven semi-final.

The Cals swept to their victory in an easy fashion, scoring all their goals in the first 22 minutes of play.

World Champs Hurt by Threat Of World War

If Casey Stengel gets a third straight championship for the New York Yankees, then there no longer will be reason to doubt that the man from Glendale is one of the finest baseball minds of this era.

They might dig—as some have—that "old Case" locked in with the last two pitchers using his patented system or double talk mixed with the two-shoot. But if he does it again, with the problems facing him this time, somebody is going to have to move over and make room.

For, before the serious spring training even begins, it is obvious that the world champions have been hurt by the threat of war worse than any club in the American League.

Stengel, as he makes a hurried search among his rookies, knows that he needs desperately to come up with a couple of hard-hitting infielders, another outfielder who can hit and another starting pitcher if he is to fend off the strengthened Boston Red Sox and the solid Cleveland Indians.

Bobby Brown, who alternated with Bill Johnson at third base, is gone—not in the service yet but a quick call if he should give up his medical work. His is a heavy loss when the Yanks open at Shibe Park.

Billy Martin, the scrapping youngster who was about ready to step into any infield spot except first base, is in the army. So is Ed (Whitey) Ford, the self-possessed young southpaw who came whistling on out of being the hero of the last world series game.

The loss of Brown and Martin explains why Stengel urged his front office to Herculean efforts to sign up Lou Boudreau when the veteran manager-infielder was turned loose by Cleveland at season's end. He had him for $65,000. His shaky failure to sign Lou did not put it squarely up to Stengel to find an alternate third-baseman with Johnson, who hit only .260 in 106 games last season. That has been the burden of Casey's early examination.

With all his other problems, Casey isn't permitting himself to worry about Yogi Berra's salary debate with general manager George Weiss. He says in all candor that Yogi is a great catcher and that "I don't care how much he makes." It is, of course, Casey's personal money.

LENGTHEN COURSE

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)—Immediately of high school graduates was given yesterday as the reason for lengthening University of Toronto courses for prospective doctors to provide for five years of internship. Dr. J. A. MacFarlane medical faculty dean, also reported that 61 per cent of the 1951 graduating class would enter general practice, compared to 16 per cent in 1945.

Gourleys, Moose, Alemite, Balyzs Bros. and Rockets were seven point winners over Bobkas, Legionnaires, Firemen, O'Neil Sales and Rowe and Hagerman. Star Welding rolled the high aggregate of 3453 to defeat Welding Gases 5-2.

PEDLARS' LICENCES OUT

South Porcupine, Ont., Feb. 28—(CP)— Tisdale township council clamped down on the issuance of pedlars' licences yesterday after a number of citizens reported they had received "$30 gold watches"—which turned out to be $3.50 brass timepieces — from three strange young men.

New York, Feb. 28 — (AP) — Detroit Tigers, one of the few major league ball clubs which do not operate big camps for farm clubs, plan to gather 40 newly-signed rookies at Southern Pines, N.C. for "screening" before they're assigned to clubs . . . otherwise farm director Roy Hamey can't see many virtues in the assembly line system . . . Says Roy: "Most of the smaller classifications, with younger players, get less quidance and less best of clubs of higher classification." . . . Such doings raise all sorts of problems . . . for instance the minor-league managers start bickering over players and think partiality is being shown to the other guy; clubhouse lawyers help give rookies inflated ideas of their own values and, of course, there's a little matter of extra expense for athletes going to clubs which don't begin actual training until May. . .

Sheris and Shells

Dale Coogan, the Pirates' young first-baseman who is pursuing education instead of grounders this spring, was the first undergraduate ever to play for the southern California baseball team . . . last season against the Varsity. Dale smacked three hits, including a homer. . . Like Coogan, Jim Cuka, Rockhurst Red Wings pitcher, is studying for a degree. . . Fred Lindstrom, boss-bean, daughter of Michigan grid coach, Bennie, is a skating enthusiast. . . Any football coach ought to be able to tell her something about skating on thin ice.

March of Dimes Hockey Game Attracts 3,000 Fans To Arena, Firemen Defeat Police 13-6

Nearly 3,000 people and two bands filled Memorial Arena last night for the second-annual Police-Firemen hockey game in aid of the Crippled March of Dimes.

It was gala entertainment from the time little five-year-old Sharon Rushlow, a polio victim, dropped the puck till the presentation of the Things' to the teams at the conclusion of festivities.

There wasn't a dull moment. Between periods of an exciting hockey game, there were clowns augmented by a pair of chickens nearly frightened to death by the rough-house surroundings; dancers and humorous ice antics by members of the Quinte Skating Club, and the famous police-fireman "obstacle race."

Gay music was furnished before and during the game by the Belleville Municipal and Kilmanock Boys' Band.

Police Victim Faces Off

The proceedings got officially under way with His Worship Mayor R. J. Potter, Police Chief Walter Probert, Inspector A. McDonald, Fire Chief Harold Vance and Fire Chief Gerald Vance and assistant chief chairman Al Dafoe "bodyguarding" little Sharon as she formally dropped the puck.

The dainty little miss, excited by the crowd, dropped it, then gave Chief Probert a shoulder and cried for a second. She quickly composed herself and tossed it to the ice to the thunderous applause of the packed arena.

Firemen 12-Police 6

The smoke-eating crew of Chief Vance had a little too much poise and finish for the demons of the fire-fighting brigade in their uniform of the law. But, it is rumored that Bolshoi ballet star stood inasmuch as the Firefighters had gone as far as Moscow in training and found the "imports" from their brothers of the Trenton fire department in fact one of them. Silver Hills was one of the Trenton fire-fighters wishing to blow bubbles inasmuch as he sported several bubbles in his hair. Chief Vance was also a potent factor in the winners' lineup.

However, the fire-eating buckoos fired home five goals past Police Chief Probert's net in the first period and the game took the aspects of a romp-away for the Firemen.

Police Score Three

And the crowd got up on its collective haunches later in the period when the Police crew rammed home three in a row, against one by the firemen to make the count 9-4. The period ended 10-4 with the winners collecting a last-minute counter.

The police buckled down in the third heat and scored twice before the Firemen got their third breath and stung home three quickies, the last coming with one second to go, to win by a count of 13-6.

McKee, Paxman and Fullerton were the main triggermen for the police with Leo Culhane, F. Smith, Ellis and Drake being the others for the winners. Only one penalty was handed out by the officials.

"Stop" Cried Goalies

Fair in the nets for the Firemen was one of their best defensive bets while "Turkey" Milsaro stopped enough rubber between goals to manufacture a couple of miles of fire hose. It was good, clean fun. The ice was not cleaned between the first and second periods. It wasn't necessary. The flying bodies of the puck-pursuing gladiators in thrilling "Jazzy" fails eliminated the need.

Charlie Race, Thriller

The "chariot race" of the rival departments, a feature of merriment from the crowd. Mounted on their china steeds, the charioteers dashed, up and down the ice, drawn by their hockey-sweatered steeds. First the Firemen, then the Police forged in the lead. Riders scattered themselves all over the ice. Near the finish the crowd stood up in roaring applause as the Firemen "gladiators" flashed over the line the winners by a "handle".

Other comedy skits were good. Led by Jack Dickens, members of the Quinte Skating Club fond humorous displays featuring a couple of lions elephants and a bear. The fancy skating put on by members of the club also drew rounds of applause.

At the end of the hockey game Mayor Potter formally presented Manager Frank Orr of the victorious Firemen with the victors "laurel wreath" symbolized in a pretty little china "striped kitty" parked comfortably in a special container. To manage Jim Driscoll of the Police team he presented a special trophy, which could have been the famous "Thing."

Express Appreciation

During the evening Mayor Potter, Chiefs Probert and Vance and Vancouver.

In fact they increased their hopes of administering a stripe-kitty decision on the limbs of the law early in the second period when they tacked on three counters before the law-lords finally got one past "Broda" Fair in the Firemen's cage. That made the score 8-1.

Movie Column

(By BOB THOMAS)

Hollywood, Feb. 28 — (AP) — In its constant worship of success Hollywood usually ignores the sagas of those who don't succeed. Here then are some stories that may jog a few memories.

Lee Bonnell came to Hollywood in 1928 with a fiddle, a tenor voice and a promising young girl were winners of the Paramount Hollywood contest conducted by Jesse Lasky. He won an R.K.O. contract, played in a few pictures in three years, including the lead in a film with Lucille Ball.

After three years in the Coast Guard during the war, he returned to his R.K.O. contract. But he got lost in the shuffle. After doing two pictures in the period of a year, he was dropped.

He tried free-lancing for a year with scant success. The last straw had that in the event my wife wasn't working, our kids would starve," he says. "So I turned to something more stable — the insurance business." There he found success, selling close to $1,000,000 worth of policies last year.

And the girl who won the "Gateway to Hollywood" contest? She's Mrs. Bonnel, also known as Gale Storm.

Girl Writer

Ann Marie Vasil wanted to write. Specifically, she wanted to write for the movies. Like many another budding movie writer, she soon learned the frustration of trying to peddle scripts to the studios.

But unlike the others, she didn't give up. She had an inheritance and she used it to buy space in a Los Angeles paper. Every Thursday morning on the amusement page, the paper's readers saw a collection of her reminiscences and ideas for film stories.

The series began months ago and are still appearing. The ads have probably cost her between $4,000 and $5,000 so far. And the results?

She had a lot of nibbles but so far I haven't gotten up to the bait," she admits. But she isn't discouraged and may still continue the ads.

FIREMEN ACCEPT RATE

Waterloo, Ont., Feb. 28—(CP)—Firemen yesterday accepted a $200 salary increase offered by fire and light committee of city council.

The increase will raise annual salaries of first-class firemen to $2,650, second-class to $2,400 and add $100 to the third-class firemen's pay scale.

Vivica Lindfors is co-starred in the film, which was made with the co-operation of the U.S. Department of Defence.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribbons

Akoslap Oxpert adopts a false bidding economy. To save a round of bidding he will not bring on show strength. As a result, he keeps his partner quivering on the edge of the anxious seat.

A jump shows tricks enough to help make a game of some kind in certain situations It announces a definite number of tricks. As in the case of the south hand shown here:

♠A 7 2
♥A K 10 3
♦A 4
♣A Q J 6 2

The opening bid with this hand was one club. The response from north was one diamond. Any response other than a pass promises no less than three tricks. The responder may have more but not less.

With a count of eight in his own hand, south already knows of at least 11 tricks in their pair. These are enough for game of some kind. If partner has another trick they may bid it.

Showing this strength would gain more than biding it. Even with a weak hand partner will then have no worry up to a game contract. Lacking this key, he need not hesitate to show any added values he may have. This little more may be enough for slam.

So, this is not the kind of hand south should try to hide from his partner. On the contrary, he should be glad to tell his partner that he has eight tricks. He can do this with a jump to two hearts.

True, he could save a round of bidding by saying one heart over the one diamond. There are times when an extra round will help a pair give and get information they sorely need.

This sort of economy may be important when a pair is weak. The fear is that the bidding will go higher than their values can afford.

The hand that south has does not lend itself to such a fear. He knows they are going a long way up on the scale of bids. And he will get more advantage by showing strength first, by saying a round of bids.

Sightseers Trapped On Aerial Tramway

A car with 20 passengers sways helplessly 600 feet in the air on the aerial railway running to Sugar Loaf Mountain in Rio de Janeiro, Brazilian sightseers were trapped for 10 hours when a cable snapped. Rescue came when an improvised aerial car went out over another cable and safely ferried the stranded riders to the Urca mountain station. They were carried four at a time. — Central Press Canadian.

ACRES OF CARS

Shortage of box-cars in the Windsor, Ont., area has forced automobile manufacturers to store new cars in factory lots. With a production of about 1,100 vehicles a day, dealers have been flying drivers in from all parts of the country to deliver the cars. An increase in the number of box-cars is expected to ease the situation, but meanwhile this photo of cars awaiting shipment from Ford Motor Company of Canada is reproduced all over the city. — (CP Photo.)

Princess of Gratzen

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

Soon the new butler, aided by Corinne, came into the room pushing a tea wagon whose little wheels were surely tails of the cats, for a mighty load of good things did they have to bear—ice cream of red, green and yellow colorings; more than one rainbow; cakes and pastries and tall glasses of lemonade and salads and small dishes like pictures and bonbons and mints—Corinne and a dozen other duties of which the old lady was so fond as any child could be. Soon had the Gretzen Gotzens been growing even wider, their heads growing invulnerable and Martin's eyes sparkled. Only Rosine, who had stood by to let Gesmer serve her cup for, made no sound, gave no sign of rapture, She stood close to Madame's tall dresser and she was staring up at the picture partly pushed aside and almost hidden by madame' black lace reticule—a photograph of a handsome fellow, framed in chrome. And Rosine's eyes held shock and wonderment and terror and her lips opened as if she would cry out.

"You are ill, child!" Madame had noticed how much closer than the others Rosine was grasping her plate. "Ah, perhaps you do not like my party?"

"Oh, but I do, Madame Laurin I do indeed. I love this party. It is only that I do not—that I was thinking—"

"Now, child, you must not think about all this good food before you. Eat up now. Afterward we can think about such. There is nothing bothering you?"

"No—no, madame. It is nothing—nothing at all."

Roger and Meridel came then and Rosine ran to her cousin and clung to her and hid her face against the pink jersey.

"Ah! you have eaten too much, Rosine. You have the stomach-ache. It is no wonder."

"No, no, Meridel. I have not eaten too much. I am not ill. I would not eat. There is—" she stopped and looked about her.

Meridel's hand smoothed her hair. "I am sure it is nothing. Come! You will sit with Roger and me and then we do not eat too much. Madame Laurin, you will spoil them with so many good things."

Madame, her mouth full of salad, looked sharply at Rosine. "You look as if you had seen a ghost here. Have some ice cream —some green ice cream. I'm sure that is the kind you like."

"If you please, madame. I am sorry, madame. I do like your party. It is all so lovely."

"I shall always remember it," said Pol Martin sturdily, and Mlle Gocjoux nodded their heads, which was about all they were able to do, having stowed away a truly marvelous amount of food.

Madame, Meridel and Rudolph sat for a while on the porch. Pol Martin and Rosine slipped up the stairs hand in hand, to the living of the house where madame had her rooms. The door was ajar.

"I do not like to go in, Rosine. Suppose Madame Laurin or Uncle Rudi or Meridel were to find us—what would they think? And what should we say to them?"

"I do not know. But you must come, Pol Martin. You must see it. Maybe I am wrong. But you must see this picture."

"But of whom is it a picture? Someone, you say, whom I am supposed to know. But who could that be? I know so few in this country."

"You must see it. On the dresser in a bright frame. You will know—"

"Come then! Quickly! But I wish I did not have to know."

They went into the room where a short while ago all had been so gay, so bright, so merry. It seemed empty now, haunted by shadows, by some sinister presence. The black reticule still lay on the dresser where madame had left it. Rosine, by standing on tiptoe, could move it a little and straighten the picture. The light was dimmer now. But there in its bright metal frame was the handsome smiling face, its eyes fixed on them.

Pol Martin gazed at it and slowly his lips parted. His fingers tightened on hers. He stared long. He could not seem to tear his eyes from that thin smiling face.

"Pol! Tell me, Pol.' Rosine's voice was urgent.

"Yes—yes!" he whispered. "I would know him anywhere. I could never forget. It was then he smiled the day he ran from Bon Hommes cottage. He wore the uniform of one of the Luftwaffe then. But it is he."

"Yes. I knew, I saw it before the party started. I could not eat for thinking of it. I could feel him smiling there behind me. But what could his picture be doing here? Who can he be?"

"I do not know. We shall ask Corinne or Gesmer. We shall not speak."

"No, we must not speak. These are good people, all of them. They do not know that the devil is amongst them."

"But Roger promised to kill this one—and Roger is strong. He carries a cross the King gave him for being brave. Yes, Roger will kill this one surely."

It was the day following the coming of the little English evacuees who were to find a home at Pfaffheri. Meridel knocked at madame's door to show the old lady a letter Rudolph had received from the bureau in charge of the little guests. Meridel entered when madame's rich voice called "Entrez!" from the inner room.

"I shall be out in a minute—ah, it is you Meridel." The door to her bedroom was open. "Make yourself comfortable child."

Meridel did not hear. The room became space and the moment eternity. Rapt, heartstill, she stared at the picture of Michel Fabre and slowly walked toward it as if drawn to it by some mighty, invisible thread. She had forgotten everything in the wonder of finding him again. She reached out and touched the photograph. She picked it up and looked at it, studying every lineament of the fine young face, realizing ho wtrue, how minutely perfect, had been her mind's image —the thick brows the cleft chin, the strong wide mouth, the broad forehead and aquline nose.

"Well!"

Madame had been standing beside her for moments, watching her, the glad look in her eyes, the way her young breast rose and fell. And madame was old and wise as the world and she had known love and thus recognized instantly what she saw in Meridel's face.

"—I am sorry, madame. I forgot myself." This man—may I ask —who is he?"

"An insolent, defiant, ungrateful young scamp," said madame, smiling fondly at the picture. "He is Roger's brother, my nephew, Michel Fabre. We call him Mike."

"Roger's brother—Michel —"

"Do you know him, Princess?" Meridel nodded. Slowly she put the picture back in its place. "I met him once in Gratzen, shortly before the war broke out."
